Christmas Parade Float Building Seminar Sept. 23

A "How-To-Do-It" Seminar for the Quincy Christmas Festival Committee will be held Wednesday, Sept. 23 at 7 p.m. in the first floor conference room of the Patriot Lodge, 400 Crown Colony Drive.

Speakers who are knowledgeable in float construction will be on hand to lend their expertise and answer questions on how-to-construct a float that will meet the guidelines for the 1992 Christmas Parade to be held Sunday, Nov. 29.

Festival Committee General Chairman George White points out that this year's theme "Christmas on Parade" offers unlimited latitude and possibilities in the planning and construction of individual floats.

Float sponsors are invited to send one representative and one other guest to the seminar. The seminar will begin promptly at 7 p.m. with introductory remarks and welcome. Bob Rogee of the Rogee Decorating Service will discuss amateur and professional float construction.

What the parade judges will be basing their decisions on will be discussed by parade judges.

Float participation criteria will be presented by Fran Flynn, Festival Committee Float Activity Coordinator, and Robert Noble, Committee Parade Day Judging Coordinator.

Following the presentations there will be general discussion and refreshments will be available.

White urges all Festival Committee members to attend this meeting and seminar. He asks float representatives to be prepared with questions about criteria for judging, the elements that go into awards, the importance of keeping within the parade theme and originality of the float design.

For more information call Fran Flynn at 479-4519.

Quincy Farmers' Market 10th Anniversary Celebration Oct. 2

Quincy Farmers' Market will celebrate its 10th anniversary Friday, Oct. 2 at 1 p.m. at the John Hancock parking lot.

In case of rain, the event will take place at Kelly's In The Square.

A short program will feature greetings by Mayor James Sheets and remarks by commissioner of Food and Agriculture Gregory Watson.

Awards will be presented to organizations and persons who have helped in great measure within the industry or informed the public about farming and farmers' markets in the state.

The public will have an opportunity to sample some of the farmers' market offering, prepared by the chef of Kelly's In The Square restaurant. Norfolk County Nutrition Education Program will present a food demonstration and offer tips and recipes for the day's vegetable offering.

There have been more than 40 growers during the years who have sold their products at the Quincy Farmers' Market. The market has given, and continues to give an opportunity for local growers to showcase their products, and to expand their farm stand sales. It offers the community to learn "pick your own" operations and farming in general.

Quincy Farmers' Market, as do other farmers' markets throughout the state, offers the community the opportunity to buy directly from the farmers, home grown field ripened fruits and vegetables. Shoppers get quality and freshness, as the produce is harvested within hours of the market, and the variety of vegetables are grown for flavor, rather than tolerate shipping.

Quincy Farmers' Market was established under the auspices of former Quincy Assistant City Planner Robert Luongo, now planning director for the City of Chelsea; Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade; and Quincy Assistant City Planner Roberta Fitzgerald, whose artwork has remained as the logo for the market.

The market was sponsored by Expanded Food and Nutrition Education, a program of Norfolk County, under the direction of Nancy Dowling.

Quincy Farmers' Market was the first market that was part of the Farmers' Market Coupon Program, an outreach program among the WIC clients to use farmers' markets for their purchases of fresh fruits and vegetables. In addition, the market accepts food stamps.

To get a listing of statewide farmers' markets, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Department of Food and Agriculture, Bureau of Markets, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, MA 02202.

Coastal Week Cleanup Sept. 26

The Neponset River Watershed Association will sponsor a cleanup at Mystery Beach, Squantum Point, Quincy in celebration of

"I know what it's like to be unemployed."

Meet Jon Bryan, candidate for Congress. Jon knows how difficult it is for the many people who have lost their jobs.

As a young airline pilot with a family to support, Jon lost his job many times due to recessions and a fuel crisis. So, Jon and his wife, Nancy, started an alternative energy business (A real Mom and Pop operation!), while he also attended night school.

Jon Bryan knows the importance of good jobs, and as your Congressman, Jon will support policies to help small businesses grow. Jon thinks a Congressman should support community self-help, and he'll give back the $40,000 payraise to charities in the district. Today, Jon's a senior airline captain, college teacher, and successful businessman...but he hasn't forgotten what it's like to be unemployed!

It's time for new, independent ideas in Congress. Jon Bryan needs your help now - and he needs your vote on November 3rd!

IF YOU WISH IT WERE EASIER TO KEEP YOUR HOUSE CLEAN, PIPE UP.

With an old, inefficient oil heating system, keeping your inside walls and windows clean is often a never-ending battle. But you can fight back by switching to natural gas. It's the cleanest fossil fuel there is. And since it burns cleaner, your house will stay cleaner. It's that simple. Now, if you only had a way to get the kids to pick up after themselves.

Over $4,000 Raised At Quincy Sun-Sons Of Italy MDA Activity Center

CHAIRMAN DENIS TARD0, Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth and Quincy Sons of Italy President Joseph Perfetuo are interviewed by Bob Gohl of WJDA at the Sun-Sons of Italy Muscular Dystrophy Activity Center at the Sons of Italy. The event raised over $4,000 to help the fight against muscular dystrophy.

GEORGE PARKER of the Yellow Cab Co. has been a familiar and generous donor to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for a number of years. Here he puts two $400 checks — one personal, one company — into the fishbowl as John Fantucchio, Lindy Monticoni, Ted and Betty DeCristofaro look on.

School Bus Law Reminder

The Quincy Police Traffic Bureau would like to remind motorists about the school bus law, now that school is open. Motorists must pass school buses that are stopped and have their flashing red lights on. The fine for failure to stop is between $200 and $400 dollars. Sgt. Hugo Cardarelli, Supervisor of the Quincy Police Traffic Bureau, said that police officers will be riding on school buses at various times to ticket violators of the school bus law.

Sgt. Cardarelli would also like to remind motorists of the Child Passenger Safety Law. Massachusetts law requires all children 12 years of age and under are to be fastened in a safety belt or child car seat while riding in a motor vehicle. You can be fined $25. dollars for every child 12 years old and under, not fastened in a safety belt or car seat. Sgt. Cardarelli further stated that the Governors Highway Safety Bureau has awarded the Quincy Police Department $10,000 dollars to enforce not only the child passenger seat belt law, but also pedestrian safety and speeding and drunk driving. Police officers will be stopping violators of these laws and ticketing them for violations.

Charles Simpson To Be Installed Quincy Kiwanis Club President

Charles Simpson, president of Quincy Savings Bank, will be installed as new president of the Kiwanis Club of Quincy, Wednesday, Sept. 23, at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

The installing officer will be William Hirst of Marshfield, It. governor of Division 8, Kiwanis International.

Other officers to be installed will be Sylvia Jenkins, president-elect; Robert Fitzgerald, Jr., vice president; Aldo Saluti, treasurer; James Mullaney, secretary; Thomas King, John Farmer and Fred Costello, Board of Directors for two years; Winslow Bettinson, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Ralph Pickering and Paul Graham, Board of Directors for one year.

Outgoing president, Ralph Yohe, will be honored for his year of serving the club.

The Kiwanis Club is observing its 68th year of serving the community.

A delegation from the Quincy Kiwanis Club recently attended the 74th annual New England District convention in Hyannis. Yohe presented a $10,000 check to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute. The donation was the third and final installment of the club's pledge of $30,000 to support the Institute which is dedicated to saving the lives of children.

The Quincy Kiwanis Club is second in giving to the Kiwanis Campaign for Children in New England. Additional funds are contributed annually for scholarships, camperships, and children's needs which are brought to the attention by Quincy School guidance counselors.

Proceeds from the annual International Youth Hockey Tournament in February and the Golf Tournament in June are also used to fund the donations.

The club also sponsors Kiwanis Key Clubs at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Hosts Acton-Boxboro Friday North Has Good Nucleus Of Veterans

By TOM SULLIVAN

Coach Ken McPhee and his North Quincy football team hope to be rude hosts Friday night when the Red Raiders entertain Acton-Boxboro in A-B coach Bill Maver's return to Veterans Memorial Stadium. Kickoff time is 7 o'clock.

Maver had many memorable days at the stadium, first as an all-scholastic end for the Presidents, then as assistant coach and head coach.

Last year North Quincy had an 8-2 record, the best in McPhee's 10 years as coach, and it opened with a 13-12 victory over A-B at Acton.

North lost many outstanding players but McPhee has a good nucleus of veterans and feels he can fill several holes left by graduation.

"We are not awfully big and we are inexperienced up front, but the kids are enthusiastic and we will be competitive," McPhee said. "We looked good in scrimmages against Newton North, Xaverian, Needham and Marshfield and we will wear red."

North received a tough blow when Sean Nee, a speedy little sophomore runner, suffered a shoulder separation and will be out three weeks.

Last year it was Liam Higgins who killed Acton-Boxboro. Called into action after starting quarterback Mark Taylor was injured, Higgins proceeded to kick two field goals and the winning extra point.

This year Higgins is the starting quarterback and, in addition to his passing and running, his kicking will be a key.

Offensively, North will start with Brian Raftery (245) at tight end, Pete Licciardi (210) and Mike Linnane (230) at tackle, Justin Dilks (208) and Dave Pacino (195) at guard and Nick Mastrogiacomo (200) at center. Pat Shea (150), Tony Licciardi (175) and Danny Duncan (175), who will also back up Higgins at quarterback, will be the wide receivers.

Higgins (195) will start at quarterback, Sean Skahan (175) will be at tailback and Mark Sinclair (175) will be the fullback. Also seeing action at tight end will be Dave Reinhart (210).

On defense it will be Reinhart and Eric Delorey (170) at end, Linnane, Dilks and Pacino at tackle, Raftery and Sean Halpin (210) linebackers, Tony Licciardi and Skahan cornerbacks, Shea free safety and Sinclair strong safety.

Jeremy Gott and Nathan Gott, Mac Ngutter, Dave Carney and Jason Piccardi will also see action on defense.

"Sinclair was an outstanding runner last season and he should have an excellent year," McPhee said. "Higgins can run well in addition to passing well and Skahan and the Gott brothers are fine runners."

Defensively, despite several mistakes in the Marshfield scrimmage last week, the team has come along well and McPhee feels the Red Raiders will be strong on defense.

Last season Acton-Boxboro finished only 6-5 but was 5-1 in the Dual County League, finishing second behind unbeaten Lincoln-Sudbury.

"If we stay healthy and come together, we will be all right," Maver said. "I am looking forward to returning to Quincy. I have a lot of fond memories of Veterans Memorial Stadium."

Maver has his outstanding passer, Jason Brady, back, in addition to center-defensive end Sam Martin and wide receiver Trey Gullledge. He has four returning starters on offense and three on defense.

Cross Country

Good Boys, Girls Turnouts At North

North Quincy coach Geoff Hennessy greeted 73 candidates for the cross country program.

A record 23 freshmen boys turned out and a strong veteran girls' squad make the season look interesting.

North's girls qualified for the all-state tournament for the first time in years last fall with a third place finish in Division II. The boys turned in their best record in years also at 3-5.

Suzanne Lewis, who was all-everything last year, is expected to have an excellent season.

Thornton, Wing Lau, Albert Man, Khanh Ta, Peter Tse, Jimmy Liang, Phi Nguyen, Tom Bowes and Jason Gibson.

The girls are led by senior veterans Suzanne Lewis, Karen Leary, Jenny Marks and Kerry Evans.

Juniors are Katie McNamara, Chrissy Herman, Melanie Gaziano, Erin Duggan, Kristy Kabilian and Erin O'Brien.

Sophomores are Laura Blaikie, Ursula Feurtdo, Danielle Rinella, Elisabeth O'Donnell and Kathy Gustafson.

Several athletes are training with the team but will only help out at the meets getting ready for winter sports.

They include Amalia Solano, Amy Danna, Phyllis Poon, Han Thai, Stacie Minukas, Tracey Grossi, Uchechun Kalu, Tara Valenti, Colleen Cotter, Cheryl Hurley, Joan Joyce, Jodi Mackey, Suk Ting Ng, Donna Zellen, Chandra Leister, Dawn Jacobs, Kerri

McMahon, Ilana Cobban, Bill Sit and Edwin Chin.

Hennessy is being assisted by indoor assistant Maureen Roche and volunteer Meg Gebhard.

"Our goal will be to get healthy, get fit and bring along the new people," said Hennessy. "Most of our veterans reported in excellent shape and several went to running camp. We'll just take each meet as it comes."

"Doing well at the states is not only focus, and of course watching this bumper crop of freshmen. It's going to be a fun and exciting season. Silver Lake and Weymouth will be the teams to beat on the girls' side, with Falmouth a dark horse. The Weymouth, Plymouth, Falmouth and Barnstable boys will be the ones to watch."

The North teams will open next Wednesday, Sept. 23, against Plymouth at 3:30 p.m. at Pageant Field. Saturday, Sept. 26, the team's will compete in the Bay State Invitational at Franklin Park at 12:30.

Youth Football

Panthers, Manets Win Season Openers

The Quincy Point Panthers opened the 1992 Quincy Youth Football League season last Sunday with an 8-6 decision over the North Quincy Apaches at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the opener of the doubleheader the Houghs Neck Manets defeated the West Quincy Elks, 12-0.

This Sunday night the Manets will play the Apaches at 6 p.m. and the Panthers will face the Elks at 7:30.

The Panthers started off with a bang when Brad Smith made a solid hit on the kickoff, the ball was fumbled and Jack Daley of the Panthers recovered, setting up the Panthers' only score.

David Gunther broke up the middle from eight yards out for the touchdown and Steve Roberts added the winning two-point conversion with an end run.

The Apaches put together a drive with under two minutes left in the half. Brian Walsh, who had a strong two-way game, scored to cut the deficit to 8-6, but the try for the extra points failed.

The Panthers put the ball in the air trying to widen their margin. Carmen Lorenzano hit Richard Garcia with a 65-yard scoring bomb, but an illegal receiver penalty nullified the score.

Panther Football Cheerleaders Selected

Crowley, Melissa Christopher, Jana Bagen, Bonnie Ford, Amanda Barter, Danielle Robertson, Natalie DiBona and Nicolette Martinson.

Junior varsity cheerleaders are:

Patrice Kelly, capt., Ann Marie Garcia and Caiti Brillo, co-capt.'s, Elizabeth Dunlea, Jamie McCarthy, Christina McLaughlin, Kristen Perry, Jackie White, Sandra White and Kristin Jakaitis.

Coaches are Patti Myers, Anita Curran, Beth Barter, Andrea Roche, Kara Bagen and Christine Curran.

Opens At Marshfield Saturday

Quincy Has Biggest Line In 9 Years

The Quincy football team, with its biggest line in Jack Raymer's nine years as coach, opens its season Saturday against Marshfield of the Atlantic Coast League. Kickoff time at Marshfield is 1 p.m.

The Presidents hope to avenge last year's 20-19 loss to the Rams, who tied Whitman-Hanson for the league title, finished 6-1 in the league and 6-2 overall.

Quincy, which finished at 6-4 last year, has a big, veteran team which will have one of the most exciting quarterbacks in the Old Colony League.

Robbie Kane, an outstanding wide receiver last year, has moved into the quarterback spot and has adapted well.

"Robbie isn't big but he is just an outstanding athlete and a real winner and he can adapt to any position," Raymer said. "He gives us a fine running quarterback and he is an adequate passer. He is a real scrambler and should be exciting to watch."

Raymer has some outstanding running backs who will be running behind a huge line. "We will be mainly a running team and I think everyone will have trouble stopping our running game," Raymer said.

Offensive coordinator Bob Noble is just as enthusiastic as Raymer.

"We have moved the ball well in scrimmages and we should have a fine running game," he said.

The offensive ends will be Dan Morrell (215), Sean McArdle (185) and Paul Colleary (190).

The tackles will be Duane Holmes (255), Steve Fernald (230) and Mike Feeley (230).

Mike Kavanaugh (230) and Mark Nutley (200) will be the guards and Mike Gardiner (165) will be at center.

Kane (155) will be at quarterback backed up by Mike Bartlett (165).

Running backs will be Dave Bogan (200), Noel DiBona (175) and Mark Clifford (180).

Jason Sova (165) and Jason Presente (190) will be the wide receivers.

Ashley Davis (160), Mike Elder (185) and Tim Dowling (180) will also seek action on offense.

"Bogan should be one of the finest runners in the league and DiBona and Kane are also excellent runners," said Raymer.

Defensive coordinator Bob Keuther is high on the defensive unit, which sparkled in scrimmages against Newton North, Brookline, Canton and Stoughton.

Morrell and McArdle will be the defensive ends and Holmes, Fernald and Feeley the defensive tackles.

Linebackers will be Kavanaugh, Bogan and Colleary and defensive backs will be DiBona, Bartlett, Kane, Dowling, Sova and Elder.

"We have a fine group of seniors and four excellent captains in Kane, Kavanaugh, DiBona and Bogan," Raymer said. "They are working hard with our younger players."

"I think we took Marshfield a little too lightly last year. We can't afford to look ahead to our first league game against Bridgewater-Raynham, the defending Old Colony League champions. Marshfield lost a lot of fine players but Lou Silva is an excellent coach and he has some fine players back."

Silva lost his outstanding brother pass combination of Steve Ruissi to brother Jim, which had a good day against Quincy.

Among the Marshfield players to watch are guard-linebacker Jeremy Soule, center Rusty Tetreault, offensive guard-linebacker Chad Besegal and offensive guard Robbie Covel.

90 Players In City Tennis Tournament

The 22nd annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament is underway.

The tournament is sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department. Continental Cablevision has succeeded long-time co-sponsor Granite Bank.

Tournament Director John Franceschini has 90 participants in eight divisions of play at the Russell Park tennis courts.

In men's singles there will be a new champion as Tom Savoie has not returned to defend the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Cup which is presented to the men's singles winner.

The other 1991 finalist, Joe Ryan, appears as the early favorite but Steve Kienzie is expected to challenge.

In women's singles, last year's champion Pam Trafton and finalist Susan Burke are both back and will expect a strong challenge from Susan Feit.

Play begins this week in the women's doubles division. Defending champs Sandra Burke and Susan Burke are back and Gail Trafton and Pam Trafton are expected to provide a strong challenge.

The men's over-35 singles will have a new look as 1991 champ Wayne Chatterton and finalist Chanapaal Akathaporn are not competing. Past singles champions Joe McLaughlin and Steve Myatt are the top two seeds and can expect a challenge from Leonard Civarro and Joe Ryan.

In men's doubles competition defending champs Bruce Riddick and Ciavarro and finalists Myatt and McLaughlin are looking for a rematch in the finals.

In mixed doubles, Pam Trafton and her father, Peter Trafton, will seek to retain the William F. Ryan Cup which they won in 1991. Al McDonald and Susan Feit are expected to challenge the Traftons.

A new champ will be crowned in the boys 16-and-under division to replace 1991 winner Ben Israel. Brendon Gibbons and Judson-Sherman Rose are expected to do well

OBITUARIES

Marilyn A. Robbins, 55 Teacher In Quincy Public Schools

A funeral Mass for Marilyn A. (McDonald) Robbins, 55, of Quincy, was celebrated Sept. 12 in St. John the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Robbins died Sept. 9 at home after battling cancer for several years.

A teacher in the Quincy Public Schools system for 31 years, she taught home economics at Broad Meadows Junior High School from 1961 to 1981 before joining the staff of Quincy High School and Central Middle School.

She helped write the original grant for a course in child growth and development which she taught at North Quincy High School in 1990. The course, which includes academic and hands-on training, is designed for juniors and seniors interested in early childhood education.

She also guided the students in charitable work with the Genesis Fund, which helps children, and was involved in fairs and fundraisers put on by the North Quincy students.

She was recently recognized for 20 years' commitment to children in South Shore Day Care programs.

Born in Chestnut Hill, Newton, she graduated from Holy Cross Academy and earned bachelor's and master's degrees at Framingham State College.

Her mother owned and operated the Surfside Motor Inn in Chatham, which she took over several years ago. She also opened Chatham Village Sportsbar five years ago.

She was a member of the Quincy Education Association, Massachusetts Teachers Association, and the National Education Association.

She is survived by her husband, Richard A. Robbins; a son, John M. O'Brien of Milton; a daughter, Margaret A. Woodward of Weymouth; and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Donations may be made to the Genesis Fund, 1 Randolph St., P.O. Box 550, Canton, MA 02021.

Verna V. Eicker, 70 Served In World War II

A memorial Mass for Verna V. (Rachel) Eicker, 70, of Quincy, was celebrated Sept. 10 in St. John the Baptist Church.

Mrs. Eicker died Sept. 7 of leukemia in Quincy Hospital.

She was a World War II veteran and a volunteer at St. Boniface Church, Quincy Community Action Committee and other local organizations.

She remained active throughout most of her 19-year fight with the disease.

A 1979 stroke left her impaired speech and partial paralysis, and she underwent therapy for a year and a half.

One of 12 children in the family of immigrants from the Austro-Hungarian Empire, she grew up in farm country in Dunlo, Pa. and started working as a maid at age 11.

In World War II she served in SPARS, the women's branch of the Coast Guard.

Through the G.I. Bill she studied retailing and stenotyping at the Chamberlayne School.

She became manager and buyer for Gilchrist's of Boston. She also worked briefly for the Quincy License Board as a stenotypist.

As a nutritionist for Norfolk County, she visited churches and housing projects to demonstrate how people can prepare low-cost meals. She was also a guide in the Dorothy Quincy Home in Quincy.

After suffering the stroke she concentrated mainly on volunteer work as an adoptive grandparent and with the South Shore Mental Health Center, Massachusetts Association for the Blind and the VA Hospital in Jamaica Plain.

She was active with the Bryan Veterans of Foreign Wars Post and the American Legion in Quincy.

As a member of the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, she taught the mentally retarded to run the cash register and perform chores at the Second Time Around thrift shop sponsored by South Shore Mental Health.

Her affiliations included the American Association of Retired Persons and the South Shore Stroke Club.

She is survived by four daughters, Jane C. Sweeney of Halifax, Betty Webb of Brookline, Judith E. Barton of Nevada and Barbara Ann Eicker of California; and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

James Barnes

A memorial service for James Barnes of Quincy will be held tomorrow (Friday) at 11 a.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Mr. Barnes died Sept. 13.

He is survived by three daughters, Michelle Barnes and Kathleen D. Barnes, both of North Attleboro, and Dona M. Larson of Quincy; his parents, Joseph and Julia M. (Bernotas) Barnes; a brother, Joseph T. Barnes Jr. of Hull; two sisters, Sandra Barnes of Hull and Victoria M. Rivers of Stoughton, and two grandchildren.

He was the father of the late James E. Barnes II.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

"Maturity is many things. First, it's the ability to base a judgment on the big picture—the long haul. It means being able to pass up fun-for-the-minute and select the course of action which will pay off later.

Maturity is the ability to stick with a project or a situation until it is finished. Maturity is the capacity to face unpleasantness, frustration, discomfort and defeat without complaint or collapse. The mature person knows he can't have everything his own way. "Nobody wins 'em all." Maturity is the ability to do what is expected of you, and this means being dependable. It means keeping your word. And dependability equates with personal integrity. Do you mean what you say - and so you say what you mean ... Maturity is the ability to make a decision, and then to stick with it, riding out whatever storms may follow. This calls for clear thinking backed with the courage to stand by your position, once you've taken it. Immature people spend their lives exploring endless possibilities and then doing nothing. Action requires courage. And there is no maturity without courage ... Maturity is the ability to harness your talents and your energies and do more than is expected of you. The mature person refuses to settle for mediocrity. He would rather aim high and miss the mark, than aim low - and make it." - Author Unknown

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

(Never Known to Fail)
Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in all my necessities. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein your mercy. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to assist me in this necessity. Assist me that I can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee. (St. Holy Mother, place this cause in Thy hands) (St. Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light our road so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things that you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person who say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the feast is granted.)

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who gives meaning to and shines light on my path so that I may reach my goal, you who gives me the divine grace to forgive and forget the evil done unto me and which is with me at every moment of my life. I want in this short prayer to measure my one more time that I do not ever want to be separated from you, no matter how and where the worldly pleasures may be. I desire to be with you and my brothers in perpetual glory will not be lessened. (One should say this prayer 3 days in a row without mentioning the request, within 3 days the divine favor shall be granted, no matter how unobtainable it seemed. Publish this prayer as soon as your request is granted.) AMD 9/17

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for two weeks a hearing regarding the request from the Deware Funeral Home for permission to store 250 gallons of gasoline in tanks of vehicles stored in a garage at 1272 Sea St. in Houghs Neck.

Scott Deware, director of the funeral home, said he has owned the garage for three years and has used it for both the storage and repair of vehicles. He added that he had not requested a license prior to Tuesday's meeting because he never before had needed to store more than three vehicles at a time in the garage.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman noted at the meeting that storage of more than three vehicles in such a facility would require an appearance before the License Board.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, however, said he was "perplexed" by Deware's request. Kolson said in addition to storage of hearses and other funeral-related vehicles, Deware has also used the garage for the repair of race cars.

102 signatures from residents opposed to the granting of the license. Morris said he and his neighbors were concerned about noise and other problems caused by the garage.

Deware said in his defense that while there might be a minimal amount of noise coming from the garage, he felt overall he has been a "pretty good neighbor" to area residents.

"My understanding is that it was to be used for storage only, but he (Deware) has been using it for repairs as well," said Kolson, who added he had received complaints from neighbors on the matter.

One of those neighbors, Thomas Morris of 100 Bayview Ave., also presented the board with

"There may have been a couple of isolated incidents (of noise), but then again, the noise might have come from somewhere else," said Deware. "Race cars are a professional hobby of mine. I'm not doing it for hire, and I'm not doing to for advertising to the general public. It's not a commercial venture, it's a private venture."

Kolson replied that even if repairs had been done at the garage for three years, it still wasn't right.

"You're not permitted to do repairs down there, even if it isn't a commercial venture," said Kolson.

Morris also presented photographs of, among other things, a dumpster overloaded with trash at the site. Deware said the dumpster was emptied on a regular basis.

"You are a master photographer," Deware told Morris. "You probably took that picture five minutes before the dumpster was emptied."

Gorman, who noted that he looked at the site on Monday, said the premises looked "very clean." However, he agreed that Deware should ask for a separate license if he needed to have repair work done at the garage.

Gorman then suggested a neighborhood meeting between Deware, Kolson and area residents to see if they could work out their differences.

Kolson and Deware agreed, and the matter was continued for two weeks to allow time for the meeting to be held.

Officials See No Impact City's Credit Rating Drops One Notch

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

One of Wall Street's major credit rating agencies has lowered the city's rating one notch, but city officials say there is no reason to sound the fiscal alarm.

"We've still got an excellent rating. It didn't have any effect on the city," City Auditor Robert Foy said Friday.

Last March, Mayor James Sheets, Treasurer Dana Childs, Planning Director Richard Meade, Council Finance Chairman Pat Toland and Foy travelled to New York to attend credit re-rating conferences with Moody's Investor Service and Standard and Poors.

Standard and Poors, which does not grade as many Massachusetts cities and towns as Moody's, lowered its rating for Quincy one grade, from A+ to A.

The city's rating with Moody's remained at A which was good news to Quincy officials, in light of the fact that the state had dealt the city back-to-back local aid cuts.

"The important rating was the Moody's rating. That's what 90 percent of the municipalities use," said Executive Secretary Thomas Koch.

"We really believe it was that visit (to New York) that kept the A rating with Moody's. It was the Moody's rating that we were concerned about.

"If it had been dropped by Moody's it would have been a concern. Moody's recognized we are fiscally stable," Koch said.

Mayor James Sheets, was out of the city and not available for comment. He is expected back at his desk in City Hall Friday.

Foy said the principle reason for the credit rating drop was the city's deferment of $1.9 million during FY92 in teacher salaries for the summer months. The auditor said the deferment was necessary because local aid was cut twice, a total of $5.1 million.

Without the deferment, officials say there would have been layoffs.

"In my opinion, the deferment of the school teacher salaries was the main reason for the credit lowering. The governor almost forced that upon us.

"They (Standard and Poors) didn't like that. It's a postponement of an obligation. Quite a few cities and towns did that. I think the mayor felt that, rather than have layoffs, we went along with the deferral.

"We didn't do it this year," Foy said.

According to the auditor, the state first cut Quincy's local aid payment for FY 92 by $2 million. After the city budget was passed this spring, Quincy's local aid

Sheets Backs Cahill On College Trustees Proposal

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Mayor James Sheets said he supports the idea of relieving the School Committee of responsibility of Quincy College as was proposed in a home rule petition Monday night by City Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill.

Sentiment is building among city officials to get the School Committee and Superintendent's office out of the business of running Quincy College.

Cahill introduced a home rule petition Monday to establish a new board of trustees to govern the two-year college.

"I've always supported this," Mayor James Sheets said. But we have to have a consensus among everyone involved... between the School Committee and the City Council... and I can't emphasize that enough... before we seek the support of the state legislature.

"I think it can be done and will be done," Sheets said.

A home rule petition requires the approval of the state legislature.

"This allows the college to be run as a college," Cahill said. "The purpose is not to undercut the authority of the School Committee. I think the college cuts into the time the School Committee and superintendent should be spending on grades K-12."

"Historically the college has added a dimension to the superintendent's job that the superintendents of other communities do not have... Of course it takes up time..." said School Superintendent Eugene Creedon.

When asked if he favored the proposal, Creedon said it was not appropriate for him to comment.

"My primary responsibility is to implement the recommendations of the School Committee," he said.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said he will call a special meeting of the Council's Education Committee to discuss the proposal with the School Committee and other officials.

ricia Toland, a current member of Quincy College's Board of Trustees, agreed with Cahill.

"This is a drain on the Quincy School Committee... it is not tolerable. It seems every School Committee meeting is permeated by problems with Quincy College," she said.

Toland said the primary focus of school committee members has traditionally been on education issues for grades K-12. She said the issues facing the public schools and the college are different.

"The School Committee agenda has been dominated sometimes by college issues," Sheets said.

Adams Historic Site To Receive $925,000 In Federal Funding

The Adams National Historical Site will receive $925,000 in federal funding for the next fiscal year it was announced Tuesday by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds.

"We are thrilled with that," said Mayor James Sheets. "It's the biggest increase of any site in the Commonwealth. This means we've broken through in the funding cycle (with the National Park Service)... We're on our way," said an elated Sheets.

The House-Senate conference committee, which earmarked the money for the site, approved $450,000 for planning of improvements to the Beale Estate, which is adjacent to the Adams family's "Old House," $275,000 for general operating expenses and $200,000 for a general management plan.

The National Park Service plans to use the general operating funds for a visitors center.

"We did not receive as much as we would have liked for a visitors center and trolley but we got enough so we can begin,"

Sheets said.

"This is very exciting news for the City of Quincy," said Studds who requested more than $1 million for the Adams Site.

"These funds are critical to our efforts to improve the Adams Site, attracting more tourists to the city and giving a needed boost to the local economy. Mayor Jim Sheets deserves a lot of credit for focusing attention on this project," Studds said.

The Beale Estate was acquired by the National Park Service in 1972. It includes an historic house, a carriage house and a barn. The site is in need of rehabilitation.

Studds said the funds "...ll be a first step toward making the property suitable for visiting.

"We want to be sure that tourists traveling from Boston to Plymouth and points south make Quincy their first stop," Studds said.

Rep. Brian Donnelly and Sen. Edward Kennedy also worked on obtaining funds for the Adams Historic Site.

Kolson Would Allow Certain Businesses In Residential Area

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson has proposed a zoning amendment which would allow residents to operate certain businesses in neighborhoods zoned Residential A.

All types of businesses are presently illegal in Residential A areas.

"It's a pragmatic thing," said Kolson. "There are people running a business from their home in every neighborhood in the city. This is to protect them."

The amendment places restrictions on the types of businesses that would be allowed in a Residential A area.

"This does not change the Residence A configuration," Kolson said. "All local communities close to our size permit it."

The proposal is being sent to the city Planning Board for review.

Businesses which would be allowed under the new law would include office for an architect, engineer, attorney, accountant, real estate agent or other professional; studio for an artist, musician, photographer or writer; small group or individual instruction or tutoring; tailoring or millinery; crafts; word processing; computer software development; telephone solicitation; an office of a sale's or manufacturer's representative; and tradesman provided the site is used only for an office, minor storage and parking of only one vehicle (weighing less than 8,500 pounds).

Prohibited would be clothing rental; barber shop or hairdresser; restaurant; repair shop; music groups; antique, clothes or consignment shops; animal hospital; doctor, dentist, psychologist or social worker office; automotive or related use; or other similar businesses.

The Council agreed that the Planning Board may add to the list of prohibited businesses.

Kolson said the amendment would protect people who have businesses in the home which are not disruptive to their neighborhood. Presently, these businesses could be shut down because, technically, they are illegal.

"If there are no signs and no trucks then okay. I know there are types of businesses that can be run from the home okay," said Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan agreed. "There should be no signage at all in Residence A."

"It should not destroy the residential character of the neighborhood," said Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney.

"I'm nervous about this. We could be opening a tremendous can of worms," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill. "It's tough to enforce now... Once we give it our stamp of approval it will be really tough to enforce."

Cahill said he would prefer to funnel business to business areas. He said there were many landlords in Quincy who are hurting and have commercial space available.

"Our big fight over the past decade was against encroachment of business into residential areas," Cahill said.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey argued that many of these businesses are very small.

"There are a tremendous amount of people who simply can't afford to rent space," Mulvey said. He added that in many cases families need the additional income from these home businesses.

"It seems to me that this would create an awful lot of bureaucracy for the Building Department," said Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio.

Cagney's Expansion Gets Board's Green Light

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Cagney's, 214 Washington St., for permission to expand its licensed premises from 1,300 to 2,400 square feet.

The expansion will allow Cagney's to take over the property at 214 Washington St., a showroom which is being vacated by Republic Plumbing Supply. Cagney's will also add "12 or 13 more tables" for the purpose of serving dinners, according to owner Mark DiBona.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro expressed his support of the license at Tuesday's meeting.

"I have no problem with extending his (DiBona's) business and making it a bigger family restaurant," said DeCristofaro.

The board did, however, receive a letter in opposition to the license from Florence Weeks of 25 Bent Terrace who wrote that she was upset by noise and "filthy language" she heard coming from Cagney's.

Weeks also claimed to have seen "legless" people so drunk they had to be helped to their cars leaving Cagney's, as well as teenagers hanging out in front of the restaurant.

However, both DeCristofaro and Detective Sgt. Richard Laracy, the city's liquor inspector, said they were unaware of any problems at Cagney's and had received no prior complaints.

DeCristofaro noted that despite his support of the expansion, he would not support a separate request from Cagney's for a Cabaret license.

"I will not support a Cabaret license," he said. "I have enough problems in my ward with music and noise without having to worry about that."

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey voiced agreement with DeCristofaro's sentiments.

"Consistently, I go along with the thoughts of the ward councillor," Mulvey told DiBona. "He's the guy who has to deal with the 2 a.m. phone calls with complaints."

Atty. William Sullivan, who represents Cagney's, asked if the Cabaret request could be continued for another week so that he could have an opportunity to sit down and discuss the matter with DeCristofaro.

The board agreed and continued the matter for one week.

McGrath Returns To City Solicitor Post

A week after bowing to Michael Morrissey in the Democratic primary for State Senate, Steve McGrath is back on the job as City Solicitor.

McGrath had taken a leave of absence back on June 19 to campaign full time for the State Senate seat being vacated by Paul Harold.

"It's nice to be back," McGrath said Tuesday, his first day back. "I was coming back anyway but I wish it was under different circumstances."

McGrath said he is busy "getting up to speed" on the Quincy College separation issue and checking the status of other issues including the MWRA pellitization case and the Braintree Dam sale.

Acting City Solicitor James Timmins returns to his job as Assistant City Solicitor. Attorney Dave Mahoney, who was hired to fill in as an Assistant City Solicitor, will return to private practice.

Republican Group Switches To Bryan For Congress

A number of Quincy Republicans have bolted party ranks to back unenrolled candidate Jon Bryan over GOP nominee Dan Daly in the 10th Congressional District.

The group, led by Quincy Republican City Committee Chairman Susan Gallagher and including other officers and members of the committee, held a rally in front of City Hall Tuesday night to openly endorse Bryan.

Gallagher criticized Gov. William Weld and "insider politics" for probably preventing Bryan from being this year's Republican nominee as he was two years ago.

In 1988 Bryan, who was a Republican, polled 47 per cent of the vote against incumbent Democrat Gerry Studds.

Studds is this year's Democratic nominee in the new 10th District after turning back the challenge of Quincy's Paul Harold in last week's primary election. He is seeking his 11th term.

Gallagher, speaking at the rally, said the decision to support Bryan was "the right thing to do."

Noting his 47 per cent vote in 1988, Gallagher said:

"If insider politics hadn't played a role in the election process this year,

John would most likely again be the Republican nominee.

"As a leader, I have both an obligation and a responsibility to speak out when mistakes are made. Unfortunately, that sometimes requires standing up to the elite of the party.

"My decision to support John Bryan is a personal one. I realize that in doing so that I will be under pressure to resign my position. However, I know that I will be able to look in the mirror and to know that I did the right thing. I'm proud to endorse Jon Bryan for Congress."

Gallagher said Governor Weld "broke the rules" by endorsing Daly, who was his under secretary of economic affairs, before the primary.

"Despite the State Committee making him aware of the situation, he continued to defy party policy, creating division among our members," she said. "We have no choice but to take this stand."

Daly, a Hingham resident, defeated Michael Crossen of Mashpee and Robert King of Plymouth for the Republican nomination in last week's primary election.

Daly got 48 per cent of the Republican vote to Crossen's 40 per cent and King's 12 per cent.

John McDuff, vice chairman of the Quincy Republican City Committee, speaking at the Bryan rally Tuesday said:

"As we note the birth of a new Congressional District we have the opportunity and the obligation to send to Washington not the better of two candidates, but the best of three. We are at a crossroads in America and I don't believe the old ways of politics as usual will do any longer.

"We must place the needs of our nation and of our district ahead of partisan allegiance. I believe that the election of Jon Bryan would be best for our nation and our district. And I believe that the principles that he stands for most closely match my own. That is why I am proud to publicly endorse John Bryan for Congress."

Three other officers of the Quincy Republican City Committee also endorsed Bryan. They are: Chester Freeman, treasurer; Ann Schotmiller, secretary and Sharenda Hosein, recording secretary.

Rank and file members of the Quincy City Committee were also present.

The City Committee has approximately 100 members, according to Gallagher.

We're Starting Our Silver Anniversary Year

Today marks the beginning of a major milestone for The Quincy Sun. With today's issue, we begin our 25th year -- our Silver Anniversary year.

A quarter of a century. The years have sped by. Our very first issue appeared Thursday, Sept. 26, 1968 -- the birth of Quincy's own weekly community newspaper.

Back then and since, we have focused on Quincy news, features, sports, church, social and civic events. We let the other media take care of national, international and news of outer space. For us, Quincy is the most important spot in the world.

We have seen many changes in Quincy. We were here for the coming of the MBTA. We have seen mayors, city councillors and other public officials come and go. And stores and businesses, too.

We have seen downtown Quincy on an economic elevator. Up and down. We've seen old buildings come down and new ones go up. We have seen the good times and the not so good times.

We have spoken out editorially when needed. We have tried to fairly present both sides of issues affecting the community. We have tried to keep our news reporting accurate because, "Today's Quincy Sun is tomorrow's Quincy history."

And keeping it straight is very important -- to you and to us.

We've gotten to know a lot of nice people -- our faithful readers and advertisers. Without them we wouldn't have made it.

And our young newscarrers. Where would we be without them? We have watched these youngsters grow up, go to college, get married, become parents. And we've seen them go off to war.

Where did those years go!

The Sun has won a number of awards for editorials, photos, special articles and supplements in New England Press Association and Massachusetts Press Association competition.

In addition, The Sun has also been designated a Blue Ribbon Newspaper by the National Newspaper Foundation in Washington, D.C.

And has been honored with awards from Quincy community organizations for its coverage of the community. These are the ones we most cherish because they tell us we are doing what we are supposed to be doing as a community newspaper.

Although these are not good times for a lot of people and businesses -- including those of us in the newspapers field -- we are optimistic as we begin our Silver Anniversary.

We have confidence in Quincy's future and in our own. As Quincy goes, so go we. And we feel Quincy has pushed the "up" button in that economic elevator. We are proud to carry the name Quincy in our name.

As we look ahead we want to again thank you loyal readers -- many of whom started with us with that very first issue back in 1968. And our advertisers who make it all possible.

For The Sun staff, thank you most sincerely. We couldn't have done it without you.

Harold Will Be Back

What now for Paul Harold?

After losing to Gerry Studds in last week's Democratic Congressional primary face-off, Harold is out of a job, politically speaking.

He gave up his state senate seat to make his run for Congress. That seat will be occupied by Michael Morrissey come January. But Harold supporters need not weep.

Harold already has an offer to join a Boston law firm. And he has another job offer all the way from Saudi, Arabia.

Harold, who has backed Bill Clinton from day one of this year's Presidential campaign could very well have something cooking later in Washington if Clinton wins.

Harold won't comment on that speculation. But an assignment, say, in the State Department would be right down his alley. He has a good overseas background from a number of trips in the past few years.

Harold, who turned 44 just before last week's election, doesn't sound like he's ready to leave the political scene for good.

"I think 44 is too young for political retirement," he says.

So, is he thinking of a future political campaign? Would he run for Congress again?

"It would be difficult."

DELAHUNT

How about Norfolk County? Would he challenge Dist. Atty. William Delahunt who endorsed Studds over him, a fellow Quincyite?

"I'm not looking at anything like that. Not right now, anyway."

Well, what about mayor? With the vote he piled up in Quincy last week (7,700 margin over Studds) he would be a strong contender in a mayoral race.

"I'm not interested in mayor. Well, not now."

Harold wouldn't run for mayor against incumbent James Sheets who endorsed him for Congress. The pair are good friends.

But if he should become interested when Sheets decides to step down, Harold certainly would be of concern to mayoral hopefuls like Councillors Tim Cahill and Michael Cheney.

But right now, he's not interested.

Harold has no regrets about running for Congress. When he got into that race, the 10th District seat was a vacant one as Brian Donnelly announced he would not seek re-election.

Tobin Announces $31,104 Grant For Council On Aging

Rep. Stephen Tobin in conjunction with the Office of Elder Affairs announces that the Quincy Council on Aging will receive a grant of $31,104. The grant is designed to supplement other local and federal resources.

The Quincy Council on Aging is the primary municipal resource for programs, services and activities for elders. Services include health screenings, information and referral, transportation, volunteer coordination and outreach.

"The Quincy Council provides vital assistance to senior citizens in need of a variety of services and activities," said Tobin. "I am pleased that we were able to award the same amount of money as last year, despite the current fiscal constraints."

STUDDS

Harold carried Avon, Abington, Brockton and Weymouth. But by only 19 votes in Brockton and under 500 votes in Weymouth.

Harold was counting on big margins in this end of the district to offset the lower South Shore and the Cape.

A light vote was expected on the Cape because there wasn't much local action there.

But Studds, who said he was in "the toughest race of my life," got the Cape vote out -- 85 percent of it.

When all the votes were in throughout the district, Studds had 61 percent of it to 36 percent for Harold.

The Harold camp was also counting on an anti-incumbency vote that apparently didn't materialize.

"The anti-incumbency vote didn't show up in the primary," Harold says. "Apparently it is waiting for November."

Harold says he will endorse Studds.

They've already met over coffee with Harold advising Studds to make the Quincy Shipyard and the MWRA major issues. To get work for the shipyard and to keep the MWRA from running loose.

Harold will be back.

Old soldiers may fade away. Young politicians wait for another day.

TOM GORMAN'S PHOTO in last week's Sun of the campaign workers and their signs outside the Wollaston School was sort of a local political collector's item.

Standing there with the troops was Francis Bellotti, former attorney general and lieutenant governor and gubernatorial candidate holding a sign for his son, Mike.

Young Bellotti edged Councillor Larry Chretien by 94 votes to win the Democratic nomination for state representative in the First Norfolk District.

Wonder if his father's quite visible presence might have brought some last minute undecided voters into the Bellotti camp?

Bellotti will square off against Republican primary winner Michael Cronin and Patrick Conroy, running as an unrenowned candidate in November.

GALLAGHER

SUSAN GALLAGHER, who lost the Republican nomination to Cronin in the First Norfolk District by a scant 40 votes says she will not file for a recount.

MILESTONE: Former mayor Joseph LaRaia has joined the "Sixty Club." And how time flies.

It's been 17 years since LaRaia at age 43 upset Walter Hannon in the famed mayoral election recount in 1975. LaRaia served one stormy term and was defeated by Arthur Tobin.

LaRaia returned to the City Council but has been unsuccessful in attempts to recapture the mayor's office.

There are those who think he will once again be back in the political arena.

MARY IS STILL a grand old name but for Charles McIntyre, son of the late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, Sheila is right up there, too.

Charles' mother is named Sheila. He has a sister, Sheila. And his recent bride is the former Sheila Renner.

Council Supports Father In Battle Of FR Bridge

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Joseph Smith is no quitter.

"For a year-and-a-half I've fought for the state to fix the (Fore River) bridge right," Smith said.

Monday night Smith brought his fight to the City Council.

On Oct. 12, 1990, Smith's 16-year-old son Roger died when his car skidded on the bridge's wet grating and into a steel drawbridge gate.

Smith asked the Council and Mayor James

Sheets to support him in his efforts to have safety improvements made on the bridge.

"I won't give up until this bridge is made safe," he said.

"This bridge will have another accident," predicted Smith. "It deserves attention that it hasn't been getting."

Smith asked that Sheets and the City Councilors speak out publicly about unsafe conditions on the bridge. He told the Council he has suggested to state DPW officials that the grating be filled with concrete or replaced and that the heavy steel gates be replaced by aluminum gates.

He blasted Gov. William Weld for "not caring" and also criticized the administration of former Gov. Michael Dukakis for not cooperating.

Smith said that it is important to have improvements made before another person is killed on the bridge.

"Maybe Roger's life will help save someone else's," Smith said.

He asked the Council and Mayor Sheets to join him in a vigil on the bridge Oct. 12.

Ward 2 City Councilor Ted DeCristofaro said some minor safety improvement have been made on the bridge in the past two years. He also said suggestions have been submitted to the federal Department of Transportation.

A D.O.T. official met last week with the head of the state DPW, James Kariotis, to discuss conditions on the bridge, DeCristofaro said.

DeCristofaro also made a resolution, which passed unanimously, that the City Council support Smith in his efforts.

Quincy's Yesterdays Foy Claims Dedication Political Rally

Frank H. Foy, a candidate for mayor, charged that Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was using the dedication of the Charles A. Ross Parkway as a campaign rally on the eve of election.

The dedication was scheduled for Sunday, Oct. 6, two days prior to preliminary balloting in the city election.

"Here we taxpayers are struggling to pay our excessive taxes and our part-time mayor and his political cohorts at City Hall have schemed up a political rally under the guise of a dedication to a former mayor," said Foy.

He added that his friend, ex-Mayor Ross, "was above capitalizing on a dedication two days before election for personal gain."

Della Chiesa ignored the charge and the dedication went on as scheduled.

GIRLS MISSING

Lack of girls at the lunch table was blamed on a one-day protest by the boys from Quincy Trade School against their new lunch schedule in the Quincy High School cafeteria.

The boys complained that the change in their lunch hour from 12 noon to 11 a.m. made it impossible for them to eat lunch with the girls from the high school.

The change was made to relieve crowded conditions.

TRUTH CAN HURT

Lincoln Zonn, president of Truth Associates of Boston, demonstrated lie detector techniques to members of the Quincy Kiwanis Club and stunned Kiwanians with the comment:

"No person alive can go 24 hours telling the absolute truth and have a friend or a nickel left in the world."

Programs, Fair Part Of Crime Prevention Month

In observance of Crime Prevention Month during October, the Quincy Police Department will implement new and on-going crime prevention programs in the media, at neighborhood meetings and in the police academy at the department's headquarters, Sea St. and Southern Artery.

In all, six different programs intended to heighten awareness will be available to the public free of charge. They are "The Bunco Boys—Con Artists and Senior Citizens," "Rape Prevention—Trust Your Instincts," "Street Smart—What To Do," "Personal Safety for Women," "Neighborhood Watch" and "Drug Prevention—Raising A Drug-Free Child."

All of the programs, except rape prevention, are one-hour. The rape prevention program is a three-hour seminar.

The above programs will be available weekly at the Quincy Police Academy. Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna said a program will be conducted at least two nights a week at the police academy.

In addition, the programs will be conducted at various locations throughout the city as requested.

Mayor James Sheets, along with Police Chief Francis Mullen, will proclaim October as "Crime Prevention Month" in Quincy. The month-long observance will kick off with a Crime Prevention Fair Thursday, Oct. 1 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. inside the Presidents Place Atrium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Displays of crime prevention methods and pamphlets will be available.

Local organizations wishing to have these programs presented at their meetings can put their request in writing in care of Chief Francis Mullen, Quincy Police Department, 1 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169.

QPIC Benefit Dance Set For Friday

The Quincy Park Improvement Committee (QPIC) will hold a Fall Fiesta "Fun"draiser dance Friday, Sept. 25 at part of its continuing efforts to raise the funds necessary to restore Collins-Rest-A-White park on Southern Artery, across from Veterans Memorial Field.

The Fall Fiesta "Fun"draiser Dance will be held at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, Hancock St. and Hollis Ave., North Quincy, near North Quincy High School. It will be from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Disc Jockey Mark McGillicuddy will provide the music. Tickets are $8 and may be purchased at the door or by calling Michelle Lydon at 471-5780.

Lydon, QPIC Chairperson, said: "We've had a tremendous amount of support for this project from local residents and businesses. Our Fall Fiesta "Fun"draiser promises a great night of socializing and dancing for QPIC's friends and supporters."

QPIC is a local organization with a growing membership whose commitment to Quincy's children has inspired city-wide support. To date, QPIC has raised over $35,000 for the restoration of Collins-Rest-A-White. QPIC's most recent fundraising effort included playing host to Vidbel's Old Tyme Circus at Marina Bay in August.

QPIC has met with various play equipment manufacturers and estimates that $60,000 is necessary to construct the kind of state-of-the-art children's playground that parents can count on to be safe and kids can count on to be fun.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

First Night Committee To Hold Puppet Making Workshop Sept. 28-Oct. 2

Quincy First Night Committee Chairman Michael Cheney announces that a Puppet Making Workshop will be held on the first floor of Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St.

The workshop, which will take place Monday, Sept. 28 through Friday, Oct. 2 from 6 to 10 p.m., is a community volunteer project sponsored by Presidents Place and conducted by the Back Alley Puppet Theatre of Boston.

The First Night Committee is looking for volunteers who are able to commit to the five evenings as it is an intensive workshop. Participants will construct a variety of puppets including 12-foot tall ones that a person can actually step inside of and operate.

The 12-foot high puppets will be used by the city as part of its First Night entertainment and may also be used in promotions and parades throughout the city. Several samples of the puppets were loaned to the city by the Back Alley Puppet Theatre during Quincy's fundraising

GIANT PUPPET, standing 12 feet tall, was one of the features at Quincy's Family Field Day last May. The Quincy First Night Committee is looking for volunteers to help construct similar puppets for the city's First Night Celebration on Dec. 31.

Quincy College Fifth Annual Environmental Fair Oct. 3

Quincy College will host its fifth annual Environmental Fair Saturday, Oct. 3 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the college's Saville Hall, off Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The fair will feature 40 to 50 displays, demonstrations and exhibits including live animals in the Stone Zoo's 'Wildlife on Wheels,' the

New England Aquarium, a seismic truck from the U.S. Geological Survey, a farmers' market with organic foods, automobiles powered by solar power and vegetable by-products.

In addition, there will be exhibits from the MWRA, the National Toxic Campaign Fund, a "Hazardous House," One Person's Impact, and more.

Admission is free. For more information, call 984-1641.

Mosquito Spraying Continues

The Quincy Health Department announces that spraying for mosquito control will occur today (Thursday) in selected areas of Quincy.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project will spray the pesticide Resmethrin early in the morning.

Areas sprayed will be east of Hancock St. and east of Washington St. including Squantum, eastern portions of Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Germantown and coastal Quincy Point.

Spraying occurred Tuesday west of Hancock St. and west of Washington St., including Montclair, western portions of Atlantic, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Weather permitting, spraying will occur between 2 and 7 a.m.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, low toxicity to mammals, low irritation levels, and the fact it does not harm other wildlife.

Notice of future spraying dates will be available from the Mosquito Control Project, 762-3681, each Friday afternoon during August and September.

Lounge Name Changed Back To Aquarius

The Age of Aquarius has returned to Quincy.

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Quincy Bay Inn, 29 Hancock St., for permission to change its lounge's name from "The Outer Limits" to "Aquarius."

was a change in musical styles.

"We changed the name to 'The Outer Limits' because we became more of a live band, rock 'n' roll club," said Nacar. "We want to change the name back to Aquarius because we're going back to our former D.J. and disco dance music format."

"Aquarius" was previously the name of the lounge until the switch to live bands prompted the name change to "The Outer Limits."

Women's Issues

Look at some of Gerry Studds' votes on issues of importance to women. Jon Bryan would have voted differently every time!

CRIME: Violent crimes against women have jumped 50% in the last 15 years. Every 6 minutes a woman is raped - every 18 seconds a woman is beaten. Yet Gerry Studds voted AGAINST mandatory prison sentences for violent criminals (HR3371) and he voted for the early release of 800 dangerous, convicted felons, including rapists (H.Res.341).

DISCRIMINATION: Studds voted against a ban on discrimination in the sale or rental of housing to pregnant women (HR1158).

SPOUSAL NOTIFICATION: Studds voted against notifying a partner if a spouse were found to be HIV positive.

PORNOGRAPHY: Although pornography may be traced to increased violence against women, Studds voted against a ban "Dial-A-Porn" telephone pornography (HR4401). It passed 380-22, despite Studds!

DRUG ADDICTED MOTHERS: Studds voted against shifting funds from his state-mailings to help drug addicted mothers (HR3014). It's time for a change! On November 3rd, vote Jon Bryan!

ANGINA PECTORIS

Heart pain which occurs regularly during some form of stress is called angina pectoris. It comes and goes quickly, often lasting less than a minute and rarely longer than five minutes. Angina may be brought on by physical or emotional stress or by a combination of these factors. Attacks of angina may be disabling because of their frequency and severity, but they do not cause permanent heart damage. Although they do signify the presence of coronary artery disease, they are not heart attacks. Angina usually responds quickly to nitroglycerin tablets. An increase in the frequency of angina attacks or a lessening of the amount of activity needed to bring on an attack may signal that a heart attack is coming. Such changes should be brought to the attention of the doctor at once.

P.S. Angina pain which develops while resting can indicate more serious coronary artery disease. See your doctor immediately.

It's important to know which forms of chest pain should be reported to your doctor. If you would like to learn more, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine.

When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Do you smile because you are happy or are you happy because you smile? Some experts believe that when we smile, the muscles of the face actually produce a beneficial effect that causes us to feel happy. Others claim that it takes 72 muscles to frown and 14 to smile!

So wouldn't it be wise that as a part of our routine of getting ready for our workday, an important meeting, or a social event, we wear a smile... Granted, good grooming and style are important so that we present our best appearance to others. However, when we smile, we share the inner joy of a happy spirit with others.

Are you feeling anxious today about an appointment?... Remember a smile is one thing that can make you feel happier and encourage others to feel at ease in your company. Whether you are going to a job interview, to complete a test, or resolve a misunderstanding, a smile can be a beacon of joy that shines within you to greet others...

City's Credit Rating Drops One Notch

was cut again, this time $3,186,000, to help balance the state budget. The state's FY92 spending plan was approved after Quincy's FY92 budget.

After being notified that local aid would be cut another, $3.1 million, Foy said, "The mayor looked at it and there just wasn't another three million in the budget (to cut). They (the state) offered the cities and towns the option of deferring teacher salaries for the summer months. In Quincy, that meant a deferment of $1.9 million.

"I say that was 90 percent of the reason we didn't keep the A+ rating. Of course, the economic conditions of the state was a part of it. We're just a subdivision of the state.

"I think this was the first time in four years the state balanced its budget and they did it, in my opinion, on the backs of cities and towns," Foy added.

The auditor said Moody's also mentioned the deferment during the conference.

The dip in the Standard and Poors credit rating, Foy said, will not impact the city financially with higher interest payments. Basically, the higher the credit rating, the lower the interest on municipal bonds.

"I don't think it will really cost us anything. I think most of the brokers that bought the bonds go more with Moody's than Standard and Poors. I don't think it cost us anything."

Foy said the city's credit rating is re-rated when the city needs to sell bonds on Wall Street. In March, the city sold $6,640,000 in bonds at 5.4 percent interest.

Of that amount: $2,959,000 was to refinance the remaining bond on the construction of North Quincy High School. With the refinancing, the city's interest rate dropped from 8.8 percent to 5.4 percent. With the lower rate, the city will save approximately $200,000 after the bond is retired in seven years, Foy said.

$2,515,000 for water main projects, primarily on Quincy Ave. and Washington St. That debt will be retired in 12 years.

$1,310,000 for renovations and major repairs in municipal and school buildings. That bond will be paid over 10 years.

$220,000 for departmental equipment for police, fire and civil defense. That bond will be paid over five years.

With the exception of police cruisers, all bonds must be for capital projects and last a minimum of five years. Cruisers do not normally last more than five years, Foy said.

Quincy's bonds were purchased by a conglomerate, Foy said, comprising Bear Stearns, a brokerage firm; and two financial institutions, State Street Bank and Trust and BayBank.

The city received six bids for the bonds, ranging from 5.4 percent to 5.65 percent. "They were all good bids," Foy said.

Koch added, "The bids came in at a double A rating."

The city will be rated again the next time it needs to sell a bond. One potential bond is for an early childhood learning center in West Quincy and an addition to the Bemazzani School.

With a city and state both operating with a balanced budget, Foy said there is a "good chance" Quincy's bond rating will increase at the next re-rating.

"If we went for a rating now, I think there's a good chance of our rating going up in both Moody's and Standard and Poors. They know we have a balanced budget and the state has a balanced budget and hopefully (the state) will not cut local aid.

"But it varies. That's why you have to go out for a new rating every time."

Presently, both Quincy credit ratings are only two rungs away from the top of the credit rating ladder. The top rating is AAA followed by AA. "There are very few triple A ratings and only a few double A ratings," Foy said, adding each ranking has three variations: double plus, single plus and base level.

Below the A rating is B, C and junk bond levels.

Raiders Look For Second Win At Falmouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

It didn't come easy, but the North Quincy football team held on for a 21-19 victory over Acton-Boxboro last Friday and this Friday night the Raiders will open their Old Colony League schedule at Falmouth at 7 p.m.

Falmouth, which lost to North, 27-0, last year, opened last Saturday with an easy 34-7 victory over Dennis-Yarmouth.

North coach Ken McPhee was pleased with the opening night victory and called it a "total team effort."

"I'm satisfied with our performance and we beat a good team," McPhee said. "The thing that pleased me most was that the kids who had to do it did it. We came up with a lot of cramps and I had to take several starters out and the replacements came through very well."

"Sean Herron came in and did a fine job. Dan Duncan came up with a couple of very big plays and Josh Goff and Sean Skahan played fine games. Mark Sinclair was sensational (23 carries for 84 yards, a touchdown and two-point conversion), Liam Higgins had a fine game at quarterback (6-for-15 for 87 yards and two touchdowns), and Brian Raftery and Sean Halpin were outstanding as linebackers."

Acton-Boxboro scored twice on passes in the first half but North made adjustments and put much more of a rush on the A-B quarterback in the second half.

It was a disappointing return to Quincy for A-B coach Bill Maver, whose first A-B team dropped a 13-12 squeaker to North Quincy a year ago. Maver, an outstanding end and later coach at Quincy High, had some excellent games at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"It was a tough loss and fumbles hurt us, but they came as a result of hard hits by North Quincy," Maver said. "They have a fine team and hit hard all night."

North scored early as Eric Delorey recovered an A-B fumble on the A-B 17 56 seconds into the game. It took Sinclair four carries to score from the one. Higgins' kick for the extra point was blocked.

Another fumble recovery set up North's second scored midway in the second quarter.

Dave Reinhart, who had an outstanding game, shook the ball loose with a jarring tackle and Dave Pacino recovered on the A-B 18. Higgins passed to Pat Shea for six yards and the touchdown. Sinclair rushed for the two-point conversion.

Acton quarterback Jason Brady (5-of-6 for 108 yards) hit Andy Butler with a 40-yard scoring bomb and Brady kicked the extra point to make it 14-7.

Just before the half Sam Martin intercepted a Higgins pass on the North 30 and two plays later

Brady hit Trey Gulledge with a 14-yard scoring pass. The try for the extra point failed and the Raiders took a 14-13 lead off the field at intermission.

North Quincy drove 80 yards after receiving the kickoff, featuring a 31-yard run by Skahan.

Higgins hit Duncan for a 10-yard scoring pass, Duncan making a fine catch and holding on to the ball after being hit hard. Higgins kicked the extra point.

The Colonials came back and went 61 yards in seven plays. Freshman Jay Close carried twice for 24 yards and Chris Mahaney ran it in from 10 yards out. A pass for the tying points failed.

Duncan made another big play when he intercepted a pass with time running out to ensure North's victory.

The game was remarkably free of penalties, especially for an opening game.

A-B lost the game but it did bring the biggest and finest band seen in Quincy in some time. The band, twirlers and cheerleaders presented a sparkling halftime show.

Youth Football

Point Panthers, Apaches Win

The Quincy Point Panthers defeated the West Quincy Elks, 16-0, Sunday for their second straight Quincy Youth Football League victory. The Elks fell to 0-2.

The North Quincy Apaches edged the Houghs Neck Manets, 6-0. Both teams are 1-1.

This Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium the Manets face the Elks at 6 p.m. and the Panthers meet the Apaches at 7:30 p.m.

Two was the magic number for the Panthers who scored two touchdowns, added two two-point conversions, twice held the Elks deep in their own territory and picked up their second win.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Panthers scored on the first series of the second quarter when Richard Garcia caught a touchdown pass from Carmen Lorenzano. David Gunther rushed for the two extra points.

The Panthers added their second touchdown in the third quarter when Steve Roberts ran it in from 25 yards out. He then rushed for the two-point conversion.

The Elks received a solid, two-way performance from Dan DiPaolo.

The Apaches scored the only touchdown of their game with the Manets in the opening quarter when Sean O'Toole took a handoff from quarterback Jim Finn and raced around right end for the score.

Both teams played outstanding defense the rest of the way as neither team was able to mount a solid drive.

With time winding down in the game an aggressive Manet defense forced the Apaches to punt from their own end zone. Finn punted to the Manet 40 and time ran out before the Manets could reach pay dirt.

O'Toole, Finn and Pat Egan all played well for the Apaches on offense, while Mike Mastroccla, Andrew Cameron and Chris Halpin shone on defense.

Austin, Munroe Spark UMass/Boston In Opener

The UMass/Boston football team made an impressive start in the newly realigned New England Conference last Saturday as it defeated Westfield State, 34-20, and two Quincy players were the keys in a record-breaking performance.

Quincy's Steve Austin

made his first start at quarterback and completed 20 of 32 passes for 350 yards and four touchdowns and Quincy's Sean Munroe caught 11 of the passes for 213 yards and two touchdowns.

Austin hit Munroe for scoring passes of 14 and nine yards and also had a nine-yard TD pass to Dennis Rohanna and a 16-yard scoring strike to Lawrence Hicks.

Last season Munroe set two single-game and three single-season receiving records for the Beacons, hauling in 31 passes for 541 yards and four touchdowns.

Bantam B's Open With 5-0 Win Over Waltham

The Quincy Youth Hockey Bantam B's opened the season with a 5-0 blanking of Waltham.

Mark Regan scored the first goal with assists by Jason Healy and Jeff Coleman. Chris McArdle netted the next two goals, the first unassisted and the second assisted by Shawn McTomney.

Jeff Coleman and Tom Moriarty scored the other two goals with assists by Healy and Joe Bracken.

Mark Smith was superb in goal and recorded the shutout. Quincy's defense thwarted Waltham on many occasions as Matt Jarnis, Craig Pinkham and Tim Zaniboni had outstanding games. Rob Callow played an excellent game at forward.

Quincy faces Pembroke on Sunday at 11:40 a.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena. The team is coached by Chuck Hughes and John Grennon.

Presidents Plan Changes Against B-R

By TOM SULLIVAN

There will be some changes made, especially on defense, when the Quincy football team opens its Old Colony League season Saturday against defending league champion Bridgewater-Raynham in a 1:30 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Presidents opened their season on a disappointing note last Saturday when they lost to Marshfield, 21-7, at Marshfield.

B-R, which trampled Quincy, 52-12, a year ago, launched its season last Saturday with a 14-0 victory over Canton.

"I was very disappointed in our defensive line against Marshfield," said coach Jack Raymer. "They just didn't come to play and Marshfield's offensive line outplayed us consistently. Marshfield has a fine team and has some big boys and I think our players thought it would be easy when some people predicted we would win big."

"Offensively we did pretty well but we hurt ourselves with a lot of penalties. A couple of passes were also dropped. Offensively we'll stay the same but we have to make some adjustments on defense."

Robbie Kane had a good day in his debut at quarterback. Passing he was 7-for-11 for 68 yards and rushing he carried eight times for 64 yards. He would have gone over 100 yards but had a 40-yard run nullified by a penalty.

Noel DiBona carried 15 times for 75 yards and Dave Bogan carried eight times for 44 yards, as the Presidents gained 183 yards on the ground.

"Steve Fernald, Mike Gardiner, Mark Nutley, Duane Holmes and Paul Colleary played excellent games in the line," Raymer said.

After Quincy was held on its first series, Marshfield drove 53 yards for its first score. Mike Holte sparked the drive and scored from the one. He also kicked the first of his three extra points.

The Presidents came back and tied the score early in the second quarter and drove 75 yards with Kane shaking loose on the option for two first downs. Following a face mask penalty against the Rams, DiBona scored from the five and also kicked the tying point.

A Quincy drive was stopped when the Rams' Matt Harrington recovered a fumble on the Quincy 40.

The Presidents received a tough break when Kane batted down a pass from Don Robicheau only to have the ball bounce off Kane's shoulder and into the hands of Pat Shafto on the Quincy five with only 38 seconds left in the half.

Two plays later Robicheau found junior Sean Morey open in the end zone and the Rams led, 14-7, following Holte's second extra point.

"That was a real tough break as Robbie did everything he should have in knocking the ball down," said Raymer.

The Rams' defense continued to make it a long afternoon for the bigger Presidents as the ground game was shut down and a lot of pressure was put on Kane.

Marshfield clinched the win with a touchdown in the final quarter. The big play was a screen pass to Holte, who raced 69 yards all the way to the Quincy 14. Holte scored his second touchdown from the three and kicked his third extra point. The game is being played on Saturday because Bridgewater-Raynham refuses to play night games. The Trojans are allowed to play on Saturday despite the fact that every other school in the league favors night games.

Soccer

North Posts 6-1 Win Over Barnstable

The North Quincy boys' soccer team has been impressive in its first three games and has a 1-2 record following a 6-1 victory over Barnstable.

Dan Dana's scored two goals for the Raiders and Bo Smith, Neil Hutchinson, Brian Kelley and Scott McCormick one apiece.

North opened with a 3-0 loss to a powerful Plymouth team and then was edged by Falmouth, 3-2.

Bob Johnston scored for North from and indirect kick by senior co-captain Brian Fitzgerald, who also assisted on the second goal by senior Dana's.

North goalkeeper Adam Calvert had nine saves.

The Raiders will host Taunton Friday and next Thursday will play at Weymouth at 6:30.

"It's nice to get a win early in the season, but the most important thing for us as a team is to establish a style of play that will keep us competitive in a very tough league (Old Colony)," said coach Robert Dano.

Senior players are Co-Captains. Smith and Brian Fitzgerald, Mark Cahill, Calvert, Jeff Earnest, Dana's, Brian Kelley, Mike MacDougall, Mike

Fitzgerald and Mike Kowlicik.

Juniors are Zae Costa, Brad Galanek, Hutchinson, Johnston, Patrick King, Spiro Kouvlis, McCormick, Ed Mitton and Sean Williamson.

Sophomores are Tom Bianco, Ralph DiMattia, Tom Meade, Tom Rines, Jared Rowland and Tung Vu.

Bob Doyle is assistant coach and Adam Chansky is the team statistician. —Tom Sullivan

Police Win Babe Ruth Title

The Quincy Police Club defeated Granite City Electric, 3-2, to win the 1992 Quincy Babe Ruth League Championship recently. It was the second time in three years for the Police.

The team finished with the best regular season record (16-5-1) in the league and swept through the playoffs with a record of 4-0.

Coaches are Bill Shea, Bob O'Connor and Jeff

Calvert. The coaches would like to thank the Quincy Police Betterment

Association for sponsoring the team and also family and friends of the team for their support.

In the C division Comm Vending defeated Fabulous Tanx in five games.

KATHIE FORD

Kathie Ford Named All-America Cheerleader

Kathie Ford of Quincy was recently selected for the National Cheerleaders Association All-America Team.

Ford, a sophomore cheerleader at Archbishop Williams High School, was selected after AWHHS won the team award at the NCA summer camp at the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth.

It was the second straight year the Bishops won top honors. There were more than 200 cheerleaders competing from 16 squads from Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

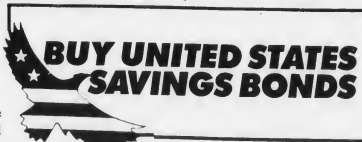

The win earns a bid for the Bishops to the NCA National Championships in Dallas, Texas.

Ford's accomplishment qualifies her for a chance to cheer at the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York, the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Dublin, or the Aloha Bowl in Hawaii.

Winners were selected on the basis of cheerleading technique, leadership and all-around ability.

Ford, 15, is a member of the varsity football cheerleaders at AWHHS and was a varsity basketball cheerleader as a freshman and also ran spring track.

The daughter of Tom and Jane Ford, she is a former captain of the Quincy Point Panther and St. Joseph School cheerleaders.

Four Champions Crowned, Four To Go Quincy Tennis Tourney At Halfway Point

The 22nd annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and Continental Cablevision, is at the halfway mark in crowning its 1992 champions.

Four of the eight divisions have completed play and Pam Trafton has already captured two titles. The North Quincy High School student won the women's singles championship, then teamed with her dad, Peter Trafton, to defend the William F. Ryan Cup in mixed doubles they won last year.

In the women's single final, Pam Trafton won her third straight title defeating Susan Burke, 6-2, 6-2. Both ladies are armed with complete games, and displayed their talents for two sets of exciting tennis action. The difference was Trafton's consistent ground game.

The men's 35 and over singles championship paired up two longtime competitors, Joe Ryan and Lenny Ciavaro. Three hours and ten minutes after they started, they entertained the fans with some great tennis and demonstrated their durability. In the end, with both players fighting heat and leg cramps, Ciavaro defeated Ryan (6-4, 6-7, 6-4).

In mixed doubles, the Traftons defeated the tough team of Al McDonald and Sue Feit (6-0, 6-1) in a solid match.

Many of the boy's 16 and under champions have gone to have great success in the open men's singles draw. This year's champion, Brendan Gibbons, looks to be no different. Gibbons defeated another fine player, Jeff McHugh (6-1, 6-2).

Tournament Director John Franceschini and Recreation Director Barry Welch presented engraved plaques to each champion and finalist on behalf of the tournament sponsor, Continental Cablevision.

Each winner also has his or her name engraved on the permanent bowl for year-round display in the recreation office.

Saturday's early morning rain delayed several key matches, leaving the men's singles, men's B, women's doubles, and men's doubles championships to be decided.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

The School Bus Law (Again)

In last week's column, I attempted to give you a brief synopsis of the state law regarding school buses. Due to a typographical error, on my part, the article was incorrect. This week I will give you the entire school bus law so that there will be no mistake in its interpretation.

Mass. Law Ch 90 s14.

When approaching a vehicle which displays a sign bearing the words "SCHOOL BUS" and which is equipped with front and rear alternating flashing red signal lamps which are flashing, as provided in section seven B, and which has been stopped to allow pupils to alight from or board the same, a person operating a motor vehicle or trackless trolley shall, except when approaching from the opposite direction on a divided highway, bring his vehicle or trackless trolley to a full stop before reaching said school bus and shall NOT thereafter proceed until the warning signals are deactivated, unless directed to the contrary by a police officer duly authorized to control the movement of traffic. Any person who violates the provisions of the preceding sentence shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars; and for a second offense committed within two years of his prior offense, by a fine of not less than three hundred dollars nor more than four hundred dollars; and for a third or subsequent offense committed within four years of the earlier of his two most recent prior offenses, by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars.

I would also like to thank the many callers who took the time to let me know of the error. It just shows that you folks are really alert and on the ball.

Toland introduced the same proposal to the School Committee last winter. However, the School Committee has not acted on the idea.

Recent School Committee meetings have been dominated by debate between committee members and Quincy College President O. Clayton Johnson.

Last week School Committeeman Frank Santoro filed complaints that Johnson has exceeded his authority on various occasions.

"This is probably the right time (to separate the college from the school committee)," Johnson said. "These public skirmishes are not doing the college any good... at least public relations wise.

"The college does need an independent form of governance. Seventy percent of our students are not from Quincy... and the School Committee is bound to K-12 issues," Johnson said.

However, some City Councillors expressed reservations about making the change now while the 5,000-student college is mired in controversy.

"Is this the right time?" asked Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro.

"There may be problems at the college that haven't surfaced yet," said Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney.

School Committeeman Stephen Durkin agreed that the college should not be governed by the School Committee but that current matters should be straightened out before a change is made.

"The college has outgrown the present governance structure," Durkin said. "At our upcoming meetings (School Committee) will be focusing on college issues at the expense of K-12. It's outrageous... We are wasting time and this is also affecting the superintendent and his staff by taking away from their other responsibilities."

Durkin said he supports a change for the near future but, "It's too unstable right now for change."

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson agreed with Cahill and said the controversy swirling around Johnson is more reason to make the change now.

Kolson praised Johnson for improving the college's enrollment and financial situation. "But if they (new board of trustees) don't like him maybe this will help them get someone else."

Cahill said a board of trustees could make the necessary decisions concerning the college, including the future of Johnson.

"If the board decides Johnson is okay, then they can vote to keep him. If they feel he is crimping the college, they can get rid of him," Cahill said.

"The present situation is hurting students and all who are involved. This would be best for everyone," Cahill said.

"Our accreditation reports said we should have separate governance," Johnson said. He also said the last three school superintendents, Eugene Creedon, Dr. Robert Ricci and John Osterman, have also agreed that the college should be run separately.

"At the time the proposal was made to the School Committee we were awaiting the results of a report on the issue from a consultant," Durkin said.

The consultant's report recommended that the college should be more independent, that the president should not report to the superintendent, Durkin said.

"But also that the situation should be stabilized at the college first," Durkin said, adding that the report was made five months ago before the present controversy.

The present proposal calls for a new board of trustees to be appointed by the mayor with five members being recommended by the City Council and five by the School Committee, with the mayor serving as chairman. Durkin said he would like to see some kind of combination of the mayor, School Committee and City Council select the board.

"This is not written in stone," Cahill said. "I want to hear input from the School Committee."

The present college board of trustees is selected by vote of the School Committee on nominations made by the board of trustees.

The present trustees are responsible for advising the school committee on college issues.

Cahill said the change would help the college grow. He said he would like to see the school become a four-year institution which would benefit the city economically and in other ways.

Carmela, Dick Corbin Commended By Council

Carmela and Dick Corbin, owners of Corbin's Fashions on Billings Road, North Quincy, received a commendation from the City Council Monday for their years of service in the community.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers presented the commendation which praised the Corbin's for their involvement in the North Quincy Business and Professional Association and the annual North Quincy Sidewalk Sale.

"I'm sure I speak for Joe Doran of the NQBPA when I say that North Quincy is not only losing a fellow businessperson, but it's losing a good friend," Ayers said.

Carmela Corbin has run Corbin's Fashions for 13 years. The couple is retiring.

Fair At Presidents Place Today Safety Seminars, Awareness Programs Planned For Crime Prevention Month

In an effort to raise public awareness of crime and drug prevention and increase community involvement in crime prevention and related programs, the city will observe Crime Prevention Month in October with a series of seminars and programs for local citizens.

The expansive and far reaching crime prevention and awareness campaign gets underway today (Thursday) with a Crime Prevention Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Presidents Place atrium.

The fair will display crime prevention methods as well as pamphlets on personal safety and other safety topics presented by Safety Officer David Doherty. At 12:30 p.m., a demonstration of basic self defense for women will be given by Donald Spink of Masters of Self Defense Centers, 11 Revere Rd., Quincy.

In addition, nine seminars on various public safety topics have been scheduled throughout the month. Other programs are also available upon request. All programs are free of charge and available to civic and neighborhood groups.

Mayor James Sheets proclaimed October as Crime Prevention Month in Quincy Tuesday. He was joined by Police Chief Francis Mullen, Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna and Paul Quinn, president of the Quincy Patrolmen's Association.

Sheets, who has seen the number of Quincy patrolmen drop from 188 to 134 over the last three years, said the importance of crime prevention is twofold. First, police do not have to spend time and dwindling resources investigating crimes that do not happen. Second, by reducing crime, it spares an individual the trauma of

Studds Bill Would Link Harbor Islands To Quincy For Tourism Promotion

Legislation requiring the National Park Service to study a federal role in promoting tourism and conservation of the Boston Harbor Islands has been recently named Acting Chairman of the committee.

The legislation was introduced by U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds who was recently named Acting Chairman of the committee.

"The Boston Harbor Islands hold enormous promise," said Studds. "Opportunities abound for expanding public access and education and increasing tourism. It is high time we harnessed the resources of the Park Service to help realize that promise."

Studds' measure would direct the Park Service to work with the state and city agencies that are responsible for the islands.

The legislation would also require the Park Service to examine the linking of the islands with other Boston area National Park Service sites, including the Adams Historical Site in Quincy.

"The millions of tourists that visit Boston every year should not end their tour of our region's historical sites at Faneuil Hall or the Old North Church," Studds said. "They should be able to hop on a ferry that will shuttle them to Quincy to visit the famous sites of the City of Presidents, with stops in between at the Boston Harbor Islands.

"We have unique national treasures to delight tourists from this country and from abroad," Studds said. "The natural beauty of the Boston Harbor Islands provides them with an opportunity for solitude and reflection in the very heart of an urban setting—enhanced by a rich history dating back hundreds of years. And the Adams site offers the legacy of four generations of a family whose contribution to the nation is legendary."

Curbside Program To Be Expanded New Recycling Contract To Save Quincy $1.2 M

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city has renegotiated its rubbish disposal and recycling contract which will save Quincy nearly $1.2 million over FY 93 and FY 94 and expand its recycling program to include tin cans and telephone books as well as household hazardous waste collections twice a year.

Terms of the new contract with the city's trash hauler and recycling firm, Browning-Ferris Industries, were announced at a press conference Wednesday morning.

Under the new three-year contract, Mayor James Sheets said the city will pay BFI $4,219,560 per year over the next three years. The city had been paying approximately $5 million for its trash collecting and curbside recycling program, the mayor said.

Sheets said he is pleased with the new contract since it saves Quincy money and expands the recycling program by including more materials and making it available to more people.

"The contract not only provides a substantial savings in cost, it also provides a substantial expansion of recycling for more materials and household hazardous waste. You couldn't ask for much more," the mayor said.

The new contract reduces the price of rubbish and garbage disposal from $81.32 per ton to $47.50 per ton, a savings of $33.82 per ton. With the lower disposal fee, the city is expected to save $470,000 during the remainder of FY93 and $700,000 in FY 94.

The agreement, negotiated by Public Works Commissioner David A. Colton following proposals submitted Aug. 25, also calls for the expansion of curbside recycling to include metal and aluminum cans and telephone books starting Jan. 1.

In addition, BFI will also provide the following services:

- Recycling drop-off center and mobile drop-off center. Anyone in the living in Quincy, including apartment dwellers and merchants, will be able to utilize the drop off center which will be located at the DPW facility, 55 Sea St. and be maintained by the city.

- The drop-off center which will accept newspaper, glass, plastics, aluminum and tin cans, telephone books, magazines and cardboard. The mobile drop-off center will be set up at public parking lots in Quincy.

- Waste oil drop off center (used motor oil only) at a site to be determined.

Flu Vaccine Clinics Scheduled

The Quincy Health Department will hold flu clinics Oct. 20 through Nov. 20.

This year's flu shot contains the strains A/Texas, A/Beijing and B/Panama to provide immunity against the types of flu which have been circulating in the past year and thought to be most likely to occur in the United States this winter.

Flu vaccine will be given only to Quincy residents age 18 and older. All others should check with their family physician.

Shut-ins should call the Health Department, 376-1275, to arrange a house visit by the Public Health Nurse.

The schedule is as follows:

Tues., Oct. 20, 1000 Southern Artery, 9-10:30 a.m.

Wed., Oct. 21, Pagnano Towers (residents only), 109 Curtis Ave., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Thur., Oct. 22, Granite Place, 125 Granite St., 9-10:30 a.m.

Thur., Oct. 29, O'Brien Towers, 73 Bicknell St., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Tues., Nov. 3, Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., 9-10:30 a.m.

Thur., Nov. 5, Quantum Community Center, Fire Station, 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Sat., Nov. 7, City Wide Flu Clinic, 1120 Hancock St., 10 a.m.-1 p.m.

Tues., Nov. 10, Drohan Apartments, 170 Copeland St., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Tues., Nov. 17, Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Thur., Nov. 19, Sawyer Towers (residents only), Martensen Street, 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Thur., Nov. 19, Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., 1:30-2:30 p.m.

Fri., Nov. 20, Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Annual vaccination against influenza is recommended for:

1. Adults and children with long-term heart or lung problems.
2. Residents of nursing homes and other chronic care facilities over age 18.
3. Healthy people over age 65.
4. People, of any age, who have regularly seen a doctor or have been admitted to a hospital for treatment for kidney disease, cystic fibrosis,

Robertson St. Bridge Closed For Repairs

The Robertson St. Bridge in West Quincy has been closed to all traffic to allow construction of a $1 million deck replacement by T. Equipment Corporation, the state Highway Department announces.

The bridge, shut down Wednesday, will be out of service for approximately 30 days. Traffic is being detoured to the Stedman St. Bridge which will be operational for two-way traffic during the construction project.

For more information, contact Fran Sandonato, District 8, Massachusetts Highway Department, at 617-482-0811.

Quincy Hospital Day Surgery Rooms Dedicated

Dr. Eddie Joe Reddick, a pioneer in the development of laparoscopic techniques for surgery, was honored at the recent dedication of Quincy Hospital's new Day Surgery area.

Dr. Reddick's techniques have been adopted widely by surgeons. Their use has significantly decreased the amount of time a patient needs to recover from many surgical procedures.

A laparoscope, which transmits an image via a tiny video camera to a TV monitor, is inserted through a half-inch incision in the patient's abdomen. Additional small incisions are made to allow the introduction of specialized instruments into the body cavity.

The surgeon performs the surgery guided by the images on the video screen. Surgeons at Quincy Hospital use laparoscopic techniques for removal of the gall bladder and appendix, bowel sections, and to assist in hysterectomies.

Dr. Anthony Dragone, chief of surgery at Quincy Hospital, said, "Laparoscopic techniques give us an important advantage, allowing us to work within the natural environment of the body, minimizing tissue damage and allowing for a quicker recovery for the patient."

"Dr. Reddick has been instrumental in developing and refining these techniques, and in training surgeons in their use."

"It certainly makes sense that we get involved in crime prevention. The more we can do in terms of prevention, the less crimes will occur."

"We're trying to take a bite out of crime by beefing up our crime prevention effort," the mayor added.

Sheets said the crime prevention programs will cost approximately $20,000 to $25,000. With more police officers expected to participate in the programs, the mayor said the funding will cover overtime expenses and perhaps a safety video or other education material.

Chief Mullen said the crime prevention program was not precipitated by one event. He said the campaign is part of an overall effort to foster more cooperation between officers and residents and make citizens more aware of their surroundings.

"We can't put a police officer on every corner. We're going the route through information and awareness and that's crime prevention," Mullen said.

Hanna said citizens are essential in the effort to reduce crime. He said people should not feel intimidated to call the police and report suspicious behavior or crime.

"The underlying message is to educate the people to work with the police. It's important we educate people on what to look for, what to report and how to report it and other ways they can help us."

Quinn, who noted several Quincy police programs have become forerunners to state-wide campaigns, added, "We want the community to be a part of it. Don't hesitate to call."

Crime prevention programs have been well attended in the past. Over the past year, Hanna has conducted 15 seminars attended by more than 1000 women.

Seminars scheduled during October are:

"Personal Safety for Women," a three-hour seminar that discusses home security, safety in the street, and rape. Programs will be held at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall (Cinema 8) from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 6, Oct. 20 and Oct. 27.

"Street Smart--What To Do," a one-hour program that discusses methods citizens can use to avoid becoming crime victims. Programs will be held at Quincy Police Headquarters, 1 Sea St., (second floor training academy) 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8 and Oct. 29.

"Rape Prevention--Trust Your Instincts," a one-hour program designed to teach women to recognize uncomfortable situations that may signal a possible sexual assault. Program will be held at Quincy police training academy 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 19 and Thursday, Oct. 22.

"Rape and Basic Self Defense for Women," a 90-minute program to be held at Masters Self Defense Centers, 11 Revere Rd., Quincy, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 5 and Oct. 26. The program consists of a 30-minute discussion on rape and a one-hour basic self defense class. Only Masters Self Defense Centers, Quincy, will offer a free six-week follow-up course on basic self defense.

Other one-hour programs available:

"The Bunco Boys--Con Artists," which discusses typical cons used on seniors and homeowners. "Neighborhood Watch," which demonstrates how the public can become the "eyes" and "ears" of the police and thus help protect neighborhoods.

"Raising a Drug Free Child," which helps parents become familiar with the drugs on the street today. It also suggests what parents might do to help prevent a child from abusing drugs.

To request any program, write to Chief Francis Mullen, Quincy Police Department, 1 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Mullen said there are plans to continue the expanded programs past October. He also said the department is reaching out to different segments of the city's population, such as Asian Americans who comprise 11 percent of Quincy's total population.

In addition, the chief said the police department is working with the school system to make crime prevention part of the high school curriculum. Mullen said statistics show teenagers are victimized more than any other age group.

Two Quincy men, Michael Libby, 29, and Richard Gallagher, 31, drowned Saturday after their 14-foot boat sank in outer Boston Harbor near Hull.

Libby's brother Steven, 26, of Braintree, survived after swimming to shore on Middle Brewster Island. He said Gallagher saved his life by passing a life preserver to him.

Gallagher and Michael Libby were unable to swim to shore and drowned.

Their boat had been disabled after the propeller got caught in a lobster pot rope at about 12:30 p.m. Six-foot waves and 35-mph winds swamped the boat.

After Steven Libby reached shore he got the attention of Michael Nee of Quincy, captain of a nearby fishing boat, The Sea Duck. Nee radioed the Coast Guard and Libby swam to The Sea Duck.

Rescuers searched for more than an hour for the other two men with a helicopter, two Coast Guard cutters, and the Hull Harbormaster's boat.

The choppy seas, fog and rain hampered the search. Gallagher was spotted lying face down on Middle Brewster Island by the crew of one of the Coast Guard boats. The stormy conditions forced divers to approach from the opposite side of the island. The divers said Gallagher was dead when they reached him and waited with him until the Coast Guard helicopter arrived.

The helicopter crew spotted Michael Libby floating nearby and notified the Coast Guard boat which pulled him from the water. The helicopter flew both Gallagher and Libby to Boston where they were pronounced dead at Massachusetts General Hospital.

The Coast Guard had issued a small craft advisory which was in effect Saturday. Steven Libby said he was unaware of the advisory and that the water was calm that morning.

A local boater reported that the water was calm in the inner Harbor but that there were swells ranging from four to 10 feet in the outer harbor at the time of the accident.

NEW ASPHALT ON Hancock St. in Quincy Center is steamrolled by Derbes Bros. of Quincy construction workers Monday afternoon as part of the second phase of the Downtown Quincy Traffic Improvement Project. According to DPW Commissioner David Colton, the new road surfacing should be completed over the next few weeks. Also, several varieties of small trees will be planted starting next week in the area from School St. to Granite St. and the Parkway. Antique-styled street lights will be installed in early November. Colton said the project is proceeding on schedule and within budget and should be completed by the end of November.

Oct. 6 Deadline To Register For Nov. 3 Election

As the deadline to register rapidly approaches, Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly has reminded all eligible citizens wishing to cast a ballot in the Nov. 3 general election to register to vote before the upcoming Oct. 6 deadline.

As required by law, voter registration sessions will be extended on that day until 10 p.m. To register, a Massachusetts resident must be a U.S. citizen and 18 years old by election day.

Connolly said, "The 1992 election is a very important one for all of us. Not only will we be choosing the next President and Vice President of the United States, representatives on Capitol Hill and Beacon Hill and some county officials, we will also be determining public policy with our answers to state ballot questions."

The "1992 Information for Voters Booklet," published by the Secretary of State's Office, lists each statewide ballot question with summaries, and provides voters with brief arguments for and against each issue.

"This booklet has been mailed to every household in Massachusetts, and I would strongly recommend that each registered voter who intends to go to the polls on Nov. 3 read it carefully," said Connolly. "The summaries and arguments will help voters make a thoughtful decision, before they enter the polling place."

For more information, call the city clerk's office or Secretary Connolly's toll free Voter Information Hotline at 1-800-462-VOTE.

Ayers Offers Transportation To Unregistered Voters

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, chairman of the Handicapped Affairs Committee, is offering free transportation in his fully-equipped vans to anyone wishing to register to vote at City Hall.

Deadline for voter registration for the Nov. 3 election is Tuesday, Oct. 6 at 10 p.m.

Those interested in the transportation service should call Ayers at 472-9877.

SCHLERODERMA: A RARE, DIFFICULT DISEASE

Patches of skin tighten and take on a shiny appearance. The esophagus (the muscular tube that runs from the throat to the stomach) stiffens. Other symptoms may be general and difficult to pin down: persistent mild fever, poor appetite, weight loss, feeling ill. Beyond these common signs, however, scleroderma remains a medical puzzle that can result in such serious complications as kidney or heart failure, shortness of breath and joint problems like those of rheumatoid arthritis. While the disease has no cure, much can be done to relieve symptoms and improve the quality of life. Drugs in combination with physical and occupational therapy can help those afflicted with the disease live as fully and independently as possible.

P.S. Blood tests and X-rays are usually recommended to confirm cases of scleroderma.

Sufferers of scleroderma and other rare disease have benefited from recent medical research. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St. Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Gillis Stepping Down

City Clerk John Gillis will be departing from City Hall this month where he has been a fixture — and a legend — for more than three decades.

Gillis, who is 67, is expected to submit his retirement notification to the City Council at its Oct. 19 meeting.

The City Council will elect his successor who undoubtedly will be Joseph Shea who has been assistant city clerk since March, 1992 and has done a good job.

GILLIS

SHEA

Gillis is one of two Democrat nominees for Norfolk County Commission where there are two vacancies created by the retirement of Quincy's Mary Collins and James Collins of Milton. There are also two Republican candidates.

Gillis, on the strength of his primary performance is expected, by most political observers, to win one of the two seats.

Gillis had planned to retire from his City Clerk's post regardless of whether he was elected to the Norfolk County Commission post or not.

By stepping down now, his retirement benefits picture will be better than if he waited to retire after the election.

Gillis has been a popular figure at City Hall for 36 years. He was assistant city clerk under Alan Cole for two years before becoming clerk when Cole died in 1958.

He has been there during the administrations of seven mayors: Amelio Della Chiesa, James McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Frank McCauley and present mayor James Sheets.

Gillis himself probably could have been mayor if he wanted to and although often urged to run he never did. And he has no regrets about that.

Gillis will be following into retirement by a year and a half, his long-time City Hall sidekick, Tommy Burke, who was assistant clerk from 1959 to 1991.

Shea appears to have more than enough solid City Council votes to succeed Gillis — and rightfully so. He has shown he knows the job. He also has the experience of serving as executive secretary to Mayor Hannon from 1972 to 1976.

By moving up he not only gets the prestige of being city clerk but will receive a tidy pay raise of approximately $20,000. The city clerk's salary is about $50,000 and the assistant clerk's $30,000.

But while Gillis had tenure through special legislation, Shea will get a three-year term and then must go before the City Council again to be re-elected.

Meanwhile the big question: who will succeed Shea as assistant city clerk?

There are a number of names being mentioned as either active or potential candidates. Among them:

City Councillor Patricia Toland, Michael McFarland, Quincy restaurateur, Steve Doherty of Wollaston, a member of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds office, former School Committee woman Mary Collins and John Comer, son of John "Jake" Comer, Quincy Housing Authority executive director and former American Legion national commander.

The way the process works, Shea as city clerk will submit his nominee to the City Council for confirmation. Could be some behind the scene politicking on this one.

Meanwhile Gillis is rapidly winding down his City hall days. The place won't quite be the same without him — and those famed cigars.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY, who won the Democratic primary for state senate, which this year is tantamount to election, will host a Thank You brunch for his campaign workers Sunday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Squantum Yacht Club, Wollaston Beach.

With no opposition in the Nov. 3 final election, Morrissey will succeed Paul Harold in January.

And if you thought you saw a lot of Morrissey campaign signs just before the primary election, you did. Morrissey says he had between 600 and 700 signs out there on lawns in Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Avon.

MORRISSEY

MICHAEL CRONIN, Republican candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, has a fundraiser on tap for tonight (Thursday) from 7 p.m. to midnight at Morrisette Legion Post, Miller St., West Quincy. Featured are Joe Glynn and The Irish Mist. Tickets are $10 and are available at the door.

CHARLES SWEENEY, former School Committee member and noted West Quincy horticulturist, turned a young 76 the other day. Charlie must have found the Fountain of Youth. He's an avid golfer and skier — and likes to hike up and down Mount Washington.

SWEENEY

SPEAKING OF CHARLIE, reader Frank Delear of Centerville saw our recent column about the artificial roses that popped out on Charles rose bushes — courtesy of his wife Betty.

Delear writes:

"I sent your short story on Charles Sweeney's rose problems to my friend Armand Lapierre, a rose grower with 60 years experience.

"We both thought that Mrs. Sweeney might benefit from further instructions. So, would you be good enough to pass this complimentary copy of Lapierre's new booklet 'Rose Growing Simplified' along to him?"

Delear, in a personal to Charlie Says: "Hopefully these instructions will help."

Charlie is now studying the book.

Meanwhile he still has those three artificial roses wired to the bushes by Betty. Charlie, who is also a bit of a poet, rises to the occasion:

"Even when it's snowing... My roses will be showing... Just drop by and you will see... Pretty roses in December... a sight you'll always remember."

•School and office recycling covering "the full range of recyclable materials." Sheets said.

•Optional household hazardous waste program. Twice a year, (three times during the first year), BFI will conduct a household hazardous waste collection where residents can bring items such as paint, pesticides, solvents and car batteries.

•Increased promotion and public education. Sheets said a $55,000 line item will be added to the budget next year to promote the recycling program. BFI, Colton and the Recycling Committee will decide how the money should be spent. Sheets said the money could be used for mailings, media advertisements, flyers, bumper stickers and perhaps a video for cable television.

In addition, BFI will make regular pickups of old appliances. Before, appliances were picked up once a year. Now, the items will be collected each week.

Essentially, the city will be divided into five "appliance collection zones." Each zone will correspond to a particular day of the week. Appliance collections will be done in each zone on the assigned day only.

Specifically, the contract calls for Quincy to pay:

•$2,090,000 in collection (including $45,000 for container hauls).

•$339,000 for recycling program (including $90,000 in hauling charges).

•$1,790,560 in disposal costs assuming 32,000 tons are collected. Of that figure, $650,560 is for 8,000 tons at the old $81.32 rate over the first three months FY93 and $1,140,000 is for 24,000 tons at the new $47.50 rate during the rest of FY93.

The subtotal for collection, recycling and disposal is $4,219,560.

In addition, the city will pay BFI $96,000 to conduct two household collection days; $5,000 to operate a waste oil site and another $55,000 on promotion.

The grand total comes to $4,375,560. During FY '93, $4,843,162 was appropriated for disposal and recycling. The new contract will save Quincy $467,602 during this fiscal year, including $270,560 over the next three months.

Sheets praised the efforts of Colton and Recycling Coordinator Michael Wheelright for negotiating another favorable contract which brings Quincy's recycling program to a higher level. He also thanked Recycling Chairman Larry Chretien, the Recycling Committee, and Councillor Mike Cheney for their input.

Speaking in behalf of the committee, Chretien said, "We're very pleased that Mayor Sheets, Dave Colton and Michael Wheelright have negotiated such a good contract with BFI. We met with Dave and Mike several months ago and we knew this would be next step for the recycling program."

"They graciously accepted our request to work with them and to make improvements in the program. They took our comments and offered their own remarks and went off and did the negotiating.

"They did a real good job and the city will make out like a winner again."

Chretien said the market for recyclables should pick up. "We've kind of seen the worst as far as the market. We're not going to get stuck with out recycled materials like some other communities."

"Recycling and composting are still very economical for us," he added.

Sheets said two factors probably figured in the negotiations. First, BFI now has a transfer station in Braintree. As a result, the company does not have to travel as far to dispose its trash. Second, the disposal and recycling industry in growing more competitive.

"I think competition, together with the economic climate, result in the bid coming in very low," Sheets said.

BFI has provided disposal service to Quincy for more than 20 years.

Asked how the savings generated by the new contract will be spent, Sheets answered, "That depends on what the demands are in the FY94 budget. It's there for what emergency needs arise."

He noted the money may be used for capital outlay expenditures, such as new police cars.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Observer Finds Candidate Nixon 'Direct, Sincere'

Sen. Richard M. Nixon of California, the Republican nominee for vice president, spoke 20 minutes to a dinner crowd of some 4,000 people from the steps of First Parish Church on a whistlestop tour.

"No man in America — in the world is better qualified to keep America strong than Dwight Eisenhower, who has come through every time," he said, speaking of his presidential running mate.

Nixon, who arrived from Boston in a motorcade at 6 pm with his wife, Pat, was presented a replica of the Abigail Adams Cairn and taken on a tour of the Adams crypt in the church.

"His approach is western in that it is direct, sincere and free from any affected mannerisms," said an observer.

"He talks to you about political principles with the same forthrightness a farmer would talk about the effect of rain or drought on laid-by-corn."

POLICE CHIEF EXAM

Seven captains and lieutenants were preparing to take the Civil Service examination for appointment as police chief to succeed the late Chief Joseph F. Hughes, who died in February.

They were Capts. William Ferrazzi, the acting chief, William F. McIntyre and Joseph P. Flaherty, and Lts. Anthony Capricci, William Devine, Charles L. Ferrazzi and Frank Valeri.

MONTCLAIR ADDITION

School Supt. D. Paul Gossard told members of the Montclair School PTA touring the four-room addition to the school that students were unhappy with drinking fountains in each classroom.

"It spoils the best racket that the children had for getting out of the rooms," he said.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Quincy Symphony Opens Season With Oct. 16 Concert

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present the first concert of its 39th season Friday, Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center of North Quincy High School.

Ann Danis is conductor and music director.

The program will include "Fanfare for the Common Man" by Copland, "Symphony in D minor" by Arriaga, and Symphony No. 8 in G Major" by Dvorak.

Danis conducted the Quincy Symphony Pops Concert last May and was appointed by the Board of Directors to be conductor and music director of the orchestra for the 1992-93 season. A graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music with a master's degree in performance, she studied violin with George Zazofsky and Joseph Silverstein, and conducting with Richard Pittman.

Danis has served as Associate Concertmaster of the Alabama Symphony and Concertmaster of the orchestras of Cape Cod, Fall River, New Bedford and Plymouth. Currently, she is Assistant Professor of Music at Wheaton College in Norton, where she teaches violin and viola and conducts the orchestra and Baroque ensemble. Recently, she has been the guest conductor of the Cape Cod Symphony.

Interested in young music students, Danis has been in demand as a conductor of youth orchestras. She has conducted the Central and Southeastern Massachusetts High School District Orchestras, the Rhode Island All-State and the All Cape Festival Orchestra. As the conductor of the Rhode Island Jr. Youth Philharmonic Orchestra, she was acclaimed for bringing the orchestra to a high level of performance.

Single tickets are $8 for adults, $6 for senior citizens and students. Season tickets for three concerts are $20 and $15. They will be available at the door the night of the concert. For information, call 328-5347 or 925-4319.

'Children Of Eden' At ENC In October

Eastern Nazarene College will present the New England premiere of the new musical, "Children of Eden," for a two weekend run beginning Thursday, Oct. 15 at the Cove Fine Arts Center on the ENC campus.

Music and lyrics are by Stephen Schwartz.

Following the 1991 production, short lived because of the onset of the Gulf War, "Children of Eden" was reworked by its creators, and had its U.S.

professional debut at Mill Mountain Theater in Virginia. ENC will stage only the second American production of the new work.

The musical examines people's responsibilities as caretakers of Earth and focuses on the relationship between parent and child in an interpretation of Biblical stories from the Garden of Eden through Noah's family and the Flood.

Dr. Ronda Rice Winderl is director and Michael W. Ballard designed the immense, multi-tiered set recreating the universe back to the beginning of time. Margaret Ballard designed the costumes.

"Children of Eden" will be performed on the following dates: Thursday and Friday, Oct. 15-16, both at 7 p.m.; Saturday, Oct. 17 at 6 and 9 p.m.; and Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 22-23, all at 7 p.m.

All performances are $7. For reservations and information, call 773-6350, ext. 262 or 269.

John Noonan Featured In Crime Prevention Video For Senior Citizens

John Noonan of Quincy appears in a new video which educates senior citizens about crime and violence prevention.

The 15-minute video is presented by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and the Neighborhood Justice Network. It was produced by Emmy award winner Richard Getz.

In the video, Noonan provides information and tips on how senior citizens can assist in preventing crimes in areas where they live.

Television and movie personality Clifton Davis also stars in the video.

Noonan is chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and program coordinator for the Division of Elderly Health of the State Department of Public Health.

Noonan is also host of the award-winning "Senior Beat" Quincy Community Television program for Quincy senior citizens.

"Crime and violence takes a heavy toll on our most vulnerable citizens, our seniors," said Diane Watson, Commissioner on Elderly Affairs for Boston. "Our Commission on Elderly Affairs is proud of its involvement in the Senior Crime and Violence Prevention Project from which this film was developed and looks forward to a continuing partnership with the Department of Public Health and the Neighborhood Justice Network."

Restaurant Withdraws Request For Cabaret License

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The owner of Cagney's, 214 Washington St., withdrew, without prejudice, a request for a cabaret license at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The matter had been continued from the board's Sept. 22 meeting so that Cagney's owner Mark DiBona and his attorney, William Sullivan, could discuss the request with Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro.

DeCristofaro had supported a request from Cagney's to expand its square footage at the board's Sept. 22 meeting (which the board granted) but said he would not support a Cabaret License. At Tuesday's meeting he said that an extra week had not changed his mind.

"My position is not changed," said DeCristofaro. "I will oppose the granting of a Cabaret License. I have enough places in my ward to contend with now, especially on Washington Street."

"I appreciate their (Cagney's) expansion to a family-type restaurant, but I cannot support this request. Ward 2 used to have a lot of bars and joints, and we have worked hard to make it what it is today."

DeCristofaro added that he had spoken to residents who were against Cagney's being granted a Cabaret License.

Sullivan said that while he agreed that DeCristofaro and the Ward 2 Civic Association have "done a nice job" of improving Ward 2 in recent years, he said that granting the license would not be detrimental to the area.

"Cagney's is not a gin mill," said Sullivan. "It has a tremendous record and has caused no problems in the area. This request will not increase traffic or the number of customers. There is no reason the board should not allow us (a Cabaret License)."

Both Sullivan and DiBona said they had spoken to business owners and residents in the area who said they supported the granting of the license.

One resident, Stephen Dunlea of 230B Quincy Shore Drive in North Quincy, also spoke in favor of the Cagney's request.

"I have great respect for Ted (DeCristofaro) and what he's done in Ward 2," said Dunlea, who added that he grew up in Quincy Point and still attends St. Joseph's Church. "I remember what it was like when I was a kid. But I do not see an entertainment license affecting the Quincy Point area, especially the way Mark runs a business."

Still, DeCristofaro said he felt there was no need for the license ("If it's not going to increase business, what's the point of doing it?") and defended himself when Sullivan suggested that DeCristofaro had spoken to residents in other parts of Ward 2 who would not be affected at all by the granting of the license.

"Ward 2 is a neighborhood," said DeCristofaro. "Everyone in the ward is concerned about everything that happens in the ward."

Despite DiBona's statement that he only wanted the license for disc jockeys and recorded music and not live entertainment, the board members sided with DeCristofaro.

"What I see here, I see what happened to McGuire's years ago," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. "They ran a beautiful family restaurant, and then they added a Cabaret License, and they just went downhill from there."

"I honestly think that you (DiBona) can run a real good family business out of there (without the Cabaret License). There's nothing else left on Washington Street."

Police Chief Francis Mullen agreed.

Variety Of Music For Harvest Family Festival

A wide range of music from big band to blues, country and rock will be among the main attractions at the second annual Quincy Center Harvest Family Festival to be held Sunday, Oct. 18.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association will be from noon to 6 p.m. on Hancock St. which will be closed to vehicular traffic from Granite to School Sts.

Kathy Missell, QCBPA Promotions Committee Chairman, said the musical groups to appear will include the Roma Band, the Quincy Alumni Band, the Rock Shop, a group of dancers and singers featuring contemporary music and the Trailside Coffee House with folk, blues and rock music.

Along with this music there will be dancers from the Frances Osborne Studio, Lisa's Dance Studio and the Forbes School of Irish Step Dancing.

Other special activities for the family and the fall season are planned.

They include a children's costume parade, apple decorating, a pumpkin decoration contest, a puppeteer, clowns, face painting, children's amusement rides, crafters, an auction and the Farmer's Market.

Participants in the pumpkin decoration contest are asked to bring the pumpkins already decorated to the festival.

Crafters interested in participating are asked to contact the QCBPA office, 1416 Hancock St. or by calling (617) 471-3232.

Deadline for Quincy elementary school children to enter the costume parade is Thursday, Oct. 15. Parents may register their children by contacting the QCBPA office.

Father Bill's Wishing Well Fundraiser In October

"Your spare change could change a life..."

That is the message being conveyed by Joe Finn, executive director of Father Bill's Place.

The homeless shelter, located at 10 Broad St., will be raising money with the "Wishing Well" at various sites during October.

"We hope to raise at least $4,000," Finn said. "This is really crucial for us as funding sources are always uncertain."

People may contribute their pennies and spare change at the following locations:

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 2 and 3, Stop & Shop, 141 Newport Ave., 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 4, St. Chrysostom's Church, 523 Hancock St., 9 a.m. to noon.

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 9 and 10, Purity Supreme, Route 3A, Hingham, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 16 & 17, Shaw's Supermarket, 100 Quincy Ave., 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23 and 24, Hilltop Marketplace, Braintree, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 25, The First Congregational Church, Elm St., Braintree, 9 a.m. to noon.

"The Wishing Well will be at the shelter during the week for people to drop off their pennies or change," Finn said. "Those little bits help a lot."

Finn noted that the Wishing Well will be placed outside Quincy because the shelter serves South Shore communities other than Quincy. Information on Father Bill's Place will be available at each of the sites.

"Various church groups are volunteering to man the Wishing Well," Finn said, including St. Jerome's in Weymouth and First Congregational in Braintree.

Father Bill's Place feeds and shelters more than 65 people a night and has assisted many South Shore people beyond the homeless shelter.

NFPA Employees Sponsor Smoke Detector Battery Drive

Employees of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), headquartered in Quincy at Batterymarch Park, are sponsoring a 9-volt battery drive for needy Quincy residents in commemoration of Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 4-10.

Held every October,

Fire Prevention Week is observed to raise public awareness of the importance of fire prevention education. This year, the week has as its theme "Test Your Sound Detector: It's Sound Advice!"

Between now and Oct. 9, employees will bring in new batteries and place them in the special exhibit box designed by NFPA employee Chris McCusker. Energizer Battery Company has agreed to match the number of batteries collected (up to 300). Quincy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman will head up a distribution program to see that the batteries go to needy families in Quincy.

NFPA has 300 employees, many of whom are from the Quincy area.

Women's Issues

Look at some of Gerry Studds' votes on issues of importance to women. Jon Bryan would have voted differently every time!

CRIME: Violent crimes against women have jumped 50% in the last 15 years. Every 6 minutes a woman is raped - every 18 seconds a woman is beaten. Yet Gerry Studds voted AGAINST mandatory prison sentences for violent criminals (HR3371) and he voted for the early release of 800 dangerous, convicted felons, including rapists (H. Res. 341).

DISCRIMINATION: Studds voted against a ban on discrimination in the sale or rental of housing to pregnant women (HR1158).

SPOUSAL NOTIFICATION: Studds voted against notifying a partner if a spouse were found to be HIV positive.

PORNOGRAPHY: Although pornography may be traced to increased violence against women, Studds voted against a ban "Dial-A-Porn" telephone pornography (HR4401). It passed 380-22, despite Studds!

DRUG ADDICTED MOTHERS: Studds voted against shifting funds from his mass-mailings to help drug addicted mothers (HR3014).

It's time for a change! On November 3rd, vote Jon Bryan!

Fortini Wants Term Limits, More Accountability For Judges

Kenneth Fortini, Republican candidate for the Fourth District Governor's Council seat, says that if he is elected he will push for term limits for councilors and more accountability for judges.

Councilors currently served unlimited two-year terms, Fortini's reform calls for two four-year terms, thus allowing councilors, said Fortini, to focus time and energy on the important business of the Council rather than on reelection campaigns.

Fortini, a former Braintree resident now living in Duxbury, has also expressed concern that little remedy, short of impeachment, is available to deal with incompetent or negligent judges.

"I favor periodic review of judges," said Fortini, who stressed that while the overwhelming majority of judges are competent and dedicated professionals, the few who are not are protected by their virtual lifetime employment.

"Critical to the effectiveness of the Council and, in turn, good government," says Fortini, "is restoring voter faith in elected and appointed officials. That begins with more accountability, for councilors as well as for judges."

Quincy Visiting Nurse Assn. Historic Stroll Saturday

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association Inc. will sponsor a stroll through downtown Quincy and visit to local historic sites Saturday, Oct. 3 at 1 p.m. Rain date is Sunday, Oct. 4.

The walk will start at Hancock Cemetery next to the James R. McIntyre Government Center (Old City Hall) and end at Presidents Place with refreshments.

The tour will be narrated by Stan Nikkel, author of the book The City of Presidents, A Quincy Guidebook.

Participants will meet Harriet T. Fitzgerald and Helen A. Shea, honorary co-chairmen of the event, and see the nurses in historic nursing uniforms. The walking pace will be easy and the importance of each historic site will be discussed.

There will be a special children's program, "Seeing the Revolutionary War Through the Eyes of a Twelve Year Old Adams."

Donations of $5 are requested for each adult and $2 per child.

Call the QVNA at 472-2828 for information. Space for the children's program is limited.

Chiropractic Update

by
Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

CAN CHIROPRACTIC CARE HELP ARTHRITIS?

In order to answer this very commonly asked question it is important to understand that arthritis is a disease or condition that actually means an "inflammation or irritation of a joint." There are several different types of arthritis such as Gouty Arthritis, which typically affects the big toe, and Rheumatoid Arthritis, in which one usually suffers swelling of numerous joints and deformed hands and/or feet. The most common type, however, is called Degenerative or Osteoarthritis, in which the "wear and tear" on a joint causes increasing pain and stiffness. It is important to note that this "wear and tear" arthritis will often occur faster in a joint after it has been injured, such as with a football player who has hurt his knee or a person who has suffered a whiplash injury to his or her neck.

While there is no absolute cure for arthritis, chiropractic care has proven to be helpful in overcoming the pain and crippling effects of this disabling disease. The Doctor of Chiropractic uses a number of techniques which can provide significant relief such as manipulation, ultrasound, heat and ice therapy, and carefully programmed mild exercise. Arthritis patients should consider chiropractic as a drug free alternative to easing their joint pain and stiffness.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark C. Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, N. Quincy 773-4400.

Cafe Bianco License Hearing Continued Again

The Quincy License Board continued for one week a request from Cafe Bianco, 1626 Hancock St., for a Common Victualer-All Alcoholic Beverage License.

The request had to be postponed due to the illness of Atty. Paul Barbadoro, who is representing Cafe Bianco in the matter.

The License Board twice previously continued the request from its Sept. 8 and 22 meetings.

Used Car Buying Tip: Keep A Reserve Fund

If you're probing the market for a used car, consider this advice from the Car Care Council: your budget should include a "fix-up" fund.

A used car, even a fairly new one, usually needs something.

Your first investment, before making a final decision, should be for the assistance of a mechanic to look over your prospective purchase. His experience and equipment can help you spot discrepancies that the untrained eye might never catch.

This precautionary measure not only helps avoid a bad purchase, it also provides a club to what, if anything, you can expect to spend on repairs soon after you're the new owner. A couple of tires, perhaps a drive belt or a radiator hose and/or a new battery are typical of such replacement items. Armed with this kind of information, you may have some extra bargaining leverage.

Caution: Be wary of the vehicle whose owner resists a professional inspection.

A professional opinion can be valuable in estimating interior repairs, too. A car with worn or damaged fabric but in good mechanical condition may be a good investment. Upholstery burns and tears usually can be replaced by an upholstery shop at reasonable cost.

Once you've made your decision and made the purchase do some basic preventive maintenance.

Because clean oil and filter are essential to the life of your newly acquired vehicle, take it to a professional for this service. Most shops include a visual check-up as part of the procedure, although there may be an extra charge for removing wheels to inspect brakes. If this was not done as part of the pre-purchase inspection, this was a wise investment.

For an informative guide to the basic check points under the hood and around the car, send 50¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department UH, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

'World Communion Sunday' At Point Congregational

"World Communion Sunday" will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, Washington St. and Southern Artery.

The Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon will preach on "Rekindle The Gift Of God." Her husband, the Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon, will serve as liturgist.

A special offering will be received to benefit the Pastor's Discretionary Fund to enable the church to help people of the community in need. The "Neighbors in Need" offering will also reach out in mission to people beyond the local community.

Following the service, the Teacher's Communion Service will take place at approximately 11:15 a.m. in the Baharian Chapel, led by the Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon. Members of the congregation will enjoy the fellowship hour in the social hall.

Church School classes are provided Sundays at 10 a.m. Children of the Crib Room, nursery and kindergarten should be taken directly to their classrooms by their parents. All other students gather initially in the sanctuary before being dismissed to their classrooms following "Time With the Children." Parents may register their children and young people by speaking to church school superintendent Debbie Tait on Sunday mornings or by calling the church office at 773-6424, Mondays through Fridays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Junior High Youth Program for young people in Grades 6-8 begins at 4:30 p.m. each Sunday. The Senior High Youth gather at the church at 6:30 p.m. Youth Director is Vernon Harrison.

Laity Sunday Service At Memorial Congregational

Laity Sunday will be observed Oct. 11 at 10:30 a.m. at Memorial Congregational Church, UCC.

Laymen will conduct the service. Greeters will be Dean Mathews and Tom Solmonte. George Duncan and John McNeilly will be the ushers. The Scripture readers will be Steve Karaian and Tom Solmonte.

Glen Crowell will bring the message, "The Responsibility of the Laity."

Music will be by a mens' trio, Dick Gilliland, Steve Karaian and Gil Busch.

A special offering for the Benevolence Fund will be received and the money sent to Florida Hurricane Relief.

Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m. A Fellowship (coffee) Hour follows the Worship Service.

Two Worship Services At HN Congregational

Two worship services will be held Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, Manet Ave.

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea will preach on "The Nearness Of God" at the 9 a.m. service. As part of World Communion Sunday, the sacrament of Holy Communion will be celebrated at both services. The coffee hour between the services will be hosted by Gail Freed.

Dr. Peter V. Corea, in honor of Church School Rally Day, will preach on "The Mind Of A Child" at the 10:30 a.m. service. The choir will sing under the direction of Arden T. Schofield. Church School youths are encouraged to attend and worship with their families.

Beginning Oct. 11, the Church School will hold classes for nursery school through Grade 1 every Sunday during the 9 a.m. worship service. Grades 2-12 will meet every Sunday from 10 to 11:30 a.m. under the direction of Gloria Brummitt, church school superintendent.

The Fair Committee will hold a Flea Market Saturday, Oct. 3 at the Department of Public Works parking area, 50 Sea St. Area crafters will display their wares.

The church is equipped for the physically challenged. Bring donations for the baskets in the vestibule for Fr. Bill's Place and the PSSB Pantry Shelf. Every Sunday is "Welcome Sunday" at Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Your spare Change, could Change a life...

Those pennies and spare change you have been collecting for a while could be put to great use. It could assist Fr. Bill's Place in its mission to help the homeless. Fr. Bill's Place feeds and shelters over 65 people a night. But, it also has assisted many South Shore people beyond the homeless shelter. This October, Fr. Bill's Place, and the "Wishing Well," will be at the following sites around the South Shore to collect change to benefit the shelter. Please contribute your pennies to our effort. Who knows, they might just help to change one life.

Presidents Go For First Win At Taunton

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's football coach Jack Raymer made two major changes for last Saturday's game with defending Old Colony League champion Bridgewater-Raynham and they paid off handsomely as the Presidents tied the Trojans, 14-14, in the rain at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Although not entirely happy with the tie, Raymer was pleased as Quincy partially made up for last year's walloping (B-R poured it on the Presidents, 52-12).

Friday night Quincy (0-1-1) will seek its first win as it plays at Taunton at 7 p.m.

Taunton is 2-0, having defeated Durfee, 26-20, and Plymouth, 7-0. Last fall Quincy defeated the Tigers, 28-6.

"This was a complete turnaround from our opening game at Mansfield (a 21-7 loss)," said Raymer. "Against Marshfield the defense just didn't come to play, but today it was terrific and I couldn't be prouder of everyone of these kids. You never like a tie, but Bridgewater-Raynham is the defending league champ and is still the team to beat. We went for the win but an interception put an end to our hopes for a win."

Raymer moved Robbie Kane from quarterback to his old wide receiver spot and inserted junior Mike Bartlett at quarterback. The moves really paid off.

Bartlett, in his first start at quarterback, was 8-for-13 passing for 154 yards and a touchdown and the speedy Kane had six receptions for 121 yards, including an incredible one-handed catch for a touchdown.

Noel DiBona carried 12 times for 90 yards, including a 53-yard touchdown run, and Dave Bogan carried eight times for 52 yards.

Bartlett had an outstanding two-way game and had 11 tackles. Mike Kavanaugh had nine tackles, two assists and recovered two fumbles. Duane Holmes was another defensive star and had a big fumble recovery to end a serious B-R threat.

Raymer had good words for sophomore Mike Feeley and juniors Ashley Davis and Paul Colleary for their defensive play. He also praised Holmes, Dan Morrell, Kavanaugh, DiBona, Bartlett and Sean McArdle.

Quincy scored early when Kavanaugh recovered a fumble on the Quincy 46. Five plays later DiBona raced around right end, broke into the clear and went 53 yards for the touchdown. DiBona kicked the extra point.

B-R came back in the second quarter as it drove 70 yards, picking up six first downs. Steve Rossacci scored from the four but the kicker slipped on the wet turf and the kick for the tying point failed.

B-R got a big break on this drive as Quincy was offside on a B-R punt, giving the Trojans another chance.

With two minutes left in the half, quarterback Dave Zukowski hit Dan Collins with a 19-yard scoring pass as Collins used his size (6'4", 218 pounds) to get behind the defender and make a diving catch in the corner of the end zone. Rossacci rushed for the two point conversion and B-R led, 14-7.

With time running out in the half, Bartlett completed four passes, three to Kane, including a 37-yarder which brought the ball to the B-R four. Kane made an outstanding one-handed catch in the end zone and DiBona kicked the point to make it 14-14 with 15 seconds left.

The Presidents had one more chance as Kavanaugh recovered his second fumble on the B-R 25 but DiBona missed a 40-yard field goal attempt.

Midway in the third quarter B-R received a break when the quarterback was sacked but Quincy was hit with a 15-yard face mask penalty.

Early in the final quarter, Quincy had a good chance by DiBona missed on a 21-yard field goal attempt.

"I thought he had a good chance of making it, but it was a tough day to kick with the wet field and heavy ball," said Raymer.

Holmes stopped a B-R drive by recovering a fumble on the Quincy 16.

Quincy got the ball and had one more chance but Matt Benigni intercepted a pass and the game ended in a tie.

Youth Football

Panthers Win 3rd Straight, Elks, Manets In 8-8 Tie

The Quincy Point Panthers remain the only unbeaten team in the Quincy Youth Football League following a 12-0 victory last Sunday over the North Quincy Apaches.

The Panthers are 3-0 and the Apaches 1-2.

The West Quincy Elks and Houghs Neck Manets battled to an 8-8 tie in the opener.

This Sunday the Panthers will meet the Manets (1-1-1) at 6 p.m.

and the Apaches meet the Elks (0-2-1) at 7:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Panthers-Apaches game was a tough defensive battle in the first quarter and despite a heavy mist, both teams played well.

With two minutes left in the half the Panthers marched to the Apaches' 10-yard line and Steve Roberts took a Carmen Lorenzano handoff and scored. The rush for the two-point conversion failed.

In the third quarter the Panthers struck again when Roberts bolted 17 yards for a touchdown and a 12-0 lead. Again the try for the points failed.

The fourth quarter

belonged to the Panthers, who kept the Apaches in tow, thanks to a Brad Smith interception. Running backs David Gunther, Roberts and Mark Joyce kept the ball on the ground and ran out the clock.

The Panthers were led by strong two-way efforts by Richard Garcia and Mike Martin. Joe Mariano and Smith turned in solid defensive efforts.

For the Apaches, quarterback Jim Finn, Sean O'Toole and Pat Egan led the offense while John Jones and Mike Mastrocola sparked the defense.

The Elks opened the scoring against the Manets on a 15-yard run by quarterback Mike Balducci. Kevin Conley added the two-point conversion on a second effort leg drive.

Donald Rueben and Eric Hanlon had good games on the drive.

The Elks led, 8-6, late in the game but the Manets tied it on a safety.

The Elks' defense was led by captain and linebacker Dan DePaulo, who hit hard throughout the game. Coach Frank Calabro praised both the offensive and defensive lines.

The Elks' junior varsity defeated the Manets, 28-6, led by co-captains Danny Hanlon and Shawn Faherty. Rookie quarterback John Rodenheiser was impressive.

Raiders Eye 3rd Win Against Plymouth

The North Quincy football team, off to another fast start, will seek its third straight victory Friday night when it hosts Plymouth in a 7 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Raiders turned in an outstanding defensive effort last Friday when it defeated Falmouth, 14-7, to improve to 2-0. Falmouth had scored 34 points in its opening day win.

Plymouth, which lost to North Quincy, 9-0, a year ago is 0-2, having lost to Brockton, 40-14, and Taunton, 7-0.

"The defense did a tremendous job for us at Falmouth," said North coach Ken McPhee. "Mark Sinclair had another outstanding night, running for 140 yards and playing a strong game on defense. Except for Falmouth's one scoring pass, the secondary did a fine job and the defense was strong throughout the game. Sinclair played hurt most of the game but refused to come out. He's just a tremendous competitor."

McPhee had praise for Dave Pacino, Dave Raftery, Sean Halpin, Dave Reinhart, Eric Delorey, Sean Skahan, Pat Shea, Sean Herron, Mike Linnane and Keith Lentini for their all-around play.

On offense he praised quarterback Liam Higgins, who had his third touchdown pass in two games, Sinclair, and Josh Gott, who scored the winning touchdown.

The Raiders scored first in the second quarter when Raftery caught a two-yard pass from Higgins for the touchdown. A rush for the two-point conversion failed.

Falmouth took the lead just before the half when Chris MacDonald caught a seven-yard pass from Joe Kelley for the score and Todd Lewis kicked the point which gave the Cape team a 7-6 halftime lead.

In the final quarter, Gott scored on a 14-yard run and Higgins kicked the extra point.

Reinhart had a touchdown pass from Higgins called back by a penalty.

The Raiders have lost Tony Licciardi as a result of an injury. Licciardi, a junior defensive back-wide receiver, may be out for the season.

Swimming

North Girls Off To 4-0 Start

The North Quincy girls' swim team is off to a fast start under first-year coach Yvonne Boness and improved its record to 4-0 with a 107-74 victory over Cambridge Rindge & Latin last week.

The North girls will swim at Sandwich Friday, will host New Bedford next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool and will be home with Randolph next Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at the same site.

North previously had defeated Boston Latin, Weymouth and Brockton.

Senior co-captains Joanne Dyer and Jen Walker and seniors Julie Ramos and Carol Blaikie have taken first places in their individual events as well as the relays.

Justine Fagerlund, a junior and holder of seven team records, is winning her share of events and diver Zoe Bohl has won in each of her four meets.

Top sophomores who are contributing are Tricia

Bertucci, Katie Callahan, Nancy Walker, Sarah Radell and Alyssa Cobban. Christine Amate and Lynne Garland are outstanding freshmen.

In last week's win over Cambridge, Fagerlund, Blaikie and Ramos each won two events.

Fagerlund won the 500 freestyle (5:34.74), and the 100 breaststroke (1:17). Blaikie won the 200 freestyle (2:27.91) and was a member of the winning 200 freestyle relay team (2:01.25). Ramos won the 50 freestyle (27:06) and the 100 backstroke (1:14.42).

Dyer won the 100 butterfly and was second in the 200 individual relay (2:01.25) and Jen Walker won the 100 freestyle (1:02.83) and was second in the 50 freestyle (27.54).

Boness took over the North reins after Bill Walker, coach of the North boys' and girls' teams for 17 years, was named Quincy's Athletic Coordinator.

North Boys Win One, Drop 2

The North Quincy boys' soccer team ran into some stiff competition during the past week, winning one game while losing two.

North defeated Taunton, 4-1, after losing to powerhouses Silver Lake, 8-0, and New Bedford, 6-0. The Raiders are 2-4-0.

In the Taunton game all four goals came in the first half with senior Mike MacDougall scoring first on a corner kick by Neil Hutchinson.

Quincy-North Quincy Boys' And Girls' Soccer Under The Lights Monday

The Quincy and North Quincy boys' and girls' soccer teams will meet Monday night, Oct. 5, in the first soccer games at Veteran's Memorial Stadium.

The girls' teams will meet at 5:30 p.m. and the boys' will play at 7 o'clock.

The concession stand will be open and a 50-50

The second goal was scored by Hutchinson on a direct kick, which he chipped into the upper right corner over the defensive wall.

The senior co-captains combined for the next goal, Bo Smith scoring with an assist for Brian Fitzgerald, and the final goal was scored by Brian Kelley on a pass from Smith.

The Raiders dominated the second half with strong contributions from Mike Fitzgerald, Jeff Earnest, Spiro Kouvis and Mike Kowilek.

North was outclassed by two outstanding teams but Brian Fitzgerald, MacDougall and Hutchinson turned in fine performances against New Bedford.

Goalkeeper Adam Calvert had a busy time and made a brilliant save of a New Bedford penalty kick as well as several other tough chances.

North Quincy will host Bridgewater-Raynham today (Thursday) and then will come the eagerly-awaited game with Quincy Monday night at 7 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Final 4 Champs Crowned In Tennis Tourney

The 22nd annual City Tennis Tournament sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and Continental Cablevision completed play by crowning the last four champions of eight divisions.

Peter Trafton joined daughter Pam as a two-time 1992 champion by winning the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Cup as men's singles champion. He defeated Joe Ryan, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, in an exciting battle of two tournament veterans.

In women's doubles, Sandra and Susan Burke defended their crown against another mother-daughter team of Gail and Pam Trafton. Burke and Burke stopped Pam Trafton's bid for a third 1992 championship with a well-played 6-2, 6-3, win.

The men's doubles division has new champions as Joe McLaughlin and Steve Myatt teamed to defeat 1991 champs Lenny Ciavarro and Bruce Riddick, 6-4, 6-3.

The men's "B" singles cup goes to first-time champion Christopher Baker, 6-0, 6-4, as he overcame the steady play of tournament veteran Bill Egan.

Tournament Director John Franceschini and Recreation Director Barry Welch presented engraved plaques to each champion and finalist on behalf of tourney sponsor Continental Cablevision.

Welch praised Franceschini for setting up an outstanding draw that created exciting competition and resulted in new champions in the hard-fought tournament.

Welch also thanked the participants who had to reschedule play because of inclement weather.

"The cross-section of players and the variability of outdoor play is what makes our tournament unique to any other. I would like to once again thank Continental Cablevision for stepping

Volleyball

North Girls Impressive In First Two Wins

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team, defending state Division I champion and favored by many to repeat this season, is off to a fast start with impressive victories over Falmouth and New Bedford.

Last year's state title was the second for North, which also won the crown in 1987.

North was led in its first two games by returning all-scholastics Heather Rendle, Joanne Currier and Maureen McCarthy. With the return of all-scholastic Regina Murphy (out of the first two matches with an injury), and the improving play of starters Heather Simmons, Laura Rines and Wendy Sweetser, North looks tough to beat.

"We knew we had a strong team with our four returning starters, Rendle, Currier, Murphy and McCarthy," said coach Jim Rendle. "But it's the play of Simmons, Rines and Sweetser that has really lifted us."

Simmons, the setter from last year's 17-1 junior varsity team, has been outstanding in the back row and her setting ability gives North the option of letting McCarthy become a hitter when she is in the front row.

Senior Rines and junior Sweetser, two outside hitters, have been consistent at the net and both have picked up the level of their back court game.

North has two big freshmen, 5'10" Sara Stanton and 5'9" Linda Jellison, who are new to the game but will help North at the net by blocking and will ensure a bright future for the program.

Mindy Roberts, Karen Shea, Amy Detwiler and Missy Roberts have provided the depth that a championship team needs.

North will play at Barnstable today (Thursday), will be at Dennis-Yarmouth Friday, will host Weymouth Monday at 3:30 p.m. and will play Quincy in its big game next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the Vo-Tech gym.

North, a top-ranked team in New England, will take its show to the national level when it plays in a tournament in Amherst, N.Y., Oct. 24 and 25.

The tournament will be hosted by Sweethome High School, ranked #1 nationally by USA Today.

"We will travel to expose some of our talented players to national college recruiters," said Rendle.

Donations to help defray the cost of the trip can be sent to the North Quincy Volleyball Boosters Club treasurer Anne McCarthy, 9 Whitman Road, Quincy, 02169.

Youth Soccer Travel Teams Tryouts Saturday

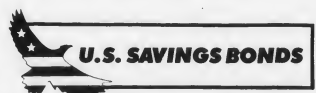

Tryouts for the Quincy Youth Soccer League spring travel teams will be held beginning this Saturday.

Boys under 14 will tryout at 1 p.m. at Broad Meadows Middle School.

Boys under 12 will tryout Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at Atlantic Middle School and Saturday, Oct. 17 at the same place and time. Rain date for this week's session will be Oct. 9 and rain date for the Oct. 17 session will be Oct. 19.

Girls under 12 will tryout this Saturday from 3 to 4:30 p.m. at Montclair Field and Tuesday, Oct. 13, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at Montclair.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

You can hear from loved ones and they are just five or you find out of an illness in the family... There can be a terrible rain on the day you planned a special outing, or you can wake up to birds singing in the sunlight.

"You had better live your best and act your best and think your best today; for today is the sure preparation for tomorrow and the other tomorrows that follow." ... Harriet Martineau

Some old adages come to mind: "There is nothing so bad that it couldn't be worse." "Live each day as though it is your last." "If you do your best, it is the best you can do." "Don't put off until tomorrow, what you can do today."

Yes, this day is important... Work at it! Try to make the best of each day as it comes...

Mullen Tells Council: Police 'Working Hard' To Protect Public

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Police Chief Francis Mullen assured the City Council Monday his department is continuing to work hard to protect residents against violent crime in the wake of recent publicity which he said is unfair.

Mullen also discussed the idea of returning beat cops to certain areas of the city, explained department procedures and talked about hiring new officers, during the meeting which lasted more than 90 minutes.

Mullen said he wants to work together with city officials, residents and the media to make Quincy a safer place.

He blasted The Patriot Ledger for instilling fear in many Quincy residents, particularly senior citizens. "Some of the recent media reports did not do the Quincy Police Department or the City of Quincy any good."

He said recent newspaper articles in the Ledger concerning sexual assaults were "pretty accurate as far as the content of the articles... but the headlines really distort things..."

"I think Quincy has a bad rap and it's unfair," Mullen said.

FRANCIS MULLEN

Mullen said he and members of the department recently met with the Ledger staff and "resolved some things."

Mullen credited The Quincy Sun with reporting accounts of the recent sexual assaults and rapes accurately and responsibly.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney said the police department has a public relations problem with The Patriot Ledger.

"I think we are projecting a poor image of the city. I hear senior citizens talking about being afraid to walk down the street. Chief, you have to talk with the press and let the public know you have a handle on this," Cheney said.

Mullen said the department police log is available every day for the media and that members of his staff are available each day to discuss cases and provide information.

"We give them (media) the information. But we have no control over what's printed," Mullen said.

Mullen also noted that some information cannot be released under the CORI law.

Mullen said that rape is a difficult crime for police to prevent and residents have to take more precautions themselves.

"Everyone should be able to walk the streets 24 hours but sometimes people use poor judgement," Mullen said referring to cases where the victim was attacked while walking alone at night.

"You can put an officer on every corner in the city and not stop a crime like rape," he said.

"People have to be more aware... particularly young people," said Councillor-at-Large Patricia Toland.

Of the 13 reported rapes in Quincy this year nine were cases where the victim and assailant new each other, Mullen said. Of these cases there were five arrests made. In the

Inspector General May Examine Bid Process

Sheets Vows 'Fight' To Keep State Dept. Of Education Here

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

In what one city official called the MRWA headquarters siting fiasco "all over again," the issue over where to locate the new state Department of Education is shaping up as a battle between Quincy and Boston.

And, with the relocation scheduled to take place before next March, the ultimate ruling may not be made until after the state Inspector General's office looks into the bidding process.

On Tuesday, an angry Mayor James Sheets vowed to "fight" to keep the headquarters in Quincy.

He said a bid by a local party to keep the headquarters in Quincy has been unfairly and prematurely dismissed because some state education officials prefer to move to Boston. He said the Quincy bid deserves consideration because it satisfies the RFP specifications. Moreover, the rental rates proposed by the Quincy group are lower than any bid submitted from Boston.

"It would seem to me that a systematic effort has been made to eliminate the Hancock St. Coalition and that cannot be tolerated. We'll fight it to the very end because it's another situation of where it's cheaper to stay in Quincy but a few people want to go to Boston.

"It's the issue of the MRWA headquarters all over again. Let's not do what's prudent for the taxpayers. Let's do what's most convenient for the state Department of Education," the mayor lashed out Tuesday.

Sheets' criticism stems from a request by the state Department of Education Board to the state Department of Capital Planning and Operations (DCPO) to "seriously consider" a bid to relocate the agency from Quincy to Boston, despite a lower rental rate bid submitted by the Hancock St. Coalition, a Quincy-based group.

The DCPO is in charge of determining which proposals meet the requirements of the specifications. A site will be selected from those bids meeting the requirements.

Last month, the coalition proposed the DOE relocate its headquarters at Quincy Center Plaza to a new 75,000 square-foot facility at 1495-1515 Hancock St., Quincy Square. Sheets said the city helped prepare the bid because the new headquarters and its 375 to 400 employees would give business a boost in the southern section of Hancock St.

The office space vacated by the DOE at Quincy Center Plaza will be occupied by Stop and Shop.

Fiscally, the coalition's bid makes the most sense. It was the lowest 10-year bid at $13.75 per square foot. The five-year bid was the second lowest bid at $14.90.

There has been some speculation that the state education board prefers the Shrafft Center located in Charlestown.

Cheney Would Abolish Asst. City Clerk Post

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea is expected to move into the City Clerk's job when present City Clerk John Gillis retires later this month. But will anyone succeed Shea?

City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney has proposed that the assistant clerk position be abolished. The idea will be discussed at the Oct. 19 City Council meeting.

City Solicitor Steve McGrath said that the Council cannot cut the position during the fiscal year but "only at budget time" which means the money for the position would remain in the City Clerk budget until the end of June.

However, when the assistant clerk's post becomes vacant, the Council may refuse to confirm a successor nominated by Shea, McGrath said.

With less than a third of the fiscal year passed, more than $21,000 would be left over from the assistant clerk's $30,000 salary. That money would be subject to transfer at the end of the fiscal year. Gillis has accumulated a significant amount of sick time owed to him in his 33 years as clerk. The funds could go towards paying him also.

Gillis said the assistant clerk's position should be retained. By city charter, the assistant clerk performs all of the clerk's duties in the clerk's absence. While the clerk is present, the assistant helps administer and perform the duties of the office.

Gillis said the clerk has a variety of responsibilities and functions including signing and keeping all vital records such as births, deaths and marriages, voter registration, elections and census drives. The clerk also chairs the License Board and serves as the clerk of the City Council.

Since Proposition 2-1/2 went into effect in 1981, Gillis said his office staff has been reduced from 13 to eight.

In addition, Gillis said the city should create an Election Commission separate from the clerk's office "to take some of the load off the City Clerk." Quincy is one of only a few cities in Massachusetts which does not have an Election Commission.

"Out of 39 cities in Massachusetts, 30 have election commissions. We've been very fortunate in the city to have a clerk who runs the elections," Gillis said.

Curbside Leaf Pickup Oct. 26

The City of Quincy will provide curbside leaf collection beginning Monday, Oct. 26.

Leaves will be picked up on regularly scheduled trash days through Friday, Dec. 4.

Leaves should be placed to one side of resident's recycling bins and trash barrels in appropriate containers which include barrels and reusable containers, large paper sacks (designed for leaves) which are available at Stop & Shop, Star Market and Shaw's supermarkets, or clear plastic bags.

Michael Wheelwright, DPW program manager, said six weeks should be enough time for residents to clear their yards.

Leaf and yard waste drop off will continue at the Corporation Yard, 55 Sea St., on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Firefighter Commended For Saving Baby From Choking

While many would call him a hero, to Quincy firefighter Robert Shea it's just part of the job.

Two weeks ago Shea helped save a baby from choking to death. It was deja vu for the four-year veteran. He helped save another infant this past

January.

"It was almost the exact same circumstances," Shea said.

On Friday morning, Sept. 25, Shea, on duty as Fire Alarm Operator, received a call from Patricia Sullivan of Marina Bay. Sullivan explained that her six-month-old son, Joseph, was choking on a tissue.

"She (Sullivan) really calmed down and took control," Shea said. Shea then instructed her to strike the baby between the shoulder blades.

"It took eight to 10 blows to dislodge it," Shea said. The firefighter was relieved to hear the sound of Joseph crying on the phone. Shea then instructed Sullivan to take the baby to the hospital to be examined.

Shea received EMT training in January, 1989. "It's good to see the training works."

Shea received a commendation from Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and also a commendation from the City Council presented by Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

Compared to Quincy, Charlestown rates are higher, one by almost $6 a square foot. The Charlestown five-year rate is $5.75 higher per square foot ($20.65) while the 10-year rate is $3.89 higher ($17.64).

Moreover, the four other Boston bids are all higher than the coalition's. They are: $27.71, $26.29, $19.58 and $17.10 per square foot for five years and $23.53, $23.33 and $21.68 per square foot for 10 years. One 10-year rate Boston bid did not apply.

However, on two separate occasions since bids were opened Sept. 10, state education officials have made it clear that they prefer Boston over Quincy, regardless of the higher cost. In one instance, an official pointed to an alleged flaw in the Quincy bid which Sheets said is untrue.

An internal memo from Education Commissioner Robert Antonucci to staff members dated Sept. 11 said the Quincy proposal did not include funds for a "buildout" or money to build the structure as specified in the RFP.

"That's not true. The coalition has money for the buildout," Sheets said.

Then, in a letter dated Sept. 21 to state Leasing Director Martha Goldsmith, Education Secretary Piedad Robertson, Education Chairperson Martin Kaplan and Antonucci said the accessibility factor is as equally important as the cost.

The trio said Boston is the major hub of all public transportation and the most accessible location in the state. The officials also said a Boston headquarters would allow the DOE to work closer with other state agencies.

Sheets disputed the accessibility claim, saying Quincy is more accessible given its close proximity to major transportation routes. He also said access to Boston will be hampered during the Third Harbor Tunnel "Big Dig" project.

On Oct. 1, Coalition members Raymond Potvin and Anthony Trambone were notified that the state leasing office would no longer consider the Quincy bid.

In a letter of response to Goldsmith, Potvin and Trambone told the leasing director that they will ask Inspector General Robert Cerasoli "to look into exactly what methods and standards of decision lay at the basis of your notification to us that we had been excluded from further participation."

Sheets said he agrees Cerasoli should examine the bid process. He also asked Goldsmith in a letter dated Monday to "cease going forward with the award of the Department of Education lease until some serious questions have been satisfactorily answered or resolved by you or your staff."

If the process is determined flawed, Cerasoli has the authority to ask for a new bidding process. The inspector general cannot rule in favor of one of the bids.

The Quincy License Board Tuesday again continued separate requests from Cafe Bianco, 1626 Hancock St. and D. Scott Deware, director of the Deware Funeral Home.

The Cafe Bianco request for a Common Victualer-All Alcoholic License was continued for one week because of the poor health of Atty. Paul Barbadoro, who represents Cafe Bianco.

Deware's request for a permit to store 160 gallons of gasoline in tanks of eight vehicles (maximum) in a garage located at 1272 Sea St. was continued for one week because Deware was unable to meet with Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson to discuss the matter.

Kolson spoke about neighbors' concerns regarding Deware's request at the board's Sept. 15 meeting.

School Committee Given Special Employee Status

The City Council passed a resolution granting School Committee members special municipal employee status by a 6-3 vote Monday.

Opponents criticized the measure saying it has the potential to create conflict of interest and abuse of power.

Voting against the resolve were Councilors Patricia Toland, Larry Chretien and Timothy Cahill.

The special employee status will allow School Committee members to do business with the city or contract with the city in departments other than the School Department.

"Elected officials should have a clean, untarnished image," Toland said. "This position gives elected officials a leg up over others. And if we grant this to the School Committee, every other city employee will want this status."

"It's about power and who has it..." Chretien said. "As guardians of the public trust we have to watch out for this."

Chretien said after the vote that he has doubts as to whether the City Council had the authority to make the change of status.

"It was inappropriate. It wasn't advertised and we didn't hold a public hearing," he said.

License Granted For N.Q. Open Marketplace

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Neponset Landing, 2 Hancock St. for a Common Victualer license for an open marketplace.

Atty. Robert Fleming, who represents Neponset Landing, said the marketplace will be held every Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"It will be an entirely open food service," said Fleming. "There will be no tables, but sandwiches, coffee and various other food items will be available."

Fleming added that response to the idea of a weekend marketplace was "very good" at a recent community meeting.

Ward 6 Councilor Bruce Ayers, who attended the community meeting, said at Tuesday's board meeting that he was in favor of the license being granted. However, Ayers also presented to the board a list of 14 conditions he wanted added to the license "to control it (the marketplace) and protect the community."

Among Ayers' major concerns were traffic and parking. Ayers said he had met several times with Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon and that he was convinced any traffic problems could be rectified quickly and efficiently.

"Whatever has to be done, we'll do it," said Ayers.

Fleming said parking would be no problem because in addition to the 84 parking spaces at the site, Neponset Landing would also lease the nearby MDC-owned parking area--which has 187 additional parking spaces--for the weekend marketplace.

Since the marketplace is only expected to attract about 500 customers over an eight-hour period per day, Fleming said, there should be ample parking for patrons.

However, Al Nacar, owner of the nearby Quincy Bay Inn, expressed concern that his parking lot would be used by patrons of the marketplace.

"We're a weekend hotel, and Friday and Saturday are the busiest nights of the week for us," said Nacar, who added that he wanted a police detail monitoring the marketplace at all times.

Police Chief Francis Mullen tried to reassure

Nacar, saying that the police would be prepared to help in the event of any problems.

"We have to monitor it (the marketplace) in fairness and wait and see what's going on," said Mullen. "We have to play it by ear. I'm prepared to step in if there's ever a need."

Parents Plan Vigil On F R Bridge

16-year-old Roger Smith was killed in an auto accident nearly two years ago on the Fore River Bridge.

His parents, Janet of Hingham, and Joseph of Quincy, are planning a vigil on the bridge, Monday, Oct. 12 at 10 a.m., in an effort to have safety improvements made on the structure which connects Quincy and Weymouth.

Roger was killed Oct.

12, 1990 when his car skidded into one of the steel gables on the bridge which block traffic when the bridge opens.

Witnesses said the car was not speeding and police said Smith was not driving under the influence.

His father, Joseph, has been pressuring the state to make safety improvements ever since. The state has taken measures to prevent skidding but Smith says the state DPW has not done enough.

Smith said the state should pave the bridge and replace the heavy steel gables with aluminum ones.

Roger's parents have invited local politicians to the half-hour vigil which will include a meeting afterwards at the Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Road.

Abolish Assistant City Clerk Post?

Cheney said that automation including computerization have made the clerk's job more efficient and that the city can contract out for help during elections.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he is leaning towards reducing the position to part-time or cutting it.

"The Council has talked in the past about making it part-time," he said. "I haven't fully made up my mind but I definitely think something should be done in the next couple of months. I think the Council should get together on it and do what's best for the city."

"I don't think it's a good idea," said Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan. "We don't have an election commission. Other cities do and the clerk's office in those cities don't run elections. I think we get a bigger bang for our buck. Our clerk's office does double duty."

Phelan made some other points in favor of keeping the assistant clerk post.

"Technically, under the City Charter, we couldn't hold a Council meeting in the event something happened to the City Clerk," he said.

"Could you imagine one of the most important offices in the city without a backup?" Phelan asked. "For the large amounts of money that go through that office and the revenue it generates for the city... I think it justifies the position."

Phelan said the "integrity of elections" is one of the most important functions of the city and he added that an outside firm may not be experienced enough to run an election.

"I'm undecided," said Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien. "The main thing I'm concerned about is that we run good and fair elections. The office can't be short-handed in a busy election season."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said he too is undecided. "I would like to find out more about the day-to-day duties of the office. I know Joe Shea has been doing an excellent job," said Ayers, who is serving his first year in office.

Councillor-at-Large Tim Cahill also said he wants to look at eliminating or downsizing the position. He said he wants to study the idea of eliminating the clerk from the responsibility of sitting on the License Board.

"Joe Shea's done a great job this year, with one year's experience, virtually by himself in a busy election year," Cahill said.

The Council, which is the legislative branch of city government under the Plan A charter, appoints three positions, auditor, city clerk and assistant city clerk.

Mayor James Sheets said he will not try to interfere with the council's decision.

"That is the legislative branch and they have certain areas they are responsible for and I will go with what the council recommends," Sheets said. By STEVE KAVANAGH

Tobin Invites Studds To Tour District

Rep. Stephen Tobin (D-Quincy) has invited Congressman Gerry Studds to tour parts of Quincy with him when the congressman visits the city today (Thursday).

"I believe Congressman Studds has a unique ability to help provide federal assistance in a number of key areas to benefit this district," said Tobin.

Tobin said he plans to discuss many federal issues with Studds, from MWRA federal rates to federal reimbursement for last October's storm damage. Tobin added that he plans to tour the Adams Shore/Merrymount/Houghs Neck coastline to inspect seawall damage.

"I also want to show him the Nut Island facility, talk about Quincy's role in the harbor cleanup, and further discuss ways to slow down the MWRA rate increases to property owners," said Tobin.

Tobin said he and Studds would also discuss health care costs and employment opportunities.

Cahill 'Leaning' To Mayoral Run

Some City Hall observers think Mayor James Sheets could get another re-election free ride next year.

But they better not put any money on it. Not right now, anyway.

City Councillor Tim Cahill is warming up to challenging Sheets in 1993.

Ask him if he is thinking of running and Cahill candidly responds: "I'm leaning toward running. I'll make a final decision before the end of the year."

CAHILL

Sheets would win.

"He would probably beat me 60-to-40," Cahill estimates.

But, that's this week, he stresses. The election is more than a year away, he notes.

A year can make a big difference, he says. And points to George Bush as a political illustration. Unbeatable a year ago. Beatable this year.

Cahill thinks he senses a growing feeling that it might be time for a change and by a year from now that feeling could be much stronger.

"Is the city going in the right direction," he asks. "I feel we are floating. Not going backward. But not going forward."

"People wanted that four years ago. He (Sheets) was the right man for that time. But have times changed since then? I think they have and will continue to change."

Cahill, who is 33, is now in his third term as a city councillor at-large.

He has built a reputation for speaking out on issues and not being afraid of taking a controversial stand.

"I try to do what I think is the best thing," he says. "I stay away from the special interest groups and do my own thing."

Doing his own thing has hurt him from a financial standpoint.

His Handshakes restaurant in Quincy Sq. has been boycotted from time to time by certain groups because of some of his stands on the City Council chamber floor.

But if it has cost him something at the cash register, it apparently hasn't hurt him at the ballot box.

He topped the council at-large field in the last two elections.

Cahill says one reason he is thinking of running is that he feels Quincy is now operating more like a town than a city.

"We are a city and should operate like a city," he says. "With executive decisions — rather than by consensus."

Cahill no doubt has a lot to think about before making a final decision. One probable concern: As a working businessman will he be able to have the time to conduct a long, hard campaign which would be Sessions will be held in a 24-hour message Thursdays from 5:45 to service. 7:15 p.m. at 10 Granite St., The group site is third floor. There is no fee.

SHEETS

Cahill frankly acknowledged that Sheets is a popular figure whose administration has been able to steer clear of controversy that marked and hurt others in the past.

If the election was held this week and he was a candidate, Cahill makes no bones about the fact that necessary to try to unseat an incumbent mayor?

Cahill says if he does run, it will be to win in 1993 and not just to stake out a claim to the mayor's office for 1995.

"It wouldn't be a half-hearted run," he says. "If I get into it, I will campaign full force."

Is he getting ready?

He has a fundraiser set for Wednesday, Oct. 14, 6 to 8 pm at the Common Market on Willard St., West Quincy. Tickets are $35 per person and $50 per couple.

Sponsored by "The Committee to Elect Tim Cahill." Question: To elect Tim Cahill to what?

Only three mayors in Quincy's history have run for re-election without opposition: Thomas Burgin (1940), Francis McCauley (1983) and Sheets himself last year.

No Quincy mayor has ever run twice without opposition. Cahill right now looks like the only potential challenger. If he doesn't run — and no one else does — Sheets would add a unique page to Quincy's political history.

THE DERBES BROTHERS deserve a "well done" for a job well done with the road and sidewalk construction on Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

The Derbes brothers, Bobby, Frank, Dick and Touffee have deep Quincy roots and take pride in their work and in Quincy. They are carrying out this involved project with the minimum of inconvenience to merchants, shoppers and motorists.

Also deserving a large share in the "well done" are Public Works Commissioner David Colton and his department and Mayor James Sheets' office.

The communication has been good. Everyone has known what his job is and is doing it.

Well done!

BELLOTTI

A FUNDRAISER FOR Mike Bellotti, Democratic nominee for state representative in the First Norfolk District, is set for Tuesday, Oct. 13, 7 to 9 pm at the Common Market, Willard St. Tickets are $25 and will be available at the door.

CHOLESTEROL CONFUSION

High cholesterol is bad for you, right? Not necessarily. There is a lot of conflicting information about cholesterol, and one key to clearing up the confusion is understanding that there are two types of cholesterol: HDL (high-density lipoprotein) and LDL (low-density lipoprotein). HDL cholesterol is good for you; it actually helps clear arteries of fatty deposits. LDL is the bad variety that contributes to heart disease. Your cholesterol count is a combination of HDL and LDL. High HDL levels can mean that an overall high cholesterol count may not be bad. On the other hand, a relatively low cholesterol count comprising a high LDL could mean danger. It's important to remember, too, that cholesterol is just one of many factors that affect your risk of heart disease.

P.S. Women often have more HDL cholesterol, which may partially explain why they are less prone to heart disease than men. The role that your diet plays in warding off heart disease is considerable. If you would like to learn more about how to eat more healthfully, and about other ways you can help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with the Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Sheets, Former Mayors Join In Support For Community Action Program

Mayor James Sheets and four of his predecessors gathered together recently in a joint show of support for Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc.

Sheets was joined by Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, Francis McCauley, and Sheila McIntyre, who was representing her late husband, James McIntyre.

Sheets noted the historic gathering of six mayoral administrations by saying "Never before have we all gathered, under one roof, for one cause."

QCAP has served Quincy for over 25 years.

The event, a breakfast held at The Ocean Terrace in Marina Bay, was organized to showcase the work of Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. Close to 100 business and community leaders attended in order to hear about the services provided to children, families, adults and the elderly who struggle against poverty.

The event also marked the first public showing of a brief documentary video on Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. which was produced for free by Continental Cablevision. The video featured people who have been helped by the agency over the years, as well as QCAP staff and board members talking about their experiences with the agency.

Rosemary Wahlberg, QCAP Executive Director, also spoke. She gave a summary of the many services the agency provides to the community, including: emergency food, fuel assistance, weatherization, Head Start programs for pre-school children, development of affordable housing, assistance with child care, feeding and housing search for the elderly homeless, benefits advocacy for the disabled, and opportunities for education and job training.

The breakfast was the first stage of a public awareness campaign which Quincy Community Action Programs will hold this fall. The public kickoff for the campaign will occur Oct. 20 and will be a fundraiser celebrating the 80th anniversary of QCAP board member Frank Kearns. Tickets are $10 each and can be purchased by calling 985-4885 or 479-8181.

Quincy's Yesterdays North End Gets The Short End, Herbert Charges

Dr. Charles J. Herbert, former president of the City Council, told members of the Montclair Improvement Association that the north end of the city was getting short shrift when it came to representation in government.

Wards 5 and 6, he said, pay 42 percent of the taxes but have only two ward councillors while the remainder of the city pays 58 percent of the taxes and has four ward councillors plus the attention of three at-large councillors.

"While Ward 6 has doubled its population in the last 15 years," said Herbert, "it remains somewhat dormant and it is this condition that the councillors at-large rely on apparently."

"So long as they get votes by giving promises there is no reason why they should exert themselves to work for North Quincy. A good illustration is the loss of the new wing to North Quincy High School."

RABIES EPIDEMIC

Dr. E.A. Varennes, a city veterinarian, said the most serious epidemic of rabies in eight years was developing in the Atlantic section where five dogs were diagnosed as positive cases in the past week.

The owner of one of them was bitten in the face and had started to undergo the painful Pasteur treatments.

Public Health Commissioner Dr. Edmund B. Fitzgerald said that if any more outbreaks of rabies occurred anywhere in the city he would order every dog quarantined for 60 days.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Quincy Hospital Plans Fundraiser Variety Show

Quincy Hospital is producing its first fundraising variety show in November and everyone in the community is invited to be a part of it.

There will be three performances, Nov. 12, 13 and 14, at the North Quincy High School Auditorium. Tryouts for the show will be Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the 1000 Southern Artery auditorium located in the main building.

The show is being professionally directed by the Cargill Organization of New York which has been producing fundraising shows since 1919. Cargill provides the scripts, costumes and the director, all that is needed is the talent. The director assigns the song or dance people will perform in and provides the music and all necessary assistance. This is the same organization that produces the very popular Follies for the Hingham Community Center every year.

There are also positions available on the different committees connected with the show. Anyone with questions about tryouts or who is interested in volunteering behind the scenes with make-up, props and scenery, or helping with stage functions, should call Diane Gray in the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 773-6100, ext. 4016 or 2095.

PUPPETS WERE PART of the fun during last year's Octoberfest-Family Fair at Beechwood Community Life Center which provided entertainment for all ages.

Octoberfest-Family Fair At Beechwood Oct. 17

Beechwood Community Life Center will hold its annual Octoberfest-Family Fair, Saturday, Oct. 17 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

This year's event will also include a Craft Fair. An invitation is being extended to local crafters.

The Family Fair will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and is designed for young families and features games, pony rides, face painting and hay jumps.

The Craft Fair will run from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will feature amateur and professional crafters.

The Harvest Feast will be held from 4 to 6 p.m. and features foods and dishes from Beechwood's Intergenerational Garden.

For information call 471-5712.

John Hurley To Appear In 'Lend Me A Tenor'

John Hurley of Quincy will portray the bellhop in the production of "Lend Me A Tenor" by Arlington Friends of the Drama, which premieres Friday, Oct. 16 at 8 p.m. at 22 Academy St. Theatre, Arlington.

Hurley has been in community theatre for 16 years and specializes in comedy. He played the role of Tim in "Noises Off" for AFD in 1986. In a production of "Little Shop of Horrors" by the Milton

JOHN HURLEY

Players, he played the role of the plant.

He first explored acting in Stoughton High School's theatre program, and went on to major in theatre at Bridgewater State College. His directing skills found an outlet with "Broadway Bound" for the Little Theatre of Stoughton.

Other performances are scheduled for Oct. 17 at 8 p.m. and Oct. 18 at 7 p.m. and Friday, Oct. 23 through Sunday, Oct. 25.

Baseball Card Show At Parker School Oct. 24

Art Association Meeting At River Bay Club Oct. 13

The Quincy Art Association will meet Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the River Bay Club, Brackett St. (between Dunkin' Donuts and Bentley's off Southern Artery).

Feature artist will be Edwina Caci who will demonstrate her technique in oil/pastel.

The public is invited.

Tickets Available For Jimmy Fund Big Band Concert

The Jimmy Fund Council of Milton will sponsor a concert by The Greater Bostonians (Music Makers For The Jimmy Fund) Sunday, Oct. 25 at 2 p.m. at Milton High School.

Tickets for the event, which will feature big band music, are available at several Quincy locations. The Greater Bostonians plan to honor the memory of Baron Hugo and some of the music that he played during his Totem Pole days at the concert.

Proceeds will benefit the Jimmy Fund in the memory of H. Edward Carlson. During the last eight years the memorial, which includes a golf tournament, has raised over $120,000 for the Fund.

Tickets are $10 each and will be sold on a first come, first serve basis (the auditorium holds 875 people). They can be

60 Veterans Guests At HN Legion Seafood Dinner

Sixty wheelchair veterans from Brockton and West Roxbury Veterans Hospitals and the Soldiers Home at Chelsea were recent guests for a seafood dinner at the Houghs Neck Legion Post.

Their service years dated from World War I to the present and included a 101-year-old Naval retiree.

"The dedication and caring shown to our veterans by each and every one of you was truly heartwarming to see," wrote Irma Vanderpool, director of recreation therapy at Chelsea.

In addition to financial aid from the Bryan VFW Post, lobsters were contributed by the Lobstermen's Association, fish was cooked by Bernie VanTassel, and May and Ray LaRue provided vegetables and salad.

Commander James Fratolillo was in charge of the day's events with Past Commander John Hirtle supervising.

Frank Derwin, Frank Perry Elected To Silver Haired Legislature

Frank Derwin of Wollaston and Frank "Bud" Perry of Quincy were recently elected to the Silver Haired Legislature in the Second Norfolk District of Quincy.

Derwin, chapter president of the National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni, Inc., was elected state representative.

Perry, a member of the Political Action Committee at Crestview Health Care Facility, was elected to the Silver Hair State Senate.

Derwin and Perry will be sworn into office in January at the State House.

The election was sponsored through the Executive Office of Elder Affairs and the Quincy Council on Aging. Peggy O'Connor of the council coordinated the election with assistance from the Quincy Election Dept.

Car Care Corner

Ah, the ceremonious burning of the car payment book when the final installment is made.

For many of us the occasion can trigger "new car fever." The '93's are beautiful.

But wait. Have you priced one out lately? The average new car today sells for more than $17,000. Maybe a better investment, at least for now, would be some fix-up. "We could get it painted, put on four tires, a new battery, shocks and floor mats for less than the sales tax on a new car," you decide. "And when we eventually trade up, the old car will be worth more."

The Payoff In Car Care

If you've taken care of your car, truck or van, it may not need that much work anyway. Ask any owner of a good looking older vehicle how he or she has kept it that way and the answer is likely to be:

"...Common sense care, inside and out. First and foremost, I change the oil regularly."

This is a cardinal rule of vehicle maintenance, but it goes far beyond that, emphasizes the Car Care Council. All fluids: brake, power steering, transmission, windshield washer solvent and antifreeze play a part in the safety performance and life of a vehicle.

Neglect Under The Hood

"Keeping fluids clean and up to level will extend the life of a vehicle as much as anything one can do," says Council President Don Midgley.

"Other than checking tire inflation, this is the least expensive form of preventive maintenance I can think of. So it is surprising to see fluid conditions near the top of the failure list when we check vehicles during National Car Care month."

"To a large extent we can attribute this to the popularity of self-serve gas stations."

Reviewing the results of the last four years of checking thousands of vehicles, Car Care Council reports more than 17 percent failed a check of one of the fluids.

•26.5 percent had dirty oil or showed low oil level.

•29 percent had inadequate antifreeze protection or were low on antifreeze.

•16.5 percent were low on automatic transmission fluid or had burned or dirty fluid.

•9.75 percent were low on brake fluid.

•12.25 percent needed windshield washer solvent.

Each of these vital fluids affects the life and performance of a vehicle and/or the safety of the driver and its passengers.

New Mercury Villager Minivan Available At Fore River Motors

The all-new, aerodynamic, front-wheel-drive 1993 Mercury Villager—the first minivan ever for Lincoln-Mercury—has arrived at Fore River Motors, 418 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

"Villager combines the styling appointments, prestige, ride and quality of a Mercury with the versatility of a minivan," said Jacques B. Dunn, president. "It is the only minivan designed to meet all federal motor vehicle standards for cars and trucks and offer standard anti-lock brakes.

"We think the ride and handling of the Villager are more comfortable and car-like than any minivan on the road today," Dunn said. "In addition, Villager has seating for as many as seven passengers, with seats that can be rearranged in a variety of ways depending on the number of people and the amount of cargo you want to carry."

With a list price of $18,999, Villager is available in two models, GS and LS. It is powered by a 3.0-liter V-6 engine with an overhead camshaft and sequential electronic fuel injection. The engine, which delivers 151 horsepower and 174 ft.-lbs. of torque, is coupled with an electronically controlled four speed automatic overdrive transaxle. This powertrain, along with the optional towing package, gives Villager a towing capacity of 3,500 pounds.

On the outside, the aerodynamic Villager features contemporary styling with air-craft style doors, the familiar Mercury lightbar grille, foldaway mirrors, front cornering lamps, bodyside molding and color-keyed bumpers, handles and moldings. Villager's appearance also will benefit from the use of clear-coat paint protection, and the extensive use of corrosion-resistant steel.

On the inside, Villager contains a high level of standard equipment including an electronic four-channel anti-lock brake system, power rack-and-pinion steering, power brakes, a brake-shift interlock system, tinted glass, interval windshield wipers, a rear-window wiper/washer, remote fuel door release, child-proof lock on the side sliding door, cloth reclining bucket front seats with in-board armrest, an AM/FM stereo with four speakers and a built-in clock, and interior hood release and 10 cup holders.

The LS version of the Villager also features as standard equipment a rear window defroster, automatic speed control, power windows, power

MERCURY VILLAGER MINIVAN—Lincoln-Mercury will enter the growing minivan market in the 1993 model year with an all-new entry named the Mercury Villager. door locks with side door "memory," front air conditioning, dual power exterior rear view mirrors, tilt steering wheel, a special lighting package, two-tone paint, privacy glass and power remote quarter windows.

Too Much Antifreeze Not A Good Thing

The fear of a frozen engine during the worst of a severe cold snap might tempt an over-zealous car owner to "fail-safe" by pouring pure antifreeze into his cooling system.

Then he learns the hard way that he's created a problem rather than solved it. Pure, undiluted antifreeze (ethylene glycol) solidifies at eight degrees (F) above zero. It is intended to be mixed into a 50 percent solution with water, providing protection to minus-27 degrees. The maximum mix is 70 percent ethylene glycol which protects to minus-85 degrees.

Freeze protection is not the only purpose of this fluid, according to the Car Care Council. It is a coolant, helping to dissipate excess heat. Again, a proper mix ensures performance.

Too much antifreeze in the solution causes an engine to run hot. On vehicles with computerized engine controls, this abnormal heat causes sensors to signal controls to change engine functions. The result can be erratic operation, "pinging" and, in some cases, engine damage.

A weak mixture (too much water for the amount of pure antifreeze), can result in radiator boil-over due to lowered boiling point of the solution. Antifreeze escapes from the cooling system and, eventually, the engine will overheat.

Another function of antifreeze is rust and corrosion protection. The fluid contains an inhibitor that protects both aluminum and cast iron components. Without it, the radiator soon would become plugged with deposits created by chemical reactions between the ethylene glycol and the various metals of internal engine parts.

The Council suggests adding antifreeze in proportions shown on the container.

For an illustrated pamphlet on the care of your vehicle's cooling system send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Cooling, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH, 43452.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Fate seems sometimes to delight in making strange combinations among the pieces of the game it plays through the centuries ... Did you know that Queen Isabella of Spain and Christopher Columbus were born in the same year ... 1451? Queen Isabella was born on April 22 at Madrigal de Las Altas Torres and Columbus in Genoa between August and October ... It is also believed by some historians that Amerigo Vespucci was born in the same year.

Fate or coincidence? Who knows! But one thing we do know is that these three protagonists of the great oceanic adventure changed the face of the world ... The discoverer, his noble patron and man from whom the new world was to take its name were all born in the first year of the second half of the 15th century, which was to open a new period of history ...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yes, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief

Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Raiders Face Big Test From Barnstable

By TOM SULLIVAN

The wins are not coming easily for the North Quincy football team, but the Raiders, due in large part to the defense, continue to win.

Last Friday night they improved to 3-0 with a 14-7 victory over Plymouth at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North faces its biggest test this Friday night when it hosts its rival Red Raiders from Barnstable at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7 o'clock.

Barnstable, beaten by North, 32-14, a year ago, is also 3-0 and last week upset Weymouth, 14-9. The Raiders from the Cape had previously defeated Dartmouth, 21-0, and Bishop Stang, 13-12.

North Quincy was unable to move the ball on the ground against Plymouth with Mark Sinclair, who had rushed for 224 yards in the first two games, sidelined except for limited duty on defense, and Sean Skahan, who had run well in the first two games, knocked out of the game early with a shoulder injury.

"We are really hurting offensively with Sinclair out and Skahan knocked out early," said North coach Ken McPhee. "Sophomore Sean Nee, playing for the first time after recovering from a pre-season injury, and Josh Gott did a good job, but we just weren't able to move on the ground. Liam Higgins had another good game at quarterback and Pat Shea played well at wide receiver in addition to playing strong defense."

Nee rushed for 23 yards and scored a touchdown and Gott rushed for 21 yards. They both picked up some big yards. Higgins was 8-for-14 for 122 yards and a touchdown, his fourth touchdown in three games.

"Dave Pacino and Dave Reinhard had fantastic two-way games as did Brian Rafferty," said McPhee. "We had some boys playing for the first time and Jeremy and Nathan Gott, Sean Herron and Mac Ngutter all played well. We have been banged up and these youngsters are giving us some needed depth. We'll have to depend on them again against Barnstable as Sinclair, Skahan and Tony Licciardi all will be out.

"We started slowly and were outplayed badly in the first half (Plymouth outrushed North, 102 yards to just 23), but I wasn't surprised as we really weren't ready to play. I could sense it in practice. However, our subs came through again and the defense picked up and did another great job in the second half."

Plymouth rushed for 162 yards to just 56 for North but failed to complete a pass in eight attempts. The Blue Eagles had nine first downs to just four for the Raiders.

Plymouth's top runner Seto Berry, rushed for 77 yards and had a 38-yard run to North's 15 with a minute left called back by a holding penalty.

For North Quincy, Shea had four receptions for 66 yards, including a touchdown. Dan Duncan also had a 30-yard reception.

The Blue Eagles drove 75 yards for their touchdown, picking up four first downs and Berry scored from the five early in the second quarter. Justin Miller kicked the extra point.

Plymouth punted and the Eagles were penalized when Shea was hit after calling for a fair catch. Two plays later Higgins threw a picture-perfect bomb to Shea, who outraced the secondary, didn't have to break his stride and completed a 49-yard touchdown play. The try for the two-point conversion failed.

On the first play following the kickoff, Justin Dilks recovered a Plymouth fumble on the Eagles' 15 and three plays later Nee scored from the one. Dan Duncan made a fine catch while falling down for the two-point conversion.

The second half was scoreless as both defenses stiffened.

Reinhart recovered a fumble on the North 38 and Rafferty intercepted a pass.

Plymouth had time for one last play but a long pass was incomplete and North had its third win in a row.

North Jayvees Off To Fast Start With 2 Wins

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy junior varsity football team got off to a fast start with a 14-6 victory over Acton-Boxboro and a 12-8 win over Falmouth.

Coaches Tom Carter and Peter Chrisom feel they have another strong team that compares favorably with last season's undefeated team.

Jeremy Gott scored the first touchdown against A-B when he blocked a punt and recovered it in the end zone.

Derek Epps, a sophomore, scored the second touchdown on a fine 60-yard run.

Two interceptions by George Wirtz stopped A-B threats.

Carter and Chrisom had good words for Pat Kielty, Ben McCarthy, Sean Halpin, Pete Fitzpatrick, Dave Carney, Mike MacGregor and Glenn Peterson, who came up with a touchdown-saving tackle.

In the Falmouth game, MacGregor was outstanding, scoring both touchdowns on runs of 62 and 44 yards.

Eric Zimmerman and Sean Dolbear shared the quarterback duties and turned in excellent games. Wirtz had another interception, his third in two games.

Epps had a 21-yard run and Zimmerman picked up 16 yards on a keeper. Marty Shields was hailed for his defensive end performance and Carney and Jason Picciardi stood out as linebackers.

Youth Football

Manets Tame Panthers, Elks Defeat Apaches

The Houghs Neck Manets handed the Quincy Point Panthers their first loss, 8-2, in the Quincy Youth Football League last Sunday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

In the other half of the doubleheader the West Quincy Elks won their first game, defeating the North Quincy Apaches.

This Sunday at the stadium the Manets will meet the Apaches at 6 p.m. and the Panthers will face the Elks at 7:30 p.m.

Mark Glen scored the only touchdown in the Manets-Panthers game on a 65-yard run. He then passed to Scott Shepherd for the two-point conversion.

The Panthers scored their only points on a safety late in the game.

The Panthers left several opportunities slip away in the first half and also had chances in the second half. The Panthers fumbled inside the Manets' 10-yard line to stop a threat.

For the Manets, Mike Pringle recovered a fumble and he, Dan Nichol, Andrew Byrne and Kevin Ryan played well offensively.

The standings: Panthers, 3-1; Manets, 2-1-1; Elks, 1-2-2, Apaches, 1-3-0.

Wollaston Youth Hockey Registration Oct. 8

Wollaston Youth Hockey will hold registration for the 1992-93 season, Thursday, Oct. 8 from 6 to 8 p.m. at St. Ann's School.

The program is for ages

4 to 18 and there will be a girl's program if enough players sign up.

A Men's House League will be held Mondays from 9 to 11 p.m. and Fridays from 10 to 11 p.m. at Shea Rink beginning in November.

Participants must pay at least half of the registration fee in advance. For information call Frank LaPierre after 5 p.m. at 773-7809.

Shea Rink May Open Early

In an attempt to help youth hockey associations and other skating enthusiasts in Quincy, Rep. A. Stephen Tobin (D-Quincy) has co-sponsored legislation to provide for an early opening of MDC skating rinks.

If adopted, Shea Rink

could be open as early as mid-October.

The proposal under review in the House adds no additional burden to the state budget. "Since rental rates can cover the costs associated with the extra few weeks of skating, we can provide youth groups and other Quincy residents an additional recreational service without draining state revenue," Tobin said.

Tobin said final action on the legislation could come next week. Public skating hours will begin Nov. 15.

Presidents After First Win At Plymouth

The Quincy football team is still looking for its first victory of the season and hopes to get it Friday night when it plays at Plymouth in a 7 o'clock Old Colony League game.

The Presidents had a frustrating night last Friday when it lost at Taunton, 6-0, to drop their record to 0-2-1. Taunton improved to 3-0.

Plymouth, defeated by Quincy, 20-7, a year ago, is 0-3, having lost to Brockton, 40-14; Taunton, 7-0; and North Quincy, 14-7.

"I was disappointed in our showing at Taunton as we just didn't come out with any intensity," said Quincy High coach Jack Raymer. "We played without Duane Holmes (255-pound two-way tackle) and lost another starter, Steve Fernald (225-point guard and defensive tackle), and I had to use two sophomores, Jeff Burrell and Mike Feeley. They both played fine games both ways and will see a lot of service in the future."

"We just let Taunton, a much improved team, hold the ball too long. They controlled the ball for most of the game and we had very few plays. The defense dug in when it had to, but we just couldn't get the ball."

Quincy Scoring

Taunton's only score came after a fumble recovery on the Quincy 17. The touchdown was made by A.J. Viera, no stranger to Quincy, on a 10-yard run 45 seconds into the final quarter.

"Viera is one of the best runners in the league and we have seen him for four years," Raymer said. "Viera had another big night rushing 35 times for 143 yards."

Quincy had a 50-yard touchdown pass to Robbie Kane called back by a penalty.

"We again hurt ourselves with penalties," Raymer said. "On the few occasions we moved well penalties killed us."

Dave Bogan had a fine game for the Presidents, rushing for 75 yards and playing well as a linebacker.

Offensively Raymer had good words for Mike Gardner, Feeley, Fernald,

On defense he praised Mike Bartlett, Feeley and Burrell.

Just before the Presidents fumbled to set up the winning touchdown, they had put up a strong goal line stand, stopping the Tigers short of a first down at the seven.

After the go-ahead score, Taunton turned up its defense another notch, holding the Presidents to 40 yards of total offense in the final quarter.

Volleyball

North Girls Win 6th

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team, defending state champion, continued to roll Monday, defeating Weymouth, 2-0, to bring its record to 6-0.

In winning six matches in a row the North girls haven't lost a game, sweeping each match, 2-0.

Last week North won three matches, starting with a 15-3, 15-3 victory over Newton North. Maureen McCarthy ran the offense and was aided by Heather Rendle, Joanne Currier and Laura Rines.

Next came a 15-3, 15-4 decision over Barnstable with Regina Murphy having 11 kills, Rines seven kills and McCarthy leading the team in assists.

North then topped Dennis-Yarmouth, 15-8, 15-1, with Heather Rendle leading the way.

North Quincy played Quincy last night (Wednesday), will be at Duxbury Friday at 4 o'clock, will host Medway Tuesday night at 7 and will be at New Bedford next Wednesday at 5 o'clock.

Girls Under 14 Travel Team Undefeated

The Quincy Youth Soccer League girls' under 14 travel team remained unbeaten after defeating Stoughton, 6-0, in a South Shore League game.

Angela Hogrell had a hat trick, the first three goals of the game, and Sarah Satkevich, Kim Barry and Kerry Duffy had a goal apiece.

Barbara Ryan had two assists and Duffy, Pam Farrell and Hilary O'Donoghue one each.

Also playing well were goalie Shannon Williamson, Brenda Linehan at midfield and Jill Pillard on defense.

The boys under 14 team improved to 2-1 with a 4-1 victory over Braintree.

Chris Erler had two goals and Charlie Mawn and Josh Echelle one each. Mawn, Mike Johnston and Mike Stockdale had assists and Jeremy Riley, Steve Wilson and Ryan Herlihy played well.

Murphy Soccer Goalie At St. Anselm's

Quincy's Kevin Murphy, who played his soccer at North Quincy High, is the starting goaltender for the St.

Anselm's College team.

In a 3-1 victory over Quinnipiac, Murphy had six saves.

Cross Country

North Girls Win, Boys Lose To Plymouth

The North Quincy cross country teams got underway recently against Plymouth with the girls squeezing out a 38-40 victory, while the boys lost, 15-48.

The girls benefitted from the rarely-used tie-breaker for their victory.

Erin Duggan placed second, Mel Gaziano fifth, Katie McNamara sixth, Erica Doherty seventh and Kelly Duggan eighth. Laura Blaikie placed 10th and broke the tie after the first five finishers for each team were added up. The tie is broken by adding the sixth runner's place to the total.

Blaikie was North's sixth finisher and beat Plymouth's fifth finisher.

"I knew it was going to be close, so when Plymouth's manager told me the score was tied, I knew we won because Laura and their fifth girl were battling it out down the home stretch," said North coach Geoff Hennessy.

North was without its ace runner, Suzanne Lewis, out with a knee injury. Her return is tentative.

The boys were shutout as Eric Torvi in sixth place was the only Raider to crack the top ten.

In the Bay State Invitational Meet at Franklin Park, North runners turned in fine performances with six picking up medals and both freshman teams winning trophies.

In the freshman girls' race, North took first with 101 points, led by Kelly Duggan (eighth), Erin Doherty (10th), Kathy Jordan (24th) Uechechi Kalu (29th) and Colleen Cotter (30th).

The freshman boys took second behind St. John's of Shrewsbury with 145 points paced by Steve Cannon (ninth), Billy Manning (19th), Terrence Roche (20th), Mike Hannan (38th) and Brian O'Donnell (41st).

In junior varsity girls' action Laura Blaikie took 12th and the team placed sixth with 197 points.

In varsity action Erin Duggan took 19th.

"It was a nice, low-key meet where everyone could check their progress one month into the season," said Hennessy. "The freshmen wanted to prove they are a force for the future and they did well considering how little mileage I let them do. Erin Duggan ran a great race and has to be the most improved runner in the state. She's come a long way and is a true student of the sport."

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

How To Avoid Becoming The Victim Of An Attacker

1. Keep alert for the unexpected.

a. While you are walking, keep your mind on what is going on around you.

2. Don't take unnecessary chances.

- Walk confidently, know where you are going.
- Be extra alert, know who and what is around you at all times.
- Whenever possible, walk with another person.
- Stay near people. Walking in deserted areas only invites trouble.
- Stay in well-lit areas.
- Avoid shortcuts.

3. If you are followed:

- Cross the street.
- Reverse direction.

If you are still followed:

- Go to a business that is open and ask for help.
- In a residential area, go to a home and ask for help.
- Attract attention. Yell, scream, flag down a passing car. You may also carry a whistle and blow it to attract attention.
- Act suspicious. Keep looking back at the person following you to let that person know you can't be taken by surprise.

4. If you are attacked:

- Yell and scream to attract attention and scare your attacker off.
- Swing an umbrella or briefcase, or anything you have in your hand, at the attacker's head.
- Make a scene. Take your attacker by surprise.
- Jab the attacker with your elbow.
- Twist your body to break free from the attackers hold.
- Bite him hard.
- Scratch at his face with your fingernails.
- Bend the attacker's fingers back.
- Kick the attacker with the toe of your shoe.
- Punch the attacker in unprotected areas.
- Get away from the attacker.

5. Get a description of your attacker. Try to remember such things as:

- His height
- His weight
- His age
- Skin tone
- Hair color
- Color of eyes
- Color and type of clothes
- Any jewelry the attacker may be wearing.
- Any scars, tattoos or disabilities he may have.
- Any odor you may detect about his person, such as alcohol, drugs, cologne.
- Anything that you may have been suspicious of prior to the attack, a motor vehicle that may have passed you several times or someone that may have been watching you.
- Anything that the attacker may say to you and if he had an accent.
- A description of any weapon used.

6. Should I carry a weapon?

We do not feel that you should carry a weapon unless you are thoroughly trained in its use and licensed to carry it.

Two things to remember:

- Anything you use as a weapon can also be taken from you and used against you.
- You would be better off using the time that it would take getting the weapon out to get out of the situation or attract attention.

An umbrella is a good weapon that you would have in your hand and ready to use in case of attack.

7. What about self-defense?

Karate, Judo and other martial arts can improve your self-defense skills, but you must remember that it takes years of practice to become good at these skills.

Above all, report anything suspicious to your police department immediately!!!

If you follow these suggestions, you will diminish your chances of becoming the victim of an attacker.

Sheets, Ayers To Speak At Squantum Community Meeting

The Squantum
Community Association will hold its fall general meeting Tuesday, Oct. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Squantum Community Center.

Invited speakers will be Mayor James Sheets and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. They will update and discuss issues facing the city, particularly Ward

other four cases the victim would not press charges.
Of the four rapes where the assailant was unidentified no arrests have been made.
In one case the crime originated in Boston and in another, the victim was kidnapped in Hull and driven to Quincy where she was raped.

Ward 1 Councillor
Peter Kolson agreed with Mullen that the city has received unfair publicity in some cases.
"We don't have a stone wall around the city," Kolson said.

During the discussion
many councillors hinted that they would support the hiring of new patrolmen.
Mullen agreed when
Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio asked, "Chief, is it accurate to say that hiring of seven or eight officers won't be enough but that we need 15 to 20 new officers to make an impact?"

"We want a long-term solution (to staffing). We don't want to panic the department into hiring a few officers... it won't solve the problems," said
Councillor-at-Large
Timothy Cahill.

Mullen and some of the councillors agreed that they would prefer to hire young Quincy residents and train new patrolmen themselves rather than hire officers laid off by other communities.

"We want local people who know the city and have an attachment here," Cahill said.

"Our department is getting old. We need young officers," Mullen said. He noted that the department has not hired new officers since the late 1980's and that there was a reduction of 25 officers in 1990. Many of the department's 132 patrolmen are working overtime to cover vacancies, he said.

"In the past 10 years we are down 50 people," Mullen said.

Several councillors said they would like to see the return of foot patrols in the city, Mullen agreed.

"The mayor has met with Chief Mullen and he wants the beat men back in Wollaston and North Quincy. This could happen

very soon," said Thomas Koch, Executive Secretary to Mayor James Sheets.

Mullen said in order for his department to be most successful it needs the input and cooperation of the community. He said that since he became chief in 1990 the department has conducted crime prevention meetings with Safety Officer Robert Hanna in neighborhoods throughout the city and will continue to do so.

He stressed it is important for residents to attend.

Cahill agreed. "At a recent neighborhood meeting I attended, Bob Hanna said that police and government won't solve all your problems but that people have to get involved in their neighborhoods."

Mullen also reported that the special operations unit, which was deployed this spring to combat crime in Quincy Center, has been successful. He said the unit will remain intact and will also concentrate on other problems in the city.

Cheney also sparred with Mullen over police procedures. Cheney said that some police officers have told him that information on crime is not shared in the department.

Mullen disputed the claim. He said information is shared every day at roll call and that patrolmen are briefed daily by detectives.

Quincy Joins In Protest Against Water, Sewer Rates

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A contingent of angry citizens and business owners from 43 cities and towns, including Quincy, held a protest yesterday (Wednesday) at the State House in Boston to voice their opposition to what they say are unfairly high water and sewer rates from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said the two-hour protest was one way for the citizens to express their anger and frustration over the spiraling rates.

"We wanted to put some pressure on the Governor (William Weld) to let him know how mad and fed up people are," said Ayers. "We're willing to do anything to fight for lower water and sewer rates. I'm happy to do this."

The Quincy protesters were coordinated by Ayers and Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, with assistance from Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets. The group boarded a bus (provided by the Quincy School Department) at the DPW building at 55 Sea St. at 9 a.m. and met with protesters from the other cities and towns at the State House an hour later.

"We took bags filled with copies of citizens' paid water bills and brought them to the governor," said Ayers. "People wrote their complaints and concerns on the backs of the bills. People have a lot of complaints about the escalating costs of their water and sewer bills."

Randolph Public Works Commissioner Bernard Davidson, who originally came up with the idea for the protest, said the protesters took their bill copies inside the State House and dumped them in the Hall of Flags.

He added that he felt it was about time city and town officials took note of the "angry citizens and

'A New Era In Retail, Commercial Development'

Sheets: Quincy 2000 Will Help Lift City Out Of Recession

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Backed by the economic expertise and resources of nearly 80 local business, labor and government leaders, Mayor James Sheets Tuesday declared Quincy 2000 would initiate a "new era in retail and commercial development" and predicted the public-private partnership would help lift the city out of the current recession.

"It's absolutely a new era. When this economy turns up, Quincy, more than any other city, will be ready to take advantage of it. All the major projects will be in the process of being planned out or fulfilled."

"We have such a broad-based representation to begin this effort. We have so many labor and financial resources. It's (the partnership) is going to have a tremendous impact once we get underway."

The mayor's comments came during an interview with The Quincy Sun prior to the partnership's first organizational meeting Tuesday at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Stephen Tocco, state Secretary of Economic Affairs, was the guest speaker.

The partnership's 82 members, of which 79 are from the large corporation, small business, financial and labor community, elected its officers and board of directors at the meeting and set up other organizational tasks.

The partnership's other three members are the mayor, city council president and the city planning director.

Believed to be the first public-private partnership of its kind in the state, Sheets said the partnership will "focus all of its economic power on behalf of the economic development of the city. Their directive is to promote the economic well being of the city and to create jobs."

"The business community is going to have a major role in determining what this city's economic future will be. To my knowledge, this has never happened in this manner in this city."

"It's an important day for the city and it's an encouraging day for Quincy business," the mayor added.

Among the partnership's first objectives will be to locate an office in downtown Quincy. Soon, members will survey residents and businesses to determine what type of retail outlets they prefer in the city's vacant store fronts and undeveloped business-zoned parcels.

"It's the beginning of a whole new era in determining and promoting retail and commercial development in Quincy," the mayor said.

Sheets said he is "overwhelmed" by the partnership's large and diverse scope. He said he expects another 15 to 20 members to join before the end of the year.

Members pay a fee to become a "stockholder" in the corporation. To date, membership fees have totalled approximately $125,000. Sheets said additional memberships should bring that amount to as high as $150,000.

The money will be used to hire a full-time executive director-planner and a marketing specialist in three to four weeks. Membership fees will also help cover operational costs.

To join, members must pay an annual fee which is currently between $250 and $5,000. Essentially, members become stockholders in the partnership and each share is $250.

Of the 79 private investors, 16 have entered at the $5000 level; 5 at $2,500; 8 at $1,000; 10 at $500; and 31 at $250, the mayor said.

Private members are classified according to REMEMBERING ROGER--Memorial wreath is placed on steel traffic gate on Fore River Bridge by Janet Hersey Smith and Joseph Smith in memory of their son, Roger, who was killed two years ago when his car skidded on wet grating and crashed into the gate. The Smiths led nearly 100 people in a march from the rotary to the bridge in a continuing protest for safety modifications to the structure. Roger's parents were instrumental in having impact barriers placed on the ends of the four gates.

New Pride Sign Installed At Quincy High School

Quincy High School is the recent recipient of a new sign and landscaped island at its Woodward Avenue entrance.

The bronze aluminum sign reads "Quincy High School home of the Presidents" and was installed by parents from "Friends for a Better Quincy High."

Signature Signs, 88 Washington St., donated the sign in gratitude of the years of business with Quincy schools.

The island surrounding the sign features shrubbery and perennial flowers and will be maintained by the Student Council.

Signature Signs recently changed its name from Sign Stop to better describe their custom signage abilities. They also offer banners, store fronts and vehicle lettering.

business owners" who are tired of the MWRA rates.

"We did this to demand help from state and federal officials and for the MWRA to cut their rates," said Davidson. "It was like the Boston Tea Party, but we're calling this the 'Boston Harbor Sewer Party.'"

Colton said the reason for people's frustration over the bills is a "rate shock" that has taken place over the last few years.

"It's the escalating rates" (been a lot of money very quickly up until last year when (MWRA Executive Director) Douglas MacDonald took over," said Colton. "People feel like they've been left holding the bag by the federal government."

Colton credited Davidson with organizing the protest.

"Mr. Davidson has taken this very seriously," said Colton. "It's a credit to his dedication and energy that this has taken place."

Request For Gasoline Storage Permit Withdrawn

A request from D. Scott Deware for a permit to store 160 gallons of gasoline in tanks of eight vehicles (maximum) in a garage located at 1272 Sea St. has been withdrawn without prejudice.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said at Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy License Board that Deware has decided to store only three vehicles at the garage.

Structures which house three vehicles or less do not require License Board approval.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, however, attended Tuesday's meeting to inform the board of a community meeting held last week.

Deware, who did not attend Tuesday's meeting, told the board on Sept. 15 that he had done repairs and other work on vehicles at the garage for the last three years and had not experienced any problems with neighbors prior to the request.

Kolson suggested Tuesday that a letter be sent to Deware explaining that he would no longer be allowed to do the repair and auto body work at the garage that has been done there in the past.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, who noted that Deware should not be doing repair work at the garage without a permit from the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals, agreed and said that a letter would be sent.

City May Receive Over $1M From Quinn Bill Ruling

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Thanks to a recent court ruling and recommendation to Gov. Weld by Attorney General Scott Harshbarger, Quincy could receive more than $1 million in state funding as reimbursement for the Quinn Bill.

Quincy was one of the communities short-changed by the state's underfunding of Quinn Bill reimbursements. Under the Quinn Bill, the state is supposed to reimburse municipalities for costs pertaining to education for police officers.

However, over the past three to four years, Sheets said the state has been paying only about half of its financial obligation associated with the Quinn Bill.

"If this ruling is retroactive, Quincy will receive in excess of one million dollars," the mayor said Tuesday.

The Norfolk Superior Court recently ruled that the state should pay certain Quinn Bill payments from prior fiscal years. Quincy was a part of that successful litigation.

In a letter to Gov. Weld Sept. 25, Harshbarger said, "It is clear that you and the legislature, through a supplemental appropriation bill to cover prior year payments, could resolve this issue promptly without the need for further court action.

"I fully support your and the legislative leadership's efforts to bring about such a solution so that police officers, and the cities and towns they serve, will continue to receive the benefits of the Quinn Bill."

Writing to Weld on Monday, Sheets said, "I would associate myself with the comments of the attorney general in his letter and urge your favorable consideration of his request to include in any supplemental appropriation budget funds for this obligation."

Downtown Cafe License Request Withdrawn

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The prospective owners of Cafe Bianco, 1626 Hancock St. have withdrawn, without prejudice, their request for a Common Victualer-All Alcoholic License.

The withdrawal was announced at Tuesday's meeting of the Quincy License Board.

The matter had been postponed several times, most recently because of the poor health of Atty. Paul Barbadoro, who was representing Cafe Bianco.

Several business owners had expressed their opposition to a new establishment serving alcohol at the site, which currently houses Sports Fanatics, when the request originally was made at the board's Sept. 8 meeting.

Sports Fanatics currently holds a lease which is good until April, according to owner Bill O'Connor. He added that while Sports Fanatics may end up staying at the site, he has been talking with other landlords in Quincy because he is interested in making the store smaller.

QHS 'Best Of Best' Alumni Award

The Friends for a Better Quincy High School announce the formation of the first Alumni Hall of Fame "Best of the Best Award."

Alumni graduating before 1989 can be nominated for the award which will be given in recognition of outstanding achievements or contributions by alumni who indirectly or directly set standards of excellence for students to follow.

The award will be presented annually.

A panel of judges comprising the school's administrative staff, P.T.O. members and Friends for a Better Quincy High School will award the top nominees a plaque of achievement at a special ceremony.

The winner's names will be permanently inscribed and mounted on the Hall of Fame at Quincy High School.

Nomination papers may be obtained at Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St.; Samoset Pharmacy, 215 Samoset Ave.; Roseann's, 1089 Hancock St.; and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., all in Quincy.

Deadline for nominations is Dec. 1.

For more information, call Mary at 471-1596 or Ken at 479-5682.

Rabies Clinic Nov. 14 At Animal Shelter

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue announces that a Rabies Clinic will be held Saturday, Nov. 14 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St. (behind the Bryan Post and Father Bill's Place).

The event is being sponsored by the Quincy Health Department.

Pet owners are encouraged to bring their dogs and cats (3 months old and over) to be immunized, which Gallahue said is especially important at this time.

"Due to the movement of the mid-Atlantic outbreak of rabies to Massachusetts, the vaccination of cats and dogs certainly decreases the risk of rabies to owners of pets," she noted.

Cost is $8 for dogs and $4 for cats. For more information call 376-1270.

SPECIAL CARE FOR FOREIGN ADOPTEEES

With waiting lines for available U.S. infants years long and growing longer, increasing numbers of families are turning to foreign countries to adopt. Prospective parents should be aware, however, that foreign-born children may have medical problems not detected by routine physical exams. A study in the 'New England Journal of Medicine' found that of 293 children screened with seven basic tests, some 57 percent registered one or more significant medical problems. The most common conditions were infectious diseases such as hepatitis B, tuberculosis, and intestinal and skin parasites. The researchers concluded that all children entering the United States, regardless of age, sex or country of origin, should undergo a thorough health screening process.

P.S. There are currently no industry guidelines for medical evaluation of foreign adoptees.

Fortunately many of the diseases suffered by foreign born adoptees, such as parasites, are easy to treat. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 214 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

McIntyre Book Off Press

After many months of research, a book on the life of late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, one of the most powerful political figures in Quincy's history, is off the press.

It is interesting reading but it won't cause the stir that another mayor's book—the "political autobiography" of Joseph LaRaia did 13 years ago.

The difference is that the McIntyre biography, "Semper Fidelis: The Life of James R. McIntyre" is a pretty factual piece of work.

The 214-page book is written by

CAMERON

Dr. James Cameron, head of the history department and McIntyre chairman of the Division of Social Science at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston.

It is based on McIntyre's personal papers, newspaper accounts of his political career and recollections of colleagues, friends and family. It is done in history book style with emphasis on the facts.

LaRaia's book, "A City Under The Influence" which came out in 1979 was entertaining but longer on accusations and speculation than on facts.

Obviously with the aid of a ghost writer, LaRaia used thinly-disguised characters in his book but anyone who was around then and knew where City Hall was, had no trouble identifying who was who in the book despite the use of fictitious names that ridiculed political enemies and others.

The trouble with LaRaia's book was that it was one-way: all LaRaia. He accused political opponents and others who criticized or disagreed with him. He blamed others for many of the problems he brought on himself.

LaRaia and other McIntyre opponents fare much better in Cameron's book than McIntyre and other opponents did in LaRaia's book.

Cameron tells both sides.

The famed 1959 mayoral race between the veteran Republican incumbent Amelio Della Chiesa and the 29-year-old City Council president and rising Democratic star, is an example.

The campaign headquarters faced each other across Hancock St. in Quincy Sq. — Della Chiesa in the Central Building and McIntyre in the Adams Building.

Political cartoons in the Ledger had McIntyre calling for change, claiming that Della Chiesa was "a front for Quincy Square interests" and "a one man band."

Della Chiesa warned, "Beware of a machine." LaRaia was to pick up on that a few years later making the "McIntyre Machine" his political battle cry.

Writing about the 1959 Della Chiesa-McIntyre mayoral fight, Cameron says:

"There were the usual charges on both sides of campaign signs being destroyed or stolen and bumper stickers being ripped off. The intensity of this campaign and the enthusiasm which it evoked caused the damages to be greater than normal."

Cameron goes on:

"The clothing and antics of some of Jim McIntyre's supporters in Quincy Square probably did him more harm than good. A later generation would have declared that some of his supporters looked like hippies. By association, Jim was accused of being young and immature."

Cameron mentions clothing in general but not a particular hat that hurt McIntyre's image in the final days of the campaign and no doubt cost him votes.

McINTYRE

LaRAIA

It was a wide-brimmed hat worn by a devoted McIntyre supporter who frequently stood in front of the McIntyre headquarters. He looked, to many passersby, like a hood who had come in from Chicago, Rhode Island or Boston.

Around that time, the Ledger was inferring that there was outside money and influence in the McIntyre camp and the man in the hat seemed, to many, to illustrate it.

It also gave Della Chiesa the opportunity to get off a salvo: "If you want that kind of gang, vote for my opponent and you'll have Boston politics."

Close friends urged McIntyre to move the man-in-the-hat inside and away from public view. McIntyre was more amused than concerned. But there are those who were around back then who still think the hat symbolized to voters passing by that there was something to the talk about outsiders.

Della Chiesa won that election 2,117 votes—17, 650 to 15,533.

McIntyre, Cameron writes, conceded at 11:15 pm election night and "crossed the street to the mayor's office in the City Hall to congratulate Amelio Della Chiesa on his victory and to promise to work with him in the House of Representatives on all projects benefitting the City of Quincy." (McIntyre was also a state representative then).

But it was a little more personal than just that. I was with the Boston Traveler then and covering the election.

McIntyre, an astute political analyst, looked at the early returns, shook his head and said: "It's not going to be our night."

When later returns proved him right, McIntyre turned to his campaign manager, James (Pete) Ricciuti and said: "Come on."

I joined them and we walked across the street to City Hall and up to Della Chiesa's office. He was there.

McIntyre offered his hand and said: "Congratulations, Mr. Mayor."

Della Chiesa took his hand, thanked him, slid an arm around McIntyre and said: "Your time will come, Jim."

It did in 1965 when Della Chiesa retired and McIntyre was elected in a landslide over LaRaia. McIntyre's vote was 22,024 to LaRaia's 7,713.

LaRaia is often pictured as a candidate who in defeat snubbed his opponent when the campaign battle was over and the smoke cleared.

But certainly not that night.

Cameron writes that after midnight election night, (with McIntyre on his way to carrying every precinct in the city) he and LaRaia left their respective headquarters and headed for City Hall.

"The McIntyre forces, led by the senator, reached the granite building about 12:10 a.m. and crowds began to overflow from the second floor to the first and out the doors. Cars were triple parked on both sides of Hancock Street from the Eastern Mass. bus terminal to Granite Street.

"A few minutes later, Joseph LaRaia and his followers arrived at City Hall and even though only 16 of 39 precincts were officially tallied, LaRaia conceded defeat and offered his congratulations to his opponent."

McIntyre was to go on to become one of the city's most powerful political figures.

LaRaia, many feel, could have been one of Quincy's all-time powers, too, if he had done things differently when he became mayor.

If you like Quincy's political history, you'll find Cameron's book must reading.

McIntyre died March 8, 1984—two months before his 54th birthday.

This book will help keep his memory alive.

Donnelly Joins Studds On Quincy Coastline Inspection

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Several Quincy officials recently toured sections of the city with Cong. Gerry Studds touting the Democratic congressional nominee in the 10th district as the most logical successor to outgoing U.S. Rep. Brian Donnelly.

Studds was invited to tour the Adams Shore/Merrymount/Houghs Neck coastline by Rep. Steve Tobin who represents that area in the legislature. They were joined by Donnelly, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Quincy Democratic City Committee President Neal Sullivan.

During the two-hour tour, Studds discussed several federal issues pertaining to Quincy with a number of local citizens and business people. He also visited Nut Island, the future site of the MWRA's headquarters facility and recreation area, for the first time.

Tobin noted that Cong. Donnelly, who will step down in January after 14 years on Capital Hill, has a long history of constituent service to Quincy. He said Studds is also known for his service to constituents in the old 10th district.

"Congressman Donnelly has such a good track record of constituent service that we don't want to see a break in that kind of service. Congressman Studds has as good a record of constituent service," Tobin said.

"We've had a knowledgeable congressman since 1979. It's important for him (Studds) to understand Quincy issues first hand."

Sullivan added, "This is just one of the ways of making sure that the transition is as smooth as possible."

Quincy is now a part of the new 10th district which was redrawn after redistricting earlier this summer.

If Studds is re-elected in November, he would represent Quincy for the first time.

Studds said many of the issues facing Quincy are similar to those in New Bedford, another coastal community, which he has represented for 20 years. New Bedford was dropped and Quincy added to Studds' district after redistricting.

For instance, he said would help revitalize the boating and fishing industry in Houghs Neck, once known as the "Flounder Capital of the World."

"It will be again," pledged Studds, who is considered the next chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. That chairmanship may also help Studds steer federal money into the cleanup of Boston Harbor, giving some relief to overburdened ratepayers.

Supporters note Studds has introduced legislation aimed at increasing the federal government's financial role in the $7 billion harbor cleanup. Called the National Clean Water Investment Corporation, the legislation is designed to help fund large scale water projects largely through big business and industry under a "polluter pay" principle.

"We're in a situation where people will soon be paying more in water and sewer bills than in property taxes," Studds said.

In August, Tobin, along with Mayor James Sheets, testified in Washington in support of the Studds' legislation. Tobin said he was struck by the number of congressmen who attended the subcommittee hearing and spoke on the bill's behalf. The subcommittee is chaired by Studds.

"That convinced me that he (Studds) can get this kind of legislation through," Tobin said. "If anyone can, he can."

The state representative said Studds has been effective dealing with FEMA, the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Studds helped funnel federal disaster relief revenue to Cape Cod residents after Hurricane Bob battered that region last August.

Studds said he would work with FEMA for federal dollars to help repair some of the damage caused by Hurricane Bob and last October's "No Name" Storm, like the seawall at Chickatabot Beach in Quincy.

"We're very familiar with issues like this," Studds said. "Hurricane Bob clobbered the Cape."

In addition, the congressman has crafted an innovative plan to commit new resources to the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy and launch a first-in-the-nation training program for Massachusetts Maritime Academy cadets.

The Studds plan will serve as a national model for the U.S. Maritime Administration to better prepare the U.S. Merchant Marine transport military cargo in times of national emergency. Locally, it means two large Ready Reserve Force (RRF) ships will soon be berthed—paying berthing fees—to Fore River for at least a year.

The new training program at the Maritime Academy, located in Buzzards Bay, will begin this academic year.

"It's going to put the Quincy shipyard on the map," Studds said. "This is a national program. It's on the cutting edge."

Noting the program will generate a limited number of jobs, Donnelly added, "In this economy, a few jobs are a lot. I've never seen things this bad."

The new Congress may have as many as 150 or more new members when it convenes Jan. 3. The Quincy legislators believe that may translate into more political clout for Studds, a Capitol Hill veteran, and thus more federal assistance for the district.

Quincy's Yesterdays

NLRB Postpones Bargaining Vote At FR Shipyard

The National Labor Relations Board granted a request by the CIO Shipbuilding Workers Union to postpone the bargaining unit election at the Fore River Shipyard until Nov. 19 to give 1,445 workers who were furloughed to July a chance to vote.

The rival independent Union of Fore River Workers, noting that the election had previously been postponed from Aug. 11 to Oct. 22, sent telegrams to Rep. Richard B. Wigglesworth and Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire claiming the postponement would seriously harm national defense.

"The CIO can never win this election and the National Labor Board is helping them to the detriment of the working men, who are losing better wages and working conditions as a result," said the Independent Union in a statement.

NO STADIUM ADMISSION

Police Capt. Daniel H. Doran told the City Council that police officers hired to maintain order at football games in Municipal Stadium have been advised not to refuse admission to people trying to enter the stadium without a ticket.

Councillor Laurence J. Curtin, who brought the matter up after several youngsters had been hurt climbing into the stadium without tickets, said the stadium is a free and open field and admissions cannot be legally enforced at the gate.

"I think the mere presence of a police officer at the gate tends to create the false impression, particularly for youngsters, that admissions must be paid," said Curtin.

MORE POLICE LIEUTENANTS

The City Council, with Councillor Neil A. McDonald in opposition, voted to increase the number of lieutenants in the Police Department from six to eight and to decrease the number of sergeants from 10 to eight.

"I fail to see," said McDonald, "how we can create two new jobs on the Police Department at $2,500 a year or $5,000 together and eliminate two posts at $2,300 per year or $4,600 and not cost the city money."

Lions Club Free Glaucoma Screening Clinic Oct. 22

In cooperation with the City of Quincy Health Department, the Lions Club will co-sponsor a Glaucoma Screening Clinic, at the J.F.K. Health Center on Hancock St. in Quincy, announces Dr. James Will, project chairman for the Quincy Lions Club.

Glaucoma is an eye condition in which vision is lost due to a build-up of pressure within the eye.

Two vital eye components, the cornea and the lens are cleaned and nourished by fluids that circulate in the eye. If the flow of these vital fluids is blocked, or not allowed to drain off, pressure builds and eventually the eye's fragile structures are destroyed.

Undetected and untreated glaucoma leads to total blindness.

"There may be no symptoms at all. Only a periodic check-up by a qualified eye specialist can detect the presence of glaucoma," said Dr. Will.

All residents of Quincy are urged to take advantage of this exam and it is recommended that anyone over 40 years of age should participate in this free service.

The date is Thursday, Oct. 22 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Appointments must be made by calling 376-1273.

United Quincy Alliance To Meet Oct. 21

The United Quincy Alliance of United First Parish Church will meet Wednesday, Oct. 21 at 1 p.m. in the parish hall.

Hostesses for coffee and dessert are Mrs. James Pickel and Mrs. Ripley Keating.

Verma Carr will greet members and friends. Marie Dunn Fraser will present an "English Tea Ceremony" for the opening season program.

Open House At QHS Oct. 22

Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education will hold the annual Open House Thursday, Oct. 22 from 7 to 9 p.m.

All parents are welcome to attend and meet with teachers and administrators.

'Recovery In The 90s' Discussion Oct. 22

Dr. Philip Kavanaugh, M.D., will speak on "Recovery in the 90s" Thursday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy Method Center, Quincy High School, 52 Coddington St.

Dr. Kavanaugh, a board certified psychiatrist who has treated thousands of patients with emotional disorders, is the author of Magnificent Addiction, Discovering Addiction as Gateway to Healing. He speaks to the recovering person and therapist about the treatment of emotional disorders and urges reconnection with spirituality.

The program is sponsored by IMPACT Quincy: Quincy Coalition for the Prevention of Alcohol and Other Drug Problems, Life Lives Books (28A Billings Rd., North Quincy) and Infinity Books (1514 Hancock St., Quincy Center).

For more information, call IMPACT Quincy at 472-6027, Life Line Books at 328-7173, or Infinity Books at 479-9941.

Lorraine Ryan Quincy Hospital Employee Of The Month

Lorraine Ryan has been named Quincy Hospital Employee of the Month for September.

Ryan began working at the hospital 24 years ago while a junior at Quincy High School. She worked part-time as a receptionist at the front desk.

After graduating Ryan began working full-time, greeting and directing visitors. Five years later she moved to the Radiology Department as a "stretcher person" or film sorter as they were called.

Ryan now works as a clerk-typist in the Radiology Department and interacts primarily with physicians and patients scheduled for CAT scans, ultrasounds, and other radiologic procedures.

"Lorraine is our secret weapon," said department manager Ken Kelly. "If she can't find a film, it probably doesn't exist."

"Lorraine is very organized, systematic and efficient. She is able to accomplish an amazing amount of work in a very short amount of time," said assistant manager Patti McGee.

Ryan said she enjoys

working evenings in the department. "I really enjoy working with the physicians and I like the variety of the job."

"She makes the evening shift a better place to work! If she doesn't have an answer, we always expect a follow-up phone call from her! She works and works until she has an answer," said Jean Mackey, who nominated Ryan.

"We couldn't do it without her. I'd have to hire three people to do her job," said Tim Adams, clerical supervisor in radiology.

She lives in Quincy with her mom and 19-year-old son, Kevin.

DISPLAY OF FLAGS - Flags representing 39 ethnic groups which make up the student body of St. Ann's School, Wollaston, were on display during a recent open house. Students at the school made the flags.

Quincy Art Director's Exhibit Opens Oct. 19

Frame-it/Studio & Gallery will present and exhibit the work of Quincy resident Sally Moren, beginning Monday, Oct. 19.

The exhibit is entitled "Urbane Manners Unmasked."

Moren is an art director, graphic designer, freelance illustrator and a business woman. She has been a partner with Moren Design, Inc. for the past six years. She worked as marketing director for "The Lodge" - 50 stores and was a staff artist for "The Virginia Gazette" at the outset of her career.

Moren's experience in the business world has allowed her an intimate and birdseye view of proper business people in a set situation. The combination of being a business person and artist result in her satire.

Moren has received several art awards: Ninth Wave Awards, South

Shore Advertising Association, New England Direct Marketing Association, New England Direct Marketing Association. She is listed among "Who's Who in American Women."

"Urbane Manners Unmasked" will be on view through Nov. 21 with a public reception for Moren Thursday, Oct. 22 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the studio, 588 Randolph Ave., Milton.

Global Village At St. Ann's School

St. Ann's School, Wollaston, celebrated its Open House recently by highlighting the ethnic diversity of the student body.

More than 39 ethnic groups are represented among the school children at St. Ann's and 11 different languages are spoken in the homes of the student body including Spanish, Lithuanian, Burmese, Chinese, Arabic, Vietnamese, Portuguese, German, Cantonese, Italian, French and Gaelic.

The seventh and eighth grade students researched and reproduced the flags of all the foreign countries and cultural groups represented in the survey.

Eighth graders were asked to prepare welcome signs in all of the above foreign languages. The flags and welcome signs were used to decorate the auditorium for the PTA meeting and open house.

The school will continue with the project. Anyone interested in the project or sharing resources may call Principal Daigle at the school, 471-9071.

Charles Simpson Installed Quincy Kiwanis Club President

Charles Simpson, president of Quincy Savings Bank, recently presided over his first meeting as the newly installed president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

William Hirst, lieutenant governor of Division 8, Kiwanis International was the installing officer in recent ceremonies held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Other officers installed were:

Sylvia Jenkins, president-elect; Aldo Saluti, treasurer; James Mullaney III, secretary; and Board of Directors Winslow Bettinson, Carol Lee Griffin, Paul Graham, Thomas King, John Farmer and Fred Costello.

Ten past presidents were in attendance: Leo Darr, Richard Sweeney Jr., James Stearns, Mike Fagerlund, Henry Parker, John Farmer, Rev. Richard Malmquist, Robert Bunstein, Yves Poirier and Harry Jones. Legion of Honor Pins were presented to Nils Johnson marking 25 years as a member and to Leo Darr for 35 years as a member.

Prior to the installation, Hirst made special mention of the significant contributions that the Quincy Kiwanis Club has made to the community.

Outgoing President

Ralph Yohe reported that the club had contributed more than $20,000 during his term to various causes. Funds raised by the annual Youth Hockey Tournament and Charity Golf Tournament made it possible to award scholarships to students at Quincy High and North Quincy High; camperships at the South Shore YMCA; the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute; a fire department rescue sled and financial assistance to students attending Quincy public schools whose needs are recognized by school guidance personnel.

As the new president, Simpson introduced several guests who represented several agencies involved in helping the less fortunate in the community. They included School Supt. Gene Creedon; Ann Marie Zukauskus, Montclair School principal; Rosemary Wahlberg, executive director of Quincy Community Action, Inc., and Associate Director Beth Ann Strollo; Edward Nelson, chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority; Norman Grenier, executive director of Quincy Neighborhood Housing and Administrative Assistant Donna Ackerman; Ronald Zooleck, executive director of South Shore

Chamber of Commerce and Kevin Costello, executive in charge of legislative affairs for the Chamber.

Simpson also introduced several of his associates at the bank who are involved in service clubs in their communities including the treasurer of the Braintree-Holbrook Kiwanis Club; the treasurer of the Hanson Rotary Club; the third vice president of the Sandwich Lions Club; James Chiccino, past president of Quincy Rotary Club and a vice president of Quincy Savings Bank; and Dan Trombley, past president of the Hanson Rotary Club and a senior vice president of Quincy Savings Bank.

Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Yohe of Tempe, Ariz., the parents of the retiring president of Quincy Kiwanis Club, Ralph Yohe. His father served two terms as the president of the Colfax, Iowa Kiwanis Club.

During the invocation offered by the Rev. Richard Malmquist, a moment of silence was observed for two departed members during the year, John Frederickson and Alexander Warmlington.

Past President Yves Poirier was chairman of the Arrangements Committee.

Houghs Neck Council Annual Awards Night Oct. 18

Four longtime Houghs Neck residents will receive honors at the 36th annual Honor Awards Night of the Houghs Neck Community Council Sunday, Oct. 18 at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St.

Former Mayor Francis X. McCauley will be master of ceremonies for the event. Hors d'oeuvres will be at 5 p.m. with a catered dinner at 6 p.m. Tickets are available from Margarita Radcliffe, Dorothy Laing, and at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

The 1992 "Good Neighbor" Award will be presented to Bertha Batson, president of the Houghs Neck Senior Citizens, a 37-year resident of Spring St.

Two Community Service Awards will be presented. James Goldrick of 81 Rock Island Rd., a lifetime resident, is known for coaching Quincy Youth Soccer and football, as financial advisor for the Manet Football League, and for serving on boards of the Manet Community Health Center and the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Elaine Gibbons of 27 Babcock St., the other recipient, is retiring after nine years as Houghs Neck area Girl Scout organizer and Scout leader. She also has been a Cub Scout leader and a former teacher at Atherton Hough School where she is now a substitute.

The "Distinguished Senior Citizen" Award goes to Thomas Hurlibaas of 25 Shennen St., a 45-year resident, who retired as chief master sergeant after 35 years with the Air Force, and continues as a "space available" advisor at Hanscom Field. He has been a board member of the Quincy Historical Society and continues on the board of the Thomas Crane Public Library. A world traveler, he speaks and shows slides at Quincy Public Schools, to social and civic groups, and four nursing homes.

The Honors Award Selection Committee included past presidents of the Houghs Neck Community Council. The Awards Night is sponsored by the Council's Scholarship Committee.

St. Joseph's School Fundraiser

A fundraiser for St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point, will be held at Monday, Oct. 19 at Papa Gino's, 100 Granite St., Quincy Center.

St. Joseph's School will share in a percentage of the sales made between 5 and 10 p.m. that evening.

Depression Screening

Do you find that you are always tired? Are you less interested in your usual activities? You are not alone. Over 10 million Americans suffer with depression each year, and only 30 percent are diagnosed and treated. It affects people of all ages, and is a disease that can be treated.

You can participate in a free screening presented by Quincy Heights Center for Emotional Health to help identify the signs and symptoms of depression.

Lectures at 1 pm, 4 pm and 6 pm.

Following the lectures participants can complete a confidential self-evaluation questionnaire, and meet individually with a mental health professional to review the results.

How long has it been since you consciously thought about your car's shock absorbers?

A survey conducted during National Car Care Month last October indicates shocks or, on some cars, struts, are not high on people's automotive awareness list. These parts usually wear so gradually that, by the time the driver notices the deteriorating ride, the vehicle actually may be hard to handle on turns and rough roads.

Among vehicles inspected during the annual campaign, 44% had signs of worn ride control components, mainly leaking shocks or struts.

When the condition was brought to owners' attention they noted that their vehicles had been riding or handling poorly. Most common symptoms are bouncing after hitting a bump or driving over railroad tracks. Some owners noted sway in turns as well.

"Poor ride control not only is a safety hazard," says Car Care Council President Don Midgley, "it is also an indication of increased wear of tire and suspension parts. Our goal is to bring this to motorists' attention before the condition has progressed to that point."

As a step in that direction the Council has produced a pamphlet focusing on shock absorbers and struts. Written in layman's terms, the folder explains the function of these important components and how they affect a vehicle's safety.

Vehicle owners traditionally have related shock absorbers primarily to riding comfort. The illustrated pamphlet shows how these components also affect other aspects of the vehicle's handling characteristics.

"During that brief period your wheels are skittering and hopping as you make a turn on a rough road," says Midgley, "you've lost contact with the road surface. This affects your steering and braking and could take you into a ditch or an oncoming vehicle."

In addition to riding comfort and control, there's wear and tear on other parts of the vehicle.

The exaggerated motion can cause accelerated wear of steering and suspension parts.

The jar from a rut, chuck hole or road obstruction can break radiator mounts or exhaust system support brackets, according to Midgley. "This kind of wear or damage, all or partly due to weak shock absorbers, adds to the cost of procrastinating on maintenance."

Car Exhaust Major Source Of Air Pollution

In Massachusetts, car exhaust is the major source of air pollution.

Car exhaust accounts for more than half of all the carbon monoxide released into the air in this country, according to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

The number of cars on U.S. roads and highways has quadrupled since 1960. Cars are responsible for a third of the unburned hydrocarbons and nearly half of all the nitrogen oxides in our nation's air.

Lung Associations and other agencies have designated October as National Car Care Month to alert motorists to the importance of proper car maintenance and the benefits of cleaner air.

Undergoing an annual emission inspection is critical. Spark plugs and ignition timing can also increase pollution when they do not function properly. Regular tuneups can improve fuel efficiency by up to 15 percent. Catalytic converters need to be checked to be sure they are working well.

To find out more about car maintenance and cleaner air, contact the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, 25 Spring St., Walpole, MA 02081 or call 1-508-668-6729.

New Tires Can Give Car New Lease On Life

Have you ever noticed how different your favorite shoes feel with new soles and heels?

The wear was so gradual you had not realized how worn they'd become. Now you're walking straight again.

This is similar to the improvement in the feel of your car when you replace worn tires. You had become accustomed to the vibrations and noise of the old ones. Then, with new rubber on the road, the car seems to glide.

The old tires may have aged prematurely and developed lumpy, flat spots because of incorrect wheel alignment or imbalance. Or they may have been underinflated tires, says the Car Care Council, a condition which wastes gas as well as accelerating tread wear.

One out of four cars checked in one inspection lane sponsored by the Council had wheels out of alignment.

How do you know if your wheels need aligning? Your first clue may come from erratic steering. The car may wander or pull from one side to the other. The condition may cause a shimmy similar to the action of an out-of-balance tire. This is known as the shopping cart syndrome.

The pulling to one side or the other also may be caused by a tire on one side being underinflated.

Another clue: If your tires appear to be worn more at the outer edges than at the center, or vice versa, your problem may be nothing more than incorrect inflation. But tires worn more on one side than the other or otherwise unevenly worn, probably are suffering from misalignment.

The trained eye of an auto technician usually can differentiate between inflation, alignment and balance problems.

Any one of the three should be corrected without delay, as some damage already is done by the time the symptoms are noticeable.

As a preventive measure, it's wise to have an alignment and balance check twice a year. And you certainly want to be sure the wheel alignment is OK before installing your expensive new tires.

Always have new valve stems installed when buying new tires. These, along with installation on the wheels and balancing and sales tax usually are included in the bottom line price of a new tire. If not, they should be, concludes the Council.

Correction

Last week's edition of The Quincy Sun contained an obituary that incorrectly stated that Stephen B. Hennessy, 19, was a 1992 graduate of North Quincy High School.

In fact, Mr. Hennessy graduated from Quincy High School.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Someone once said that disappointment can be a spur to improvement that will contribute to success; on the other hand, discouragement can be a mortal enemy that destroys courage and robs one of the will to fight ...

We all become discouraged at times, angry with the world and disappointed in ourselves ... When this mood descends upon us, we need to sit down and begin what is known as "The Balancing Game." We begin by laying out on the tables of our mind all the good fortune we have and have had; at the other end of the table lay out the misfortune we have had. (And there isn't one of us who hasn't had his/her share of misfortune) ...

When we sit down and play this "Balancing Game" most of us will find that on the whole we have had more good fortune in life than evil fortune. We have done better when we had hope than when we were depressed and ready to give up.

Think about it ... Wouldn't today be a good day to start playing "The Balancing Game?"

Cronin Calls For TV, Radio Debates

Michael J. Cronin of 33 Bromfield St., Wollaston, Republican candidate for State Representative, has called on Quincy Community Television and radio station WJDA to sponsor a debate or series of debates featuring the three candidates for the First Norfolk District.

A first time candidate, Cronin won his party's primary Sept. 15.

Cronin said he expects to hear about scheduling and format of the debates within the next several days. The general election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Quincy School Counselors Host College Fair Saturday

The Quincy Public School guidance staffs will host the 16th annual College Fair Tuesday, Oct. 20 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. for students, parents, and interested citizens from Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Milton.

Representatives from 90 New England colleges, specialty and vocational schools, armed forces and health related institutions will be available to discuss financial aid programs and admissions requirements at their respective schools. The fair will be held in the MacLean Gymnasium located in the Center for Technical Learning at Quincy High School.

The fair provides students and their parents an opportunity to explore many possible avenues of further education before the choice becomes immediate and critical. Seniors can review their current selections and finalize their plans before making formal applications in November.

Reconsecration At Bethany In 160th Anniversary Commemoration

Bethany Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, 18 Spear St., will be reconsecrated Sunday, Oct. 18, at a special 3 p.m. service in commemoration of the 160th anniversary of the church.

It will be a reconsecration of the church and of the people.

Members and former members who have made vows of Baptism, Confirmation, Marriage, Ordination and Membership at Bethany will reaffirm these vows.

Rev. J. William Arnold, former Bethany minister, will conduct the Baptismal affirmation. Former associate minister, Rev. Joel Huntington will conduct the reaffirmation of Confirmation vows. Rev. John Banks, former minister, will officiate at the renewal of Marriage vows.

Rev. Charles Harper, Metropolitan Boston Area Minister of the United Church of Christ, will officiate as several former Bethany members renew their vows of ordination. Rev. Roger Ketcham, pastor of Bethany, will officiate at the renewal of Membership vows. Fifty members of 50 years or more will be especially recognized.

The service will conclude with Holy Communion served by the ten ministers participating. A reception will follow the service.

A reception and dinner for parishioners, guests and friends will be held Saturday evening, Oct. 17 at the church. A concert will follow in the Sanctuary at 7:30 p.m. Guest organist Peter Krasinski, a member of Bethany, and Donald Boothman, international concert baritone, will present a concert of varied music.

A dedication service, to place Bethany Church on the National Register of Historic Places, will be held at the Sunday Morning service at 10 a.m. A bronze plaque will be unveiled.

A booklet, "What Bethany Means To Me," written by 13 members and friends about the impact Bethany has had on their lives, has been published as part of the anniversary.

'Taking A Stand' Sermon At Quincy Point Congregational

Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon will deliver a sermon titled "Taking A Stand" at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, Washington St. and Southern Artery.

Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon will serve as liturgist. David Lindblom will be the acolyte.

Church School classes are provided for infants through grade nine.

To register children in Church School, parents can call the church office between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, or speak to Church School

Supt. Debbie Tait Sunday morning.

Following Sunday's service and Church School, there will be a Pancake Brunch, a "Flip for Kids," in the Social Hall to benefit the Protestant Social Service Bureau. The menu includes juice, pancakes, bacon or sausage and beverage.

Cost is $3.50 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12 with a $9 maximum per family. Proceeds will benefit the PSSB's Child Adoption Program.

'Tree In The Garden' Topic At First Church Of Squantum

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preached on "The Tree In The Garden" last Sunday at First Church of Squantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

The offertory anthem was sung by the Chancel Choir. The congregational singing was accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

Greeters were Cliff and Shirley Mason. Ushers were Kate MacRitchie and Roberta Sheehan. The fellowship hour after the service was hosted by Pat Sorensen and Sandra Stohberg.

Cancer Society Seeking Question 1 Volunteers

The American Cancer Society needs volunteers for the "Yes on Question 1" campaign intended to help reduce smoking among children.

Activities include distributing literature at polling places, holding signs at busy roadways and intersections, and distributing bumper stickers. Work takes place in local American Cancer Society offices through Nov. 3.

Call the ACS's Stoughton office at 617-341-4210.

'Life In God's Service' Topic At Community Methodist

Lay Leader Robert Schaffer will be the worship leader and speaker at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

His sermon will be "We Are Called to a Life in God's Service." Scripture reader will be Becky O'Brien. Ushers will be William and Marion Cross with Helen Bailey and Isabel Morrison as greeters.

At the Fellowship Hour, Joan Hovig, Maude Kyoperi, Marion Elkhill and Annie Ohman will be hostesses. At 4 p.m., the Committee on Missions and Christian Outreach will host a turkey dinner at Father Bill's Place with Cindy McAllister as director.

Sunday evening, the Junior High Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m. and the New Women's Circle will meet at 7 p.m.

Sermon Series Continues At Covenant Congregational

Rev. Gordon Schultz will continue his sermon series based on the Gospel of Luke, at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St.

Scripture reader will be Luisa Dano. Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will accompany and direct the choir.

Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. with classes for ages nursery through adult. An attended nursery is available during worship for children age four and under. There is junior church for children up to age 12.

Activities for the week include choir rehearsal

Thursday at 7 p.m. and men's breakfast at Newcomb Farms Saturday at 8:30 a.m.

Coming events include the Naomi Society meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.; the Ladies Aid Society meeting Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.; and a Halloween party Friday, Oct. 30 at 5 p.m.

Raiders Seek 5th Straight At Weymouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy football team proved it is for real last Friday night and quarterback Liam Higgins showed he is one of the top passers in Eastern Mass. as the Raiders defeated Barnstable by a surprising 25-6 score in the battle of the rival undefeated Red Raiders at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The win greatly improved North Quincy's (4-0) chances against Weymouth, which is having a disappointing season (1-3), when the rivals clash Friday night at 7 p.m. at Weymouth's Legion Field.

Weymouth, one of the favorites in this year's Old Colony League title chase, has only a 35-0 win over Silver Lake while losing to Waltham, 3-0; Barnstable, 14-9, and Taunton, 20-7.

North Quincy completely dominated in its victory over Barnstable and Higgins had an outstanding night with four touchdown passes, giving him eight in four games. He was 9-for-18 for 187 yards. This season he is 29-for-58 for 481 yards and eight TDs.

"Liam" was just fantastic," said North coach Ken McPhee. "And we haven't seen the best of him yet. If he stays healthy, we may see some records broken.

"I was surprised at the way we dominated the game and it was an almost flawless performance both ways. We moved the ball well despite the fact we had to go without our best running back, Mark Sinclair, for the second week in a row as well as another fine runner, Sean Skahan, and the defense was tremendous."

Sophomores Sean Nee and Josh Gott had their best games taking up the slack left by Sinclair as Gott carried nine times for 79 yards and Nee nine times for 70 yards.

North had 160 yards on the ground for a total of 347 in total offense, while Barnstable had 114 yards rushing and only 45 yards passing on 3-for-8.

North's offensive line was outstanding. Opening up holes for Nee and Gott and giving Higgins fine protection were Pete Licciardi, Nick Mastrogiacomio, Justin Dilks, Mike Linnane and Dave Pacino.

Defensive stand outs included Brian Rafferty, outstanding both ways, Dave Reinhart, also a standout both ways, Sean Halpin, Eric Delorey, Pacino, Linnane, Dilks and Bill Skutul, coming off an injury.

The three Gott brothers contributed, Josh with his running and defensive play, Nathan, whose pass interception set up the first touchdown and who played well all evening in the secondary, and Jeremy, who caught a pass and played well on offense.

Pat Shea had another fine game both ways, Sean Herron was strong in the secondary and Sinclair was all over the field on defense.

"Sinclair will be back on offense against Weymouth, which will help our attack," McPhee said. "I'm not taking Weymouth lightly, despite its record, as it can explode at any time and they have a great passer in (Marc) Stanton, the best in Division I last year."

Nathan Gott's interception on North's 24 turned the early momentum in North's favor midway through the opening quarter. Higgins hit Jeremy Gott for an 18-yard gain, Josh Gott broke loose for 23 yards, Nee added seven and Higgins passed to Reinhart for 44 yards and a touchdown. The try for the two-point conversion failed.

Early in the second quarter Barnstable drove all the way to a first down on North's two. But the Red Raiders made a brilliant goal-line stand. Three rushing plays failed to gain and a pass on fourth down was complete but the receiver was out of the end zone.

The North Raiders then marched 97 yards for their second score. Nee immediately broke loose up the middle for 30 yards. Nee and Josh Gott worked the ball up to the North 47 and Higgins hit Reinhart for a gain to the Cape Raiders' 38.

Following two incompletions, Higgins then threw a picture-perfect pass to Shea for the touchdown. The pass was a carbon copy of another Higgins-to-Shea pass in the win over Plymouth the previous week. A pass for the two-points failed.

On the second play following the second-half kickoff, North's Halpin recovered a Barnstable fumble on the Cape visitors' 41. Higgins hit Dan Duncan for 20 yards and, on fourth down and nine, again hit Reinhart for 19 yards and a TD to make the score 18-0. Again a pass for the two points was no good.

Herron saved a sure Barnstable touchdown when he batted the ball away from the Barnstable receiver. Barnstable gambled on fourth down and North held and took over on its own 43.

With 23 seconds left in the third quarter Higgins passed to Rafferty for 17 yards and the final touchdown and Diep Nguyen kicked the extra point.

Both coaches cleared their benches in the final quarter and Barnstable avoided a shutout when A.J. Langston scored from the four with 1:23 left to play.

"It was good to have a game like this after three close wins and I got a chance to give a lot of players their first action," McPhee said.

Panthers Roll By Elks, Apaches Overcome Manets

The Quincy Point Panthers held on to first place in the Quincy Youth Football League by scoring in every quarter to defeat the West Quincy Elks, 24-6, Sunday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Panthers improved to 4-1 and the Elks fell to 1-3-1.

In the other half of the doubleheader, the North Quincy Apaches (2-3) scored twice in the last quarter for a dramatic, 20-16, come-from-behind victory over the Houghs Neck Manets (2-2-1).

This Sunday the Elks face the Apaches at 6 p.m. and the Panthers meet the Manets at 7:30 p.m. at the stadium.

Dave Gunther scored two touchdowns for the Panthers, one in the first quarter on a nine-yard run and the second on a 30-yard interception return in the final quarter.

In the second quarter Rich Garcia hauled in a Carmen Lorenzano pass for a 15-yard touchdown, giving the Panthers a 12-0 cushion at the half.

Mark Joyce scored from the two early in the third quarter as the Panthers widened their lead to 18-0. Gunther's interception return capped the Panthers' scoring.

With the Panthers jayvees in action, the Elks avoided a shutout when Shawn Faherty raced 22 yards for their lone score.

The Panthers were led defensively by Joe Mariano, who had a fumble recovery; Brian Miller (special teams) and Brad Smith, who had an interception.

For the Elks, Saadet Saadat played a solid defensive game, Eric Hanlon played well and Dan DePaulo turned in a solid two-way effort.

The Manets opened the scoring against the Apaches as quarterback Mark Glynn threw a pass to Scott Shepherd for a score and the two-point conversion was good.

A tough Manet defense forced the Apaches to punt on their next possession and Glynn returned it for a touchdown and again the two-point conversion was good as the Manets took a 16-0 lead.

Just before the half ended Charlie Plaskasovits caught a 10-yard pass from Jim Finn to put the Apaches on the board. The try for the two-point conversion failed.

The Manets drove deep into Apache territory at the start of the second half but the Apaches defense held.

Pat Egan raced 75 yards for a touchdown at the start of the final quarter but again the two-point conversion try failed.

The Manets were forced to punt on their next possession and the Apaches' offense took over. With a minute left to play, Finn hooked up with Shaun Donovan for a touchdown and this time the conversion try was good.

The Apaches' defense then held the Manets at bay the rest of the way.

The Apaches received strong performances from Brian Walsh, Sean O'Toole and Andrew Cameron.

Presidents Host Winless Medford Friday

By TOM SULLIVAN

The first victory continues to elude the Quincy football team and the Presidents will make another try at it Friday night when they host winless Medford in a 7 o'clock game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy continued to be frustrated as it lost at Plymouth, 14-7, last Friday to drop its record to 0-3-1.

Medford comes into Quincy with an 0-4 record, having lost to Woburn, 14-13; Waltham, 26-8; Arlington, 28-0; and Everett, 17-6.

"We scouted Medford against Everett and they have a big, fast team and I expect plenty of trouble from them," said Quincy coach Jack Raymer.

"It was the same old story at Plymouth, we just didn't play with intensity and we weren't executing. People think we should be rolling over these teams, but we are not playing any patsies. Marshfield is still undefeated and Taunton is still unbeaten and defeated Weymouth this week. And Plymouth is an improving team. We played them even except for the third period when they scored all their points. We held them to 30 yards rushing in the first half but they came out and scored on their first position in the second half and they scored again when they recovered a fumble inside our 30-yard line. We had just three offensive plays in the third quarter.

"The defense did well except for the third quarter. I am using three sophomores, Mike Feeley, Jeff Burrell and Jason Bennett on defense and they are doing well. Ashley Davis continues to play well and John Green, who started his first game at defensive end, played a fine game. Robbie Kane played another fine game in the secondary and Mike Bartlett again played strong defense. Although Bartlett completed only two passes, several balls were dropped, including one in the end zone."

Offensively Noel DiBona rushed for 50 yards and Dave Bogan ran for 42. The teams went back and forth in a scoreless first half but the Blue Eagles (1-3) scored on their first possession of the second half when Jeremy Lopes, who carried 15 times for 115 yards, ran 25 yards for his first touchdown. Justin Miller kicked the extra point.

Following Scott Huber's fumble recovery on Quincy's 30, Lopes again scored from the five as time expired in the quarter. Miller again kicked the point.

Dan Morrell recovered a fumble on the Plymouth 15 but the Presidents couldn't capitalize.

With 3:06 left in the game Bogan scored from the one and DiBona kicked the extra point.

Plymouth failed to run out the clock and Quincy had time for one final play.

The Presidents made a fine stand in the first half when Kris Telford intercepted a Bartlett pass and brought it back to the Quincy five. Three plays later the Eagles were pushed back to the 20 and a field goal try by Miller was wide.

"We just haven't been able to take advantage of our opportunities and have scored only four touchdowns in four games," Raymer said. "We continue to be hurt by penalties."

Volleyball

North Girls Breeze Along

The question is, who is going to defeat the North Quincy girls' volleyball team?

So far the defending state Div. 1 champions have been unstoppable and last week improved their record to 8-0 with two more victories.

The North girls will host Dennis-Yarmouth Friday at 4 o'clock and next Thursday will be home to Barnstable at 4.

Last Friday North overcame one of its biggest obstacles, defeating Duxbury, 2-0 (15-3, 15-1). Duxbury came into the match with a 9-1 record.

Heather Rendle and Laura Rines combined for 11 kills in the first game and Heather Simmons had seven assists in the second game.

Earlier in the week North defeated Quincy, 2-0 (15-9, 15-4) as Regina Murphy had six kills in the first game. Freshman Sara Stanton had five digs in the first game and Maureen McCarthy led the team in the second game with five kills. For Quincy Liz Noble and Nikki Shaughnessy had five digs each.

In winning eight matches in a row North still hasn't lost a game, winning every match by 2-0 scores.

New Historic Commission Ordinance
HISTORIC DISTRICTS ORDINANCE

CITY OF QUINCY

I. AUTHORITY AND PURPOSE

1. This Ordinance shall be known and may be cited as the Historic Districts Ordinance of the City of Quincy and is adopted pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 40C of the Massachusetts General Laws, as amended.

2. The purpose of this Ordinance is to promote the educational, cultural, economic and general welfare of the public through the preservation and protection of the distinctive characteristics of buildings and places significant in the history of the City, or its architecture, and through the maintenance of the encouragement of design compatible therewith. Regulations may be promulgated by the Historical Commission, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C of the General Laws, in order to fulfill the purpose of this Ordinance.

II. HISTORICAL COMMISSION

1. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40, Section 8D, and Chapter 40C, Sections 4 and 14, of the General Laws, an Historical Commission shall be appointed by the Mayor. The Commission shall consist of seven citizens of the City appointed for three-year terms, with the terms of either two or three members expiring each year. Seven alternate members shall be appointed in a like manner. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment for an unexpired term. One regular member and one alternate member respectively shall be appointed from at least three nominees submitted by the Boston Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, from at least three nominees submitted by the Quincy Historical Society, and from at least three nominees submitted by the South Shore Board of Realtors. One regular and one alternate member shall be appointed, where possible, from districts, and three regular and three alternate members shall be appointed at large. If within thirty days after submission of a request for nominees to an organization entitled to submit nominations for membership on the Commission no such nominations have been made, the Mayor may proceed to make the appointments to the Commission without nomination by such organization.

2. In case of the absence, inability or unwillingness to act of a member of the Commission, his or her place shall be taken by an alternate member designated by the chairman. Each member and alternate shall continue in office until the expiration of his or her term or until his or her successor is duly appointed and qualified. All members shall serve without compensation. The Commission shall annually elect a chairman and vice-chairman from its number and a secretary from within or without its number.

III. DEFINITIONS

As used in this Ordinance the word "altered" includes the word "rebuilt," "reconstructed," "restored," "removed," and "demolished" and the phrase "changed in exterior color;" the word "building" means a combination of materials forming a shelter for persons, animals or property; the word "Commission" means the Commission acting as the Historical Commission; the word "constructed" includes the words "built," "erected," "installed," "enlarged," and "moved;" the words "exterior architectural feature" mean such portion of the exterior of the building or structure as is open to view from a public street, public way, public park or public body of water, including but not limited to the architectural style and general arrangement and setting thereof, the kind, color and texture of exterior building materials, the color of paint or other materials applied to exterior surfaces and the type and style of windows, doors, lights, signs and other appurtenant exterior fixtures; the words "person appearing" mean an applicant, an owner of property adjoining the property of an applicant, an owner of property within the same historic district as the property of an applicant and within one hundred feet of said property as measured from a property line and any charitable corporation in which one of whose purposes is the preservation of historic structures or districts; the word "structure" means a combination of materials other than a building, including a sign, fence, wall, terrace, walk or driveway.

IV. CERTIFICATE OF APPROPRIATENESS, NON-APPLICABILITY OR HARDSHIP

1. Except as otherwise provided in Sections VI or VII of this Ordinance, no building or structure within an historic district shall be constructed or altered in any way that affects an exterior architectural feature unless the Commission shall first have issued a certificate of appropriateness, a certificate of non-applicability or a certificate of hardship with respect to such construction or alteration.

2. Any person who desires to obtain a certificate from the Commission shall file with the Commission an application therefor in such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together in such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together with such plans, elevations, specifications, material or other information, including in the case of demolition or removal of the property thereof, as may be reasonably deemed necessary by the Commission to enable it to make a determination on the application.

3. No building permit for construction of a building or structure or for alteration of an exterior architectural feature within an historic district and no demolition permit for demolition or removal of a building or structure within an historic district shall be issued by the Building Commissioner until the certificate required by this section has been issued by the Commission.

V. FACTORS CONSIDERED BY COMMISSION IN MAKING DETERMINATION ON APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATE

1. In passing on matters before it the Commission shall consider, among other things, the historic and architectural value and significance of the site, building or structure, the general design, arrangement, texture, material and color of the features involved, and the relation of such features to similar features of buildings and structures in the surrounding area. In the case of new construction or additions to existing buildings or structures, the Commission shall consider the appropriateness of the size and shape of the building or structure both in relation to the land area upon which the building or structure is situated and to buildings and structures in the vicinity, and the Commission may in appropriate cases impose dimensional and setback requirements in addition to those required by other applicable laws and ordinances. The Commission shall not consider interior arrangements or architectural features not subject to public view.

2. The Commission shall not make any recommendation or requirement except for the purpose of preventing developments incongruous to the historic aspects or the architectural characteristics of an historic district.

VI. EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN MATTERS FROM REVIEW

1. The authority of the Commission shall not extend to the reconstruction, if substantially similar in exterior design, of a building, structure or exterior architectural feature damaged or destroyed by fire, storm or other disaster, provided such reconstruction is begun one year of the damage or destruction and carried forward with due diligence.

2. The Commission may determine from time to time after public hearing that certain categories of exterior architectural features, if the provisions of applicable laws or ordinances do not limit the authority of the Commission with respect thereto, may be constructed or altered without review by the Commission without causing substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance.

3. Upon request the Commission shall issue a certificate of non-applicability with respect to construction or alteration in any category then not subject to review by the Commission in accordance with this Section VI.

VII. ORDINARY MAINTENANCE: LANDSCAPING; CHANGES OTHERWISE PERMITTED OR REQUIRED

Nothing in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the ordinary maintenance, repair or replacement of any exterior architectural feature within an historic district which does not involve a change in design, material, color or the outward appearance thereof, nor to prevent landscaping with plants, trees or shrubs, nor construed to prevent the meeting of a requirement certified by a duly authorized public officer to be necessary for public safety because of an unsafe or dangerous condition, nor construed to prevent any construction or alteration under a permit duly issued prior to the effective date of this Ordinance.

VIII. ADDITIONAL POWERS, FUNCTIONS AND DUTIES OF COMMISSION

1. The Commission shall by majority vote of the members thereof promulgate appropriate procedural rules and regulations for the calling of meetings, the calling and conduct of hearings, the issuance and filing of certificates and other determinations, and the keeping of records, provided that the same shall be consistent with the requirements of Chapter 40C, Sections 10 and 11, of the Massachusetts General Laws, and other provisions of this Ordinance.

2. The Commission may after public hearing set forth in such manner as it may determine the various designs of certain appurtenances, such as signs or lighting fixtures, which will meet the requirements of an historic district and a roster of certain colors of paint and roofing materials which will meet the requirements of an historic district, but no such determination shall limit the right of an applicant to present other designs or colors to the Commission for its approval. The Commission shall, subject to appropriation, prepare and public architectural and design guidelines for the construction and alteration of buildings and structures within historic districts.

3. The Commission may, where certain construction or alteration is otherwise inappropriate, nevertheless determine that owing to conditions especially affecting the building or structure involved, but not affecting the historic district generally, failure to approve an application will involve a substantial hardship, financial or otherwise, to the applicant and that such application may be approved without substantial detriment to the public welfare and without substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance. If the Commission so determines, it shall cause a certificate of hardship to be issued to the applicant.

4. The Commission may, subject to appropriation, employ clerical and technical assistants or consultants and incur other expenses appropriate to the carrying on of its work, and may accept money gifts and expend the same for such purposes.

5. The Commission shall have the powers, authority and duties of an historical commission as provided in Chapter 40, Section 8D, of the General Laws.

6. The Commission shall have, in addition, the powers, authority and duties granted to it by this Ordinance, as it may from time to time be amended.

IX. APPEALS AND ENFORCEMENT

1. Any person aggrieved by a determination of the Commission may, within twenty days after the filing of the notice of such determination with the City Clerk, appeal to the superior court for Norfolk County, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 12A, of the Massachusetts General Laws.

2. The superior court for Norfolk County may, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 13, of the Massachusetts General Laws, enforce the provisions of this Ordinance, and any determinations, ruling or regulations issued pursuant thereto, and may, upon the petition of the Commission or, at the request of the Commission, of the Building Commissioner restrain by injunction violations thereof; and, without limitation, such court may order the removal of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature constructed in violation thereof, or the substantial restoration of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature altered or demolished in violation thereof, and may issue such other orders for relief as may be equitable.

3. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, in addition to such other penalty as may be provided by law, be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars, imposed by the Commission as a non-criminal disposition pursuant to Chapter 40, Section 21D, of the Massachusetts General Laws. Each day during any portion of which a violation continues to exist shall constitute a separate offense.

4. In case any section, paragraph or part of this Ordinance is declared invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, every other section, paragraph and part of this Ordinance shall continue in full force and effect.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

In accordance with the provisions of M.G.L. Chapter 40A, Section 5, the Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing on Monday, October 19, 1992, at 7:00 P.M., in the Quincy Council Chamber, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street for the purpose of considering a proposed amendment to Chapter 24, City of Quincy Zoning Ordinance, as follows:

In Article II, DEFINITIONS, Section 21, Meaning of Words, Paragraph 2, add a new definition:

HOME BUSINESS: Any Commercial activity conducted within a dwelling unit by the residents thereof as an accessory use to the residential use of the dwelling unit, provided that no sale of merchandise, whether wholesale or retail, takes place on the premises, except as expressly permitted by the provisions of Section 11.e.

The term "Home Business" shall include, but not be limited to, the studio of an artist, musician, photographer or writer; small group or individual instruction or tutoring; tailoring or millinery; crafts; word processing; computer software development; telephone solicitation; an office of architect, engineer, attorney, accountant, real estate agent or other professional; tradesman provide that the site is used only for a small office minor storage parking of no more than one (1) commercial vehicle with Gross Vehicle Weight (GVW) less than 8,500 lbs. which does not include a cube-type van.

The term "Home Business" shall not include the following: a clothing rental business; a barber shop, a hairdresser; a restaurant; a repair shop whether for small appliances or other use; an orchestra or instrumental music group; an antique, clothes or consignment shop; an animal hospital; an office of a doctor, dentist, psychologist or social worker, an automotive or automotive related use; or any other business similar to the ones enumerated.

In Article IV, USE REGULATIONS, Section 42, Table of Use Regulations, Paragraph II ACCESSORY USES.

Strike out paragraph

e. Office within the main building of a resident physician attorney or architect, and add in its place.

11 (e) Home Business

(1) the home business shall be clearly incidental and secondary to the use of the dwelling as a residence, shall be located within the dwelling unit, and shall not change the residential character thereof;

(2) Notwithstanding the location of the business within the dwelling unit, the total area of the dwelling unit utilized for the home business shall not exceed thirty (30) percent of the ground floor area of the dwelling unit or thirty (30) percent gross floor area of an individual apartment if the dwelling unit is located in a multi-unit dwelling;

(3) Not more than one (1) nonresident shall be employed in a secretarial/receptionist or like position in a home business;

(4) Not more than three (3) customers or pupils for business or instruction shall be present at one time.

(5) There shall be no on-premises storage of merchandise for sale in any instance, except in instances where merchandise is produced in its entirety on the premises:

(6) There shall be no wholesale or retail sale of merchandise on the premises:

(7) The home business shall not produce noise, vibration, glare, fumes, odors, electrical interference or traffic congestion beyond that which normally occurs in the immediate residential area, nor shall the home business result in the repeated disruption of the peace, tranquility, safety or quality of life of the residential neighborhood; there shall not be signage in the Residence A zoned areas.

(8) In addition to the parking required by Article VIII for residential use of the dwelling unit, off-street parking designed in compliance with the requirements of Article VIII shall be provided as follows: One (1) parking space for each two hundred (200) square feet, or fraction thereof, of floor area used by the home business.

(9) There shall not be more than one (1) home business located in the dwelling unit.

(10) The applicant shall provide documentation suitable to the Building Inspector that he/she is the owner of the dwelling unit at the location of the home business, or if the proposed location is in a multi-unit dwelling, the owner or his authorized agent has granted permission to the applicant to operate the home business at the proposed address;

(11) Application for a Building Permit or Certificate of Occupancy shall be made to the Inspector of Buildings, and no use or occupancy shall commence prior to the issuance of a Certificate of Occupancy by the Inspector of Buildings. Each Certificate of Occupancy shall be for a term of three (3) years and shall be renewed if all requirements of Article VI, #6 continue to be met.

(12) The Board of Appeals may grant a Special Permit in accordance with the procedure provided in Section 15 for a home business involving any or all of the following:

a) A number of non-resident employees greater than that permitted under Section 11.e.3;

b) The presence of more than three (3) customers or pupils at any one time, subject to the provision of a number of parking spaces sufficient to accommodate the activity associated therein;

c) The waiver of the off-street parking requirement: The Special Permit shall be limited to three (3) years in duration, and may be considered for renewal by the Board of Appeals upon receipt of application for same and affirmation by the Building Inspector that the home business has met the above listed requirements.

NEW IDEAS

Jon Bryan "...is clearly capable of handling the demands on a Congressman. What's more, he comes to the voter with a fresh new approach to a lot of the old problems that incumbents in Congress, including our own, have failed to solve or even address. For example, Mr. Bryan would certainly be more determined to resolve the endless budget problems than Rep. Studds has been...Mr. Bryan brings an enthusiasm, intelligence and broad range of interests and ideas to the table in his bid for office..." (New Bedford Standard Times endorsement, 10/28/90).

'I Leave With Fond Memories -- No Regrets'

Gillis Retires As City Clerk And 'Quincy Institution'

By STEVE KAVANAGH

It won't be the same in City Hall without the familiar aroma of cigar smoke emanating from the corner office on the first floor.

The venerable John Gillis, City Clerk for the past 33 years, officially retired this week and oversaw his last City Council meeting Monday night.

Former councillors were on hand to join in honoring Gillis.

"I have so many pleasant and fond memories of this historic chamber," Gillis told the Council. He then named each of the City Councillors who were serving during his first meeting as assistant city clerk in 1957 including the only living member Carl Anderson. In 1959 he became city clerk.

"I've enjoyed this job. I guess they call us politicians or statesmen... I call us humanitarians," Gillis said.

"Government used to be easier. Nowadays they say it's wrong if you do a favor for a friend... but I disagree, I think that's what government is all about... helping people.

"I'm leaving with fond memories and no regrets," Gillis said. "I wish everyone could have experienced being city clerk."

Atty. George Burke, former councillor, state representative and district attorney, spoke on behalf of a group of former city councillors on hand to pay tribute to Gillis.

"If you need help, go see John Gillis. That's the reputation you have in this city," Burke told Gillis.

"I spoke with Carl

Anderson today and he wishes you the very best," added former councillor Jack Lydon. Anderson is in a nursing home and was unable to attend.

Other former councillors who attended were Joanne Condon-Walsh, Sen. Paul Harold, Dennis Harrington, Leo Kelly, George McDonald, former Mayor Frank McCauley, Steve McGrath, Tom Nutley, Dan Raymond and former Mayor Arthur Tobin.

Former Clerk of Committees Louise Brabazon also attended.

The City Council passed a resolution declaring Friday "John Gillis Day" in Quincy.

"City Hall will never be the same... I think that's an understatement," said Council President Charles Phelan.

"John Gillis is an institution," said Mayor James Sheets. "He's irreplaceable. He worked seven days a week. If someone knocked on his door on a Sunday asking to get married he was always there to take care of it," Sheets said.

Gillis gave a special thanks to his former assistant Tommy Burke and to his staff. He also boosted assistant clerk Joseph Shea as his replacement.

"Joe Shea is compassionate and that's what you need in government-compassion," Gillis said.

Sheets Asks Others To Join City Readies Suit Against MWRA On $1.5M Overcharge

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Mayor James Sheets has directed City Solicitor Steve McGrath to begin laying the ground work for a class action lawsuit against the MWRA which overcharged Quincy for sewer use by nearly $1.5 million in 1991.

Sheets has asked McGrath to contact authorities in other communities which have been overcharged including Weymouth, Randolph, Stoughton, Canton, Walpole, Norwood, Westwood and Holbrook.

"We have to determine what technical assistance we would have to have to file a suit, what it would cost and we would have to make sure it is a proper lawsuit," Sheets said Tuesday.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney introduced a resolve Monday calling for the city to join in a lawsuit against the MWRA. Cheney wants Quincy and the other communities to seek damages for the overcharges and legal expenses.

Data provided by the MWRA showed that the city was overcharged by $1.3 million in 1991. DPW Commissioner David Colton estimated the amount is nearly $1.5 million.

"The taxpayers should be outraged. We should call our state rep.'s and senators," Councillor-at-Large Patricia Toland said. "We've taken too much from the MWRA."

"We have to keep the pressure on," said Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers.

Colton said the cities of Quincy and Newton are very similar in many ways but that although Newton contributes 3.93 million gallons more flow per day than Quincy, Newton was assessed $52,000 less than Quincy in MWRA sewer charges for fiscal year 1993.

"I think that (MWRA Executive Director) Doug MacDonald would like to resolve this issue of inequitable payment," Sheets said.

The MWRA began charging ratepayers in its 43 member communities for sewer use in 1980 based on population. Colton said a flow based system is the only fair way to compute sewer charges.

Colton also noted that communities have a financial incentive "not" to maintain sewer systems under the present MWRA formula. Quincy, which is in the midst of a comprehensive sewer overhaul, gets penalized under the format.

Sheets estimated the average family of four could receive a rebate of about $60 per $1 million that was overcharged if the lawsuit is successful.

Cheney said he would like to see the money returned to individual ratepayers. Sheets agreed.

"Lawsuits of this nature take several years to complete. We will move as quickly as possible,"

Sheets said.

Several City Councillors said politics could prevent the MWRA from straightening the situation out without a lawsuit. A number of communities including Boston, Cambridge, Newton, Hingham, Milton, Braintree and Dedham have been undercharged and are being subsidized by the overcharged cities and towns.

Councillor Larry Chretien said he expected very slow movement towards rate reform since Gov. William Weld and House of Representatives majority leader Charlie Flaherty are both Cambridge residents and Senate President William Bulger is a Boston resident, both communities which are currently benefiting from the unfair process.

Other councillors noted that the MWRA Executive Board is weighted heavily with members from Boston.

Kolson said he is frustrated with fighting the MWRA. "This is our government, it's our money... it's stupid, it's frustrating."

Sheets said Tuesday that the lawsuit against the MWRA will not jeopardize the city's position on other issues with the state agency.

Property Tax Bills Due Nov. 2

Property tax bills for the second quarter of Fiscal 1993 have been mailed and are due Monday, Nov. 2, announces Quincy Tax Collector Dana Childs.

Payments received in the collector's office after Nov. 2 will be assessed a late charge of 14 percent back to Nov. 2. Payments are considered late if they are received after Nov. 2, regardless of the postmark date.

Property owners who have not received a bill should contact the collector's office between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

New owners since Jan. 1,

1992 are advised that tax bills for 1993 are issued in the name of the old owner. They should obtain a copy of the bill from the old owners or the tax office located on the first floor of the City Hall annex.

Failure to receive a bill does not negate interest for late payments, Childs said.

Quincy Community Action Fuel Assistance Begins Nov. 3

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. fuel assistance program will begin scheduling appointments Monday, Nov. 3 for eligible Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Weymouth residents.

Eligibility is determined by household size and total income received by all members 18 years and older.

Appointments may be made for new applicants Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. at 472-8181 beginning today (Thursday). Because phone lines are often busy, applicants are advised to be patient and keep trying.

Those who received an application in the mail from last year's program are not required to make an appointment. Those who have not returned applications are urged to do so by mailing or bringing it to the Fuel Assistance Office, 1509 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Home Depot Granted License To Store Combustibles, Flammables

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Home Depot, 177 Willard St. to store various amounts of combustibles, flammables, and propane on its property.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the 27,698 gallons of combustibles and 6,438 gallons of flammables consist mainly of "paints, thinners and materials available in any hardware store."

The 660 pounds of propane requested by Home Depot will be kept in 20 33-pound containers, Gorman said. He added that the containers will be stored in a "fenced-in" area that must be kept at least 25 feet away from the Home Depot building.

Sheets To Discuss Quincy 2000 With Brockton Officials

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Mayor James Sheets was invited to speak before Brockton city officials today (Thursday) on Quincy's effort to revitalize its business districts through the newly incorporated Quincy 2000 partnership.

Sheets was invited to appear before Brockton officials as well as business and financial leaders at 3 p.m. in Brockton City Hall by Mayor Winthrop Farwell. He said Farwell and other Brockton officials want to know how the Quincy 2000 will revitalize the city and whether they can set up a similar corporation in Brockton.

The Quincy corporation, which held its first organizational meeting last week, is comprised of more than 80 members from municipal government, small business, financial institutions and labor unions. The public-private partnership, Sheets said, will "focus all of its economic power on behalf of the economic development of the city." Among its goals are to locate retail outlets into vacant storefronts and develop commercial and business-zoned parcels.

Sheets said Farwell somehow secured a copy of the Quincy 2000 legislation and a copy of its by-laws. The legislation is on the books at the State House but the by-laws are only in the hands of corporation members and some Quincy officials.

Nevertheless, Sheets said he is thrilled Brockton will consider the Quincy 2000 revitalization framework.

"They were so impressed by what we're doing that they feel they need that kind of partnership to rise above the recession," Sheets said.

"They're looking at the revitalization of downtown Brockton and they really need a vehicle for it. They want some kind of hybrid partnership that involves government and the business community."

Sheets was expected to be joined by Planning Director Richard Meade. South Shore Chamber of Commerce President Thomas Galvin, chairman of the Quincy 2000 Board of Directors, may also attend.

Council Approves 15 Police Cars

The Quincy Police Department has received approval to purchase 15 new police cars to replace the department's most heavily used cars.

The City Council Monday approved $271,000 for the new cars, 11 marked cruisers and four detective cars.

The cruisers will be purchased using the collective bidding process of the Greater Boston Police Council. The old cars will be sold by the city.

The marked cruisers will replace two cars which have been totaled in accidents, eight 1989 Chevrolets with an average mileage of 93,000 and a 1988 Ford with 112,000 miles.

The four unmarked cruisers will replace two 1985 Chevrolets and two 1986 Fords, all with more than 100,000 miles.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney said that mileage "is not a true indicator" of the wear-and-tear on engines since the cars spend a lot of time idling. Cheney requested that all police cars purchased in the future be equipped with "engine-hour meters."

Maintenance of old police cars is too costly to convert them to detective cars or for use by other city departments, Police Chief Francis Mullen said.

"This is important for the safety and well being of our residents and for the officers who use those cruisers 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year," said Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

The Council also asked Mullen to study the possibility of leasing detective cars as opposed to purchasing them.

HEAVY DRINKING FOR DULLARDS

It doesn't take a brain surgeon to figure out that heavy alcohol consumption isn't smart. Now, a study of 25 sets of identical twins has added further proof. Medical researchers in London tested the twins, who were selected because one was a heavy drinker (consuming at least six beers a day more than the sibling) and one was not. The results: the heavy boozers scored significantly lower on every test of mental ability than did their twins. Tests included vocabulary, mathematics and inserting wooden blocks in to the correct holes on a board. The longer the twins had been drinking heavily, the worse their scores were. Those who had started drinking as teenagers scored lowest of all.

P.S. Alcoholism was designated as a disease by the American Medical Association in 1956.

While a drink or two a day won't hurt you, heavy drinking can cause or contribute to a veritable host of health problems. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472 2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. LaRaia Coming Back?

Joseph LaRaia, whose political career has been up and down like an elevator, is reaching for the "up" button once again.

There are some ifs involved but he could be back in the City Council — this year.

One big if is named Patricia Toland. She is one of the contenders for the assistant city clerk's job which Joseph Shea is vacating to succeed John Gillis as city clerk.

Gillis officially retired Tuesday after a fond farewell from present and past City Council members Thursday night, closing out a legendary 36-year City Hall career.

Shea automatically became acting city clerk Tuesday and will be officially elected to a three-year city clerk term by the City Council in November.

TOLAND

This is where Pat Toland comes in.

If she gets the assistant clerk's job which pays $31,000 she will have to vacate her City Council at-large seat. The council post pays $10,000.

That, it would seem, would bring LaRaia back to the City Council.

As runner-up in the last city election (1991) he has claim to any council at-large vacancy should it occur before the next city election which isn't until 1993. He then would fill Toland's unexpired term.

LaRaia has been calling present members of the council reminding them that he is the runner-up and rightful heir to a vacant seat. He's also asking for their support and not to keep the seat vacant.

LaRaia finished fourth in the six candidate at-large race in 1991.

Tim Cahill topped the field with 9,053 votes with Michael Cheney second with 8,847 and Toland third with 8,763. LaRaia was 6,850, George Miller 5,422 and William Ryan 3,395.

There's another if in the picture for LaRaia to hurdle before he could return to the City Council.

Cheney has a resolve before the council to abolish the assistant clerk's job. There are mixed feelings about that proposal among council colleagues who will vote yes or no on it.

If the job is retained, Toland could be the new assistant clerk although there are other contenders. Among them are Steve Doherty, a member of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds staff, Michael MacFarland, Quincy restaurateur, and John Comer, son of John (Jake) Comer, Quincy Housing Authority executive director and American Legion past national commander.

Shea, as city clerk gets to nominate the assistant clerk but the council has the confirmation rights.

If LaRaia should come back, it could mark the beginning of change in the City Council lineup.

Cahill is seriously considering running for mayor next year and if he does, his council seat would be vacated.

Likely candidates would include Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, who is also council president. If they did run, that would open up those two ward seats.

Another potential at-large candidate has a well known name: Richard Barry of North Quincy. He is a 29-year-old attorney and son of the late Atty. Richard Barry who was a top vote-getting city councillor and Norfolk County first assistant District Attorney.

If LaRaia should make it back to the City Council there's an obvious intriguing question: would he take another comeback crack at the mayor's office?

AN INFORMAL FAREWELL for City Clerk John Gillis will be held by the staff in the clerk's office

Friday at 10 a.m. A chance to say "so-long" and "good luck." A formal retirement party is being planned for a later date.

FORMER MAYOR Frank McCauley finished the 26.2 mile Jimmy Fund Walk for the fourth straight year and raised between $8,000 and $9,000 in sponsor donations for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

McCAULEY

Donations from sponsors are still coming in. You can also be a post-sponsor by sending a check payable to The Jimmy Fund Walk and mailing it to McCauley at 210 Manet Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

He had raised nearly $14,000 going into this year's walk which follows the same course as the Boston Marathon.

McCauley, who is now executive director of the State Retirement Board did the 26.2 miles in 6 hours, 15 minutes — 13 minutes over last year's pace.

He expects to beat that next year.

BACK-TO-BACK fundraisers are scheduled for Senator Paul Harold to help him cut his campaign deficit from his run for Congress.

The first, will be held Tuesday, Oct. 27 at Coddington's, Presidents Place, Quincy Square from 6 to 8 pm. Tickets are $15 and may be obtained from Paul Hogan (471-9520) or at the door.

HAROLD

The second, Wednesday, Oct. 28, will be at The Boston Harbor Hotel from 5:30 to 7:30 pm. Tickets are $100 and will be available at the door.

This event is being sponsored by 23 leading Democrat officials including Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, the entire Massachusetts House delegation (among them Gerry Studts who defeated Harold in the 10th District Democratic primary), Atty. Gen. Scott Harshbarger, Senate President William Bulger; Mayors James Sheets (Quincy), Ray Flynn (Boston) and Winthrop Farwell (Brockton).

AND, SPEAKING OF Harold, he got a standing ovation at the Houghs Neck Community Council Awards dinner Sunday.

A number of people told him they hope he remains in politics and some urged him to consider running for mayor.

KEN FORTINI, Republican candidate for Governor's Council, has a fundraiser tonight (Thursday) from 5 to 7 pm at the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd.

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci will be on hand to help welcome those attending.

Tickets, $10 a person and $25 a couple, may be had by calling Geradine Sharkey at 472-7234.

Fortini, a Hingham Investment broker and Duxbury resident, and an Archbishop Williams High School classmate of City Solicitor Steve McGrath.

QCA Candidates' Night

Candidates for Congress, Governor's Council, state representative in the First Norfolk District, state senator, county sheriff and county commissioner have been invited to speak and answer questions posed by the voters.

License Board In Tribute To Gillis

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday paid tribute to outgoing City Clerk John Gillis, who has stepped down from his position after more than 30 years on the job.

Gillis, who submitted his retirement notification to the City Council Monday night, presided over his final License Board meeting Tuesday.

Board members had nothing but kind words for Gillis, who became City Clerk in 1958.

"John has known me since I was a little kid," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. "My father (a former fire chief) always had great respect for John, who has always tried to help the little person."

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue echoed similar sentiments.

"That's what I've seen, the kindness and decency and always trying to help someone," she said.

"I hope your spirit of compassion and decency stays with us forever," agreed Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey. "It's like someone said the other day, 'the soul of the City of Quincy is John Gillis.'"

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he also would miss Gillis.

"I've known John over the years, and I've been privileged to sit here (at the License Board) with his guidance and judgement," said Mullen.

Gillis also received praise from Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro and former Police Chief Francis Finn, both of whom attended Tuesday's board meeting.

"I've worked with you a long time, even before I was a councillor," said DeCristofaro. "I'm very proud of you, and I know the people of Ward 2 and Quincy Point are very proud of you."

Finn spoke of the various police chiefs, fire chiefs, health

SOME OLD FRIENDS dropped by City Hall Monday night to congratulate retiring City Clerk John Gillis, center, including many former city councillors and former Assistant City Clerk Tommy Burke, far right. commissioners and building inspectors who have served with Gillis over the years.

"It (the License Board) was a very competent board, always," said Finn. "All of these people highly respected John's leadership. I am very sorry to see John go."

Gillis, in turn, spoke highly of the License

Board.

"This is a great board, the makeup is great," said Gillis. "The main thing from this board is compassion, to help the little fellow. It's always been a very honest board and a fair board, and even though people may sometimes disagree with us, I've never heard anyone say anything bad about the board."

"We're very fortunate in the City of Quincy to have people in all departments, police, fire, health and building, who care. Quincy is a great, great city and is also lucky to have a public who cares."

Gillis added that he felt now was the right time to step down and said he looked forward to spending more time with his family.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Hearing Set On Q. Shore Drive High Rise Plan

The zoning Board of Appeals set Nov. 13 as the date for a hearing into an application by Atty. John P. Flavin for a variance to clear the way for construction of a $17 million, 1,000-unit high rise apartment development on Quincy Shore Drive between Feno St. and Caddy Memorial Park.

The Wollaston Park Association, leading the opposition to the plan, circulated a petition asking the Metropolitan District Commission to take the land by eminent domain and place it beyond the developers' reach as a conservation area.

A second proposal by the association would request the owner of the land, the Reuben and Lizzie A. Grossman Foundation, to donate the property to the city of Quincy as a memorial park to the Grossman family.

The development plan calls for six 12-story apartment buildings and 15 two and three-story structures.

MAYOR, CD HEAD CONFER

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Civil Defense Director Col. Walter C. Fuller conferred in the wake of President Kennedy's ultimatum to the Soviet Union to remove its missiles from Cuba.

"None of us know what we have before us for we do not know how Russia will react to the President's talk," said Della Chiesa. "I want to get a report from Col. Fuller on our civil defense setup."

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements. And when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

'Halloween Party In Motion' At Crane Library Oct. 27

David Zucker's "Halloween Party in Motion" will be performed Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

The performance, funded by the Friends of the Library, is recommended for children age 6 and older and adults.

During a performance in July, Zucker previewed his Halloween show. His one-man show revives the almost lost art of performing poetry. It involves the audience as well as an old steamer trunk filled with props, costumes, masks and puppets.

Zucker introduces such masters of trick or treat poetry as Lillian Moore, Edgar Allen Poe, Jack Prelutsky, Shel Silverstein, and other poets.

Zucker has more than 20 years experience as an actor, director, playwright, teacher and mine. He has performed in many Boston theatre productions as well as appearing on television

St. Joseph School Celebrates Columbus Day

The second and third graders at St. Joseph School recently celebrated Columbus Voyage to the New World in drama, poetry and song.

The students, in full costume of the day, depicted Columbus visiting King Ferdinand and Isabella departing Europe—the struggles at sea and the ultimate signing of land.

The celebration was under the direction of Mary Watson, second grade teacher, and Carol Horn, third grade teacher.

Car Care Corner

Q. I say safety means crash protection systems, like air bags, safety belts and passenger compartment integrity. My neighbor says it's accident avoidance systems, such as brakes, steering, handling and visibility. Who's right?

A. You both are, but if you look at safety based on usage, your neighbor is more correct. Crash avoidance counts for 99 percent of the usage; crash protection one percent. That means you use your vehicle's brakes and steering systems more often to avoid an accident than you would use your safety belt or air bag system to protect you once a collision occurs.

Tire And Related Care Important For Safety, Economy

Tire and related automotive care is extremely importance to motorists concerned about the safe and economical operation of their cars.

Since 1921, the National Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association (NTDRA) has shared that concern for the well-being of the nation's motoring public and now as a supporter of National Car Care Month, offers these car care tips:

TIRE INFLATION: You can turn air into oil, simply by keeping your tires properly inflated.

According to the Department of Energy, American motorists could save 90,000 barrels of oil a day by properly inflating their tires. Keeping their tires underinflated could result in wasting an estimated 600 million gallons of gasoline annually, or about $750 million a year.

Motorists should check their vehicle owners manual to determine the proper inflation.

It is not possible to tell if tires are underinflated just by looking at them. Since air pumps are not always accurate, NTDRA recommends that you either stop by a tire dealer for an inflation check or carry an accurate air gauge in the glove compartment. Tires should be checked at least once a month and before any long trip.

Underinflation lowers miles per gallon, creates excessive heat, seriously reduces tread life, increases resistance and can cause tire failure.

TIRES: Don't go bald early! At least once a month, inspect tires closely for signs of uneven wear. Uneven wear patterns may be caused by improper inflation pressures, misalignment, improper balance or suspension neglect. If caught in time, the cause may be corrected. When the tread is worn down to 2/32nds of an inch, or to the wear bars, which look like thin strips of smooth rubber across the tread, appear on the tire, it's time to replace the tire. DON'T WAIT.

SUSPENSION AND STEERING: Suspension systems in need of repairs send out warning signals: (1) Excessive bounce at front or rear end when you push down on the bumper (2) rough, uncomfortable ride-caused by leaking shock absorbers seals or (3) clicking noises when going over a bump or pot hole. If any of these problems are noticed, motorists could avoid excessive and expensive damage to their cars and tires by having the suspension system checked. If the car fails to respond immediately to the turn of the steering wheel, then a professional check of steering components is in order.

BRAKES: Squeaky is not always bad, but be careful. All brakes are susceptible to slight occasional squeal or grinding. This occurs after the vehicle has been idle overnight or in unusually damp weather conditions. This noise will dissipate quickly, and has no effect on the brake operation. However, if the brake noises (grinding and squeaking) continue, or brake linings haven't been checked by a professional check should be in order. Also, if brake pedal has to be pushed down further than normal to engage, a check may be needed. Brake fluid level should be checked every six months.

ALIGNMENT: Keep it going straight. If the car seems to pull to one side or appears to be traveling at an angle while all four wheels are straight, and the tire tread is wearing unevenly, the car is probably out of alignment. This could happen to either a new or older car. To avoid permanent damage and the risk associated with driving a vehicle in this condition, NTDRA suggests a professional opinion.

Timing Belts Usually Ignored Until Too Late

The expression "timing is everything" certainly applies to your car's engine.

Valves and pistons must coordinate perfectly with the spark plugs and fuel injectors. It all happens with microsecond accuracy until something goes wrong, says the Car Care Council.

With today's computerized and solid-state speed systems, the weak link in the chain can be the mechanical component that's supposed to control this precision timing.

An engine's valves admit fuel into the combustion chamber and allow burned exhaust gases to escape. Their opening and closing, in perfect coordination with other engine functions, is actuated by a camshaft. On OHC (overhead cam) engines, the shaft is driven by a flat rubber belt with notches that engage teeth on camshaft pulleys.

This timing belt, as opposed to the conventional timing chain or gears, is quieter, lighter and requires no lubrication.

It is, however, susceptible to wear and should be checked and adjusted (or replaced) periodically. Unlike a spark plug or windshield wiper, which gives some warning before total failure, a timing belt usually fails without notice, usually disabling the engine on the spot. In some cases the result will be severe engine damage.

For this reason, car manufacturers recommend replacing timing belts at specific intervals, usually every 50,000 to 75,000 miles. While some engines will go considerably longer than that with no trouble, there is no way to know whether or not you've waited a little too long, other than by inspection.

The best time to inspect a timing belt, is when other belts are being replaced since they, and other components may have to be removed to gain visual access.

Think About Brakes During National Car Care Month

The Car Care Council offers this five-point brake safety questionnaire.

This is no substitute for a thorough braking system inspection, but serves as a reminder of work that may need to be done.

Answer yes, no or maybe (not sure) to each of the following:

1. I can keep pressure on my brake pedal indefinitely and the pedal will not "fade" to the floor.

2. I have had the wheels removed and my brakes checked and/or serviced during the past year.

3. I've had to top-off the brake fluid in the reservoir several times during the past few months.

Q. Sometimes my engine runs and knocks a few seconds after the ignition is off and there's a heavy exhaust odor.

A new book can help you help your car stay newer, longer.

A. Relax. The condition, which is called dieseling or engine run-on, will not harm the engine. Since it contributes to air pollution, here's how to stop it. Have a technician clean the carburetor, automatic choke and throttle linkage. Make certain idling speed and ignition timing match manual specifications. Be sure there's sufficient coolant and add engine cleaner to the carburetor.

4. I hear a squealing or scraping sound when I stop but have not checked into it because the car stops OK.

5. My car comes to a smooth, straight stop when the brakes are applied, even with hands off the wheel.

Scoring:

	Yes	No	Maybe
1. 5 pts.	2	3
2.	5	2	3
3.	1	5	3
4.	1	5	3
5.	5	1	3

If you scored less than 25 points, have your braking system inspected, advises the Car Care Council. There's no room for "maybe" when it comes to safety.

Brakes that squeal or cause the vehicle to steer to one side or the other should be checked. Also, don't take chances with a "mushy" or fading brake pedal. Investigate leaks in the system. All of these are warnings of imminent brake failure.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

There is an amazing railroad over the Simpson Pass which links Switzerland and Italy. It passes across 611 bridges and through a tunnel 12 1/2 miles long, the longest tunnel in the world. You can look down on glorious views of the Alps mountains and lakes part of the way and then complete darkness until the train comes through again to some of the grandest scenery in the world...

Like Simpson Pass our lives have intervals of light and darkness. Sometimes we go through dark tunnels and other times we enjoy the blessed assurance, the hymn writer describes so beautifully. As the hymn goes, sometimes trusting, sometimes doubting, sometimes joyful, sometimes sad. Darkness and light, the seasons, the ebb and flow of tides are part of the balance of nature. God's first act in creation was to divide the light from darkness. The evening and morning were the first day...

Yes, it is natural and normal for us to go through tunnel experiences, and when we do, let us hold on to our faith, believing that we shall come through to blessedness and joy again...

He was persuaded to apply for the post by friends in 1947 and was chosen from among 13 candidates. His starting pay was $4,500.

During his tenure, which lasted until his retirement in 1971, seven new schools were built and major additions and alterations resulted in adding 184 classrooms, an all-purpose room and 13 gymnasiums to the system.

In 1956, he turned down a similar but higher-paying position in Newton to remain with the Quincy schools. He said he wanted to see the many projects under way through to completion.

Born in Quincy, he attended city schools and was in the last Quincy High School class to graduate from the building that became Central Junior High School.

He graduated cum laude with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering from Northeastern University in 1927. He continued his studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and at the Boston Architectural Club.

He worked with his father's firm, William R. Lofgren and Sons, building contractors, for a time and from 1935 to 1943 was engineering coordinator for the Federal Works Agency for Quincy. That program employed up to 1,800 workers.

Serving as a lieutenant in the Navy during World War II, he supervised public works projects in Puerto Rico and at Quonset Point, R.I.

He once spent five weeks in Sweden, where his parents were born. He grew up speaking Swedish.

He was one of the founders of the Massachusetts Association of School Business Officials. He also was a member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, Tau Beta Pi National Engineering Honor Society, Northeastern University President's Club, Wollaston Masonic Lodge, American Legion, Quincy Historical Society and Quincy Retired Teachers Association.

He was a deacon emeritus of the Wollaston Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife, Jessie (Harding) Lofgren; a son, Dr. Robert H. Lofgren of Needham; three grandchildren, two great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., Quincy, MA 02170 or to Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Ancel L. Cairns, 84Retired Truck Driver

Born in Prince Edward Island, Canada, he was an Army veteran of World War II.

Husband of the late Mary C. (Schaezel) Cairns, he is survived by a son, Thomas F. Cairns of Quincy; a brother, Earl Cairns of Maryland; and a sister, Florence Hirtle of Quincy.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Presidents Host Weymouth Friday Night

By PETE ZOLA

The first win of the season was a long time in coming for Quincy's football team. The Presidents hope the second comes Friday when they host Weymouth at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Mike Bartlett passed for three TD's and completed 6-of-16 for 115 yards as Quincy rolled to a 26-8 win over Medford.

Bartlett threw a 50-yard scoring pass to Robbie Kane on Quincy's first play from scrimmage. Noel DiBona booted the PAT to give the Presidents a 7-0 edge.

David Bogan recovered a Medford fumble but Quincy could not take advantage of the break. Bartlett was intercepted and a penalty against the Presidents gave the Mustangs great field position.

But Medford was stopped cold as Jason Bennett recovered another Mustang fumble setting up another Quincy touchdown. Bartlett hit Kane for 17 yards then passed to DiBona for a 16-yard score and a 13-0 lead.

Medford, aided by two Quincy penalties, marched 73 yards for its only score. Erik Gorosko ran it in from seven yards out. He also ran the two-point conversions. He finished with 118 yards on 25 carries.

The Presidents scored again when Bartlett threw a screen pass to Bogan who took it in from 18 yards. DiBona added the point making it 20-8.

With about two minutes to go Quincy scored again on a five-yard run by Bogan.

"We finally woke up offensively tonight," said Quincy coach Jack Raymer. "Last week against Plymouth we never had the ball. Weymouth is ready to explode, we'll have to go right at them and see what happens."

Raymer also noted that Bartlett, who took over at quarterback a few weeks ago, is improving in every game. Raymer also applauded the fine play of Bogan.

Raymer had praise for Bennett, Mike Feeley and Jeff Burrell for their outstanding efforts throughout the game.

DiBona gained 56 yards rushing on eight carries and Bogan added 54 yards on 13 tries.

Youth Football

Manets Tame Panthers

The Houghs Neck Manets staged a second-half rally to defeat the first-place Quincy Point Panthers, 22-12, in the Quincy Youth Football League.

The Panthers (4-2) led 12-8 at halftime on touchdowns by Steve Roberts and David Gunther.

The Manets (3-2-1) scored first on a TD pass from Mark Glynn to

Andrew Byrne. Glynn rushed for the two-point conversion. It was Byrne who recovered a Panther fumble to set up the score.

The Manets took the lead in the second half as Glynn ran for a 27-yard TD. In the fourth quarter, Kevin Ryan rushed for a 10-yard touchdown and Glynn rushed for the two-point conversion and a 22-12 Manet lead.

The Panthers attempted to comeback but a penalty wiped out a late touchdown. Mark Frolick played solid defense for the Manets.

In other action, the North Quincy Apaches (3-3) defeated the West Quincy Elks (1-4-1).

The QYFL championship game will be played Sunday, Nov. 1 at 2 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The league's cheerleading competition will be held prior to the game at 12:30 p.m.

Cross Country

North Girls 4-1

The North Quincy girls' cross country team races Bridgewater-Raynham Friday and closes out the season against Quincy Wednesday. North also will run at the Brown Invitational Meet in Providence Saturday.

The Red Raiders improved their dual meet record to 4-1 by beating Taunton, 16-45, at Pageant Field.

Erin Duggan placed first followed by teammates Mel Gaziano, Katie McNamara and Laura Blaikie. Erica Doherty placed sixth, Kelly Duggan seventh and Colleen Cotter tenth.

North lost to Silver Lake, 24-33, with Suzanne Lewis placing first, Erin Duggan fourth, Gaziano seventh, McNamara tenth, and Doherty eleventh.

Erin Duggan, Lewis and Gaziano swept the top three spots in a 17-42 win over Barnstable. McNamara was fifth, Blaikie sixth, Doherty ninth and Kelly Duggan tenth.

In a previous meet the Raiders out ran Falmouth, 25-34, at Falmouth.

Lewis took second, Erin Duggan was fourth, Gaziano fifth, McNamara sixth, Doherty eighth, Kelly Duggan ninth and Blaikie tenth.

North Boys Beat Taunton For First Win

The North Quincy boys cross country team placed eight runners in the top ten to post their first win of the season, 24-37, over Taunton.

Eric Torvi placed second and Steve Cannon was fourth, Jim Chen fifth, Chris Sullivan, sixth, Billy Manning seventh, Brian O'Donnell eighth, Terrence Roche ninth and Dave Chan tenth.

The Red Raider freshmen had a good outing, winning a recent tri-meet against Weymouth, 34-41, and Xaverian, 34-47.

Cannon placed second, Manning was fourth, Roche sixth, O'Donnell eighth and Andy Myers 15th.

North lost to Silver Lake, 19-44, despite a second place finish by Torvi. Cannon was 11th, Sullivan 14th, Roche 15th and Manning 18th.

Barnstable also dealt the Raiders a loss, 23-38. Torvi took second, Cannon third, Chen placed tenth, Manning 11th and Sullivan 13th.

North fell to Falmouth, 19-36. Torvi was again second, Cannon placed seventh, Chen eighth, Manning ninth and Roche tenth.

Raiders Eye 6th Straight At Don Bosco

By PETE ZOIA

"One game at a time, focus your undivided attention on the game at hand."

This remark is imbedded in the minds of the North Quincy Red Raiders football team before every game by coach Ken McPhee.

They certainly concentrated and performed well enough to come from behind and edge out a fired up Weymouth team to the tune of 10-7.

This week North Quincy plays Don Bosco at Boston College High School Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

McPhee acknowledged that this was a squeaker and that North should have had a better performance offensively.

"Our defense has held up and played exceptionally well. This was a big win for us," McPhee said.

In the first quarter, both teams sparred with each other but penalties and incomplete passes hurt both offenses.

The initial score came in the second quarter. The Red Raiders began a drive from their own 32. Quarterback Liam Higgins was outstanding completing passes to Dave Reinhart, Mark Sinclair, Pat Shea and Dan Duncan moving the ball to the Wildcat 27.

Higgins then faked a pass and circled his left end for a touchdown only to have a holding penalty nullify the score. But Higgins completed a 25-yard pass to Duncan and Shawn Nee ran to the 10. Higgins then kicked a 27-yard field goal for a 3-0 halftime lead.

The third quarter was marred by numerous penalties to both teams, fumbles, interceptions and incomplete passes.

The final quarter was much more exciting. After a North punt, Weymouth's Kevin Burns thrilled the crowd by rocketing through the Raider line to go 70 yards untouched for the go-ahead Wildcat score. Kicker Mike Taylor split the uprights to make the score 7-3 with 9:33 remaining.

Following the kickoff, the Raiders took over on their own 22. North marched to the Weymouth seven in seven plays.

Higgins then fired the winning TD pass to Duncan and added the extra point.

North stopped Weymouth and then ran out the clock.

Higgins threw for 168 yards on 9-of-19 passing and one touchdown. The Raiders accumulated 111 yards rushing with Nee running for 61 yards on 14 attempts and Josh Gott gaining 33 yards on nine carries.

Weymouth quarterback Marc Stanton had a disappointing game with 45 yards on 3-of-15 passing attempts. The Wildcats rushed for 119 yards.

Youth Hockey

Pee Wee A's Blast Milton, Pembroke

The Quincy Pee Wee A hockey team opened its season with impressive wins over Milton and Pembroke.

In the opener against Milton, Scott Cooper netted a hat trick to pace the 8-2 victory.

Eric Wood had two goals, Jimmy Hasson, Mark Glynn and Matt Langille also had goals. Chris Haidul, Derek McTomney, Hasson, Bill Graney and Chris DiMattia each had assists.

Quincy displayed a potent offense in a 10-2 win over Pembroke. Hasson led the way with a hat trick. Brian Degan, Glynn and Mike Ryan had two goals each and Graney had one.

Haidul had four assists, and Langille and Glynn had two each. Ryan and Wood also had assists.

In both games the defense was led by Tim Wood, DiMattia, McTomney and Steve Verlicco. Goalie Brian Beaton made many outstanding saves.

Coaches Bruce Wood and Mike McTomney feel the team will improve when Robbie Winters and Mike Fitzpatrick return from injuries.

Bantam B's Win, Tie

The Quincy Bantam B youth hockey team defeated Charlestown, 4-0, and tied Hyde Park, 4-4, in recent Greater Boston League action.

Goalie Mark Smith was brilliant against Charlestown. Shawn McTomney scored the first goal with assists by Jason Healy and Mark Regan. McTomney also scored the second goal assisted by Tim Zamboni.

Mike O'Brien and Matt McSweeney also scored and Chris McArdle had an assist.

Quincy rallied from a 4-2, third period deficit to tie Hyde Park.

McTomney scored an unassisted shorthanded goal in the first period and Rob Callow netted Quincy's second score for a 2-0 lead. Hyde Park scored four straight times to lead 4-2 after two periods.

Quincy dominated the third period and Healy and McSweeney scored to tie the game. McTomney, Regan and McSweeney had assists.

Smith played well in goal in the second half of the game and forwards Tom Moriarty and Jeff Coleman sparked the comeback with their forechecking. Joe Bracken, Matt Jarnis and Craig Pinkham were stalwarts on defense.

Quincy is now 2-2-1 and hosts Brookline Sunday at 9:20 a.m. at Quincy Youth Arena.

Mite C's Win Opener, 3-2

The Quincy Mite C's won their season opener by beating South Boston, 3-2, in the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League.

Andrew Ross, Jordan Virtue and Bryan Cooper scored for Quincy, Billy Ryan assisted on the first two goals, and Joe Callahan and Stephen Kelley each had an assist.

Goalie Matthew Tupe

had a fine performance in his first travel team game. Matthew Conso and Mike Doyle also played well.

The Mite C's face Pembroke Sunday.

Swimming

Fagerlund Sets 2 North Records

Justine Fagerlund set two school records during North Quincy's loss to Duxbury last week in girls' high school swimming action.

Fagerlund broke the 200 individual medley record with a time of 2:21.96 and set the 500 freestyle record with a time of 5:28.98.

Despite the loss, many team members had excellent performances. Julie Ramos won both the 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke and Jen Walker won the 100 freestyle and placed second in the 50 freestyle.

The Red Raiders also won the 400 freestyle relay with co-captains Walker and Joanna Dyer, Fagerlund and Ramos. Sarah Radell and Carol Blaikie earned second place finishes.

In a previous meet, North outswam Durfee, 112-74. Zoe Bohl won the diving competition and is now rated number one in the Pilgrim Conference.

Fagerlund, Ramos, Walker, Susanne Hamilton, Julie McDonald and Radell each finished first and Alyssa Cobban, Laura Christopherson, Nancy Walker Amey Riley, Kelly Meade and Heather Bergonzi each placed second.

North Quincy will face Stoughton Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. and swims against Quincy next Thursday at 6 p.m. Both meets are at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool.

joined by Cong. Brian Donnelly and Cong. Gary Studds.

Included on the agenda is the presentation of the Dennis F. Ryan Community Award. The recipient will be announced at the brunch.

With the general election less than two weeks away, Committee

Chairman Neal Sullivan said expectations are high. "This is the first time in my recollection that we've had a unified Democratic ticket from the national level to the local level. Absolutely everybody is on board with this ticket."

There is speculation that Kennedy will endorse Studds in the race for Congress in the 10th district at the brunch.

The City Committee invites all Quincy Democrats to attend. Tickets are $12.50 per person and may be purchased at the door.

Timothy Johnson of 19 Polytechnic Institute, Warwick St., Quincy, is a member of the class of 1996 at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y. Johnson is majoring in computer science.

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 258

ORDERED:

September 8, 1992

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy as follows:

That the Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy, 1976, as amended, be further amended as follows:
Pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 40C, as amended:

STRIKE OUT THE FOLLOWING:

Existing City Historical Commission Ordinance
AND INSERT THE FOLLOWING:

New Historical Commission Ordinance
HISTORIC DISTRICTS ORDINANCE

CITY OF QUINCY

I. AUTHORITY AND PURPOSE

1. This Ordinance shall be known and may be cited as the Historic Districts Ordinance of the City of Quincy and is adopted pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 40C of the Massachusetts General Laws, as amended.

2. The purpose of this Ordinance is to promote the educational, cultural, economic and general welfare of the public through the preservation and protection of the distinctive characteristics of buildings and places significant in the history of the City, or its architecture, and through the maintenance and improvement of settings for such buildings and places and the encouragement of design compatible therewith. Regulations may be promulgated by the Historical Commission, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C of the General Laws, in order to fulfill the purpose of this Ordinance.

II. HISTORICAL COMMISSION

1. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40, Section 8D, and Chapter 40C, Sections 4 and 14, of the General Laws, a Historical Commission shall be appointed by the Mayor. The Commission shall consist of seven citizens of the City appointed for three-year terms, with the terms of either two or three members expiring each year. Seven alternate members shall be appointed in a like manner. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment for an unexpired term. One regular member and one alternate member respectively shall be appointed from at least three nominees submitted by the Boston Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, from at least three nominees submitted by the Quincy Historical Society, and from at least three nominees submitted by the South Shore Board of Realtors. One regular and one alternate member shall be appointed, where possible, from districts, and three regular and three alternate members shall be appointed at large. If within thirty days after submission of a request for nominees to an organization entitled to submit nominations for membership on the Commission no such nominations have been made, the Mayor may proceed to make the appointments to the Commission without nomination by such organization.

2. In case of the absence, inability or unwillingness to act of a member of the Commission, his or her place shall be taken by an alternate member designated by the chairman. Each member and alternate shall continue in office until the expiration of his or her term or until his or her successor is duly appointed and qualified. All members shall serve without compensation. The Commission shall annually elect a chairman and vice-chairman from its number and a secretary from within or without its number.

III. DEFINITIONS

As used in this Ordinance the word "altered" includes the word "rebuilt," "reconstructed," "restored," "removed," and "demolished" and the phrase "changed in exterior color;" the word "building" means a combination of materials forming a shelter for persons, animals or property; the word "Commission" means the Commission acting as the Historical Commission; the word "constructed" includes the words "built," "erected," "installed," "enlarged," and "moved;" the words "exterior architectural feature" mean such portion of the exterior of the building or structure as is open to view from a public street, public way, public park or public body of water, including but not limited to the architectural style and general arrangement and setting thereof, the kind, color and texture of exterior building materials, the color of paint or other materials applied to exterior surfaces and the type and style of windows, doors, lights, signs and other appurtenant exterior fixtures; the words "person aggrieved" mean an applicant, an owner of property adjoining the property of an applicant, an owner of an applicant and within one hundred feet of said property as measured from a property line and any charitable corporation in which one of whose purposes is the preservation of historic structures or districts; the word "structure" means a combination of materials other than a building, including a sign, fence, wall, terrace, walk or driveway.

IV. CERTIFICATE OF APPROPRIATENESS, NON-APPLICABILITY OR HANDSHIP

1. Except as otherwise provided in Sections VI or VII of this Ordinance, no building or structure within an historic district shall be constructed or altered in any way that affects an exterior architectural feature unless the Commission shall first have issued a certificate of appropriateness, a certificate of non-applicability or a certificate of hardship with respect to such construction or alteration.

2. Any person who desires to obtain a certificate from the Commission shall file with the Commission an application therefor in such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together in such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together with such plans, elevations, specifications, material or other information, including in the case of demolition or removal a statement of the proposed condition and appearance of the property thereafter, as may be reasonably deemed necessary by the Commission to enable it to make a determination on the application.

3. No building permit for construction of a building or structure or for alteration of an exterior architectural feature within an historic district and no demolition permit for demolition or removal of a building or structure within an historic district shall be issued by the Building Commissioner until the certificate required by this section has been issued by the Commission.

V. FACTORS CONSIDERED BY COMMISSION IN MAKING DETERMINATION ON APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATE

1. In passing on matters before it the Commission shall consider, among other things, the historic and architectural value and significance of the site, building or structure, the general design, arrangement, texture, material and color of the features involved, and the relation of such features to similar features of buildings and structures in the surrounding area. In the case of new construction or additions to existing buildings or structures, the Commission shall consider the appropriateness of the size and shape of the building or structure both in relation to the land area upon which the building or structure is situated and to buildings and structures in the vicinity, and the Commission may in appropriate cases impose dimensional and setback requirements in addition to those required by other applicable laws and ordinances. The Commission shall not consider interior arrangements or architectural features not subject to public view.

2. The Commission shall not make any recommendation or requirement except for the purpose of preventing developments incongruous to the historic aspects or the architectural characteristics of an historic district.

VI. EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN MATTERS FROM REVIEW

1. The authority of the Commission shall not extend to the reconstruction, if substantially similar in exterior design, of a building, structure or exterior architectural feature damaged or destroyed by fire, storm or other disaster, provided such reconstruction is begun one year of the damage or destruction and carried forward with due diligence.

2. The Commission may determine from time to time after public hearing that certain categories of exterior architectural features, if the provisions of applicable laws or ordinances do not limit the authority of the Commission with respect thereto, may be constructed or altered without review by the Commission without causing substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance.

3. Upon request the Commission shall issue a certificate of non-applicability with respect to construction or alteration in any category then not subject to review by the Commission in accordance with this Section VI.

VII. ORDINARY MAINTENANCE, LANDSCAPING, CHANGES OTHERWISE PERMITTED OR REQUIRED

Nothing in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the ordinary maintenance, repair or replacement of any exterior architectural feature within an historic district which does not involve a change in design, material, color or the outward appearance thereof, nor to prevent landscaping with plants, trees or shrubs, nor construed to prevent the meeting of a requirement certified by a duly authorized public officer to be necessary for public safety because of an unsafe or dangerous condition, nor construed to prevent any construction or alteration under a permit duly issued prior to the effective date of this Ordinance.

VIII. ADDITIONAL POWERS, FUNCTIONS AND DUTIES OF COMMISSION

1. The Commission shall by majority vote of the members thereof promulgate appropriate procedural rules and regulations for the calling of meetings, the calling and conduct of hearings, the issuance and filing of certificates and other determinations, and the keeping of records, provided that the same shall be consistent with the requirements of Chapter 40C, Sections 10 and 11, of the Massachusetts General Laws, and other provisions of this Ordinance.

2. The Commission may after public hearing set forth in such manner as it may determine the various designs of certain appurtenances, such as signs or lighting fixtures, which will meet the requirements of an historic district and a roster of certain colors of paint and roofing materials which will meet the requirements of an historic district, but no such determination shall limit the right of an applicant to present other designs or colors to the Commission for its approval. The Commission shall, subject to appropriation, prepare and public architectural and design guidelines for the construction and alteration of buildings and structures within historic districts.

3. The Commission may, where certain construction or alteration is otherwise inappropriate, nevertheless determine that owing to conditions especially affecting the building or structure involved, but not affecting the historic district generally, failure to approve an application will involve a substantial hardship, financial or otherwise, to the applicant and that such application may be approved without substantial detriment to the public welfare and without substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance. If the Commission so determines, it shall cause a certificate of hardship to be issued to the applicant.

4. The Commission may, subject to appropriation, employ clerical and technical assistants or consultants and incur other expenses appropriate to the carrying on of its work, and may accept money gifts and expend the same for such purposes.

5. The Commission shall have the powers, authority and duties of an historical commission as provided in Chapter 40, Section 8D, of the General Laws.

6. The Commission shall have, in addition, the powers, authority and duties granted to it by this Ordinance, as it may from time to time be amended.

IX. APPEALS AND ENFORCEMENT

1. Any person aggrieved by a determination of the Commission may, within twenty days after the filing of the notice of such determination with the City Clerk, appeal to the superior court for Norfolk County, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 12A, of the Massachusetts General Laws.

2. The superior court for Norfolk County may, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 13, of the Massachusetts General Laws, enforce the provisions of this Ordinance, and any determinations, rulings or regulations issued pursuant thereto, and may, upon the petition of the Commission or, at the request of the Commission, of the Building Commissioner restrain by injunction violations thereof; and, without limitation, such court may order the removal of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature constructed in violation thereof, or the substantial restoration of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature altered or demolished in violation thereof, and may issue such other orders for relief as may be equitable.

3. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, in addition to such other penalty as may be provided by law, be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars, imposed by the Commission as a non-criminal disposition pursuant to Chapter 40, Section 21D, of the Massachusetts General Laws. Each day during any portion of which a violation continues to exist shall constitute a separate offense.

4. In case any section, paragraph or part of this Ordinance is declared invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, every other section, paragraph and part of this Ordinance shall continue in full force and effect.

Improvements to the Town River, as part of the overall Town Brook Local Protection Project, will be accomplished under the terms of a $3.3 million contract awarded recently by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' New England.

The work, which is scheduled to begin this month and take about two years to complete, will be accomplished by P. Caliacco Corp. of Rockland.

Caliacco submitted the lowest of 17 bids which ranged as high as $5.9 million. The government estimated the costs of the improvements at approximately $4 million.

Under the contract, a reinforced 48-foot-wide, 7-foot-high, and 282-foot long concrete box culvert will be constructed where the Town Brook passes under the Southern Artery in Quincy. Channel improvements involve also widening and deepening portions of the brook, realigning the channel itself, and installing slope and bottom channel protection.

Future phases of the Town Brook Local Protection Project will include construction of a 12-foot-diameter, 4,060-foot-long concrete lined tunnel beneath downtown Quincy and reconstruction of the Old Quincy Reservoir Dam in Braintree. Construction of the tunnel is slated to begin in 1993, and the work at Old Quincy Reservoir will be undertaken once the tunnel is complete.

The overall project will cost an estimated $40 million.

Ayers, Police Offering Public Safety Course Tonight

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers has arranged for an officer from the Quincy Police Department to teach a Women's Public Safety Course tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Squantum Community Association.

136 Standish Rd. "Public safety is a key issue to me," said Ayers. "With the recent attacks within the city I am very concerned."

The course is open to the public.

Council To Discuss Quincy College Monday

The City Council Education Committee will meet Monday, Oct. 26 at 7 p.m. at City Hall to discuss a home rule petition which would establish a Board of Trustees for Quincy College.

The new board would oversee operation of the college. The proposal would transfer responsibility of the college from the School Committee to the Board of Trustees.

No Change In Residence A

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson withdrew his proposal to amend city zoning ordinances to allow certain types of home businesses to be conducted in neighborhoods zoned Residence A.

A joint public hearing with the Planning Board, scheduled for Monday, was canceled.

City Readies MWRA Suit

"I spoke with Doug MacDonald and we will try to isolate this issue," Sheets said. "We agreed to keep other issues separate."

Sheets and city officials have worked with the MWRA to control noise and odors at the authority's sludge-pelletization plant at the Fore River Shipyard. The city has also asked the MWRA to move its headquarters to the shipyard.

East Squantum Street Repairs Underway

The East Squantum Street improvement project began Monday with work being done between Quincy Shore Drive and Heath Street.

No parking will be allowed in the East Squantum Street project area and police traffic details will be on duty.

Traffic from side streets may be inconvenienced at times.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers said that work will be done on the in-bound side of the street during the morning and the out-bound side of the street in the afternoon.

Ayers said he has met with Joe Kerrissey, Jr., of P.A. Landers, Inc., the contractor, and police to insure that residents are inconvenienced as little as possible during the project.

All labor-equipment intensive work will be performed during off-peak traffic hours, as much as possible.

Also, the Conservation Commission has imposed conditions on the project to protect surrounding areas.

Kerrissey said he expects the project to be completed by Dec. 1.

Neighbors Complain About Noise At Grossman's

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board Tuesday held a hearing regarding noise complaints received about Grossman's, 100 Granite St.

The board had received complaints from residents about "an exterior loudspeaker that disrupts neighbors," at the site, according to Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey.

No one from Grossman's attended the hearing. However, four residents were there to tell the board how they felt about the situation.

"This has been an ongoing problem in the past," said Robert Dixon of 122 Dixwell Ave., who presented the board with a petition of 45 names of residents concerned about the noise. Dixon said he could "easily" have gotten more names if he had had more time before the hearing.

Dixon's wife Suzanne, who also attended the hearing, said the noise coming from the loudspeaker at Grossman's was "constant and intolerable."

Karen McKim of 243 President's Lane agreed, saying that the noise could clearly be heard at her house on a Sunday with her television set turned on.

"Now, that's excessive," said McKim.

Glen Mullen of 117 Dixwell Ave. said he was bothered by the fact that no one from Grossman's was in attendance at the hearing.

"I think the important thing here is that nobody is here from Grossman's," said Mullen. "I'm taking off time from work to be here."

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien sent a letter to the board saying that while he regretted he could not be at the hearing, he was concerned about the matter and in support of the residents.

When asked by Police Capt. Frederick Laracy if they were willing to go to court over the matter, the residents said they were. Laracy then suggested a letter be sent to Grossman's saying that if the noise did not cease, the board knew of witnesses willing to testify against the company.

Acting City Clerk Joseph Shea added that the letter should make Grossman's aware that the License Board did not appreciate the company's no-show at the hearing.

The board agreed to send two copies of the letter, one to the Grossman's corporate headquarters in Braintree and the other to the 100 Granite St. site.

Dunkin Donuts License Granted On Centre St.

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Dunkin Donuts, 366 Centre St., for a Common Victualer license.

Atty. Carl Johnson, who represented the two license applicants, Paul Govostes and Francine Weiner, called Dunkin Donuts "an outstanding national corporation" and said the new store would cause no traffic or parking problems in the West Quincy neighborhood.

"Traffic is facilitated by the plan, and the parking space is ample," he said.

Johnson noted that the new store will have only a total of 12 seats inside but will feature a drive-up window. He added that handicapped bathroom facilities will also be available at the store.

Govostes said he already owned five other Dunkin Donuts stores, one apiece in North Quincy, Squantum, and Charlestown and two in Dorchester. Govostes also is a member of Mayor James Sheets' new fast-food study committee, according to Johnson.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio sent a letter to the License Board voicing his support of the license. The letter also stated that Fabrizio had spoken to residents on the matter and had met no opposition.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman noted that he would like to see the site be kept as clean as possible, something that Govostes said would be no problem.

"I was one of the very first to join the mayor's Cleaner Greener Quincy program," said Govostes. "I'm very sensitive to that issue." Asked by Health Commissioner Jane Galloway if he planned to keep a dumpster at the site, Govostes assured her that he did.

The board agreed that the new store, which Johnson noted would open as soon as possible, will operate seven days a week from the hours of 5 a.m. to 11 p.m.

In addition, it was agreed that no frying of donuts or any other foods will be allowed at the store as that could cause odors that might offend some residents. The only hot foods served will be soups and items that can be heated in a microwave oven.

DINO THE DINOSAUR, a close friend of William Morrill, made his Quincy debut at the recent Harvest Family Festival sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Leaf Recycling Underway

Quincy's leaf collection program is underway for the third straight year.

Curbside pickup began Monday and will continue until Friday, Dec. 4. Leaves should be left out the same day as regular trash pickup. DPW Commissioner David Colton asks residents to place their leaves in barrels of special paper leaf bags (available at supermarkets).

BFI will collect the leaves and dump them at the DPW composting site. The city can save $250,000 in trash hauling costs by composting leaves as opposed to sending them to a landfill, said City Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of Quincy's Recycling Committee.

DPW workers turn the leaves into loam which will be available in the spring for the highway, parks and forestry departments and for residents.

Colton said leaves packed in barrels are the easiest to dump into the BFI trucks. The special paper leaf bags are next best and are recyclable. Plastic trash bags may also be used but creates more work since the bags must be shredded and separated from the leaves prior to composting.

Flyers with recycling and leaf composting information were recently distributed in the city by members of the City Year Youth Service Program.

License Board Briefs

•Granted a request from the George F. Bryan Ladies Auxiliary, 24 Broad St. (Barbara Hanson) for a permit to hold a Christmas Flea Market Sunday, Nov. 1 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

•Postponed indefinitely a request from Scarborough Productions

(Virginia Sindelar) for a permit to hold a live concert Thursday, Dec. 31 from 4 to 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Quincy National Guard Armory.

•Granted a request from In-Step Dance Center, 460 Quincy Ave. for a license to conduct a dance studio Mondays through Saturdays from 2 to 11 p.m.

Cheney Sitting Out Mayoral Run

Mention "the election" in Quincy and you might not automatically hear the names Bush, Clinton and Perot.

You might hear, instead, Sheets, Cahill and Cheney. The attention of most people is focused on the Presidential election as that campaign comes roaring down the home-stretch.

But in Quincy the thoughts of some are also turning to the 1993 city elections and the mayoral race in particular.

The question: Will there really be a mayoral race? Incumbent James Sheets no doubt is thinking "third term."

Councillor Tim Cahill is seriously thinking of challenging him.

And what about the third potential major candidate — Mike Cheney?

There's been considerable speculation that Cheney might run. But you can stop speculating about that as far as next year is concerned.

"I'm really not interested in running next year," he says. "So everyone can stop speculating about that."

Cheney says right now he wants to continue as a city councillor at-large.

He says he enjoys being a city councillor at-large and that's what he wants to continue to do — for now, anyway.

Besides that, he's busy working on his ambitious First Night Celebration project that is expected to bring thousands to Quincy New Year's Eve.

He wants to get that off and running and make it a traditional annual family night of entertainment.

But Cheney isn't taking himself out of a future mayoral run.

"Two years from now — well that's a different story," he says. "I could definitely be interested then. We'll see."

Cahill says he is leaning toward challenging Sheets and will make his decision before the end of this year.

SHEETS

John Silber Guest

Speaker At John Adams Wreath Laying

The 257th Birthday Anniversary Presidential Wreath Laying ceremony for President John Adams will be held Friday, Oct. 30 at 5 p.m. at the United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St.

Guest speaker will be Dr. John Silber, President of Boston University.

The Rev. Sheldon Bennett will give the invocation followed by the presentation of the colors by the U.S. Navy Color Guard. Mayor James Sheets and City Council President Charles Phelan, Jr., will bring the greetings of the city.

The Atlantic Middle School Chorus will provide musical selections. Refreshments will be available at the Atrium of Presidents Place following the program. The public is invited to attend.

Phelan Holding Office Hours At Beechwood Community Center

Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan will hold

Nine million tons of salt are applied to American highways each year for road de-icing.

"office hours" at the Beechwood Community Life Center on the first Thursday of each month from 7 to 9 p.m.

Residents who wish to discuss issues or matters of concern in Ward 5 are encouraged to meet with Phelan during this time.

If Cahill decides not to run Sheets could become the first mayor in the city's history to twice win re-election without opposition.

He, Thomas Burgin and Frank McCauley are the only three mayors to be re-elected unopposed, once.

Of course, Sheets could wind up with some token opposition. But now with Cheney out of the picture, Sheets would have no major opposition if Cahill decides not to run.

FORMER COUNCILLOR Tom Gilmartin is back in the Political Predictions Dept. with his forecast for the Nov. 3 election.

GILMARTIN

Going against pollsters on the national scene, Gilmartin sees George Bush being re-elected with 289 electoral votes. (270 are needed to win.)

He says Massachusetts will go Democratic but Bush will carry two New England states. Ross Perot, he says, won't get more than 16 percent of the votes.

He thinks the results may not be known until 4 a.m. Wednesday and that there could be recounts in one or two states where the voting will be close.

He sees Gerry Studds winning easily but looks for three Republicans to be elected to Congress from Massachusetts. All 10 seats are now held by Democrats.

He picks Mike Bellotti over Mike Cronin "in a very close race" for state representative in Quincy's First Norfolk District.

And sees Quincy's John Gillis and Norwood's William O'Connell winning the two Norfolk County Commission seats.

Gilmartin claims a 94.5 percent accuracy rating prediction election results for 25 years.

DEMOCRATIC State Representative candidate in the First Norfolk District Mike Bellotti, has a coming down-the-homestretch campaign fundraiser tonight (Thursday), 7 to 10 pm at Pat Flanagan's Pub, Parkway, Quincy Center. Tickets are $10 each and available at the door.

GETTING THE DROP ON DANDRUFF

The scientists who someday cure dandruff may not win the Nobel Prize, but they will undoubtedly earn the heartfelt thanks of millions of dandruff sufferers. The flakes of dead skin that accumulate on the scalp are usually a result of skin cells growing in too fast. This is typically caused by seborrheic eczema or, less often, by psoriasis. Besides embarrassment, about the worst thing dandruff can do to you is make the scalp more susceptible to infection, although this is only true in severe cases when scratching damages the scalp. Most dandruff can be controlled by regular sudsing with shampoos that have as active ingredients either selenium sulfide, salicylic acid, zinc pyrithione, or coal tar. P.S. If dandruff is accompanied by severe itching, crusting or inflammation, consult your physician.

Most cases of dandruff are easily controlled by the regular use of a medicated shampoo. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE RAKING LEAVES

Once again the change of season is upon us; the summer vacation to New Hampshire or the Cape is just a memory, and we realize that soon enough we will be dealing with snow and ice. Autumn is, for many folks, the prettiest season of the year, but it is not without potential health risks to the back and spine. In my opinion, the two main culprits of the Fall season are the fallen leaves and the changing weather conditions.

It has been my experience that Fall's colder and occasionally damper weather can contribute to the aggravation of many back or neck problems, such as chronic sprains, strains or arthritic conditions. Secondly, the repetitive twisting and bending actions done by a person while raking leaves is a very common cause of lower back, mid back and/or shoulder problems.

If you are planning to clean up your yard and will be raking leaves, the following guidelines may be helpful.

- 1) Warm up prior to raking as you would do before exercising.
- 2) Switch sides when raking so that you are not always raking the leaves in the same direction.
- 3) Try to keep your back straight and, whenever possible, get down on your knees to rake under bushes or hedges or when lifting leaves into a trash barrel.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock St., N. Quincy - 773-4400.

Donations Are Requested

Seaside Advocacy Group To Open Food Pantry

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Sometimes it only takes a handful of people to do a world of good.

The Seaside Advocacy Group, based at 15 Bicknell St., is asking for donations for a new Food Pantry it plans to open in November for residents in its Germantown neighborhood. The group originally was founded 11 years ago by a total of three people.

Peter Seppala Sr., president of the group, said today's troubled economy had made the need for a Food Pantry in his neighborhood an overwhelming reality.

"It's a necessity that we have a Food Pantry here in the Ward 1 area," said Seppala. "In recent years, I've seen the times go down. People cannot afford homes, and when you can't afford a home, the world's gone to hell."

Seppala formed the Seaside Advocacy Group in 1981 with his wife, Sally, who acts as vice president, and their friend Jean Kennedy of the Quincy Housing Authority, who serves as secretary-treasurer. The group began by holding a Christmas party for Germantown children, an occasion that has become an annual event.

Seppala said both the Quincy Housing Authority and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson have been essential in making the group a success.

"The QHA, they're great," he said. "And I can't say enough about Peter Kolson. He's always our Santa Claus at the Christmas party and he's just been fantastic."

Seppala added that both Kolson and Councillor Michael Cheney serve on the group's board of directors.

The Fore River shipyard has donated a trailer, which Seppala said will house the Food Pantry, to the Seaside group. The trailer should arrive in about two weeks, which is when the Food Pantry should be ready to open, according to Seppala.

Seppala said several area schools, including

Snug Harbor Elementary School, Quincy High School and the Quincy Center for Technical Education are in the process of collecting food donations for the group. He added that Broad Meadows Middle School may do the same but is "not definite" as yet.

In addition to food, the group would also be grateful for any office supplies that could be donated to the Food Pantry, Seppala said.

For more information, call the Seaside Advocacy Group at 770-1158.

Comedy Night To Benefit Fr. Bill's Place Nov. 9

"One Step From The Cold" is the theme for a comedy night to benefit Father Bill's Place homeless adult shelter.

Many area comics will participate in the benefit Monday, Nov. 9, at 7 p.m. at Footprints Nightclub, 58 Ross Way.

Among the comedians performing will be Jacky Flynn, Chris McGuire, Steve Kinbrough, Dave Fitzgerald, George Maxx, Chris Zito, Patty Ross and Vinny Favorito. Other special guests will also participate.

Tickets are $10 in advance and $12 at the door. A buffet is included. Footprints is a non-alcoholic nightclub. For information call 774-1919.

Father Bill's Place is a full-service shelter which serves 65 people each night by providing shelter food and other human services.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Solution Sought For Downtown Parking Problems

The City Council called for a public meeting to see what could be done to straighten out what Mayor Thomas called "the acute parking situation" in downtown Quincy.

"As the situation stands at present," said McGrath, "many people are of the opinion that the parking regulations are a positive detriment to business."

"Traffic and parking regulations should be a help and not a hindrance to trade."

SECRET MEETINGS SCORED

Candidates Joseph M. Goode Jr. for the City Council and Sturgis H. Hunt and Philip T. Connolly for the School Committee condemned closed meetings held by the Council and the Committee.

"It is decidedly unnecessary," said Goode, "for the City Council to retire into executive session behind closed doors and there discuss expenditures of the public's money every Monday night."

HOMEMADE PLANE

An English-type Bristol Bullet single seater fighter plane, built by flyers at the U.S. Naval Reserve Air Station at Squantum, was successfully test flown over Quincy by Lt. George Haerberle.

But when Haerberle tried to fly the plane across the country to San Diego, it developed engine trouble over Connecticut and crash landed on its return to the Squantum field.

TEACHERS SEEK RAISE

Quincy teachers, whose maximum salaries were fixed at $1,900 appealed to the School Committee once again for the $300 raise that was denied them in the 1929 budget.

This time they had on their side Committee members Robert E. Foy, Sturgis H. Hunt and Col. Warren E. Sweetser.

Quincy Hospital Variety Show Fundraiser Nov. 12-14

Quincy Hospital will produce its first ever fund raising variety show with three performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Nov. 12-14 at North Quincy High School auditorium.

Tryouts for the "Hospital Hill Follies" will be held Tuesday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the 1000 Southern Artery (Senior Housing) East Wing Lounge located in the East building. Everyone is welcome. No special talent is required.

The show is being professionally directed by the Cargill Organization of New York which has been producing fund raising shows since 1919. Cargill provides the scripts, costumes and the director.

The director assigns the song or dance people will perform and provides the music and necessary assistance.

The Cargill Organization produces the Follies for the Hingham

Community Center every year.

There are positions available on the different committees connected with the show. Anyone with questions about tryouts or is interested in volunteering behind the scenes with make-up, props and scenery, or helping with stage functions, should call Diane Gray in the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 773-6100 ext. 4016 or 2095.

4 Honored At Houghs Neck 36th Annual Awards Night

Four long-time Houghs Neck residents were honored recently during the 36th annual Honor Awards Night of the Houghs Neck Community Council at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

Family, friends, and city and state officials joined in congratulating

James Goldrick, Elaine Gibbons, Bertha "Berty" Batson, and Thomas Hurlebaus.

Goldrick and Gibbons received the Community Service Award; Batson was presented the Good Neighbor Award and Hurlebaus received the Distinguished Senior Citizen Award.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley served as master of ceremonies and presented the awards.

Outgoing State Senator Paul Harold has attended each Honor Awards Night during his 18 years as Senator and received a standing ovation as he presented State Senate citations to the guests of honor.

Other officials who spoke or presented citations were City Councilors-at-Large Michael Cheney and Timothy Cahill, Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson and State Rep. Michael Morrissey.

Plaques of appreciation were awarded to Martin Gordon, past council president, who has also received the Boy Scout Silver Beaver Award, and to retiring president Mary Laing.

The event was planned by the Houghs Neck Community Council Scholarship Committee.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Dr. Scott Deware

It has been said that living is a little like driving an automobile. We keep our eyes on the road ahead, and now and then glance at the rearview mirror to see what is coming from behind. Life is both forward-looking and backward-looking. Often the experiences we see in the rearview mirror saves us from the false turns and dangerous moves ahead.

Life, too, can be compared to the road that we are driving our automobile over. Life is a winding road through the years that are allotted to us. It passes through pleasant valleys and over steep hills. It threads its way through wastelands, too. No one can see far enough ahead along the road to know which he will be required to travel on any given day. But each has the strength within himself for the hills and the courage for the wastelands. Only those who childishly insist that all the roads must be through pleasant valleys fall. And they fall because they never learn to use the inner strength God gave them for the hills, nor to call upon the inner courage He gave them for the wastelands.

Herschel P. Vickers, 78

Worked At Fore River Shipyard

A funeral service for Herschel P. Vickers, 78, of Port Saint Lucie, Fla., formerly of Quincy, was held Monday at the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mr. Vickers died Oct. 21 in Fort Myers, Fla. after a long illness.

He retired 16 years ago after 14 years with Industrial Heat Treating Inc. in Quincy, a firm he joined after many years at the Fore River shipyard.

Born in Smithville, Tenn., he joined the Marine Corps in the 1930s and was stationed at the Hingham Ammunition Depot. He completed a four-year enlistment and remained in the Marine Corps Reserve for another four years.

He was on the Marine Corps rifle team for several years.

During the war years, he helped build ships at the Fore River shipyard.

He was a past master of the Rural Masonic Lodge in Quincy and a past president of the John Adams Aerie of Eagles, which he joined in 1937.

He was an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman and also enjoyed gardening.

He lived 10 years in Plymouth and 41 years in Quincy before moving to Florida in 1985.

He is survived by his wife, Anne R. (Monihan) Vickers; three sons, John H. Vickers of Duxbury, Paul Vickers of Quincy and William L. Vickers of West Palm Beach, Fla.; two daughters, Roberta A. Mills-Price of Fort Myers and Marsha L. Yetman of Port Saint Lucie; a sister, Trevor Swindle of Sparta, Tenn.; nine grandchildren, and a great-grandchild.

Helen F. Bryan, 82

Retired Bank Teller

A funeral Mass for Helen F. Bryan, 82, of Quincy, was celebrated Oct. 24 in St. John the Baptist Church.

Miss Bryan died Oct. 22 at the Colonial Nursing Home in Weymouth.

She was a retired bank teller for the former Quincy Trust Co., where she worked for 48 years before retiring in 1975.

Born and educated in Quincy, she moved to the nursing home two years ago.

Daughter of the late Edward and Margaret (Ford) Bryan, she is survived by several nephews, nieces and cousins. She was the sister of the late Edward M. Bryan, J. Wendell Bryan, Everett Bryan, Anne B. Dion and Irene Bryan.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

John R. Zanotti, 24

In Accident; Paralyzed Since 1988

A funeral Mass for John R. Zanotti, 24, of Tamarac, Fla., formerly of Quincy and Braintree, who used a wheelchair following a 1988 auto crash, was celebrated Oct. 24 in St. Joseph's Church.

Mr. Zanotti died Oct. 19 in an accident at his home.

He was paralyzed from the chest down when the car in which he was a passenger crashed into a telephone pole in Quincy.

He and his mother, Jean Zanotti, moved to Florida a year and a half ago to be close to the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis. Project doctors had performed an operation that had eased the constant pain he suffered.

Before his injury, he had been a youth basketball coach.

He had studied at the University of Massachusetts at Boston and at Quincy College and had been accepted for an upcoming semester at Broward Community College in Davie, Fla. An avid sports fan, he had hoped to become a sports journalist.

He was editor of the community newsletter in his neighborhood in Florida and also was interested in computers and the law.

Born in Amesbury, he spent his early years in Quincy Point, where he attended Webster Elementary School and Quincy Point Junior High School.

Dorothy A. Maloney, 41

Worked For Boston Police Department

A funeral Mass for Dorothy A. (Bridges) Maloney, 41, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Maloney died Oct. 23 at New England Sinai Hospital in Stoughton after a long illness.

She was an employee in the Boston Police identification department for six years.

She was a member of St. Joseph Grammar School Board, Quincy Point; Multiple Sclerosis Support Group, Quincy; and South Shore YMCA, where she was an avid swimmer.

School. He was a communicant of St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point and played CYO baseball and basketball for St. John's Church in Quincy.

He lived eight years in Braintree before moving to Florida.

He was a graduate of Xavier Brothers High School in Westwood.

At the time of the accident, he was working as a carpenter for R. Mullen & Associates of Hingham. Bob Mullen planned to move his business to operate out of Braintree so that Mr. Zanotti could eventually handle the office work.

Friends and businesses donated labor, supplies and equipment to reconstruct the Zanotti home in Braintree after Mr. Zanotti was injured. Without that work, he would have had to live in a nursing home.

He is also survived by two aunts, Lydia C. Dickson of Boynton Beach, Fla., and Marsha L. Zinkewicz of Quincy; and several cousins.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the Miami Project to Cure Paralysis, 1611 N.W. 12th Ave., Miami, FL 33142.

Born in Boston and a graduate of Cathedral High School, Boston, she lived in Quincy for 10 years.

She is survived by her husband, Thomas J. "Moe" Maloney; two sons, Joshua and Christopher Maloney, both of Quincy; a daughter, Marsha Maloney of Quincy; and five brothers, David Bridges of Quincy, James Bridges of Duxbury, Paul Bridges of Chelsea and John Bridges of Yarmouth.

Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Funeral arrangements were by the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, Milton.

Donations may be made to Family Discovery Weekend, c/o Multiple Sclerosis Society Massachusetts Chapter, 400-1 Totten Pond Road, Waltham, MA 02154 or St. Joseph Grammar School, 16 Pray St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Morrissey Helps Repeal Water Tax

The state legislature has repealed a proposed water tax which would have cost MWRA ratepayers a "face value" of $46.2 million and would have added several hundreds of millions of dollars to the Boston Harbor cleanup costs over the next 30 years, announces State Rep. Michael Morrissey.

The MWRA Advisory Board, the group created to protect the interests of MWRA ratepayers, has dropped a lawsuit against the state because of the legislature's action.

Also repealed was a proposal for a $120 million prepayment of the inherited MDC debt.

Andrew Pappastergion, Chairman of the MWRA Advisory Board said, "Rep.

Morrissey was definitely one of the Advisory Board's strongest allies and worked hard to protect ratepayers from additional costs during this year's budget deliberations. Rep. Morrissey was an outspoken critic of the water tax and was successful in convincing his non-MWRA colleagues to repeal these unfair costs."

Morrissey is a member of the MWRA legislative caucus.

"The MWRA caucus was created in response to the sections created in the budget almost two years ago. The legislatures that represent the ratepayers united together and vowed to eliminate the water tax and the $120 million prepayment," Morrissey said.

"I will not stand by and allow my constituents to balance the state budget. Ironically, what began as a negative action led to a positive process and a successful conclusion. I, along with other members of the MWRA legislature caucus, am now moving forward to work with the Advisory Board to get more federal and state aid," he said.

Douglas MacDonald, Executive Director of the MWRA applauded the efforts of the Advisory Board and Rep. Morrissey in galvanizing interest around this issue. Referring to the team of players brought together through the pursuit of the lawsuit, he said, "If we can keep that team on the field in order to pursue state and federal funding, we can have a chance to stop the runaway rate growth that we have been experiencing."

U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum Office At Presidents Place

The U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum recently leased 1,050 sq. ft. of office space at Presidents Place, Quincy Center.

The administrative offices will be used for organizing of the national museum which will be dedicated to the shipbuilding industry in the United States, specifically the U.S. Navy and Coast Guard.

Equal components of labor, industry and Commonwealth Military research center will be addressed in the museum's collection.

"We feel very fortunate that our first corporate sponsor, The Boston Five, was able to provide us with office space during this organizational period," said museum Executive Director, Bill MacMullen. "The visibility and central location of Presidents Place has already proved to be a definite plus in our efforts to promote this museum."

"The shipbuilding museum creates excite-

Fall Foliage Peaking In Quincy

Fall foliage is expected to hit its peak over the next two weeks in Quincy and Ray Cattaneo, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery departments points out Mount Wollaston Cemetery is usually the first site to display many shades of fall colors.

"Merrymount Park off Southern Artery offers an outstanding view of the foliage as well as the conservation nature trail, off Fenno St. to the marsh site on Quincy Shore Drive. Faxon Park in South Quincy is another area for viewing, although the gates are locked at this time because of illegal dumping, you can park along Faxon Park Road and walk to the observation circle where there is a view over Quincy Bay," Cattaneo said.

"Squaw Rock in Squantum offers a limited amount of the changing foliage, but the scenic view of the Boston skyline and Harbor Islands is striking," he added.

NQHS Student Saves 3 From Drowning

A North Quincy High School sophomore who saved three people from drowning says he doesn't understand why he has been labeled a "hero."

Jason Conley, 15, who works as a tender for the Wollaston Yacht Club, admits that while it "felt good" when people at the club called him a hero upon learning of the incident, he still feels there's no need for any fuss.

"I just don't think it's a big deal," he said.

His proud father, however, disagrees.

"He had said to me 'when someone's in trouble you just help them, right, Dad?'" said John Conley. "I don't think he really understands the scope of what he did."

Jason was ferrying a yacht club member to his boat Saturday, Oct. 3 when he saw a small katamaran overturned in the water and something floating away from it. That something turned out to be a young Japanese woman who had lost hold of the boat and was starting to drift off to sea.

Jason said he helped the woman into the workboat he was using and helped her two companions—a Hispanic woman and a white man—right the katamaran, which they had managed to hold onto. The pair took the katamaran back to shore while Jason brought the Japanese woman back to the yacht club, where she was given towels to dry off and was allowed to shower and change clothes.

The trio had lost control of the katamaran because of the high winds at the time, Jason said.

No one at the yacht club could be reached to comment on the incident.

Referendum Questions

QUESTION 1

LAW PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION

Do you approve of a law summarized below, on which no vote was taken by the Senate or the House of Representatives before May 6, 1992?

YES 67
NO 68

SUMMARY

This proposed law would establish a Health Protection Fund to pay for health programs relating to tobacco use, including distribution of information about tobacco use, to be financed by a new excise tax on cigarettes and smokeless tobacco. The new excise would be used, subject to appropriation by the state legislature, to supplement existing funding for the following purposes: school health education programs including information about the hazards of tobacco use; smoking prevention and smoking cessation programs in the workplace and community; tobacco-related public service advertising; drug education programs; support of prenatal and maternal care at community health centers which provide programs on smoking cessation and information on the harmful effects of smoking; and monitoring by the state Department of Public Health of illness and death associated with tobacco.

The proposed law would establish a new excise tax of one and one-quarter cents per cigarette (twenty-five cents per pack of 20) and twenty-five percent of the wholesale price of smokeless tobacco. This excise would be in addition to the excise already imposed on cigarettes and smokeless tobacco. The new excise would be collected by the state Department of Revenue under the same procedures that apply to the existing tobacco excise.

The proposed law would direct the State Comptroller to report annually on the revenues and expenditures of the Health Protection Fund. The proposed law states that if any of its provisions were found invalid, the other provisions would remain in effect. The proposed law would go into effect on January 1, 1993.

QUESTION 2

LAW PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION

Do you approve of a law summarized below, on which no vote was taken by the Senate or the House of Representatives before May 6, 1992?

YES 78
NO 79

SUMMARY

This proposed law would require certain banks, insurance companies and publicly-traded corporations to file annual reports with the Massachusetts Secretary of State listing information from their state tax returns, including profit, income, corporate income tax due, deductions, exemptions and credits. These reports would be made public. This provision would apply only to those banks, insurance companies and publicly-traded corporations required by federal and other Massachusetts laws to disclose information concerning their federal tax payments.

The proposed law would also require the annual release by state officials of a detailed analysis of certain tax expenditures enacted or changed after January 1, 1988. State law defines a tax expenditure as an exemption, exclusion, deduction, or credit that results in less corporate, sales, or income tax revenue for the state. This analysis would be required only for tax expenditures with an annual revenue impact of $1,000,000 or more. The analysis would include information on the actual revenue loss, as well as the number and proportion of taxpayers or taxpaying entities benefiting from the tax expenditure, according to income, profit, receipts or sales.

LAW PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION

Do you approve of a law summarized below, on which no vote was taken by the Senate or the House of Representatives before May 6, 1992?

YES 103
NO 104

SUMMARY

This proposed law would require all packaging used in Massachusetts on or after July 1, 1996 to be reduced in size, reusable, or made of materials that have been recycled or could be recycled.

Packaging would have to be either reduced in size by at least 25% every five years; or designed to be reusable at least five times, with at least 50% of such packaging actually being reused; or recycled at a 50% rate; or composed of 25% or more of recycled materials (increasing to 35% on July 1, 1999 and 50% on July 1, 2002); or composed of materials being recycled at an annual rate of 25% (increasing to 35% in 1999 and 50% in 2002). The requirements would apply to any packaging or containers used to protect, store, handle, transport, display, or sell products.

These requirements would not be applicable to tamper-resistant or tamper-evident seals; packaging for medication or medical devices; packaging merely being shipped through the state; packaging required by federal or state health or safety laws or regulations; or flexible film packaging necessary to prevent food from spoiling.

The state Department of Environmental Protection could also grant exemptions for packaging that represents an innovative approach for which additional time is needed to meet the requirements of the law, or packaging made of material that cannot be reused or recycled, and cannot be made of recycled material, but is being composted at a significant rate, or products for which there is no complying packaging and for which compliance with the law would impose undue hardship (other than increased cost) on Massachusetts residents. A person applying for an exemption would pay a fee to be used, subject to legislative appropriation, to pay the cost of administering the proposed law.

The Department would be required to issue regulations to carry out the proposed law and would be required to investigate suspected violations. After issuing a warning, the Department could assess administrative penalties of up to $100 for each offense and up to $10,000 for any single shipment or single continuing act of non-compliance. The state Attorney General could also file court actions for civil penalties of up to $500 for each offense and up to $25,000 for any single shipment or continuing act of non-compliance, and could seek a court order requiring compliance. Each non-complying piece of packaging would be considered a separate offense or act of non-compliance.

The proposed law states that if any of its provisions were declared invalid, the other provisions would remain in effect.

QUESTION 4

LAW PROPOSED BY INITIATIVE PETITION

Do you approve of a law summarized below, on which no vote was taken by the Senate or the House of Representatives before May 6, 1992?

YES 117

SUMMARY

This proposed law would impose an excise tax on oil, toxic chemicals, and other hazardous substances, and would direct that the money raised, along with the fees paid by hazardous waste transporters and specific revenues under other state laws, be deposited in the state Environmental Challenge Fund. Money in the fund would be used, subject to legislative appropriation, to assess and clean up sites that have been or may be contaminated by oil or hazardous materials, and to carry out and enforce the excise.

As of July 1, 1993, the excise would apply to persons, businesses, and other entities possessing 50,000 pounds or more of oil and of toxic chemicals covered by the proposed law. Toxic chemicals would be covered if classified as toxic by the federal Environmental Protection Administration (EPA) under federal law. As of July 1, 1994, substances listed as hazardous by the EPA under federal law would also become subject to the excise.

Until June 30, 1995, the excise would be ten tenths of one cent ($0.002) per pound in later years, the state Commissioner of Revenue would set the excise rate at a level not to exceed the excise of one cent per pound, sufficient to yield $35 million annually in 1995 dollars.

The excise would not apply to gasoline or other special engine fuels, jet fuel taxed under other state law, numbers 1 or 2 fuel oil, kerosene, animal or vegetable oil, or waste oil classified as hazardous waste under other state law. Nor would the excise apply to oils, toxic chemicals, or hazardous substances merely being shipped through Massachusetts, or contained in a consumer product intended for retail sale, or present in a mixture at a concentration of less than one percent, or present in hazardous waste being transported by a licensed hazardous waste transporter who has already been paid under the proposed law and which have not been recycled or recycled since payment of the excise.

The excise also would not apply to oils, toxic chemicals, or hazardous substances that are possessed by individuals for personal, non-business purposes, or are contained in vehicles or vessels intended to be used for normal purposes, or are produced in Massachusetts as a by-product of pollution control equipment or are clear-up of hazardous materials and are handled in compliance with federal and hazardous substances in a manufactured product the use of which requires a specific shape or design and which does not release toxic substances under normal use.

Under the proposed law, the excise would ordinarily be collected from the first person or business within Massachusetts to come into possession of materials subject to the tax. If that person or business had not paid the excise a later possessor could be required to pay the excise and could then recover a corresponding amount from the first possessor. The proposed law would provide credits for excises paid on materials that become impurities in the manufacture of other materials subject to the tax, and it would provide credits for similar excises or taxes paid to other states.

Persons possessing more than 25,000 pounds of materials subject to the excise in any six-month period would be required to obtain a license from the Commissioner of Revenue. The Commissioner could issue regulations establishing licensing and reporting requirements for persons possessing such materials. The Commissioner would collect the excise through procedures similar to those for other state taxes and could issue regulations to implement the proposed law.

The proposed law states that if any of its provisions were declared invalid, the other provisions would remain in effect.

Unenrolled Biggest Gain Voter Registration Rebounds With 3,842 New Voters

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After losing nearly 1100 voters before the September primary, Quincy's voter registration rebounded with an additional 3,842 new voters enrolling between Aug. 18 and Oct. 6, according to figures released Monday by the city's Election Department.

"That's good. It's not record setting but it's good," Acting City Clerk Joseph Shea said referring to the new figures.

With the latest surge in registration, the city's electorate now totals 48,208 voters, an increase from 44,366. Shea attributed the influx to interest in the "presidential election, pure and simple."

The new registration does not reflect any dramatic changes in the overall demographics of the Quincy electorate. "It's a microcosm of Quincy. There were no big changes or shifts," Shea said.

Although the unenrolled or unaffiliated voting block was responsible for nearly 60 percent of the increase, the Democratic party continues to be the dominant voting block in Quincy.

The number of registered Democrats increased 1,101, from 26,707 to 27,808. The increase represented 28.6% of the newly registered voters. Overall, however, the Democratic party comprises 57.6% of the city's voting block.

Unenrolled voters, the city's second largest block, experienced the biggest boost in registration. Unenrolled voters rose by 2,282, or 59.3% of the total registration rebound. That segment surged to 13,346 from 11,064, and now represents 27.6% of the local electorate.

The third largest block, Republicans, rose from 6,541 to 6,894, an increase of 5.3% or 9.2% of the total registration rebound. The GOP comprises 14.3% of the electorate.

One fringe political party made a slight gain while another lost ground. The number of Independent High Tech voters increased to 156 from 51; while the Libertarian party lost one voter and now has only two in the entire city.

As for the number of male and female voters, women still outnumber men. There are 27,027 females registered and 21,180 males registered.

a successor to State Rep. Michael Morrissey who will become the area's new state senator. The three-man race for state representative features Democrat Michael Bellotti, 120 Hillside Ave.; Republican Michael Cronin, 33 Bromfield St.; and Independent Patrick Conroy, 272 Billings St.

The First Norfolk District comprises Wards 3 Precincts 3-5; Ward 4 Precinct 3; Ward 5 Precincts 2, 4, 5; and all of Ward 6.

Morrissey, who won the Democratic primary, is unopposed because there wasn't a Republican primary for the seat vacated by outgoing Sen. Paul Harold. Harold was defeated in the Democratic primary for Congress.

Besides state senate, there are four other uncontested races on Tuesday's ballot:

petition. There are actually four such proposals on the ballot, but a compromise has been struck on Question 2.

Regardless of the outcome on Nov. 3, Tuesday's vote on Question 2 will not affect the compromise since legislative leaders and Gov. Weld have agreed on legislation that will supersede Question 2. The legislation will make Massachusetts the first state in the nation to require big businesses to disclose both their income data and state tax payments, making it the broadest tax reporting law in the country.

Question 1 would establish a Health Protection Fund to pay for health programs relating to tobacco use, including distribution of information about tobacco use, to be financed by a new excise tax on cigarettes and smokeless tobacco. A

YES vote is in favor of the proposed law; a NO vote is against it.

Question 3 would require all packaging used in Massachusetts on or after July 1, 1996 to be reduced in size, reusable, or made of materials that have been or could be recycled. The proposed law would provide for exemptions for health, safety, and other reasons and would establish penalties for violations.

A YES vote on Question 3 is in favor of the proposed regulation; a NO vote is against it.

Question 4 would impose an excise tax on oil, toxic chemicals, and other hazardous substances, and would direct that the money raised, along with the fees paid by the hazardous waste transporters and specific revenues under other state laws, be deposited in the state Environmental Challenge

Fund.

Money in the fund would be used, subject to legislative appropriation, to assess and clean up sites that have been or may be contaminated by oil or hazardous materials, and to carry out and enforce the excise.

A YES vote on Question 4 is in support of the proposed tax; a NO vote is against it.

Shea, who is expected to be sworn into a three-year term as city clerk Monday, Nov. 2 replacing retired City Clerk John Gillis, will oversee election returns at City Hall Tuesday. Shea said final results should be tallied by 11:15 p.m.

This will be the first presidential election presided by someone other than Gillis in Quincy in 36 years. Gillis, who became city clerk in 1959, oversaw eight presidential elections: 1960, '64, '68, '72, '76, '80, '84, and '88.

Gillis, who has projected voter turnout in varying degrees of success, estimates 79 to 82 percent of the city's electorate will vote Tuesday.

Harold Crowley Wins 'Pride Of Germantown Award'

Harold Crowley, a teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, has been named the 1992 winner of "The Pride of Germantown Award."

The award, established 10 years ago by the Germantown Neighborhood Center, honors an adult who has voluntarily given of their time, energy and talents for the betterment of the Germantown

Quincy Residents Rake In Savings

Announcing Quincy's 2nd Annual Leaf Composting Program — And, we want your help. Why?

Last Year

We composted over 2,500 tons of leaves, and saved over $200,000 of your tax dollars.

This Year

We hope to hit 3,000 tons, and save over $243,000.

How can you help?

It's as easy as 1, 2, 3...

1 Rake your leaves.

2

Bag them.

We recommend using the paper leaf composting bags sold at most stores. They're big, easy-to-fill, recyclable and biodegradable.

Plastic bags aren't great — but, we'll take them.

Bag only leaves, twigs and grass clippings. No trash. No large branches.

Put them on the curb with your trash.

Just separate them from your trash and recyclables, so we know which bags are which!

Thanks for your help!

☆ ☆ Candidate Profiles For U.S. Representative In 10th District ☆ ☆

Studds Sees 'Once In Lifetime Opportunity'

GERRY E. STUDDS

Age: 55
Residence: Cohasset Family: Single Occupation: U.S. Representative

He has been on Capital Hill for 20 years and with the prospects of a Democratic administration and his own House committee chairmanship, Cong. Gerry Studds foresees a "once in a life-time" opportunity to deliver much needed services and programs to the people of the 10th District, including Quincy.

If elected Nov. 3, Studds stands to become the new chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee when the 103rd Congress convenes in January. Coupled with a Clinton victory for the White House, the congressman said he would be more effective on issues like creating new jobs, making health care more affordable, and relieving overburdened MWRA ratepayers.

Government gridlock at the federal level would be eliminated with a Democratic president and Congress, Studds said. If they don't produce, "you can throw them out and give somebody else a chance."

"I think it's critically important that people who want change, which I think is most people, put somebody new in charge, give them a Congress he can work with and then make a judgement four years later whether it's worked or not," said Studds.

Seeking his 11th term overall and his first in the redrawn 10th district, Studds said his main priorities would be creating jobs, establishing a universal health care system, and relieving overburdened MWRA ratepayers.

To put people back to work, Studds has proposed a first-in-the-nation training program for Massachusetts Maritime Cadets at the Fore River Shipyard. Two large Ready Reserve Force ships will soon be berthed at the yard. The ships will be used as training platforms administered by the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay.

"Hopefully, this will be a stepping stone for more jobs in the future," he said, adding he is an advocate for the U.S. Flag Merchant Marine. It is still uncertain how the Merchant Marine will figure in the country's national security future.

Studds also sees tourism as a job generator in Quincy-South Shore area. He has sponsored a bill which would direct the National Park Service to conduct a study of the Boston Harbor Islands and Quincy's national historic sites "to see if taken together as a whole we might have reason to create a national park here with access by water tying together the Quincy sites and the Harbor Island sites.

"I don't want to have tourists come to Boston and then hop to Plymouth or the Cape and overlook this extraordinary complex which is just rich and beautiful. I think the potential for that is enormous in terms of businesses associating with significant visits."

To stop skyrocketing MWRA sewer and water bills, Studds earlier this year introduced a bill called the Clean Water Investment Trust based on the "polluter pay" principle which aims to raise $5 billion a year partly from industrial and agricultural polluters as well as through federal appropriations. The Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee has jurisdiction over the bill.

"I'll be sitting in one of the key decision-making positions of the federal government and I'm hoping that working with a Democratic administration we'll make a difference. The decision will be made next year whether the feds are going to assume their fair share or not and I think they should and I think they will," Studds said.

To make health care affordable for all U.S. citizens, Studds said he supports a universal health care system based on a single paying entity similar to Canada's. Under the single payer system, every citizen would be covered, regardless of age, work status or health condition.

"It would be comprehensive, meaning any medical necessity for good health is included. It would be portable, meaning a resident of Massachusetts could be treated anywhere in the country. It would be accessible, that is, citizens could choose their own physician or hospital," Studds said.

To fund the system, Studds advocates reducing "paper work and red tape" by as much as 25 percent which would free up $200 billion. "We don't have to spend more than $800 billion per year on health care, we just have to spend it more intelligently and I think there are a lot of pieces to the puzzle but the single biggest one is to cut down on the paper work and the red tape."

"Twenty-five percent of $800 billion which is what we spend on health care this year is an awesome amount of money to waste. Take that money and use it to care for people who need it and don't have insurance or adequate insurance and you've made all the difference in the world."

Studds disputes claims that a universal health care system mandated by the federal government would be a costly solution. "Everyone says the government cannot do anything efficiently but the fact is that Medicare is a lot more efficient than a private insurance company."

"It has about two and a half percent overhead; insurance companies are up around 8, 10, 12 percent."

"The United States is the only developed country in the world, with the exception of South Africa, that does not have some kind of comprehensive health care coverage. We spend more money than anybody else on Earth on health care and we're 23rd in infant mortality

Bryan Wants Change, Government Reform

Age: 43
Residence: Barnstable
Family: Married with two children
Occupation: airline captain and college instructor

After two unsuccessful bids for Congress in 1988 and 1990, unaffiliated candidate Jon Bryan hopes his third campaign for change and reform will be the charm.

Bryan, who narrowly lost to incumbent Cong. Gerry Studds two years ago by polling 47 percent of the vote, is again carrying the message for change in 1992.

"I think I have the background, the experience and the commitment to reform that the voters would want from their next congressman," he says.

However, with the economy the focal point of both national and congressional campaigns, Bryan agrees the most important issue facing the 10th district is creating jobs.

"What we have to do immediately is to try to stimulate growth and what I would do is what John Kennedy did in 1961 and that is to stimulate employment with investment tax credits to get small business moving again and at the same time we have to cut government waste and put more money back into the pockets of the people."

"They really have to be done at the same time."

Bryan says investment tax credits can be used by small businesses to buy new products, to expand their plants, to hire more people. "When they do that, they create jobs in other areas and other businesses as well with the products that they buy," he said.

Bryan also supports enterprise zones "in portions of this district that are most severely impacted to give businesses additional benefits to create new opportunities where unemployment is high."

At the same time, Bryan said he would aim to reduce red tape and government bureaucracy that impacts business and jobs, reduce the tax rate on small businesses and streamline the tax system.

"Right now, little businesses have to spend lots of time and money on federal rules such as income taxes. Let's streamline that. Let's make it easier for the small business."

"We're not going to compete with the rest of the world unless we allow an environment where our businesses can grow and create jobs."

"I've created jobs in many, many different sectors of the economy. I have a background in small business and retail, in transportation and finance and I think that's a background that is broad and understands the issues that would be faced in Congress and hopefully would be providing some upward mobility for businesses here and throughout the country."

As for cutting "wasteful government spending," Bryan sees several potential targets, including defense, agricultural subsidies and government perks.

"I would easily think we could cut $400 billion a year out of programs which are not needed and put it back into society. Forty-nine billion dollars in farm and agricultural subsidies, making our allies pay for their defense, and many other ways that we can privatize government."

"I'm very much in favor of a strong defense but there are programs that even the Secretary of Defense doesn't want, such as the V22 Osprey tilt-rotor air plane that the military says it does not want. We're talking perhaps billions of dollars which can be saved."

Bryan also believes that the 89th government air wing should be grounded. "Millions of dollars are spent transporting government officials. Let's put them on an airline instead of making them live like kings."

"We have 10 times more cars for government officials than the private sector has per capita. That's total waste. We really have to get in and cut that kind of bureaucracy down."

By trimming federal fat, Bryan said more money would be available for priority projects, including the cleanup of Boston Harbor.

"We've got $400 billion in waste in the government which could be cut right now. I think the government has to be a case of establishing priorities and if we've established a priority for a clean environment, then we have to cut a large number of wasteful operations and we'll wind up finding that money."

"I'm not going to impose any more taxes upon the people of this nation but I can assure you we're not suffering from a shortage of taxes, we're suffering from a shortage of efficiency and we just have to eliminate that waste."

As a small example, Bryan advocates cutting the 41 percent congressional payroll rate in the pensions that are $3.4 million for congressmen. "Stop government executives, like (former congressman) Hastings Keith who are getting $110,000 in a pension."

"He left office with a $40,000 pension and now because of the adjustments that they (Congress) have given him, he's making $110,000."

"When we save all of that money, we can find the three or four or five billion dollars that would be necessary to clean up (Boston) Harbor and I think that should come from the federal government and not from the ratepayers who are being burdened from right here."

Bryan said he does not support a universal health care system, but believes certain reforms should take place to provide coverage for more Americans. According to some figures, there are 37 million Americans without health care insurance.

"I would proposal medical malpractice reforms that would cut $150 billion out of the cost of health care right now. We are doing some times six times the number of tests per patient

Daly Touts Business Skills, Experience

DANIEL W. DALY

Age: 48
Residence: Hingham
Family: Married with two children
Occupation: owner of several personnel firms in Boston

As the former director of Economic Development for Gov. William Weld and founder of two personnel firms, Dan Daly says he has "the background, the experience and the reality" of dealing with economic problems and solutions which he can apply at the federal level as the U.S. representative in the 10th District.

Daly, a Republican making his first attempt at Congress, said the most important economic issues are restoring consumer confidence and creating jobs.

On the former, he said, "Two thirds of our gross domestic product is consumer spending. If people don't have confidence that they're going to be employed tomorrow or the next day or they don't have confidence that they'll be able to meet their mortgage payments, they're not going to buy things and that's just what we're seeing now."

Part of the plan to restore consumer confidence, Daly said, is to send someone down to Washington who "can relate to the problems people are facing... Who is better qualified to relate to that: someone who has been doing that for 20 years or some body who has been sitting down in Washington for 20 years on the federal payroll."

"I've had the background, I've had the experience, I've had the reality of dealing with these issues so confidence and the re-establishment of that through the people you send to Washington, through the people you send to Beacon Hill I think is very important."

Consumer confidence and employment go hand and hand and Daly can point directly to a jobs generating program which he helped establish.

In June, 1991, AK Engineering and the Local 5 Shipbuilders Union asked Gov. Weld if he could help them reopen a portion of the Fore River Shipyard for maritime purposes.

Daly, then director of state Economic Development, said, "I did all the financial analysis, did the reference checks and I then went to Sue Tierny, secretary of Environmental Affairs, and said, 'Sue, this is a good company, I've checked with the Maritime Administration. If we can get them the property, we'll get them a ship.'"

The Board of Directors for the MWRA, which owns the yard, signed a lease with the shipyard group. The shipbuilders received a third of the property and two drydocks; in return, they would pay the MWRA rent.

"Three days later, the U.S.S. Wright came over the horizon and for two months we had 250 new jobs repairing that. That's fact and I was involved in that."

Daly calls the Quincy shipyard, in the short term, one of the most important economic issues in the district. "What are we going to do with it?" he asks. "I can demonstrate specifically what I was going to do with it and what I have done with it."

"That is part of the economic program that I would bring back to Quincy."

An equally important economic issue is generating jobs through small business, Daly said. To do that, the Republican supports a targeted cut in the capital gains tax by a minimum of 50 percent "to reward them for expansion."

Also, Daly supports a "permanent and aggressive" R and D (research and development) tax credit on the federal level. This would give businesses credit for the dollars invested in research and development.

"That's important because those are the growth industries in Massachusetts," Daly said, pointing out data communications and software.

"If we're going to have any industrial expansion in places like the Quincy shipyard the ideal thing to promote that is the investment tax credit, the purchase of heavy equipment. That's what you need if you're going to be serious about expanding manufacturing jobs."

To make the United States more economically competitive, Daly said, "We have to start working Day One cutting federal spending so that we can bring down the national debt." He said the national debt, estimated at $4.2 trillion, has negative ramifications down to the individual consumer.

For example, Daly said every person pays $1500 a year in interest on the debt. "For a family of four, that's $6,000 which doesn't buy a new car, doesn't go toward education payments, doesn't buy a new refrigerator. That's killing us."

Daly's approach to erasing the red ink is simple. Cut spending "everywhere you possibly can." With a $1.45 trillion federal budget, he did not say how much would be cut.

However, he said a number of budgets could withstand trimming, including defense and health care. "You've got to have the leadership and the courage to focus in on those savings."

As for giving relief to overburdened MWRA ratepayers, Daly said he supports the Harbor cleanup project and would "fight" for more federal assistance. "When the federal government mandates it, they've got to play some role in supporting it."

On the current health care crisis, Daly said he is against a "federally mandated and a federal health care system. What I am for is targeted reform of the existing system."

"For people who don't have access to health care insurance, that's about 35 million, let's provide them vouchers."

Daly also said he supports the implementation of a standardized national claim form that is based on the same technology that exists on a CD, and we're 13th in life expectancy.

"We're paying through the nose and we're not getting what we're paying for. We have the most wasteful health care system in the world and I think the biggest single component of waste is paperwork."

On the issue of abortion, Studds said he is pro-choice. "This is the most private of all decisions that a woman has to make and government ought not to be intruding and telling her what she can and cannot do."

Studds said he does not support a balanced budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution. "I don't think this may be amended the Constitution to solve the problems of any given day or year or decade."

"There are only two ways to reduce the deficit: one is to spend less and the other is to take in more or some combination of the two and when we have the will of the nation to do it we will do it."

However, before the deficit can be specifically addressed, Studds said "you have to get people working again because people who are working pay taxes."

"People who are not working not only don't pay taxes but they collect unemployment and welfare and all sorts of benefits and it's a major drag in addition to the deficit."

On a related issue, Studds said does not support a line-item veto for the president, a device many chief executives desire to "cut pork" or pet projects out of appropriation bills.

"Although Gov. Clinton does support it, I would oppose it for a Democratic president just as I have for Republican presidents. I don't think it's a partisan question. I think it's a Constitutional question. To do that would disturb the Constitutional intentions with respect to the division of powers between the president and the Congress."

Theoretically, Studds said a president with a line-item veto could conduct a war whether the Congress declares it or not. In that scenario, if public opinion were overwhelmingly against conducting a war by the president, the only tool Congress has to stop that war is to vote in an appropriations bill a line that reads "none of the funds in this bill may be expended to conduct a war."

"If the president can veto that one line, he can be sustained by 34 members of the Senate," Studds explained. "It doesn't matter if the entire Congress and 66 members of the Senate disagree with the president, 34 senators, they could represent theoretically the 17 smallest states, a teeny fraction of the population of the country, they could together with the president conduct a war."

"That is an example of why I think a very finely tuned Constitution should be left alone."

Finally, Studds, who is seeking his 11th two-year term, said he opposes term limits for congressmen.

"I think the most effective term limit device is called the vote and if any one citizen wishes to limit the terms of any elected official at any level all he or she has to do is vote for someone else."

"I think citizens ought to have the right to judge for themselves who they want."

than are really necessary for one reason only and that's to prevent the doctor from being sued.

"If we turn that around and put a cap on non-economic damages we might be able to save $150 billion and by doing that we could insure a lot of the underinsured people and provide a lot more health care."

Bryan said the government should provide credits for urban and rural health care centers to allow the provision of preventive health care in those communities rather than "putting it on the backs of a hospital where the cost is just too high."

He also believes $100 billion can be saved by cracking down on fraud with stiffer penalties and advocates electronic billing and universal claim forms to reduce administrative costs.

"I think we can get a lot more health care for a lot less expenditure if we do that."

On the abortion issue, Bryan is pro-life. He supports abortions only in the case of rape or where the life of the mother is endangered. "I think we are responsible for our bodies. We have to be responsible for our actions."

"I certainly support efforts to control population but I don't think that is talking the same issue whatsoever."

To put the federal government's fiscal house back in order, Bryan supports a balanced budget amendment and a line-item veto.

"Forty-nine states have it (balanced budget amendment) and I think the federal government should have it too. We shouldn't be spending more than we bring in. Right now, we're spending $1.83 for every tax dollar that's raised. That's a stunning fact and that's what Congress is doing to us."

Bryan said Congress should shoulder part of the blame for the nation's fiscal woes because it is that body which has the authority to tax and spend.

"Until we elect officials where fiscal responsibility is in their hearts and their minds, we will not have a balanced budget. The key point is we have to have people who fundamentally feel and believe in fiscal responsibility."

Backing the line-item veto, Bryan said, "We have a case where we're stacking pork barrel wasteful, unnecessary projects into a one or two thousand page document that really is another proposal altogether and that is just cheating the taxpayers. It's wrong and it should be changed."

As co-founder of LIMITS, Bryan advocates limiting congressional terms to four two-year terms and Senate terms to two six-year terms. "They (incumbents) could come back and serve after one term out of office. We just want to have one open seat once every eight years."

Concerning campaign finance reform, Bryan supports eliminating political action committees, and mandating that at least 50 percent of election revenue come from within the district.

"If you had those two provisions, you would start seeing $150,000 campaigns maximum. That reduces the campaign, it brings more people into the process because it becomes more affordable."

Asked what he considered the biggest factor contributing to government gridlock, Bryan replied, "absolutely lobbyists. Political action committee lobbyists by giving money to the incumbents to basically act or not act on proposals and for every proponent in the lobbying group, there is an opponent and that creates gridlock."

"The bottom line is nothing gets passed. There's a lot of money changing hands but nothing happens and that's gridlock. The voters really have to look at the incumbent and the challengers and say which one of these people will try to institute real reform."

namely a magnetic card which contains a person's entire medical history. The card is read by a laser.

Daly believes such a system would save at least $40 billion a year in administration costs, money which could be used for vouchers.

In addition, he said a long-term nursing home insurance plan should be developed. "I think the federal government can play a role in providing part of that insurance but it must include private insurance companies so that we can have reasonable cost effective, long-term insurance that can be purchased at an age that might be late 30s or something like that."

On abortion, Daly said he is pro-choice. "While I would never recommend an abortion myself personally, I strongly support a woman's right to choose."

As part of his government and campaign reform platform, Daly said he supports a line-item veto, a balanced budget amendment, term limits and campaign spending caps.

Daly said he thinks the line-item veto, which 43 U.S. governors have, would be a more effective management tool than a balanced budget amendment.

"The line-item veto I feel very strongly about. The balanced budget amendment I support simply because Congress doesn't seem to be able to do it's own bookkeeping and balance it's own checkbook. So regrettably you've got to change the Constitution to do that."

"I think a better method is to change Congress but a balanced budget amendment would probably take five to seven years. It's not a short-term fix but I think it's a signal to Congress."

As for term limits, Daly said he thinks the term for U.S. representatives should extend from two to four years with a limit of three terms. Senators, which now serve six years, should be limited to two terms.

Daly also said committee chairmen should be rotated every six years to allow a more even distribution of chairmanships. Also, committee staffs ought to be cut by a third.

He said there should be spending caps on what candidate's can do out for Senate and House campaigns with an inflation adjustment clause. Within that cap would be limits on where that money could come from, such as certain percentage from inside and outside the district.

Asked what he considers the single biggest contributing factor to government gridlock, Daly answered, "Gerry Studds because he's been there for 20 years and in the last 10 years I don't know what he's accomplished."

"He's been good to the fishermen but we're not all fishermen. He was good for New Bedford but New Bedford's no longer in the district. The results aren't there. You can't blame it on everyone else. When the Democrats have controlled the House for 38 years and he's been there for 20 years, you can't blame it all on President Reagan and President Bush."

"If just doesn't work. You have to take some responsibility. I think you have the gridlock because of that but on a broader sense you don't have people there who are committed to making things happen."

Car Care Corner

Did You Know?

Here are a few facts about motor oil from the experts at Quaker State Corporation that you may find it pretty slick to learn:

•Don't change your oil just because it looks dirty on the dipstick. A good motor oil starts accumulating dirt as soon as you put it in the engine.

•Change oil according to your car owners' manual, but change it at least every four months or 4,000 miles—whichever comes sooner, if you drive in stop-and-go traffic, or in dusty conditions, or haul heavy loads.

•A good motor oil does more than coat every moving part of your engine with a protective film that reduces friction.

•A good motor oil helps keep your engine cool.

•It also cleans out contaminants and seals in vapors and gases to prevent loss of power.

You can learn much more about motor oil and your car from the 42-page booklet: "What You Show Know About Motor Oil." For a free copy, write: Quaker State Knows, P.O. Box 989, Oil City, Pennsylvania 16301.

You Should Become Treadwear Literate About Your Tires

Being well read means more than just how many books you've read. If you're not literate where your tires are concerned, treadwear problems can become a big concern for your vehicle and your ability to drive safely.

Treadwear problems with tires can take many forms including cuts or punctures in the tread, irregular treadwear which can cause a noisy or uncomfortable ride, and lack of proper tread depth which can lead to more serious problems in adverse driving conditions.

Firestone's Consumer Products Manager Stan Cooper says you should check your tires at least once a month for potential treadwear problems.

Uneven wear problems can be caused by several factors including improper inflation pressures, misalignment, poor suspension and improper balance, Cooper says. If these problems are not recognized and corrected, more serious tire damage can occur.

One of the most important aspects of treadwear, proper tread depth, requires constant attention. When the tread is worn down to one-sixteenth of an inch, the tires need to be replaced. A simple test using a penny can help you determine the safeness of your tires' tread depth.

Simply insert a penny between the tire tread with Abe Lincoln's head facing down into the tread. If part of Lincoln's head is obscured by the tread, you're driving with a safe amount of tread. If, on the other hand, you can see the top of Lincoln's head, you need a new tire.

Another way to check for proper tread depth is to look for wear bars which typically appear on your tires when the tread has reached unsafe levels. Wear bars, which look like narrow strips of smooth rubber across the tread, will appear on the tire when the tire is worn out.

As you continue to "read" your tires for potential problems, look closely for any piece of glass, stones or metal or other foreign objects wedged in the tread, Cooper says. These objects can work themselves deeper into the tread, causing air loss.

Certain uneven wear patterns may show that your tires are suffering from internal structure damage. One way to determine this is to use your hands periodically to feel the tread of your tires. If high, low or unusually smooth areas are noticed, you should have your tires inspected by your tire dealer.

Becoming treadwear literate doesn't require spending countless hours in the library. Rather, just a few minutes to look for potential problems with your tire tread and taking the time to do so.

Auto Facts

CAR CARE SAVES PLENTY

THREE FACTORS AFFECTING FUEL ECONOMY ARE MISALIGNED WHEELS, UNDERINFLATED TIRES AND NEGLECTED TUNE-UP. COMBINED, THEY CAN COST 18% IN GAS MILEAGE.

WITH MANY CARS NOW AVERAGING 27 MPG, THAT FIGURE REPRESENTS A PENALTY OF NEARLY FIVE MPG. TIRE UNDERINFLATION AND WHEEL MISALIGNMENT AFFECT TIRE WEAR, TOO, CUTTING TIRE LIFE BY AS MUCH AS 25%. TUNE-UP, LINE UP AND GO.

Weekly Auto Maintenance

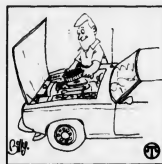

Auto dealers and mechanics agree—giving your car a quick five-minute maintenance check each week will prevent costly repair bills and prolong the life of your car.

The only tools necessary for the check are a rag or paper towel, tire gauge and a multi-purpose lubricant.

On a weekly basis, or when filling up at a gas station, professional mechanics recommend checking:

•Oil Levels: Check and change oil on a regular basis. Check automatic transmission fluid monthly by parking with engine running (not hot). Add fluid if dipstick reads low. It's time to check the brake fluid when the pedal has to be pushed closer to the floor to stop.

•Tires: Examine for worn tread and incorrect alignment of the tires. The tires are out of alignment if there is uneven wear on the threads. Check tire pressure with a pressure gauge.

•Coolant: Check radiator fluid level when car is cool by examining coolant overflow tank or removing radiator cap. Add water if necessary. Replace antifreeze/coolant solution annually.

•Corrosion: Check for clean battery connections. Make sure terminal and cables are free of corrosion and are firmly attached. A quick spray of WD-40 will remove this corrosion. (It also helps unstuck power antenna, gummed door locks and can even remove tree sap and road tar from your car's chrome and painted

How To Keep Your Brakes From Letting You Down

Willie Stopp had a problem. The left rear wheel on his pick-up locked up whenever he applied the brakes; the dragging tire smoking and squealing like an accident about to happen. The truck would veer to the left, usually coming to a halt before the collision.

Usually, that is. One day Willie hit the car in front of him as it sat at a traffic light. No injuries and only minor damage, but for this teenage driver, it was a major lesson in preventive maintenance.

"We know most accidents are predictable," said the police officer after young Willie admitted that the single skid mark from his left rear tire was due to a faulty brake. He had been planning to get it fixed when he had the money.

"You could have saved a bundle if you'd just taken care of the problem before it resulted in an accident," the officer continued. "It could have been worse, but you're still looking at a violation, a fine and, because of your age, a possible increase in your insurance premium."

"Willie, your brakes let you down!"

A subsequent inspection of the left rear brake showed grease on the lining causing the brake to seize. The culprit was a leaking rear axle seal that would have been an inexpensive repair, even for Willie Stopp. Ownership of a vehicle can be an awesome responsibility, reminds the Car Care Council, especially when unexpected repairs are needed.

For more information on brake system maintenance write for the Council's free pamphlet, "How To Keep Your Brakes From Letting You Down." Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Dept. B, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

MIKE BARTLETT, who had two touchdown passes in the Quincy win over Weymouth, gets set to pass as Noel DiBona (34) blocks for him.

Presidents Look For 3rd Win At Falmouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy football coach Jack Raymer said he felt when the Presidents finally captured their elusive first win, things would turn around over the second half of the season.

His words were borne out last Friday night when Quincy, following its first victory (26-8 over Medford) turned in its finest two-way performance of the year to upset Weymouth, 28-13, at Veterans Memorial Stadium to improve its record to 2-3-1.

The Presidents will try to make it three in a row Friday night when it plays at Falmouth at 7 o'clock.

Falmouth has a 3-3 record with win over Dennis-Yarmouth, 34-7; Bridgewater-Raynham, 11-10; and Taunton, 13-12; and losses to North Quincy, 13-7; Silver Lake, 28-26, and Plymouth, 34-12.

"I thought when we finally won our first game, things would turn around," Raymer said. "We are now playing like I thought we should have been playing all season long. We have played strong defense all season but we just couldn't get going offensively in our first four games (only 28 points scored). We finally got it going again

Medford and we had an outstanding two-way game against Weymouth.

"We upset them and kept them from winning the Old Colony League title last year and I figured they'd come out fast hoping to get even, but we caught them by surprise with two long touchdown passes on our first two possessions and we played inspired ball the rest of the way."

Weymouth, which lost out by a half a game of winning the league crown a year ago, was favored to win it all this season but it has been a frustrating year for the Wildcats, who fell to 1-5 with their loss to Quincy.

Mike Bartlett, improving every week, had his second outstanding game in a row as he was 6-for-12 for 178 yards and two touchdowns, giving him five touchdown passes in his last two games and six for the season. He also had a scoring pass called back at Taunton.

"Mike is really coming along and is gaining a lot of confidence," Raymer said. "He is showing a lot of poise. And Robbie Kane is just amazing as a wide receiver. His two touchdown catches on our first two possessions were things of beauty. He is very fast and has good hands."

Kane had four receptions for 150 yards.

Dave Bogan carried 16 times for 81 yards and Noel DiBona carried 18 times for 59 yards.

"Bogan and DiBona go out there and do the job every game and have been very consistent," Raymer added.

The Presidents' defense was outstanding again and, except for a 74-yard touchdown pass to Manny Fernandez, who made a great leaping catch, they did a fine job against Weymouth's standout passer, Marc Stanton, who finished 9-for-18 for 160 yards.

Quincy's front five includes four underclassmen, Paul Colleary, Jeff Burrell, Mike Feeley and Jason Bennett, and one senior, John Green. They were great against Weymouth as were Dan Morrell, Kane, Bogan, Bartlett, Mike Kavanaugh, DiBona and Steve Provost, who had his best game.

"The offensive line did a tremendous job, opening holes and giving Bartlett fine protection," said Raymer.

They included Mark Nutley, who was injured (not seriously) and his replacement Dave D'Olympio, Kavanaugh, Steve Fernald, Duane Holmes and Sean McAnlie.

Weymouth kicked off to open the game and on the fifth play from scrimmage Bartlett hit Kane for a 49-yard touchdown play, beating five defenders with his great speed. DiBona kicked the first of his four extra points.

The Wildcats were stopped cold on their first possession and, on the first play after the punt, Bartlett again hooked up with Kane for a 57-yard scoring pass and DiBona again kicked the extra point.

Weymouth came right back and Stanton passed to Fernandez, who out-jumped three defenders to make the catch and ran 35 yards to complete a 74-yard play for the score. Mike Taylor kicked the extra point.

Quincy wasn't done and with two minutes left in the first quarter, made it 21-7 as Bartlett hit Kane for 37 yards and Bogan scored from the five. DiBona again kicked the PAT.

After all the first quarter scoring, the second session was scoreless. Kane recovered a Weymouth fumble on the Wildcat 42 but Quincy was held, and DiBona intercepted a Stanton pass just before the half ended.

Quincy maintained ball control for most of the third and fourth quarters as the line continually opened up holes for Bogan and DiBona, who picked up valuable first downs.

Midway in the third period Bartlett passed to Brian Clifford for 19 yards and Clifford scored his first touchdown of the year from the one. DiBona added Quincy's final point.

Late in the third quarter, Weymouth reached Quincy's seven-yard line. Stanton was apparently stopped far behind the line of scrimmage, but threw a desperation pass that Fernandez somehow caught on the one. Joe Donovan then rushed for the score and the two-point conversion failed.

2 Quincy Players Win U/Mass Gold Helmet Awards

Until this season a UMass/Boston football player had never received a weekly Gold Helmet award but this year, after four games, two have been so honored, both former Quincy High teammates.

After the first game Sean Munroe, setting all kinds of receiving records, received the Beacons' first Gold Helmet as well as being named the Div. 3 Player of the Week.

Two weeks later Steve Austin, breaking all Div. 3 passing records, received the Gold Helmet as well as being named the Div. 3 Player of the Week and the Small College Player of the Week honors from Sports Illustrated.

Last week both players continued to break school and Div. 3 records in a tough 32-28 loss to Mass. Maritime which saw the game end with UMass on the Maritime one-yard line.

Austin is at his fourth college. After things didn't go his way at Springfield, Plymouth State and U. of Lowell, Austin has found his niche at UMass/Boston and is taking full advantage, to put it mildly.

Last week Austin completed 37 of 66 passes for 497 yards and three touchdowns, two to Munroe.

Munroe caught two TD passes and caught 23 passes for 332 yards, breaking the NCAA Div. 3 record for receptions.

In four games Austin has passed for 1,553 yards and 13 touchdowns and he and Munroe appear to be on their way to All-America honors.

Raiders Host Lakers Looking For 7th

By TOM SULLIVAN

It may have been a letdown following four straight Old Colony League wins, including big decisions over Weymouth and Barnstable, but the undefeated North Quincy football team (6-0) suffered through its most frustrating half last Saturday before waking up in the second half and defeating non-league rival Don Bosco (1-5), 21-0.

North returns to league action Friday night when it hosts Silver Lake at 7 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium and looking for its seventh straight win.

The Lakers are only 1-5 but have proved in several games they can score. Their only win was over Falmouth, 28-26, while losing to Duxbury, 28-6; Weymouth, 35-0; New Bedford, 41-0; Barnstable, 30-22; and Taunton, 28-16.

"I suppose it was natural to expect a letdown against Don Bosco after winning four straight league games, but I tried to guard against it all week," said North coach Ken McPhee. "We completely dominated the game as our defense, which has carried us all year, was again outstanding, but our first half was very frustrating."

North spent the entire first half in Don Bosco territory but just couldn't convert any fourth down plays and failed to score.

Liam Higgins, who had thrown nine touchdowns passes, had a bad first half and McPhee felt he was bothered by a stiff wind. He did run well and scored his first two touchdowns of the year and his passing improved in the second half.

Don Bosco was held to six yards overall in the first half and had a total of just 49 yards overall in the game, including 43 yards on 3-for-12 passing.

North picked up 134 yards on the ground and Higgins was 9-for-22 for 181 yards passing, most of it in the second half. The Raiders had 15 first downs to four for Don Bosco.

North was again without its top runner, Mark Sinclair, who has not played on offense since the second game but did play on defense in the past few games. He may not be back for Silver Lake but is expected back for Bridgewater-Raynham in two weeks.

Sean Skahan returned after missing several games with a shoulder injury and ran well as well as intercepting a pass and returning it 51 yards for a touchdown. He also recovered a fumble to set up North's final score.

Sean Nee carried 10 times for 51 yards, Higgins carried six times for 27 yards, Josh Gott carried six times for 18 yards and Skahan carried four times for 17 yards.

"Skahan played very well and Nee again ran well," said McPhee.

"Defensively we were tremendous again and Dave Reinhart, Dave Pacino, Justin Dilks, Sean Halpin, Eric Delorey, Mike Linnane, Bill Skutel and Sean Herron were outstanding," said McPhee. "And the boy who really got us untracked in the second half was Keith Lentini, who came up with a lot of big hits. He really woke us up."

Offensively McPhee had good words for Higgins, Skahan, Dave Carney and two players who looked good late in the game, sophomore Derek Epps and Jamie O'Connell.

On the final play of the scoreless first half, after passing up numerous opportunities, Higgins missed a 29-yard field goal try as the wind blew the ball wide to the right. "I'm sure it would have been good if not for the wind," McPhee said. "He kicked it plenty far and his three extra point kicks would have been long field goals."

After Don Bosco was stopped following the second half kickoff, North drove 54 yards for its first score. Higgins passed to Reinhart for 12 yards and Pat Shea for 20 and he ran for 12 yards himself, finally scoring from the one and kicking the extra point.

Late in the third quarter Skahan intercepted a pass and returned it 51 yards for a score and Higgins again kicked the PAT.

With five minutes left in the game, following Skahan's fumble recovery on the DB three, Higgins scored his second touchdown and kicked his third extra point.

North Jayvees Win 3 In Row

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy junior varsity football team improved to 5-1 with three wins in a row following its lone loss to Plymouth.

The Raiders had started off with two wins.

North defeated Barnstable, 24-12; Weymouth, 10-0; and Don Bosco, 30-14.

Derek Epps scored seven touchdowns in the three wins. Against Barnstable he scored on runs of 37 and 12 yards, also adding a two-point conversion.

Against Weymouth he was on the receiving end of a 55-yard pass from Sean Dolbear for the only touchdown and Monday he scored on runs of 53, 27, 15 and 45 yards against Don Bosco. Only a sophomore, he figures high in North's future plans.

In the Barnstable game another future star shone in the person of Mike McGregor, who scored on a 49-yard run. Three interceptions, two by George Wirtz and one by Jeremy Gott, set up Raider scores. Wirtz and Will Crosby scored two-point conversions.

Coaches Peter Chrisom and Tom Carter had praise for Jason Picciardi, Rob Picciano, Dave Carney, Glenn Peterson, Neil Kiley, Marty Shields, Eric Zimmerman and Pete Fitzpatrick.

The game with Weymouth was hard fought from the start and the Wildcats, coached by former North Quincy star and assistant coach Kevin Cobban, had a few bad breaks.

Deep in its own territory, Weymouth tried to run it out and the runner was smothered in the end zone for a safety. The punting of Diep Nguyen and the defensive play of Picciardi were outstanding.

In the Don Bosco game Jerry Fernandez, a sophomore defensive back and wide receiver, threw a vicious block that enabled Epps to score on his 27-yard run. Crosby was also praised for his block that sprung Epps loose on his first TD.

"Many good things happened in this game," said Carter. "The recovery of a Bosco fumble by Shields and Joe Renzi and the hard running of Jamie Karvelis and Al DePasquale were highlights."

Chrisom had good words for Carney for his hard tackling, causing fumbles. He also said that Dolbear passed well and McGregor, who hadn't played recently due to a shoulder injury, did some fine running.

ENC Soccer Team On Way Up

Coach Giovanni Pacini is turning the soccer program around at Eastern Nazarene College.

In the past four years the Crusaders have gone from a record of 1-11 to 7-10 last year and 6-3-1 this season.

"Coaches from all over New England are now calling for games and taking this team as a challenge," Pacini said.

Eleven of the 20 players are from the South Shore including Co-Capt. Dave Cawthorne of North Quincy and Khien Pham of Quincy.

Bowling

Mastrantonio Team Leads St. John's League

St. John's Bowling League is underway and Jim Mastrantonio's team is leading with a 26-6 record.

The rest of the standings: Bob Saluti, 22-10; Joe Matarazzo, 14-18; John Grande, 14-18; Mike Priscella, 12-20; Joe Zaccheo, 8-24.

Saluti rolled the weekly high single of 119 and Grande had 115. Saluti also had the high three of 344 and Grande rolled 302.

Saluti's team had the high team single of 142, Priscella had 122 and Grande 115. Saluti's team also had the high three of 370, Grande had 321 and Don Gilliland had 317.

The Top Ten: Saluti,

112.33; Grande, 102.67; Priscella, 100.22; Gilliland, 97.42; Mastrantonio, 91.75; Ken Varnum, 90.22; Zaccheo, 90.08; Dan Dieso, 89.33; John Spencer, 89.00; Rich Warner, 88.75.

Quincy Youth Soccer League Results

By LESLIE SATKEVICH

The players and teams in the Quincy Youth Soccer League continue to improve. Results from recent games are as follows:

Girls under 14: Boston Advisory Group and Marie's Restaurant played to a 3-3 tie. Sarah Satkevich had two goals and Janean Pulera one for Advisory and Kim Stetz had two assists and Kerry Duffy had one. Shannon Williamson, Amanda Rork and Michelle Boncek each played well.

Nancy Halloran netted all three goals for Marie's. Kim Mackey, Katie Sullivan and Robin Wise had assists and Kara McSweeney, Meghan Madden and Marianne Cannon all had good games.

Sons of Italy outscored McEvoy, 8-3, as Angela Hogrell had five goals and an assist. Liz Fitzpatrick added three goals and Hillary O'Donoghue and Jill O'Connell had assists. Liz Lynch was solid in goal and Mary Chenette and Kristen Keohane also played well.

Ann Parisi, Christine Goff and Stephanie Collins each scored for McEvoy and Barbara Ryan had three assists. Colleen Donahue, Diane Jordan and goalie Lisa Bragg stood out.

Girls under 12: Erin Madden netted two goals and two assists to lead Ink Spot to a 7-0 win over IMEN Inc. Dorothy Cronin and Johnnie Graham also had two goals and Theresa Ryan scored one.

Chris Lewis added three assists and Meredith Hamilton and Heather Schatzl had one each. Ashley Peterson, Meghan Ginty and Jessica Sprague also had fine games for Ink Spot.

Laura Chase, Jennifer Myers and Marie Wallace had good efforts for IMEN.

Steve's Beale St. Diner topped Team #4, 5-2. Katie Kelly, Siobhan O'Connell, Caty O'Donnell and Betsy Stone were the goal scorers and Kelly Linnane, Morrisa Ross, Maureen Halloran and Julie Keane had assists.

Becky Mackey, Corinne Sullivan and Eileen Mawn had fine games for Steve's.

Kathleen Burke had both goals and Katie Williamson and Liz Quinn added assists for Team #4. Rebecca Favorito, Lauren Enos and Cheryl Anne Smith also stood out.

Rowerdink and Orlandi rolled over T-Shirt Master, 7-2. Molly Jacobs had three goals and Jocelyn West tallied two goals and an assist. Amy Papile and Sarah Towne also scored. Ashley Rowerdink had three assists, and Papile, Amy Satkevich and Angela McCarthy each had an assist. Elizabeth Bennett, Katie Lynch and Rima Ashmanskas also excelled for R&O.

Leanne Martin had a goal and an assist, Alexis Miranda had a goal and Jill Nicholson added an assist for T-Shirt. Nicholson, Katrina Jacobs and Kristin Coughlin all had fine games.

Girls under 10: Quincy Savings Bank defeated Team #4, 6-2 as Jen Ahern tallied three goals and Casey Ridge scored two goals and assisted on another.

Nora Hanna also scored and had an assist and Kerrin Griffin and Lauren Kalil each had two assists. Jocelyn Moran, Kelly Bonnar and Tanya Higgins also played good games for QSB.

Caitlin Herlihy netted two goals and Tama Baker had an assist for Team #4. Jessica Gallant, Jill Baker and Pam Sullivan each played well.

North Girls Streak To 14th Straight Win

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team continued to roll merrily along as a 2-0 victory over Weymouth improved its record to 14-0 in the quest for a second straight Old Colony League title and state championship.

Last weekend the North girls made an excellent showing in the Sweet Home Challenge at Amherst, N.Y., which attracted some of the top teams in the country.

Seeded 16th, the North girls finished third in the tournament, hosted by Sweet Home High School, rated #1 in the country by USA Today.

North Quincy won four matches before losing to Baldwin, Pa., in the semifinals and earned the third spot by defeating Horseheads, N.Y., 2-0 (15-10, 15-12).

Heather Rendle and Maureen McCarthy were named to the all-tournament team. Rendle had 30 kills and McCarthy was the team leader in assists.

"This was a fine opportunity for the girls as it gave them a chance to play before college scouts and gain some national recognition," said coach Jim Rendle. "They did an outstanding job."

In their previous regular season match the North girls defeated Barnstable (15-4, 15-12) as Lara Rines had six digs and McCarthy and Heather Simmons each had seven assists.

Earlier North had defeated New Bedford, 2-1 (13-15, 15-6, 15-3) with McCarthy and Joann Curreri leading the way.

In one of its major tests of the season, North ended Medway's 42-match win streak with a 2-1 (12-15, 15-12, 15-5) win.

Last year North won the state Division 1 title and Medway took the Div. 2 crown and handed North one of its two regular season losses.

All Saints Sunday At Covenant Congregational

Rev. Gordon Schultz will preach at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

All Saints Day will be acknowledged and Communion will be served. The Benevolence offering will be received by the Diaconate.

Richard Smith, minister of music, will direct and accompany the choir in an introit and an anthem. He will also play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude.

Sunday School, with classes for all ages, nursery through adult, will meet at 9:30 a.m. During the service, an attended nursery is available for children age four and younger. For children up to age 12, there is junior church.

Following the service, coffee will be served in the fellowship hall downstairs.

'Stories With Us In Mind' Bethany Sermon Sunday

All Saints' Day will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center.

The Rev. Roger Ketcham's sermon topic will be "Stories With Us In Mind." Scripture reader will be John Murphy Jr. The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Gregory Flynn, organist will sing an anthem.

Assisting the minister in servicing Holy Communion will be Kinya Mikami, Wendell Cosgrove, Virginia Miller and James Ross, members of the Board of Deacons. The fellowship hour held following the worship in the Allen Parlor will be hosted by Bruce and Heather Crofts.

Church School classes are held at 10 a.m. The Bible Study group will meet Sunday at 8:30 a.m. Child care is provided for infants and toddlers.

Claire Fitzgerald-Swan Completes Hospital Program

Claire Fitzgerald-Swan of Quincy recently completed a Junior Volunteer Program at Milton Hospital.

The students assisted in various departments throughout the hospital including cafeteria, stockroom and transportation department.

Cronin Says MIFA Spending Must Be Controlled

Exorbitant, unrestricted spending by the Massachusetts Industrial Finance Agency, "must be brought under control immediately," said Michael Cronin, Republican candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District.

Cronin was responding to a series of published reports which revealed that MIFA officials have been engaged in extravagant spending habits while the rest of state government has been forced to cut back.

Created by an act of the state legislature in 1973 to stimulate the Massachusetts economy and assist in facilitating job growth, the agency has made a number of questionable expenditures, Cronin said.

According to The Boston Herald, top MIFA officials charged nearly 1,000 high-priced meals at some of Boston's most exclusive restaurants costing the agency $35,415 over the last three years.

Also, the agency spent over $300,000 a year in order to keep big name lobbyists and lawyers on retainer. Also, in the last two years, $64,000 was spent to lease and valet park four MIFA vehicles. Also during the two-year period, 43 out-of-state trips were taken at a cost of nearly $30,000.

"At a time when we are fighting for more state money for education, for public safety, and for the harbor cleanup, it is distressing to know that there are still some state agencies who are spending wildly," Cronin said.

"It appears that MIFA is just the latest semi-independent state agency that continues to do its own thing at a tremendous cost to the commonwealth."

"As thousands of our neighbors remain jobless, state agencies are running in circles attempting to protect themselves, rather than making an effort to protect our people."

If elected, Cronin said he would immediately look into the activities of MIFA, and take whatever action necessary to control spending by the agency.

Fortini Stresses Commitment To South Shore

Governor's Council candidate Ken Fortini told supporters recently that he has a personal stake in and commitment to the South Shore.

"I live in Duxbury, work in Hingham and was raised in Quincy and Braintree," said Fortini who added that his opponent, who is from Boston, "does not even live in the district."

Fortini, an investment broker with A. G. Edwards & Sons, has, throughout his campaign, stressed the need for fewer lawyers and more objective decision-making on the Council which primarily votes on judicial appointments.

Currently, five of the eight Council members are attorneys.

"I see outrageous self interest," explained Fortini, "in lawyer-councilors voting on judicial appointments and then, potentially, coming before same judges with a legal matter."

"I believe that the average person would also see it as self interest. A more diverse composition to the Council," Fortini added, "will give it added credibility."

'Joy Of Caring' Topic At HN Congregational

Dr. Peter Corea will preach on "The Joy Of Caring" at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 300 Manet Ave.

Taleb Grotto Prophetabed Sunday will be observed. Members of the Grotto will prepare and serve breakfast prior to the service starting at 9 a.m. Cost of the breakfast is $3 and reservations are not needed.

There will be no Sunday School this week. Instead, parents are encouraged to bring their children to the breakfast and worship service.

Kevin Flaherty National Merit Scholar
Kevin Flaherty of Quincy, a student at Boston College High School, has been named a Commended Student in the 1993 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Pageant Field, Faxon Park Gates Closed

The entrance gates to Pageant Field, Merrymount Park and Faxon Park, South Quincy closed Monday and will remain closed through the winter, announces Ray Cattaneo, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery departments.

The closure has been annual procedure of the Park Department to prevent motor vehicles and dirt bikes from entering the parks.

Over the years, there has been illegal dumping in the areas. Dirt bikes have caused considerable damage to the playing fields which have also been the site of abandoned and torched vehicles. The gate closings, coupled with regular police patrols and in the case of Faxon Park a neighborhood watch, have helped reduce vandalism and damage to property during the winter.

The police department has been provided keys for the gates and will conduct periodic checks of the two parks as will park department work crews. Anyone wishing to use either of the gates for walking or jogging may park their vehicles near the entrance gates and walk in, Cattaneo said.

An estimated 15,000 persons utilize the two locations annually for field days, outings, picnics and baseball and softball games from April 1 through mid-October.

The park department urges anyone noticing any vehicle other than a city vehicle in either park to notify Quincy police immediately.

'For All The Saints' Topic At United First Parish

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will preach on "For All The Saints" at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist) in Quincy Center.

Church School children will participate in the service. They will honor the life and teachings of St. Francis of Assisi with a procession of posters and will join the congregation in singing.

The Church Choir with Norman Corey, director, will also sing. Corey will also play organ selections. Phil Curtis and Matt Malloy will usher.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to the social hour following the service. Jenny Yang and Fred and Florence Gross will host.

The Women's Group and the Men's Group will meet at noon following the social hour.

Sunday evening at 7 p.m., Dr. Bennett will lead a discussion session on "What do Unitarian Universalists Believe About the Bible?" Newcomers are welcome.

Historic First Parish, "Church of the Presidents," is located at 1306 Hancock St.

Ayers Bros. Providing Transportation To Polls For Physically Challenged

Ayers Bros Inc. Handicap Conversion Center, 440B East Squantum St., North Quincy, will provide courtesy transportation to the polls for any physically challenged voter in Quincy on Election Day Tuesday, Nov. 3.

"We believe a person's physical mobility should never interfere with his or her fundamental right to vote," said Bruce Ayers. "We annually offer this service and enjoy seeing the physically challenged fulfilling their duty as a citizen of Quincy."

Requests for transportation can be made by calling Ayers at 328-0056.

All Saints Sunday At Covenant

The Rev. Harry Soper Jr. will preach on "Christ, Our Inheritance" at the 10 a.m. Holy Communion worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St.

Anna Giger will serve as Communion assistant and Joanne Nolan as Scripture reader. Greeters will be Annie Ohman and Margaret Troupe. Ushers will be Julia and Burton Millham. Sunday School follows the pastor's Young Disciples message. At the fellowship hour, Barbara Johnson, ValJean Soper and Janet Cluett will serve as hostesses.

The Committee on Education will meet with Sunday School teachers at 11:30 a.m. and the Junior High Fellowship will meet at 6 p.m.

Merrymount School Election Day Cake And Craft Sale

Merrymount Elementary School will hold its annual Election Day Cake and Craft Sale, Tuesday, Nov. 3 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

bid, information for bidders, bid forms, conditions or any other contract document or potential contract document and these statutes; or any other applicable statutes, by-laws or regulations existing on the date on which the bid is submitted, then the statute, by-laws or regulations shall govern. Such inconsistency shall not be grounds for invalidating the bidding proceeding the contract.

Council Backs New Governing Body For College change in the governance of the college is attempted.

Most of the issues dealt with employee benefits, accountability and power.

"I don't think anyone is trying to hurt Quincy College but I'm concerned about someone unwittingly hurting," Walsh said.

Most of the councillors agreed with Walsh that the issues he brought forward, and other issues that arise, should be addressed first.

"These are problems we have to think about," he said.

"There is a lot of information that has to be digested. I would have liked to hear more arguments to the contrary to hear where the other side is coming from," said
Ward 4 Councillor Thomas
Fabrizio, chairman of the Education Committee.

"I want to move forward and at the same time make sure we protect those who have worked to make the college what it is," said Ward 1
Councillor Peter Kolson.

"Let's get it moving and work out the problems.
They can be worked out,"
said former Mayor Francis McCauley, a member of the current Board of Trustees.

The current board serves in an advisory capacity while the School Committee governs the college.

Phelan asked City Solicitor Steve McGrath to report back to the council with answers to Walsh's questions.

Ward 3 Councillor
Lawrence Chretien said he will support an amended proposal which incorporates the answers to the issues raised by Walsh.

"The present home rule petition is inadequate.

Let's make it complete and understandable to all," said Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney.

"I think we should first hear what the Task Force has to say," said
Councillor-at-Large
Patricia Toland.

"I think there is a consensus in the city that the college should be separate," she said.
Toland, a former School Committee member, said the governance of the college is now "beyond their (School Committee) scope."

"Just last week an outside accreditation agency said the college has outgrown its present governance system," said college president Dr. O.
Clayton Johnson. "Officials at the state Department of Higher Education have raised their concern."

Johnson said recently the School Committee has hurt the growth of the college by denying a request for an increase in staff.

"There are those who refuse to move forward...
for issues with no basis in fact," Johnson said.

Patricia McDermott, a teacher at the college said the school has enjoyed success and asked why the council would want to change anything.

"Dr. Johnson has done fantastic work... under the supervision of the School Committee. Quincy College went from the original six to 5,000 students... under the School Committee. Why not let it grow from 5,000 to 10,000 students... under the School Committee," McDermott
said.

"I see a rift between the School Committee and City Council... We need a consensus. This has to be a team effort," Walsh said.

The School Committee
sent a letter to the Council prior to Monday's meeting which read in part, "the School Committee wishes to remind the City Council that the college is a School Committee matter."

"The School Committee is not here and I'm disappointed," Phelan said.
"I think we're going to have to work together with them."

If the School Committee feels strongly against this than I'd like to see a report on the reasons why," Fabrizio said.

"All the reports and studies I've seen recommend change. They also speak highly of the School Committee. It's not a case of the School Committee doing a bad job."

William Warwick, a student at the college, said the school should have a chance to grow and asked the council to resolve the matter as soon as possible.

"Let's bury the hatchet and let the college go on with the business of educating students," he said.

"We should iron out our differences as fast as possible," said Ward 6
Councillor Bruce Ayers.

"I was very disappointed they (School Committee) were not at the meeting but I plan to accept their invitation to speak at their meetings," Fabrizio said.

"When Proposition 2
1/2 came in we burned a bridge with the School Committee. Since then we have rebuilt that bridge many times over," said Cheney. "I get the sense
we are breaking that bridge down again. I'm offering an olive branch.
I'm willing to work together with the School Committee. The conflicts have to be resolved first or the will will not be there to complete the task."

"We should meet with the School Committee
together... not separately," said Ward 2 Councillor
Ted DeCristofaro.

"The School Committee has been invited here," Cahill said. "It was not a backhanded invitation...
They should be here."

"The rift is not that tremendous," Toland said.
"We should listen to all sides and we can get this accomplished."

The issue of disputes between Johnson and the School Committee also was discussed.

"Some individual members of the School Committee, past and present, have taken up a cudgel against the president and the college," said trustee Charles Sweeney, himself a former School Committee member.

"The problems at the college have nothing to do with governance. They have to do with the inability of the administrator to deal with personnel," said former School Committee member Mary Collins.

CLIFFORD H.
MARSHALL
NORFOLK COUNTY SHERIFF
DEMOCRAT - VETERAN
TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1992

A Letter To The People Of Quincy

From: Sheriff Cliff Marshall

Dear Fellow Quincy Resident:

As the only City among 27 towns in Norfolk County, Quincy is unique. Quincy residents are passionate about public safety and demand the highest level of professionalism from the Sheriff. My administration has consistently provided the progressive leadership necessary to address the crucial public safety issues we face every day.

My family and I are life-long Quincy residents. I share your concerns about keeping criminals off the streets, and providing realistic programs aimed at returning individuals to the community as productive citizens. It takes effective leadership to lead into the 20th century. Modern technology and a highly trained staff are our greatest assets. My office has brought some of the brightest and most talented people together (many are your neighbors) and secured a state-of-the-art facility that is second to none. With this commitment, we have developed many helpful community programs. I would like to share some of them with you:

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office opened the new correctional center five months ahead of schedule, $11 million under budget and stopped the early release of inmates. We initiated the Electronic Incarceration or 'house arrest' Program to reduce jail crowding. We have developed the Drug and Alcohol Awareness Program for students in the classroom and provide D.A.R.E. training for officers under 'Regional Law Enforcement' grants. The Sheriff's Office was the first to establish a Sexual Assault Unit in Norfolk County with a 24-hour 'Hot-Line' number. Our Community Service Program is one we are especially proud of and if you look below you will see the projects we've completed in Quincy alone.

This election day, entrust your public safety with an experienced professional. Thank you for your confidence and support

Sincerely,

Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall

Cliff Marshall's Commitment To The City of Quincy

Sheriff Marshall's Community Service Program has saved the City of Quincy over $350,000 dollars.
Completed Community Service Projects in Your Neighborhood:

Public Hearing Nov. 23

Sheets' Proposed Tax Rates: $13.46 Homes, $28.79 Business

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Quincy taxpayers will have an opportunity to voice their opinions on higher tax rates at a public hearing, Monday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

Mayor James Sheets has recommended that the percentages of Quincy's $75.8 million tax levy remain the same as last year (approximately 60 percent residential, 40 percent commercial, industrial and personal property).

Although the percentages of the tax burden remain the same, residents and business owners will pay more in taxes because the tax levy is higher than last year ($72.9 million). The FY 93 budget ($125.5 million) is more than $6 million higher than FY 92.

The new tax rates would be $13.46 per $1,000 for residential (up $1.27 from $12.19 last year) and $28.79 per $1,000 for C.I.P.P. (up $2.67 from $26.12 last year).

The average valuation for a single family home in Quincy is $138,300 (down $6,200 from last year). Based on the $138,300 valuation a homeowner would pay $1,862 or $101 more than FY 1992.

Sheets' recommendation shifts the CIPP (business) share to 169 percent. The maximum allowed by law for Quincy this year is 173 percent which would have set the C.I.P.P. rate at $29.47 and the residential rate at $13.25.

"I am happy that we are not at the maximum," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill. "But I think it

(C.I.P.P. rate) has to go lower. What's happening is that the amount of taxable commercial property is decreasing and the residents have to pick up the slack.

"We are not attracting business... we need to make an incentive (for new business). Initially, it will mean higher taxes for residents but in the long run it will provide relief... We have to increase the tax base by lowering the commercial rate," Cahill said.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney asked the chairman of the Board of Assessors, Marion Fantucchio, to provide the council with information on tax rates in neighboring towns.

"I would like to look at them from a competitive standpoint," Cheney said.

Fantucchio said evaluation information is available at the assessor's office and at the Thomas Crane Public Library. She also told the Council that a letter would be sent to taxpayers explaining the tax process and the appeal process.

The Council must approve the tax rates. Fantucchio said the Council must decide on a rate by mid-December to allow the Data Processing Department adequate time to compute, print and mail tax bills.

This is the third straight year Quincy's total valuation has dropped. This year the total valuation is $4,450,597,477. In FY 1992 the total valuation was $4,714,214,507 and in FY 1990 it was $5,043,466,890.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
 and MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy voters, like most in Massachusetts and across the nation, agreed it was time for a change Tuesday by making Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton their solid choice over President George Bush.

Clinton and his running mate, Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore, carried Quincy comfortably by 46 percent to 30 percent for Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle. H. Ross Perot and running mate Retired Admiral James Stockdale finished a respectable but distant third with 22 percent.

Quincy's voter turnout was 85.24 percent with 41,178 of the city's 48,208 voters casting ballots.

Cong. Gerry Studds was an easy winner in Quincy and throughout the new 10th District piling up wide margins over Republican Dan Daly and Jon Bryan, a former Republican challenger for the seat who ran this year as an unenrolled candidate. With his victory, Studds was re-elected to an 11th term.

Michael Bellotti, Democratic State Committeeman and son of Francis Bellotti, former lieutenant governor and attorney general, won the vacant First Norfolk District state representative seat, outpolling Republican Michael Cronin and Independent challenger Patrick Conroy.

Norfolk County returns were incomplete at The Sun's press time early Wednesday morning but indicated Sheriff Clifford Marshall of Quincy would win a fourth term and former City Clerk John Gillis appeared to be the winner of one of the two vacant Commission seats.

Michael Morrissey, who won the Democratic primary for the state senate seat relinquished by Paul Harold who ran unsuccessfully for Congress, was elected without Republican opposition Tuesday.

Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin and Rep. Ron Mariano were re-elected in the Second and Third Norfolk Districts respectively, both without opponents.

Mariano defeated George Miller in the Democratic primary in September and Tobin was unopposed in the primary. Neither incumbent had a Republican challenger Tuesday.

Quincy voter turnout topped the 80 percent forecast but fell short of the record 92.1 percent set in the John F. Kennedy-Richard Nixon presidential election in 1960. At that time, Quincy had 49,470 registered voters and 45,565 went to the polls.

Local winners were upbeat as they reflected on their victories and looked ahead to the key issues on their agendas.

Speaking before supporters at the Holiday Inn in Rockland, Studds said, "We're going to put people to work, we're going to redirect our resources... We're going to defend a woman's fundamental right to choose and we're going to take the first steps necessary to provide universal health care for all the people."

A flu-bitten but buoyant Bellotti attributed hard work and a strong grass roots campaign for his first successful attempt at public office.

"We're very happy. We had a great, tremendous grass roots effort and that made a big difference. People spent money for negative advertising and it had absolutely no impact because I think people just didn't want to hear that."

"It was really a race of votes, just meeting the

A Fond Farewell To John Gillis

RETIRED QUINCY CITY Clerk John Gillis, his wife, Violet, and son Mark Gillis, hold a 75-pound cake wishing Gillis a happy retirement during a party in his honor in the Council Chambers of City Hall. The Gillis' daughter, Pamela DeGennaro, was unable to attend the party. The cake was baked by Konditor Meister in West Quincy.

CITY HALL GANG—Past and present employees of the City Clerk's office gather with retired City Clerk John Gillis during a recent retirement on Gillis' behalf. He recently stepped down after serving 36 years as both an assistant and clerk. From left, former Assistant City Clerk Tom Burke; Ann Lind, secretary of License Board; Edith Corey, election department; Catherine Ierardi, vital statistics; Annmarie Kenney, election department; Gillis; his wife, Violet; Josephine Carnali, secretary to City Clerk; Carol Damiano, vital statistics; Maureen Halsen, vital statistics; and City Clerk Joseph Shea. Missing is Grace Tiro, election department.

CITY COUNCIL CREW—Retired City Clerk John Gillis, who also served as clerk of the City Council, shares a moment with fellow Council employees Jeanne Reardon, left, clerk of Council Committees; and Rosemary Nolan, secretary of the City Council, during Gillis' recent retirement party held in City Hall.

Council's Unanimous Choice

Joseph Shea Sworn In As New City Clerk

By STEVE KAVANAGH
It's official. Joseph Shea is the new City Clerk. The City Council unanimously elected Shea to succeed John Gillis Monday night.

"It's impossible to be John (Gillis)," Shea told the Council. "But I think I've picked up some of his traits and I think he has taught me well."

Following the 9-0 vote for Shea, he was sworn in by City Solicitor Steve McGrath as family and friends looked on.

"I worked here in City Hall 20 years ago with Mayor Walter Hannon (as executive secretary) and I became friendly with John. Later, I became his understudy and I was thrilled when John asked me to succeed Tommy Burke (former assistant city clerk)," Shea said.

"It's hard to imagine the size of the shoes he has to fill with the retirement of John Gillis but if anyone is capable of stepping in it's Joe Shea," said Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien.

"Joe Shea is a man with compassion and brains. He knows the city like the back of his hand and he has a feeling for the neighborhoods," said Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

Shea promised to be accessible and compassionate. "There is always room in my office for everyone," he said. "Someday's more than others," he joked.

Shea was elected assistant city clerk last year following the retirement of Burke. He succeeds Gillis, who retired last week after 33 years as clerk.

JOSEPH P. SHEA, right, is sworn in as Quincy's new city clerk by Solicitor Stephen McGrath at Monday's council meeting as Council President Charles Phelan looks on. Shea, who served as assistant city clerk since March, 1991, succeeds former City Clerk John Gillis who recently retired.

Health Plan Consolidation, 1.1% Pay Hike For City

City employees have agreed to consolidate their health plan choices to save the city money in exchange for a 1.1 percent pay raise.

"The majority of unions supported this. If we had not done this there would have been a tax increase next year to fund the health care cost increase," said Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney.

The pay raise, which will be given to all city employees, will be funded by money that is already budgeted for health care costs.

Personnel Director Kathy Yeager said the city will save an estimated $960,000 in health care costs through the end of the fiscal year in June.

"We (the city) had an understanding with the unions that the savings would be turned back to the employees," Yeager said.

Of the city's 24 unions, 19 have agreed to the change. She said the fire, police, DPW, school building maintenance workers, and school custodians have not agreed.

"In over two years the unions have received zero raises," said Thomas Koch, Mayor James Sheets' executive secretary. Koch also said city departments have had to function with less personnel. "In all the departments the people have really picked up the slack."

The City Council voted 7-2 to approve the salary increase with Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill dissenting.

Fabrizio questioned whether it was proper to give a pay raise half-way through the fiscal year.

Cahill agreed and added that the raises are not fair to workers at the lower end of the salary scale. "The City Council, School Committee and department heads should not get raises. Across the board raises are not fair."

Cahill also said he doesn't think it's right to give raises and raise taxes at the same time.

"It's difficult to hold the line giving raises to employees but taking even more from residents with raising taxes. We want to take care of our city workers, but also take care of our residents," Cahill said.

"Once the money is spent (on raises) it is locked in for next year too. I would rather see the money go into services than pay raises," Cahill said.

Freedoms Foundation Awards For Two From Quincy

John McCreavan of Adams, a teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, will receive the Valley Forge Teachers Medal. He encouraged his 7th grade students to become involved in many projects, to live as responsible citizens and activists and to stand up for the dignity and rights of victims of oppression.

The students in his human rights class protested the imprisonment of Yugoslavians and Albanian teenagers, and, through their letter writing campaign to Yugoslav officials, won the release of Nafije Zendehe, a "prisoner of conscience."

This year's recipients were chosen by a national committee of State Supreme Court Justices, civic groups, educators and business leaders. McCreavan will receive the George Washington Honor Medal for "serving as an inspiration, a role model and a profile in courage," giving generously of himself in service to others, despite being a quadriplegic amputee and confined to a wheelchair for 25 years.

Post Offices Closed On Veterans Day

Residents are advised that all post offices will be closed and there will be no regular mail delivery Wednesday, Nov. 11 in observance of Veterans Day.

STRESS AND THE COMMON COLD

It always happens. The week of your big presentation at work or the day before the huge family dinner you're hosting, you come down with a nasty cold. Is it just coincidence, or does stress really play a role in predisposing you to colds? Researchers in the U.S. and abroad have found that stress can make a difference. In a recent study of about 400 people who were voluntarily exposed to cold viruses, subjects with the highest levels of personal stress were twice as likely to get colds as those who reported the lowest stress levels. The study concluded that, while reducing stress won't protect you from ever catching colds, it will certainly help you toward a healthier, even happier, lifestyle.

P.S. The best known way to ward off colds is still to wash hands conscientiously at home and away.

Too much stress can adversely affect your heart health. This is yet another reason why it's a good idea to get regular exercise, learn to breathe deeply and regularly and help reduce stress in additional ways. For more information, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Mayoral Run For Donnelly?

Brian Donnelly is stepping down from Congress but not necessarily out of politics.

"No, I'm not retiring from politics," he says as he prepares to leave Capitol Hill after 14 years with a reputation as a clean, hardworking, take-care-of-your-district Congressman.

Donnelly has no second thoughts about his decision to leave Washington. When he made that decision last March he said he preferred to be a full-time father rather than a career politician.

It was no secret that as time went by he got to dislike more and more being in Washington away from his wife, Virginia, and daughter Lauren, now 10, and son, Brian.

He managed to get home to Dorchester and his family most weekends.

Well, if he is not retiring from politics does he have anything in mind? How about mayor of Boston? That's a lot closer to home.

There has been speculation now and then that he might run for mayor and it has been turned up by recent reports that Ray Flynn is getting a little bored with being mayor.

Donnelly says he has no such plans — or thoughts to run for mayor at this time.

"But" he adds, "right now I'm not ruling out anything."

And right now he's looking forward to being home with his family.

INCIDENTALLY, Donnelly, who succeeded James Burke in 1978 when the latter retired, tells a little known story about Burke and President George Bush.

Burke, who lived in Milton, had a lot of clout on the powerful House Ways and Means Committee when Bush was a new Congressman from Texas.

BURKE

Burke, of course, was a Democrat and Bush is a Republican but they became good friends. The friendship started when Burke found out that Bush was born in Milton and he took Bush under his wing helping to push a few bills through the Committee for him. Bush was vice president when Burke died. Donnelly got a telephone call from Bush saying that he would be unable to attend the funeral because President Ronald Reagan had a special assignment for him.

Bush asked Donnelly to deliver a personal letter from him to Burke's wife in Milton expressing his condolences.

Bush, it seems, has shown little interest in his Milton birthplace. To the best of anyone's knowledge, he has never been back to Milton to visit.

"I've never heard that he has ever been back," says Donnelly.

Incidentally, Donnelly has purchased one of those $2,500 Colonial style light posts for downtown Quincy.

IT'S NO WONDER Mike Morrissey keeps winning elections. He works at it. Morrissey, won the Democratic primary for state senate in September and was unopposed in Tuesday's final election.

But that didn't keep him from spending Tuesday visiting polling places in the Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook-Avon senate district. And with the weather wet and chilly, it was a good-will tour also as he had a van stopping off with hot coffee for candidate workers holding signs in front of the polling places.

"Running scared, Mike," he was asked. "No," he said. "I just like to keep a presence. And I never take anything for granted."

POLITICS, THIRD GENERATION: Tom Bowes, a freshman was recently elected to the Student Council and Student Union at North Quincy High School.

He is the grandson of the late Richard Koch, Sr., a long-time political power and Quincy coordinator for John F. Kennedy.

And the nephew of Tom Koch, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, who was his class president at NQHS and former City Councillor Richard Koch, Jr. And, you might just see his mother, Linda Bowes, in the political arena next year as a city councillor at-large candidate if Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien decided to run at-large.

WWI Veterans Remembrance At Beechwood Center Nov. 12

World War I veterans will be remembered and honored Thursday, Nov. 12 at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston.

A lunch and noontime program is being planned with Wollaston American Legion Post. Members of the American Legion will participate in the remembrances.

John (Jake) Comer of Quincy, past national commander of the American Legion and current executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, and Maurice Reardon, World War II veteran and Patriot Ledger reporter, will be on hand to assist with tributes to the World War I veterans.

For reservations or additional information, call the Center at 471-5712.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor the fastest declining category of job is that of shoe sewing machine operator.

Kramer To Discuss Domestic Violence

Quincy District Court Justice Albert Kramer will speak on "Domestic Violence: Progress and Challenges" Tuesday, Nov. 17 at noon at Quincy Hospital Education Center, McCauley Building, 114

Paul Hunt Keynote Speaker

Veterans Ceremonies Nov. 11

Paul A.M. Hunt, a Marine Corps veteran of World War II and an active member of many veterans organizations, will be the keynote speaker at Quincy's Veterans' Day parade and ceremonies Wednesday, Nov. 11.

Hunt, a local attorney who served as chairman of the Committee for Secret Evacuation of Federal Court Personnel during the Cuban Missile Crisis, will present his address at the Doughboy Statue in front of the Adams Academy following the parade.

The parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. from School St. and proceeds north on Hancock St. to the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

Hunt is a member of major veterans organizations including the American Legion Cyril P. Morrisette Post in West Quincy. He is a past post, county and department commander of the American Legion and current judge advocate and parliamentarian in those three Legion levels, as well as for Quincy Caddy Marine Detachment and George F. Bryan V.F.W. Post. He also teaches parliamentary procedure annually at American Legion College.

PAUL HUNT

Hunt and other former American servicemen made history when they marched with the American Legion through the streets of Moscow in May, 1990, then the USSR's 45th annual Veterans Victory Parade for WWII, the first time for any Western power.

A 1949 graduate of Harvard College and a 1953 graduate of Harvard Law School, Hunt has been a practicing attorney for nearly 40 years. A past president of the Quincy Bar Association, he has served as coordinator for Law Day flag raising for many years.

This past July, he and his wife, the former Barbara McIntyre, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary. They have four children and three grandchildren.

The Veterans' Day parade will be led by Chief Marshal Anthony Wolowicz, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council which is sponsoring the ceremonies.

Joseph Sullivan, commander of the Bryan V.F.W. Post and Veterans Council chaplain, will give the invocation.

Wolowicz will convey the Council's welcome and Mayor James Sheets will extend greetings from the city. Henry P. (Hank) Bradley, past commander of the Quincy Veterans Council and director of the city's Veterans' Services Department, will introduce the guests.

Following Hunt's address, Wolowicz and Gold Star Mothers will place memorial wreaths at the Kennedy Health Center and in front of the Doughboy Statue.

Edwin Boland, chaplain of Morrisette American Legion Post, will offer a prayer.

After the playing of the National Anthem, Richard Henry, past commander of the Nickerson American Legion Post, will deliver the benediction. A volley by the Bryan Post Color Guard will follow.

The ceremonies will also include remarks by Parade Chairman Robert LaFleur, past commander of Quincy Veterans Council.

The parade roster includes Wolowicz; Louis DiMattio, aide to commander, senior vice commander, Quincy Veterans Council (QVC); Arthur LaFleur, junior vice commander, QVC; Joseph Zona, past commander, QVC; Alice Scribner, past commander, QVC; Irving Isaacson, past commander, QVC; Mary H. Timcoe, adjutant, QVC; Paul O'Neill, officer of the day, past commander, QVC; and aides to invited guests Bryant L. Carter, past commander, Wollaston American Legion Post, and Leo Reardon, past commander, QVC.

Aides de Camp include Boland, assistant finance officer, QVC; Robert LaFleur, graves registration officer, QVC; Edward McAllister, sergeant at arms, QVC; and James Niland, past commander, D.A.V. Post 79.

In the event of inclement weather, exercises will be held in the Quincy High School gymnasium. Information will be broadcast by WIDA.

Quincy's Yesterdays Mixed Reaction To Rotary

Testimony was about evenly divided pro and con at a City Council hearing on whether to make permanent the experimental rotary traffic pattern around First Parish Church in Quincy Square.

Speaking against the plan were former Mayors Thomas S. Burgin and Joseph L. Whiton and banker Delcavare King.

Favorable comments were made by Capt. William Ferrazzi, head of the Quincy Traffic Bureau, and William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

Edmonston called it "the greatest improvement in Quincy Center in 20 years, a very great improvement."

"Personally," said Burgin, "I believe a rotary is the solution, not where there are so many pedestrians."

Ferrazzi blamed any traffic congestion in the square on a lack of synchronized traffic lights on Temple St.

"The rotary takes the city out of the horse and buggy stage and makes Quincy a real city," he said.

SEARS SPEAKER

Sen. Mason Sears of Dedham, brother-in-law of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. was the main speaker at Quincy's Armistice Day observance on the Adams Academy grounds.

"If our people appreciate that it will be necessary to wage the peace as hard as we waged the war we are bound to make headway toward the peaceful solution of our many problems," he said.

CUSTODIANS EXEMPTED

The City Council voted to exempt 50 school custodians from the state's 40-hour work week law and return them to the 44-hour week with a guarantee of four hours overtime.

Councillor John B. O'Connor said the 40-hour week would have meant the hiring of eight to 10 new men.

CHURCH MOVING

The Quincy Point Congregational Church received permission to move its 110-year-old building a quarter of a mile down Washington St. to become part of new church building at the corner of Abbey St.

It was estimated that the move would save $35,000 in construction costs.

Quincy Teens Need Your Help

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Our society is witnessing a growing number of youth involved in violent crimes and abuse of alcohol and other drugs. We need to provide our youth with positive alternatives. This is why a grass roots committee made up of dedicated parents, students and community activists has been working to establish neighborhood youth centers in our city.

Our goal is to encourage positive alternatives by providing an alcohol, drug and violence free setting. To achieve this goal, we hope to set up youth centers that will serve our teens with a safe and attractive place to socialize with their friends. To do this, we need your help. Our target population is middle school-aged teens but all Quincy teens are welcome.

Our committee has developed goals and specifics of how to reach those goals. A local law office is donating all fees and their expertise necessary for us to become an IRS non-profit tax exempt organization. We also have several applications to apply for grant and foundation funding. We have established a school community partnership link that has won the support of our mayor, our superintendent, community service organizations and many city officials. We hope to foster a sense of commitment to individual and self respect, acceptance of responsibility, and sensitivity to ethnic, social and cultural diversity plus develop a sense of civic responsibility and community activism in our youth.

High school students volunteering to work on the committee or at the youth center will receive training through workshops on substance abuse, violence prevention, and conflict resolution. They will receive community service credit at their schools through existing high school organizations. We will be hiring a program director to manage the day by day operation and are looking for young adults or college age people as supervisors.

We plan to have a mandatory prerequisite contract which all teens must agree to before they can become members, one that states they will be alcohol and substance free and refrain from violence. We have proposed photo membership identification cards that will allow members to receive discounts at local businesses. In turn, local businesses will be contributing to creating productive citizens and the opportunity to increase their profits. Result: Everyone Wins!

In order to make this a reality we need your help. If you are interested in assisting us, whether it be your time, a donation, working on fundraisers, networking, filling out applications or other functions, please call JoAnn Bragg at 471-3822 or Judy Lyons at 773-1553.

Is Anyone Listening?

Editor, The Quincy Sun: In the musical drama "1776," a dispatch from George Washington was sent to the Continental Congress. The Continental Army's condition was very depressing to say the least, and the general had sent several dispatches for some sort of help from the Congress. He received nothing and heard nothing in response to his many dispatches.

One dispatch that General Washington sent the Congress, and John Adams repeated over and over, ended with this line: "Is anyone listening? Does anyone care? Is anyone there?"

In a like manner, the taxpayers of Quincy have been sending messages to our City Government. It makes no difference if they are business people or residents; their situation is the same. Their financial situation is very depressing, to say the least. These taxpayers have all been saying to government--do not increase the real estate tax. Yet this year's budget has increased by 6 million dollars plus, and our City Council has announced that because of this, there is another real estate tax on the way!

In the last two years, Quincy's budget to run our local government has increased by nearly $120 million. Of the $124 million budget for this year, our City Council cut a mere $86,000, and that only represents a cut of .0007%! As a result, Quincy's government intends to pick the pockets of all owners of real estate, whether they be business or residents once again. "Is anyone listening? Does anyone care? Is anyone there?"

Baked Fish With Spuds

When my brother John and sister-in-law Anita invite us to a buffet at their home, there is always some new dish prepared by them to write about. This time, the entree is a seafood one topped with potatoes and one which drew the most raves.

JOHN'S BAKED FISH WITH SPUDS

- 1 1/2 Lbs Haddock or Cod
- 1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
- 3 Tbsps olive oil
- 1/4 cup white cooking wine
- 2 large potatoes

- 1 cup chicken stock
- 2 Tbsps margerine

Peel and cut the potatoes like potato chips, dredge in the olive oil until coated. Place on a cookie sheet under the broiler until lightly browned.

Mix the bread crumbs, the margerine and wine together. In a casserole dish, place the fish, add the chicken broth and the bread crumb mixture. Place the broiled potatoes over the top. Bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven for about 20 minutes. It can be served hot or at room temperature.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wiltshire of Quincy recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

A surprise party was held at the Imperial Terrace in Quincy and hosted by the couple's three children, Judith Bevilacqua of Quincy, Robert E. Wiltshire Jr. of Carver and Stephen Wiltshire of Quincy; and two daughters-in-law, Margaret Wiltshire of Carver and Kathleen Wiltshire of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Babbitt of Largo, Fla. were among the guests. Mr. Babbitt was an usher in the original wedding party. Several guests from Connecticut also attended.

Mrs. Wiltshire is the former Beulah Babbitt. The couple was married Oct. 9, 1942 in Central Baptist Church in Quincy.

Mrs. Wiltshire has worked for several restaurants in the Quincy area and is currently employed at McDonald's on Southern Artery.

Mr. Wiltshire, a retired firefighter, served with the Quincy Fire Department for 32 years.

They also have eight grandchildren.

MR. and MRS. JOHN OUTERBRIDGE, JR.
(McIntyre Studio)

Julie Bates Wed To John Outerbridge, Jr.

Julie Ann Bates, daughter of Mr. Richard Bates of Braintree, was recently married to John Outerbridge, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Outerbridge, Sr., of North Quincy.

A double ring ceremony was conducted at First Congregational Church, Braintree, and was officiated by the Rev. William Harding, III. A reception followed at the Braintree D.A.V. Club.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Robin Wynot of Braintree served as Matron of Honor for her sister.

Bridesmaids were Suzanne Moscardelli of Braintree, Terri Ruane of Taunton, Maria Amico of Avon, Cheryl Wallace of Weymouth, sister-in-law, and Carol Demaree of Framingham, sister-in-law of the groom.

Cristen Demaree and Lauren Demaree, both of Framingham, nieces of the groom, served as junior bridesmaids.

Jaimie Wynot and Diana Wynot, both of Braintree, nieces of the bride, served as flower girls.

John Bursey of Quincy served as Best Man.

Ushers were Bob Kozlowski, Matt Higgins, Rob Reidy and Dominic Camillo, all of Quincy, and Kevin Hourihan of Marshfield.

The bride is a graduate of Braintree High School and is employed at United Liquors Ltd., West Bridgewater.

The groom is a graduate of North Quincy High School and is employed by Outerbridge Repair Service, North Quincy.

Following a wedding trip to Disney World, Orlando, Fla., the couple are residing in Quincy.

Martin Anderson Celebrates 100th Birthday

Martin Anderson, a native of Cranch Street, Quincy Center, celebrated his 100th birthday Oct. 2 at a surprise reception, dinner and dance in Deerfield Beach, Fla.

Vivien and Harry Reid, formerly of Quincy, organized the event to honor their uncle. Family members from around the country, including Massachusetts, Ohio, Georgia and Florida, and many friends from the Deerfield Beach area attended.

Anderson's younger sisters, Martha Reid and Eleanor Anderson, who still reside in the family homestead on Cranch St., flew to Florida to take part.

Anderson worked as a joiner at the Fore River Shipyard during World War I. He later worked for Western Electric in New Jersey until retiring.

He proudly says that he has lived more years in retirement than he had worked. He only recently stopped regular participation in golf tournaments and points out that he hit a hole-in-one at the age of 87.

Anderson is proud of his Swedish heritage as well as his Quincy roots. He is also quick to point out that he hails from "Quincy, Massachusetts, the City of Presidents." He delights in providing biographical insights into the lives of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Anderson's wife, Irene, died in 1975. They had one child who died young of a heart ailment.

Nevertheless, his nieces and nephews and their families provide a caring network for this senior member of the family.

Six Firefighters To Be Honored At Retirement Banquet Tonight

Six Quincy firefighters who have more than 200 years of combined service to the department will be honored at the 35th annual Quincy Fire Retirement Banquet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Morrisette American Legion Post, West Quincy.

Recent retired firefighters who will be honored are:

Lt. Walter F. Clare, 37 years of service, 1955-1992; Lt. William F. Connelly, 40 years, 1952-92; Lt. Roy F. Rizzi, 38 years, 1954-92; Firefighter James A. Donovan, 35 years, 1957-92; Firefighter

John Dwyer, 30 years, 1962-92; and Firefighter Frederic Santoro, 22 years, 1970-92.

Together, six retirees represent a combined 202 years of service to the department and the city.

In addition, Firefighter John Davies, who remains active with the department, will receive recognition for 25 years of service.

All active and retired members of the Quincy Fire Department are encouraged to attend. For further information call the "fire prevention office" at 376-1015.

THE QUINCY JEWISH War Veterans Post's 42nd annual Citizen of the Year, Joseph Finn (second from right), was honored Sunday at a Beth Israel Synagogue breakfast for his work as executive director of the Interfaith Shelter Coalition and Fr. Bill's Place. Presenting the award is Past Commander Irving Isaacson, program chairman. With them are, from left, Rabbi Matthew Cutler, Commander Bertrand Shaffer and Fr. William McCarthy, pastor St. John's Church, a past recipient of the award and for whom Fr. Bill's Place is named.

Quincy Residents Rake In Savings

Announcing Quincy's 2nd Annual Leaf Composting Program — And, we want your help. Why?

Last
Year

We composted over 2,500 tons of leaves, and saved over $200,000 of your tax dollars.

This
Year

We hope to hit 3,000 tons, and save over $243,000.

How can you help?

It's as easy as 1, 2, 3...

1

Rake your leaves.

2

Bag them.

We recommend using the paper leaf composting bags sold at most stores. They're big, easy-to-fill, recyclable and biodegradable.

Plastic bags aren't great — but, we'll take them.

Bag only leaves, twigs and grass clippings. No trash. No large branches.

3

Put them on the curb with your trash.

Just separate them from your trash and recyclables, so we know which bags are which!

Thanks for your help!

Program Runs October 26 thru December 4

Ayers To Hold Office Hours In Atlantic, Squantum

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers will conduct office hours at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center and the Squantum Community Association.

Ayers will meet with constituents on the first Thursday of each month from 7 to 8:30 p.m. He will alternate between the two locations each month.

Thursday, Nov. 5, he will be at the Atlantic

Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St. and Thursday, Dec. 3, he will be at the Squantum Community Center, 139 Standish Road.

To schedule an appointment call Ayers at 472-9877. Walk-in meetings are also available.

City May Sue Firm Conducting Police Dept. Accreditation Review

The city may enter into a lawsuit against the company that is performing the accreditation review of the Quincy Police Department.

The company, Commission on Accreditation Law Enforcement Association, of Virginia, recently notified the police department that it is changing the terms of payment for the accreditation process.

Police Chief Francis Mullen told the City Council Monday that the city had agreed to pay half of the fee up front (back in Aug. 1987) and would pay the other half upon completion of the review.

CALEA wants the remaining balance paid in three installments, including an immediate payment and another payment prior to their final visit to the department.

City Solicitor Steve McGrath told the Council that CALEA's demand would be a breach of contract.

"There is no reason for us (Quincy) to agree with their request for additional payment at this point," McGrath said. "We should hold them to the original contract."

McGrath said he would notify CALEA in writing of the city's position this week. He said the city will sue CALEA if the firm breaches the original contract.

Lt. Thomas Frane told the Council that the accreditation process is nearly complete.

"We have come into compliance with the 908 standards and are using the rest of this year to document them," Frane said.

Council Objects Bus Routes Cut By MBTA

City Councillors strongly objected Monday to the MBTA's proposed cuts of bus routes in Quincy.

The Council approved a resolve urging the MBTA to hold any public hearings on its proposal in Quincy.

The T has announced it may cut one-third of its bus routes in Quincy including route #245 which runs from Mattapan to Quincy Center via Quincy Hospital.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he has notified MBTA general manager John Haley of his opposition. DeCristofaro and other councillors stated that Quincy has a large senior citizen population which depends on bus transportation.

Route #245 is the only route which passes by the hospital and people who use public transportation would have to walk up a steep hill (Whitwell Street) to get to the hospital from the closest bus stops on Adams Street and Granite Street.

The cut would impact patients, staff and volunteers who use public transportation.

DeCristofaro said residents who wish to voice their opposition should contact Haley at The Transportation Building, 10 Park Plaza, Room 3910, Boston, 02116.

THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER HIGHLIGHTS AMERICAN EDUCATION

Did you know that Catholic Schools are an 11 Billion dollar gift to this Nation? Did you know that at present the public school drop out rate is 14% compared to the Catholic Schools 3.4%? Catholic Schools have higher overall scores in all academic areas and cost $3,142 less per student to educate.

Celebrate the education of your child. Give him/her the very best education possible.

Saint Joseph School in Quincy offers a quality academic program, extra curriculum programs, basketball, volleyball, floor hockey, cheerleading and chorus, plus a very active "After School Care Program," plus Foreign languages, Family Life and computer instruction, Art and physical education.

SAINT JOSEPH SCHOOL QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS

"We believe in children and their ability to creatively shape the future."

ST. JOSEPH SCHOOL

History

St. Joseph School was established in 1927 to teach Catholic children from the parish and from surrounding areas where no Catholic school is available.

A coeducational school, St. Joseph School includes eight grades and a full day kindergarten and has been fully accredited through the Archdiocese of Boston.

All faculty members are teachers who hold State of Massachusetts credentials.

More than 1200 students have graduated from St. Joseph School. Almost all have gone on to studies in higher education, or plan to do so and now some of them are enrolling their own children in St. Joseph School.

Philosophy

The philosophy of St. Joseph School is one whose goal is to create awareness and concern for the quality of life in our students. In order to achieve this goal we strive to provide the best learning experiences so that they may develop as total persons; physically, mentally, emotionally, psychologically, and above all, spiritually.

Acceptance into St. Joseph School is based on the following: a) members of the parish have preference; b) a test may be administered to determine the student's strengths and weaknesses; c) parents must agree to support the spiritual and academic standards of the school actively; d) approval of the pastor and the principal is required; e) students of any race, color and ethnic origin are entitled to access to all programs, privileges, rights and activities available to the school.

Tuition and Fees

Information regarding tuition and fees can be obtained by calling the school office. Tuition is based upon the operational cost per student.

Registration fee of $25.00 is required at the time of registration and is not refundable.

Administration

Saint Joseph School is administered by the Archdiocese of Boston Superintendent of Schools, Sister Ann Dominic, OOP; Father Daniel Graham, Pastor of St. Joseph School; Sister Anne Judge, SND, Principal of St. Joseph School and the School Board.

Our "Faith Community" of priests, faculty, staff, parents and students, encourage each other to build a better world. We realize the necessity of learning and understanding the basic beliefs and doctrines of our Faith and the importance of applying these in the spirit of Christian living.

Teaching as Jesus did, we are constantly adapting our curriculum and methods to meet the needs of the changing times and students needs.

Jesus Christ, His person, His message, His vision and His values are the foundation of the school.

At Saint Joseph School we support parents as the primary educators in the total development of their children. We believe each student's unique and total development occurs only through and with the cooperative efforts of parents, students, and educators actively engaged in building a Christ centered community.

Curriculum

Our curricula are subject matters disciplines taught with an integrated approach using life experience as the core elements for concept development. Skill areas are then taught to apply, verify, clarify, and extend those concepts to the student's life beyond.

After School Care

Most recent addition is our very active "After School Program."

Students may remain until 5:30 five days a week. The program consists of Snack time, Play time, Arts & Crafts, Supervised study time and Story time.

Program is under the direction of Mrs. Pamela Lueck assisted by Mrs. Kathleen McLaughlin both teachers at the school. Cost to parents for week is $20.00. Only stipulation is that children are students at the school.

Subject Matter Disciplines

- Religion
- Math
- Language Arts
- Social Studies
- Science
- Health
- Art
- Music
- Physical Education

Special Programs

- French
- Computer Science
- Family Life Education
- Leadership Training through student government
- Health screening Science fairs
- Cultural arts activities
- After school sports
- Achievement testing and placement
- On-site full time counselor
- Instrumental music, Arts and Crafts, and Drama
- Chapter I Tutorial Program
- Human Development/Human Sexuality

Admissions

A child who is five years of age by December 31 may be admitted into kindergarten. A child who is six years of age by December 31 may be admitted into first grade.

No registration will be accepted without baptismal verification and birth certificate. Transfer students are to bring their report cards, health records and transcripts from the previous school.

OBITUARIES

Francis X. Dunphy, 63

Founded Dunphy Construction

A funeral Mass for Francis X. Dunphy, 63, of Quincy, was celebrated Oct. 31 in St. Mary's Church.

Mr. Dunphy died Oct. 27 at University Hospital in Boston after a brief illness.

Owner and founder of Dunphy Construction and Dunphy Home Inspections Service, he was a licensed builder in Quincy and a licensed construction supervisor for Boston and the State of Massachusetts. He operated Dunphy Construction for 45 years.

He served on the board of examiners for the Quincy Building Department and was a member of the Quincy Conservation Board. He was also the clerk of the Home Depot Monitoring Committee in Quincy.

Born in Boston, he lived in Milton before moving to Quincy.

A graduate of Milton High School, he attended Thayer Academy in Braintree and Newman Preparatory School in Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Marion M. (Baier) Dunphy; three sons, Mark P. Dunphy of Brockton, Michael F. Dunphy of Wareham and Kurt F. Dunphy of San Francisco, Calif.; two daughters, Michelle M. A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Veteran's Day is a time to honor all the men and women who performed the highest obligation of their citizenship - active service in the defense of their country in time of war. This day also calls for a universal expression of dedication to the cause of peace with honor throughout the world.

For a Veteran's Day thought we suggest you read the Preamble To The American Legion Constitution. It explains what Americanism is all about...

FOR GOD AND COUNTRY, WE ASSOCIATE OURSELVES TOGETHER FOR THE FOLLOWING PURPOSES: TO UPHOLD AND DEFEND THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA; TO MAINTAIN LAW AND ORDER; TO FOSTER AND PERPETUATE A ONE HUNDRED PERCENT AMERICANISM; TO PRESERVE THE MEMORIES AND INCIDENTS OF OUR ASSOCIATION IN THE GREAT WARS; TO INCULCATE A SENSE OF INDIVIDUAL OBLIGATION TO THE COMMUNITY, STATE AND NATION; TO COMBAT THE AUTOCRACY OF BOTH THE CLASSES AND MASSES; TO MAKE RIGHT THE MASTER OF MIGHT; TO PROMOTE PEACE AND GOOD WILL ON EARTH; TO SAFEGUARD AND TRANSMIT TO POSTERITY THE PRINCIPLES OF JUSTICE, FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY; TO CONSECRATE AND SANCTIFY OUR COMRADESHIP BY OUR DEVOTION TO MUTUAL HELPFULNESS.

Presidents Eye 4th Win Against Lakers

The Quincy football team, winless in its first four games, has come back roaring and last Friday night defeated Falmouth, 28-14, at Falmouth, for its third win in a row to improve its record to 3-3-1.

The Presidents will go for their fourth in a row Saturday when they host Silver Lake in a 2 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Lakers come in with only a 1-6 record but have shown in some games they can score. Their only win was over Falmouth, 28-26, while they lost to Duxbury, 28-6; Weymouth, 35-0; New Bedford, 41-0; Barnstable, 30-22; Taunton, 28-16; and North Quincy last week, 28-16.

"I think we are finally in a groove and have played well both ways the last three weeks," Quincy coach Jack Raymer said. "We are playing like we should have been all year and Mike Bartlett's great improvement at quarterback has been a key to our success. He has been passing well and playing great defense and Dave Bogan and Noel DiBona have run consistently well. The defense has been outstanding and the offensive line has been doing a fine job."

Quincy Season Scoring

	TD	PAT	Pts.
DiBona	4	14	38
Kane	5	0	30
Bogan	4	0	24
Clifford	2	0	12
McArdle	1	0	6

Bartlett was 6-for-14 for 136 yards and two more touchdowns, giving him seven touchdown passes in the last three games and eight for the season. He also had one called back by a penalty.

Bogan ran for 90 yards and DiBona had a remarkable two-way game. He ran for 75 yards, scoring a touchdown, kicked four extra points, played fine defense, had two pass interceptions and his kickoffs were consistently long and put Falmouth in bad field position.

"They caught us at the start with a 77-yard scoring run on the second play from scrimmage, but the kids came right back and dominated the game," Raymer said.

another outstanding game on offense with five pass receptions and a touchdown.

On defense, Raymer had good words for Jason Bennett, Feeley, Holmes ("He had an outstanding game."), Jeff Burrell, Paul Colleary, John Green, Steve Provost, Ashley Davis, Bartlett and Kane.

Following Chris MacDonald's 77-yard run to give the Clippers an early lead, Quincy bounced right back.

Bartlett hit Kane for 55 yards and Kane scored from the six. DiBona kicked the first of his four extra points.

Bartlett passed to McArdle for 15 yards and the second touchdown and, on a bootleg and he also with DiBona's PAT, the Presidents led, 14-6, at halftime.

Quincy took the second half kickoff and scored on a 37-yard pass from Bartlett to Brian Clifford. DiBona added the PAT.

With 2:48 left in the game Falmouth scored when Joe Kelly went over Falmouth tried an onside kick but Quincy recovered on Falmouth's 39. Two plays later DiBona raced 32 yards for the touchdown and kicked the final point of the game. --TOM SULLIVAN

Youth Football

Panthers, Apaches In Title Showdown Sunday

The first place Quincy Point Panthers and runnerup North Quincy Apaches will meet for the Quincy Youth Football League championship Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The teams finished up with impressive victories in the final regular season games last Sunday.

The Panthers defeated the West Quincy Elks, 16-0, and the Apaches topped the Houghs Neck Manets, 24-0.

The Panthers opened the scoring at the start of the second quarter. Carmen Lorenzano completed a 30-yard pass to Joe Mariano, and Steve Roberts rushed for the first touchdown and Lorenzano passed to Mariano for the two-point conversion.

In the third quarter the Panthers' defense drove the Elks back deep into their own territory. Brad Smith and Josh Mahoney sacked the quarterback in the end zone for a safety as the Panthers widened their lead to 10-0.

In the final quarter the Lorenzano to Mariano combine clicked again for a touchdown and the final 16-0 score.

Smith was outstanding both ways for the Panthers.

In the Apaches-Manets game the Manets controlled the ball in the opening quarter but were forced to punt and at the start of the second quarter the Apaches staged a long drive with Shaun Donovan scoring from the eight-yard line. Quarterback Jim Finn rushed for the two-point conversion.

The Apache defense dominated the line of scrimmage and frustrated the Manet offense for the rest of the game. At the half the Apaches led, 8-0.

In the third quarter Brian Walsh scored on a 30-yard run and Finn passed to Donovan for the two-point conversion.

Walsh made a spectacular 60-yard touchdown run in the final quarter, shaking off several Manet defenders. Finn again passed to Donovan for the game's final two points.

Mike Mastrocola, Jim Keyes, Chris Halpin and Charlie Plaskasovitis played strong defense for the Apaches.

Prior to Sunday's title game the annual cheerleading competition will be held at 1 o'clock.

Sinclair's Return Boosts Raiders Attack

By TOM SULLIVAN

The undefeated North Quincy football team's passing game was shutdown, but the Red Raiders exploded with a furious three-way ground game to defeat Silver Lake, 28-16, last Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium to improve to 7-0 and will have a four-pronged running attack this week.

North travels to Bridgewater's Legion Field for a 2 o'clock game Saturday with defending Old Colony League champion Bridgewater-Raynham. Mark Sinclair will be back offensively for the first time since the second game to team up with sophomore Shawn Nee, Josh Gott and Sean Skahan to give the Trojans plenty to worry about.

B-R has had a disappointing season and has a 2-4-1 record with wins over Canton, 14-0; and Plymouth, 21-14; a tie with Quincy, 14-14; and losses to B.C. High, 26-12; Falmouth, 11-10; Barnstable, 38-30; and last week Weymouth, 8-7.

"When we lost Sinclair (over 200 yards gained in the first two games) I was worried about our running game," North coach Ken McPhee said.

"We had lost a lot of players from last year's 8-2 team and we had a lot of question marks. Little did I realize that Nee, Gott and Skahan would come along and give us such a solid ground game. They all have improved each week and right now we can run with any team.

North Season Scoring

	TD	PAT	FG	Pts.
Higgins	2	8	1	23
Shea	3	0	0	18
Duncan	2	2	0	14
J. Gott	2	2	0	14
Raftery	2	0	0	12
Reinhart	2	0	0	12
Skahan	2	0	0	12
Nee	2	0	0	12
Sinclair	1	2	0	8
Nguyen	0	1	0	1

"Frankly, I am surprised at our 7-0 record. I felt we would be about .500 at this time but our defense has been remarkable and has carried us. Liam Higgins has had a great year passing (nine TD passes) and our running game has been outstanding."

In the win over the Lakers North's passing game was halted and McPhee stuck to the ground. Higgins was only 3-for-8 for 43 yards.

But the Red Raiders had 375 yards on the ground with Gott carrying 18 times for 143 yards, Nee 14 times for 124 yards and Skahan 13 times for 98 yards.

Silver Lake had 177 yards on the ground, including an 81-yard touchdown run by Mike Feroli (eight rushes for 110 yards), and Rich Sanda was 5-for-8 for 93 yards.

"I can't say enough for our offensive line, which opened up the holes for Gott, Nee and Skahan," said McPhee, who had words of praise for Nick Mastrogiacommo, Dave Pacino, Justin Dilks, Mike Linnane, Peter Licciardi, Brian Raftery and Dave Reinhart.

"Defensively, Reinhart was again amazing," said McPhee. "He has had a tremendous season and had two more sacks, giving him 16 for the season. Sean Halpin and Raftery at linebacker were terrific and Nathan Gott (two interceptions) and Sean Herron (one) were standouts in a makeshift secondary. Gott also had eight tackles and a fumble recovery.

Although Higgins' passing game was taken away, he called a fine game.

The Lakers were stopped on their first possession and North staged a 10-play, 88-yard drive for its first score on its first possession.

Nee got it started with a 37-yard run and climaxed the drive by scoring from the six. Higgins kicked the extra point.

Gott came up with his first interception on the Lakers' second play from scrimmage following the kickoff. Skahan raced 36 yards for the second TD and Higgins' kick for the extra point was wide.

Higgins punted to the Silver Lake 10 and on the second play, Feroli broke loose and raced 81 yards for the touchdown. Sanda passed to Feroli for the two-point conversion and North's lead was cut to 13-8 at halftime.

North took the second half kickoff and marched 58 yards in eight plays with Skahan scoring from the five. Gott scored the two-point conversion and the Raiders led, 21-8.

Herron's pass interception set up North's next touchdown as he returned it to the Laker 42.

Nee, Skahan and Gott alternated to bring North to

Clinton In Landslide ... At Lincoln-Hancock School

In tune with the rest of the nation, students at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School voted overwhelmingly for Gov. Bill Clinton in a mock presidential election Tuesday.

In fact, it was a Lincoln-Hancock landslide for Clinton as he polled 254 votes or 49.9 percent, easily outdistancing incumbent President George Bush and Independent challenger H. Ross Perot. Bush barely finished second as he received 130 votes or 25.5 percent. Perot polled 125 votes or 24.5 percent, nearly dropping the president to third place.

A total of 509 students in kindergarten through grade five turned out for the mock election. The voting was divided into two precincts, Precincts 2 and 3. Third grade teacher Eve Powell presided over Precinct 2. Precinct 3 voting was overseen by fifth grade teacher Maureen Duggan.

Besides acting as voters, students carried out other election day duties. Some checked off student names like election clerks while others helped assist students cast votes into the ballot box.

In addition, some students portrayed presidential and vice presidential candidates on Tuesday's ballot and appealed for votes before students in all the classrooms.

After the two-hour voting period, students were told of the results. Clinton carried both precincts with 107 votes in Precinct 2 and 147 in Precinct 3.

Bush finished second in Precinct 2 with 85

STUDENT DECISION '92: Nicholas Davenport, right, a fifth grade student at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, casts his ballot in the school's mock presidential election Tuesday. Students overwhelmingly preferred Gov. Bill Clinton to be the next president of the United States over George Bush and H. Ross Perot. Looking on are, from left, student election workers Kristen Beach and Nicole Leone, and fellow voters Elaine Kwong and Michael Raffano, all fifth graders.

LINCOLN-HANCOCK Community School students held a mock presidential election Tuesday, complete with students portraying presidential and vice presidential candidates. Fifth grade students participating in the election are, standing from left, Kaitlyn McLaughlin (Al Gore); Catharine Castelli (Bill Clinton); Carolann Ochon (Al Gore); Angel Catino (Ross Perot); Jessica Kearney (Ross Perot); Kristi Coyne (Retired Admiral James Stockdale); Kristen Hurley (Bill Clinton); Andy Tam (George Bush); and sitting, voter Chris O'Connell.

votes but third in Precinct 3 with only 45.

Perot finished in third place in Precinct 2 with 54 votes but outpolled Bush in Precinct 3 with 71 votes.

Duggan said the students were thrilled with the mock election. "One little girl came up to me afterward and said, 'thank you so much for working on this topic,'" Duggan said.

Students learned about the democratic process through class room study. Third and fifth grade students were also visited recently by Rep. Ron Mariano who discussed elections with them.

people, talking to people, learning about their concerns and their issues. We talked the issues at coffee hours, door to door, I attended every forum, accepted any invitation to speak on the radio or debates, didn't miss one, answered questionnaires. We ran a campaign discussing the issues and talking to families across the district."

As far as priorities for his next term, Marshall said, "I think there are a couple of major things. One is to get the new jail up and running well. Number two is to continue to address the drug and alcohol abuse problems of the young people and people in general in our communities in terms of drug and alcohol awareness."

"Number three is we're working right now with three communities on a pilot project on crime and the elderly, talking about scams and issues and ways to address the awareness of elderly citizens and what they should do when approached and so on.

"And I think obviously the fourth one is going to be to continue the issue of overcrowding and the question of overcrowding and what to do with the old Dedham jail on Village Avenue. That remains empty today; we're almost at capacity now in the new facility which is kind of what we projected and that's going to be an issue that's going to have to be addressed by the governor and the legislative branch as well as the people.

Final returns were tallied by 11:42 p.m.

Results in Quincy are: President/Vice President Bush/Quayle—12,296; Clinton/Gore—18,879; Perot/Stockdale—9,063. All other candidates received less than 1 percent.

Security Tips For Small Business

Businesses can reduce their vulnerability to crime in many ways. Measures such as locks, alarms and good lighting make any establishment a less attractive target for criminals. A major ally is your local police department, it's officers can conduct a free security survey and give advice on alarm systems and other security devices. Community service and involvement are important safeguards against crime. Customers and neighbors who view a business as a valued resource to the community will watch out for its property and employees.

Employees and Crime:

Employees can help you to be profitable or can hurt you through waste, inattention to customers, or stealing. You must set the example for honesty and develop clear policies regarding security and theft.

- Develop and advise all employees of inventory control procedures. All merchandise entering and exiting your premises should be accounted for.

- Screen employees carefully before hiring them. Check their backgrounds to be sure they have not been fired for behavior you find dangerous or unacceptable. A Polaroid photo will help police in any investigation that involves a dishonest employee.

- Train employees in proper cash handling and security measures. Set policy regarding cash on hand and stick to it.

- Research shows that employees steal from businesses that are impersonal and lack clear policies. Show employees you care about them and their property.

- Provide a clean orderly work environment with secure places for their personal property.

A satisfied employee can be the first line of defense against crime in your business.

Finishing Touches For Quincy Center Project

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The finishing touches are being put on the Quincy Center reconstruction project this week.

The $800,000 project is expected to be finished on time and within budget by the contractor, Derbes Brothers of Quincy.

More of the black, historic-style lamps are being installed and this part of the project should be complete. So far, 10 new lights have been erected and 24 more will go up by the end of next week.

Coincidentally, maintenance on the "old" lights, installed last year, will also be done with bulbs replaced and the globes cleaned.

Also, 100 trees have been planted along Hancock St. between School and Granite St.'s and on Revere Road, Cottage Ave., Granite St. and at the entrance to the Ross Parkingway.

A variety of trees including pears, Honey Locust, London Planes and Zelkovas have been planted. The tree types were selected specifically for size and shape to blend aesthetically with nearby buildings.

Placement of parking and traffic signs will also be completed by next week. In addition, touch-up improvements on the sidewalk brick work will also be made. Some of the bricks were damaged by vehicles while construction was underway.

A 100-foot traffic island on Granite Street is also complete. The island prevents motorists leaving the Parkingway from making an illegal left turn onto Granite.

Traffic signalization work is also close to completion. Traffic signals at the intersection of Granite and Hancock Streets will be adjusted Saturday. The work is being done to improve the flow of traffic through Quincy Center.

DPW engineer Lester Gerry said he is pleased the project will be finished before the target date of Nov. 17.

"The city would like to thank all the business owners for their patience and understanding during the project," Gerry said.

Sheets: 'We'll Carry It As Far As We Can'

City Still Fights To Keep State Ed. Dept. Here

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets and the city's legislative delegation have asked the inspector general to review the bidding process which led to the state's selection of Malden as the future headquarters of the Department of Education.

But a decision on whether the selection process will be thrown out and a new process conducted remains to be seen. Inspector General Robert Cerasoli declined to comment on the review Tuesday.

"We'll consider the request just like any other and respond to it," Asked when he hoped to reach a decision, Cerasoli said, "I'm not in a position to say. I have people looking at it."

Last month, the state Department of Planning and Capital Operations selected Malden from among nine proposals on a 10-year lease. Quincy submitted the lowest bid at $13.75 per square foot. The Malden bid came in at $13.95 per square foot.

DCPO Commissioner said the Malden location provides the best combination of price and suitability to the agency's needs.

The lease at the two-year-old Malden Corporate Center will cost the state $1,046,847 a year. Over 10 years, the Malden office will cost $155,970 more than the Quincy site, according to DCPO Spokeswoman Roseanne Pawelek.

The Malden office offers 75,000 square feet of space on three contiguous floors. The Quincy proposal, submitted by the Hancock Street Coalition, offered the same space but involved three downtown buildings—the Hancock Plaza (former Remick's department store), and two adjoining buildings.

The state's decision delivered a setback for city officials who sought to keep the DOE and its 428 employees in Quincy. The department's lease at the Quincy Center Plaza building will expire next April. The move will allow Stop and Shop to expand its corporate headquarters in the building.

Sheets criticized the decision and called the bid and selection process flawed and unfair. After the DCPO's decision, Sheets and the city's legislative delegation wrote a letter to Cerasoli asking him to review the decision process and to determine whether the decision was made in the state's best interest.

Sheets said he believes there was an effort by the state to first bypass Quincy and Malden and move to Boston, despite higher lease rates in the Hub. He noted that on Sept. 21, the Board of Education sent a letter to the DCPO stating it preferred to move to Boston. At the time, the board cited Boston's accessibility and the need to be closer to other state agencies.

In addition, the mayor said Education Commissioner Bob Antonucci told him and State Senator-elect Michael Morrissey that he preferred Boston first, Quincy second and Malden third for the site of the new DOE.

Upon learning that request, Quincy officials vowed to fight the move to Boston. By doing so, Sheets said Quincy "muddled the waters" and ultimately led to the state's selection of Malden.

"Clearly they were

Waiting For Mullen Recommendation Sheets To Fire Police Officer On Lewdness Charges

Mayor James Sheets and Police Chief Francis Mullen said they agree a Quincy police officer arrested for open and gross lewdness, indecent exposure and two counts of disorderly conduct in Marshfield last Friday should be dismissed from the force.

Patrolman Wayne P. MacDonald, 33, of Hull, was arrested after he allegedly followed a Marshfield school bus, exposed himself to two students at a bus stop and held up signs that encouraged students to expose themselves. Police said the incident occurred in Marshfield on Oct. 28.

MacDonald pleaded innocent in Plymouth District Court after his arrest Friday. He was released on $2,000 cash bail after his arraignment, police said.

This is the second time MacDonald has faced sexual misconduct charges. In May, he was charged with making obscene telephone calls to a female neighbor in Hull. In pleaded innocent at his arraignment in June and is scheduled to appear in Hingham District court for a pre-conference trial Nov. 18.

After the May incident,

MacDonald was placed on administrative leave. He was reinstated in July after a psychological evaluation determined he did not represent a threat to the community.

After his release Friday, MacDonald placed on paid administrative leave under state law.

Civil Service laws prohibit MacDonald's outright firing because the alleged incident occurred while the patrolman was not on duty. However, Police Chief Francis Mullen said he will recommend MacDonald's dismissal pending the

Committee Finalizing First Night Activities

Quincy's First Night Committee is finalizing arrangements for all indoor entertainment for the city's inaugural First Night celebration on New Year's Eve, announces Committee Chairman Michael T. Cheney.

"It is the feeling of the First Night Committee that the wide variety of family entertainment being offered will appeal to people of all ages," Cheney said.

Some 200 local performing and non-performing arts are expected to entertain at 16 locations in Quincy City to help residents ring in 1993.

A sampling of entertainment includes: storytelling utilizing creative movement and colorful props to engage children in an educational, hands-on, fun-filled experience; the Ashmont Boys Choir; ensembles of local artists presenting Cole Porter through Phantom of the Opera; jazz, Dixieland, country western, jugglers, ballroom dancing, reggae music, Chinese folk dancing and Irish step dancers.

The streets will also come alive with clowns, jugglers, comedians, magic shows, a musical petting zoo, "First Night with the First Ladies," karaoke and more.

More specific details for outdoor events will be announced at a later date.

Cheney said admission to all entertainment and festivities will be through a First Night button. The cost of the button will be discounted to $6 until Dec. 25. After Dec. 25, the cost will go to $10.

Buttons will be distributed to local stores and be on sale by Nov. 27, Cheney said. Stop and Shop was among the first major retailers to sign up for button distribution.

"I would like to thank all the members of the First Night committee who have volunteered their time over the past 10 months and who have done an outstanding job throughout the planning process," Cheney said.

Mayor James Sheets is honorary chairman of the event and has supported the festival through the coordination of support services from various city departments and through his involvement in a number of sponsorship presentations.

More than 100 volunteers have signed up to assist on New Year's Eve. However, more are needed.

Cheney said volunteers are expected to donate only four hours of service. There are many areas where help is needed, including door monitors, dressing in costume, working at the First Night store or multi-cultural food festive, making banners or helping with face painting and mask making.

Anyone wishing to volunteer should contact Peg Nigro at 471-1336 or Rosemary Nolan at the City Council Office at 376-1341.

The First Night Committee extends an invitation to all to attend the non-alcoholic, family orientated celebration of the arts on New Year's Eve with their families and friends.

Missing Watertown Man Reportedly Seen Here

A 31-year-old Watertown man missing for more than a month has reportedly been seen in Quincy and the mother of the missing man is requesting that any information on her son's whereabouts be forwarded to local authorities.

Joan Wardell said three people have claimed to have seen her son Robert Burns Wardell on three different occasions in Quincy since his disappearance.

Mrs. Wardell said someone reported seeing her son at one of the city's MBTA stations on Friday, Oct. 30. Another person reported seeing Wardell that same day around noon time at the soup kitchen at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

Last Friday, a woman who works in Quincy said she thought she saw Wardell on the steps of Quincy High School around 2:45 p.m.

Mrs. Wardell hopes anyone with information on her son's whereabouts call her at 1-617-924-1703 or local police.

Wardell is five-feet nine inches tall, weighs

ROBERT WARDELL

160 pounds and has light brown hair. Mrs. Wardell said her son left their Watertown home wearing a brown leather jacket, olive pants, and perhaps a light gray sweater, deck shoes or sneakers.

Mrs. Wardell said a cab driver picked up her son at home and drove him to Logan International Airport the morning of Oct. 7. She has not heard from him since.

She said she checked the passenger records of several airlines including U.S. Air, the terminal where the driver left Wardell. Mrs. Wardell said records of airlines she checked indicate no one with the name of Wardell was booked on a flight that day. She said she is checking with other airlines.

She said her son had been hospitalized for depression from December, 1991 to March, 1992. Mrs. Wardell said he had stopped taking his medication prior to leaving home.

Because of his condition, Mrs. Wardell said anyone spotting him should call the police.

Her message to her son is: "It's safe to come home and to call me."

Besides informing police, Mrs. Wardell has notified local rooming houses, cab companies, soup kitchens and Fr. Bill's Place.

She has also appealed to several Boston television stations, including Channels 4, 7 and 56, as well as the Boston Globe, Boston Herald and other newspapers, for assistance in finding her son.

Also assisting in the search through flyers and bulletins are the Alliance of Mentally Ill, the Salvation Army, State Police and Amtrack.

Kolson Says Re-Piping Interceptor Route Would Damage Saltmarsh

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson has asked the MWRA not to consider an alternative proposal to route the Braintree-Weymouth Interceptor Relief Facility through Germantown.

In a letter to Susan Tierney, chairman of the MWRA Board of Directors, Kolson said he is concerned about environmental damage to the saltmarsh.

The new proposal calls for re-piping in the saltmarsh area, Kolson said.

"Ripping up such a valuable resource as the saltmarsh... would be a mistake," Kolson said.

Dumping of demolition materials at the capped city landfill site will be discussed at a Public Works Committee meeting Monday, Nov. 16 at 7:15 p.m.

The Conservation Commission issued a cease and desist order October 29 to several salvage firms which had been disposing demolition materials from construction projects at the site.

The salvage firms were given the okay to dump at the landfill by the Quincy Department of Public Works which had received permission from the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said he is concerned that the new dumping is "jeopardizing the height limit."

DPW Commissioner

David Colton said the dumping is the result of two projects, the dredging of Town Brook by the Army Corps of Engineers and an access road being built by a local developer.

Colton said 63,000 cubic feet of dredged material will be dumped and eventually 200,000 cubic feet of space will be used for the dumping which will include clay barriers to buffer the waste.

Children's Orchard Granted License

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Children's Orchard, 15 Scammell St., for a Second-hand License. Owner Carol Nelson told the License Board that the store would be beneficial to the city and would sell only high quality second-hand clothing for children.

"We pride ourselves in the appearance and the quality of the clothing," said Nelson.

Ward 2 Councillor

Theodore DeCristofaro voiced his support of the license.

"It's another plus as far as the area goes," he said.

Nelson said she hopes to open the store, which will be located at Pilgrim Plaza, by December.

Veterans Day 1992 Message:

'America Is What It Is Because Of Its Veterans'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

"America is what it is today in large part because of its veterans," was the message conveyed by World War II Marine combat veteran and Quincy attorney Paul A. M. Hunt during the city's Veterans Day ceremonies Wednesday.

Addressing fellow veterans, local dignitaries and residents during ceremonies sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council, Hunt said, "Millions of fine, brave men and women have served in our country's armed forces . . . and hundreds of thousands of them have given their lives . . . to protect and defend our freedoms, our way of life, and preserve what this country stands for."

"Today, nearly 27 million veterans continue to carry that torch of dedicated service and love of country . . . and form the strong backbone upon which this great nation stands. Veterans are a major part of this nation's history, as well as its current life."

"We are here today to honor them . . . the living and the dead. Since the time of the American Revolution, more than 200 years ago, more than 38 million Americans have served in wartime . . . and more than one million of them died in that service."

Originally known as Armistice Day, Veterans Day was designated a U.S. holiday by President Woodrow Wilson to honor American servicemen and women, past and present. Hunt said those servicemen earned the right to be called veterans "by their sacrifice and devotion to duty in some of the darkest hours our nation has known."

Hunt said most veterans do not consider themselves heroes. Instead, they only want to be remembered by the government and the people they served.

"Most veterans do not see themselves as heroes . . . only as Americans who answered our nation's call. And we do not expect much, except that which was promised when we raised our right hands and swore to defend our country."

"We ask only that the government recognize our post-service needs."

Hunt recalled his Marine combat experiences on the sands of Iwo Jima. He arrived on Gaudalcanal on Easter Day, 1944, as chief radio operator of a Naval Gunfire Forward Observer Unit. After training, his unit landed with the 3rd Battalion (consisting of three companies) of the 21st Marine Regiment, Third Marine Division, for the Battle of Guam on July 21, 1944.

About seven months later, in early 1945, Hunt and his unit landed on Iwo Jima and remained there until the island was secured. He recalled not only the intense fighting and blood shed but the friendships formed during those frequently intense, frightening moments.

"The three Marine companies we had served with in both campaigns suffered major casualties, K company the worst—90 percent. As the men of the three companies built up respect for our Naval gunfire support by direct communication for our radio to the ships, we built up many friendships."

"I found that all of these men, most of whom had taken the jungle island of Bougainville before we joined them, were at their best in combat conditions. I feel that all of them who did not survive whom I knew, and there were so many, would have been successes and would have given great contributions in all fields of civilian life."

"They never had the chance. What was lost to the world in science, education, politics and entertainment, we'll never know. Why one and not another lost his life, we probably will never know, but each of those who were killed was an extraordinary American."

"There are all part of those we honor on Veterans Day."

Forty-five years after his war missions, Hunt and other American veterans were part of a uniquely special peace mission in the then Soviet Union.

In May, 1990, Hunt was part of a contingent of American veterans, including Quincy's John (Jake) Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, which marched in the streets of Moscow with an American Legion Band in the U.S.S.R.'s Victory Day Parade.

As Hunt carried the American Legion colors, he and his fellow veterans were given a rousing, cheering welcome, perhaps because of the freedom the United States represents. Whatever the reason, Hunt said, "Freedom will not come easy to them."

"Let's make certain we keep our own."

QUINCY VETERANS Robert LaFleur, (left) Paul A.M. Hunt, (center) and Henry Bradley standing next to the World War I 'Doughboy Statue' outside the Adams Academy, were among the veterans and officials participating in the city's Veterans Day ceremonies Wednesday. Hunt was the keynote speaker for the ceremony.

A Chip Off The Block?

Rising potential political stars usually come with a traditional fresh face. And, once in a while, with a well-known name. Put the two together this year and they spell Michael Bellotti.

Bellotti, who came out of political no-where a few short months ago is the new state representative in Quincy's First Norfolk District.

And observers are already wondering if this could be the start of something big. Like, maybe following state-wide in the footsteps of his father, Frank Bellotti, former lieutenant governor and attorney general.

MIKE BELLOTTI

Last March in his first bid for public office, young Bellotti (29) was elected Democratic state committeeman, defeating Dan Raymond, one of Quincy's long-time political heavy hitters.

Bellotti won the state representative seat first by turning back Councilor Larry Chretien by 94 votes in the Democratic primary in September. And then defeating Republican Michael Cronin and independent Patrick Conroy last week.

He is the youngest son and only one of the 12 Bellotti children to show an interest in politics. Neither his father nor his mother, Margarita (Maggie) talked him into entering politics but have encouraged and helped him once he decided to give it a try.

Everyone knows his father is a good campaigner but Maggie has always been dynamite on the campaign trail.

Mike reminds many of his father in mannerism and out-going personality.

And they have something else in common: the senior Bellotti also came out of no-where to be elected lieutenant governor.

FRANK BELLOTTI

It was his first bid for office so he was really still a political unknown in 1962 when he set his sights on the lieutenant governorship.

And few paid much attention to him as he crisscrossed the state quietly lining up delegates. Few gave him a chance.

But by the time the Democratic state convention opened in June in Springfield, Bellotti jolted four other candidates and party big-wigs showing up with enough committed delegates to nail down the nomination.

But when Edward McLaughlin lost the gubernatorial nomination to Endicott Peabody, at that convention, party leaders tried to convince Bellotti to step aside for McLaughlin to make the ticket as the lieutenant governor nominee.

Bellotti, then 39, flatly refused and won the convention nomination by acclamation. He and Peabody rode to victory that year.

Two years later, Bellotti wrested the Democratic nomination for governor away from Peabody but lost that year to Republican challenger John Volpe.

Bellotti came back to be elected attorney general but two years ago lost another bid for governor against William Weld.

How far Mike Bellotti goes politically only time will tell. He has the name and the attitude.

He could be a real chip off the old political block.

MICHAEL MORRISSEY AND John Gillis walked with the top Quincy vote-getting honors in last week's election.

Morrissey, running unopposed for state senate, racked up 29,886 votes. Gillis took the honors in the contested races with a vote of 27,753 in the six-candidate Norfolk County Commission field. He was also top-man county wide with 117,665.

MARSHALL

Sheriff Clifford Marshall was a close runner-up to Gillis in the contested races with a Quincy vote of 27,197 to opponent Paul Kelly's 9,785. Marshall also out-pollied Kelly 121,197 to 62,175 county-wide.

Congressman Gerry Studds, running in Quincy for the first time, found it to his liking with an impressive vote of 22,336 to Republican Dan Daly's 9918 and Independent Jon Bryan's 4,904.

SPEAKING OF STUDDS, he plans to maintain a Quincy office and is looking around now for a Quincy center location. His predecessors, Brian Donnelly and James Burke had their local offices in the Quincy Post Office. Studds, however, is seeking a location that is handicapped accessible.

STUDDS

NOONAN

JOHN NOONAN, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and anchorman on the former Quincy Sun cable news channel, underwent emergency surgery for a severely clogged aorta at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston last week.

The surgery was successful and he was released this week and is convalescing at his Alton Rd., Quincy home. He will undergo therapy.

AND LONG-TIME political observer Hugo (Flip) Fabrizio is recuperating at his Emerald St., West Quincy home after a three-week stay at Quincy Hospital as a medical patient.

His son, Ward 4 Councilor Tom Fabrizio reports he is doing well and keeping his usual close watch on the Quincy political scene.

HEPATITIS: AN UNDERRATED HEALTH THREAT

It doesn't make the headlines or talk shows as do some other diseases, but hepatitis strikes more than a half million Americans every year, ravaging the body for anywhere from a few weeks to a lifetime. At least five viral infections of the liver are known as hepatitis, the most common being denoted by the letters A, B and C. Depending on the specific type, transmission can be by sex, infected blood, illicit IV drug use, or simply changing the diaper of an infected baby and not washing hands thoroughly. Symptoms can include fatigue, muscle and joint pain, fever, loss of appetite, and jaundice. While most cases are relatively mild and short-lived, untreated or particularly virulent cases of hepatitis can be deadly. P.S. Hepatitis can be stopped. Vaccines, adequate sanitation and public education could prevent most cases.

If you suspect that you have been exposed to hepatitis, it is essential that you see your physician as soon as possible — as with so many other diseases, early intervention means easier, faster treatment. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can modify your lifestyle to help ward off heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Praise McIntyre, Praise LaRaia

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
A few weeks back Publisher Henry Bosworth's Sunbeams column mentioned a brand new biography on former Quincy mayor and state senator Jim McIntyre. McIntyre is to Quincy in many ways what James Michael Curley was to Boston. Jack Beatty from the Atlantic Monthly just published a biography on Curley called the Rascal Mayor. McIntyre wasn't exactly a rascal or rogue though I am sure some inside Quincy politics might disagree.

When McIntyre was mayor-state senator, I lived in Boston but visited relatives in Quincy often. I remember the first time I met the late mayor, he seemed overwhelming. A large gregarious Irishman. I instantly liked him. The event that brought us together was my grandfather Jim Harrington's wake in Wollaston. He came out of respect to honor the Harrington family.

McIntyre had his detractors but all in all, he took Quincy into the second half of this century. He opened the city up to Boston via the Red Line and the city prospered under his mayoral leadership. Before McIntyre, Quincy was a Republican stronghold, his tenure at City Hall forever changed the political landscape.

I moved to Quincy in 1984. I have seen Mayors McCauley and Sheets firsthand. Neither of them is McIntyre but the comparison is unfair. The times made McIntyre as much as he affected the times.

Personally, I thought it was unfair to criticize former Mayor Joseph LaRaia whose opinion of McIntyre differs from The Quincy Sun's. Different people view things differently. Some of LaRaia's disguised criticism seemed valid. His book didn't change my opinion of Mayor McIntyre which I formed back in 1966. Sometimes the truth is found between opinions that differ. I respect the commitment both men had for making Quincy a good place to live and work.

As an Italian/Irish-American, I believe Quincy is a better place because both Jim McIntyre and Joseph LaRaia were each elected as Mayor of Quincy. Each offered in different periods of the city's history their vision of what Quincy should be. Both men have become a part of Quincy's rich political history. McIntyre's time has come and gone. I remember when he passed away at such a relatively young age. Tears were shed by those who really knew him. He wasn't perfect but he did the best he could for his city.

LaRaia is still in there. Rumor has it, he is remaining politically active. He's older and grayer now but still the same fighter he always presented himself as to the citizens of Quincy.

Praise McIntyre for who he was and praise LaRaia for who he remains!

Quincy College Should Be Governed By Board Of Trustees

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The unfortunate, and unnecessary, dissension between the Quincy School Committee, the superintendent of schools, and the president of Quincy College has created a dangerous diminution of the status, the success, and even the survival of Quincy College.

Quincy College has successfully weathered the lack of support similar to that which has damaged our public school system. And Quincy College has flourished financially while the state colleges have floundered financially.

Now, a new serious situation has surfaced. The surprising suspension of the president by the superintendent is probably unique in the annals of education; in any event, it causes a dramatic disruption of the proper governance of Quincy College.

Two individuals, for both of whom I maintain a high degree of respect and rapport, have clouded the picture. O. Clayton Johnson—efficient, intelligent, and innovative—deserves most of the credit for the growth and stability of the college. He does react too quickly and too defensively to criticism. His applaudable ability is diminished by his derogatory defensiveness. Eugene Creedon—an excellent educator, and compassionate administrator, and character—reacts too quickly to any suspected slight of his authority.

It is now time to solve this dichotomous situation.

The president of the college should not be required to be judged or controlled by policies governing an elementary and secondary school system. The president of a college should not be answerable to the whims of a purely political body—the Quincy School Committee. The superintendent of the public school system should not be saddled with the supervision of college level activity.

The solution is simple. The college should be placed immediately under the hegemony of a board of trustees like every other college in the nation. The Quincy Public Schools should continue under the rightful hegemony of the superintendent of schools. The superintendent should be allowed to concentrate his time and effort to the administration and improvement of our public schools. He should be relieved of involvement with an institution of higher learning, which should be beyond his scope and responsibility. The Quincy School Committee should address its concerns to the improvement of the education offered by kindergarten through Grade 12.

Quincy College has outgrown its beginnings and its early need for political action and support. The college should now be allowed to assume and maintain its rightful place as an institution of higher learning under the appropriate governance of a Board of Trustees. The vital necessity of improving all levels of education as we approach the new century can only be successful if we provide the proper separation of the two levels of education in our community.

A Complaint Regarding Publishing Tax Names

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am writing to you regarding your policy of printing the names of people who have outstanding tax bills in the City of Quincy.

I assume the motivation in this time-honored ritual is to embarrass people into paying their bills. It's my guess that Dana Childs, Quincy's Tax Collector, is hoping that during this recession these residents of Quincy might buy a few less groceries or think twice before seeing the doctor in order to save themselves the humiliation of having their neighbors see their names in the paper.

It would also be helpful if the City of Quincy tax department would get their information straight before printing the names of people who do not owe their city money. I was kindly notified by a friend who heard from another source that my husband's name (Bryan Morrissey) was in the newspaper for owing money to Quincy on a property we no longer own.

If I spent less time this year caring for my children, nursing a sick parent, and running a business, and more time this year making sure the attorney I hired, the realtor I hired, and the Quincy Tax Collector were doing their jobs, I would have known that somewhere along the line they dropped the ball.

Please consider a change in policy on name publishing; it does more harm than good.

Joanne Morrissey
Plymouth River Rd.
Hingham

[Editor's Note: It is not the Sun's "policy" of printing the names of those with outstanding tax bills. This listing is a legal advertisement.]

Tax Collector Dana Childs has this response regarding the Morrissey property:

"Tax Title advertisements are made pursuant to Mass. General Laws Chapter 60 Sections 40 and 53 in order to protect the City's lien."

"The names used in the legal ad for 1992 are those of the owners of record as of Jan. 1, 1991. The Morrisseys' property was sold in July 1991 on a deed that referenced only the Milton portion of the property; therefore, they were the owners of record for the fiscal 1992 taxes."

Pay Cut Given Back To Top City Officials

The City Council voted to restore a 10 percent pay cut that had been ordered earlier in the year for all city officials who were making more than $3,000 a year.

The Council appropriated $5,175 from the general fund to cover the salaries for the remainder of the year.

Councillor Avery W. Gilkerson said he figured that the cut in pay had saved the city money, even though it never went into effect because the Council failed to change the pay ordinance.

"I feel we have actually saved this $5,175 for the city this year," he said.

"It would have never been left in this fund by the various department heads if they had not known that they would need it at the end of the year for their salaries."

DINNER HOURS CUT

Police Chief John J. Avery cut the dinner hours of his men from an hour and a half to an hour and a quarter and also ordered them to keep their uniforms cleaned and pressed, their shoes shined and clean shaven.

Avery said the old dinner hours had been placed in effect in the days when the officers had to wait for a street car to go home for dinner. Now, he said, most of the men could dash home in cars to eat.

"A clean tidy uniform and a neat physical appearance," he said, "gives an individual officer greater self respect, raises him in the respect of the public and tends to bolster the moral of the department."

COUNCILLORS NOMINATED

Incumbents Edward J. Sandberg and Avery Gilkerson and Laurence J. Curtin, seeking to return to office, were nominated for places on the final ballot as city councillors at large.

They were to face Joseph J. Kendrick, Neil A. McDonald and Roy A. Means in the general election in December. Kendrick topped the preliminary balloting with 3,448 votes.

Only 24 percent of Quincy's 38,000 registered voters turned out in the latest primary years.

Eugene Creedon To Speak At Historical Society Meeting

Quincy School Supt. Eugene Creedon will speak about Colonel Francis Parker, Quincy's first school superintendent, at the Quincy Historical Society meeting Thursday, Nov. 19 at the Adams Academy, Adams St.

Parker is a figure of great contemporary relevance. He took over the Quincy schools in 1875, at a point where they had become aimless and stagnant. He proved to be a visionary reformer.

The "Quincy system" he instituted transformed education, became nationally famous, and has continuing national influence. Parker has gone down in history as one of the leading educational reformers.

Creedon, a Quincy native, was appointed superintendent last spring, and has served in several positions in the Quincy school system. As principal of Broad Meadows Middle School, he began a process of change that eventually led to Broad Meadows being named a Blue Ribbon Award School of Excellence by the U.S. Department of Education. The public is invited.

The evening is of special interest to parents of school-age children, since it gives a chance to compare issues of education, change and reform, then and now. Admission is free. Refreshments will be served.

United First Parish Christmas Fair Saturday

United First Parish Church will hold its annual Christmas Fair Saturday, Nov. 14 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The public is invited. Seasonal crafts and decorations, white elephants, baked goods, preserves and herbs and spices will be sold. Orders for evergreen wreaths, hand decorated by church members, can also be placed.

Other events include ornament making for children, an Afghan and Christmas novelty raffle, and a silent auction (featuring gift certificates from local restaurants and shops; holiday crafts; and collectibles, including a hockey puck autographed by Boston Bruin Cam Neely).

Lunch will be served featuring hot soup, frankfurters, and brownies a la mode.

All fair proceeds will benefit United First Parish Church.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Broad Meadows Students, Women Shipbuilders Honored

Broad Meadows Middle School students and women shipbuilders from World War II were honored recently during a reception at the Schlesinger Library at Radcliffe College, Cambridge.

The shipbuilders, known as "The Winnie the Welders," were the first women shipbuilders ever and helped construct hundreds of warships at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy including the USS Lexington and USS Wasp and the battleship Massachusetts.

The Broad Meadows students researched the accomplishments of the "Winnies" and compiled an award-winning video documentary which included highlights of interviews with many of the shipbuilders.

Students donated the transcripts of their interviews which will become part of a new Schlesinger Library exhibit, "Winnie the Welder Collection: Accounts of the First Female Shipbuilders at the World Famous Fore River Shipyard."

$500 Gift Certificate For 'One Millionth Penny'

QPIC Penny Drive Saturday At Collins-Rest-A-While Park

The Quincy Park Improvement Committee (QPIC) will be looking for the "lucky penny" during an effort to collect the committee's one millionth penny at a Nov. 14th penny drive at Collins-Rest-A-While-Park on Southern Artery, across from Veterans Memorial Field in Quincy.

Proceeds will go toward reconstructing the Collins-Rest-A-While playground.

The penny drive will take place Saturday, Nov. 14 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Collins-Rest-A-While. Community members and passersby are encouraged to drop off a jar of pennies or just a handful of pocket change.

Each contributor's pennies will be separated from other donations in order to determine the contributor of QPIC's "one-millionth penny." The individual determined to have donated the "one-millionth penny" to QPIC will win QPIC's "Lucky Penny Award," a $500 gift certificate for Home Depot, Quincy's newest retailer.

The award, which will be announced at a ceremony to be held prior to Thanksgiving Day, will be presented to the winner by Mayor James Sheets, Council President and QPIC member Charles Phelan, Councillor-at-Large and QPIC member Pat Toland, QPIC Chairperson Michelle Lydon and a representative from Home Depot.

"Last winter, Quincy school kids opened up their piggy banks and reached into their lunch money to help restore this city's favorite family park," Lydon said. "These efforts brought us within 6,768 pennies of our one million penny goal."

"A true community-wide effort will push us over the top. Whether it's loose pocket change or an old milk bottle full of pennies, every penny counts," she added.

Quincy Savings Bank Food Drive Underway

Quincy Savings Bank's annual Food Drive to benefit the Salvation Army Food Pantry is underway and will continue through Dec. 14.

Donations of non-perishable food items may be made at any Quincy Savings Bank office.

"Quincy Savings Bank has been sponsoring this Food Drive for the past five years. Our staff and customers have always donated generously to the 'food bank.' This generosity helps make the holiday season easier for those in need," said Charles R. Simpson Jr., president and chief executive officer of Quincy Savings Bank.

Quincy Savings Bank had 14 branch locations in Braintree, Brockton, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate, and West Plymouth.

Middle School Open House At QHS

Gillis Chosen Christmas Parade Grand Marshal

John Gillis, retired Quincy city clerk and Norfolk County commissioner-elect, has been selected grand marshal of this year's Quincy Christmas Festival Parade.

Festival Chairman George White said Gillis's selection is an honor that is well deserved. "It gives the general public an opportunity to recognize and pay tribute to John Gillis for his public service over the past 33 years as city clerk."

"Mr. Gillis has stated he leaves this office with many pleasant and fond memories. We too have similar memories of John. The relationship has proved to be a working partnership of both the public and private sectors that will be almost next to impossible to match."

The 41st annual parade will take place Sunday, Nov. 29 at 12:30 p.m. The parade is expected to JOHN GILLIS feature 20 Christmas floats, 20 bands and numerous specialty units.

Gillis, who became city clerk in 1959 after serving two years as assistant city clerk, stepped down from the post on Oct. 5. He was replaced by Joseph Shea, the assistant city clerk since March, 1991.

Upon his retirement, many local officials regarded Gillis as a Quincy institution. The Council declared Friday, Oct. 9 "John Gillis Day" in Quincy.

In the state election Nov. 3, Gillis was elected to one of two seats on the Norfolk County Commission, topping the six-candidate field.

Gillis and his wife, Violet, live in Quincy Point. They have two children, a son, Mark, and a daughter, Pamela DeGennaro.

Other past grand marshals have included Bobby Orr, Luis Tiant, broadcaster Ken Coleman and former Red Sox skipper Joe Morgan.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Neighbors are a great institution, and few people would care to get along without them.

Nobody wants neighbors who are too familiar, but everyone wants them friendly enough so an egg or a cup of sugar can be borrowed when the occasion demands.

If you are in want, or in trouble, you will usually find your neighbors right at your door and ready to lend a helping hand. How they find out just what you need is often a mystery. But what neighbors know about neighbors would fill a book!

You may live beside them for years and view them as nothing more than residents of your town. But let trouble come into your home - then you will see what fine neighbors they are ...

You will also find out, if you haven't before this, that there is nothing in the world more valuable than good neighbors.

We at the Deware Funeral Home consider the people in our community to be our friends as well as our neighbors ... If you wish to discuss preplanning or prefinancing, we are available at anytime to help you. This, of course, is without cost or obligation. As your friend and your neighbor, we consider this a privilege ...

Silver Lake 36, Quincy 8

Presidents Must Regroup For Barnstable

By TOM SULLIVAN

It was a bad day all around for Quincy's football team last Saturday as its three-game win streak came to an abrupt halt when Silver Lake, winner of only one previous game, clubbed the Presidents, 36-8, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

After three impressive wins, the Presidents fell apart, especially in the second half when the Lakers scored 30 points (22 in the fourth quarter). The game was played before one of the smallest crowds to watch a game at the stadium in many years. Quincy fell to 3-4-1.

Quincy must now regroup as it prepares to host Barnstable Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the stadium.

Barnstable is 6-2 after being clubbed by surprising Plymouth, 28-0, last Saturday. The Red Raiders have wins over Dartmouth, 21-0; Bp. Stang, 13-12; Silver Lake, 30-22; Bridgewater-Raynham, 38-30; and Taunton, 30-14. They lost to North Quincy, 25-6.

"We just didn't come to play today," said Quincy coach Jack Raymer. "I could see it in practice all week, they seemed to be taking Silver Lake for granted. It just wasn't a good game for us defensively. We couldn't stop their timing patterns."

"We were hurting with injuries to several players, but I am not using that as an excuse. We just didn't play good defense and our offensive line didn't give Mike Bartlett (three interceptions) any protection. This game proves what I've been saying all year: the Old Colony League is very competitive and any team can beat another on a given day. The Barnstable-Plymouth game is another example of this. We are going to have to forget this game and concentrate on Barnstable and North Quincy."

Quincy's Robbie Kane, Mike Kavanaugh, Noel DiBona, and Steve Fernald all were injured. Fernald is definitely out of the Barnstable game and the other three are questionable. "If they do play, they won't be 100 percent," said Raymer.

The Lakers' Rich Sanda was 7-for-14 for 108 yards and three touchdowns as their receivers consistently outran the Quincy defenders. Feroli, who ran for over 100 yards and scored both touchdowns in a loss to North Quincy two weeks ago, carried 21 times for 141 yards and two more TD's against Quincy.

Quincy was hurt by seven turnovers, four fumbles and three pass interceptions. "You can't give up the ball seven times on any team in this league," Raymer said.

Quincy moved the ball well but the fumbles and interceptions were fatal. Dave Bogan carried 12 times for 87 yards and DiBona 12 times for 82 yards. Bartlett was 7-for-14 for 78 yards.

Kavanaugh, playing hurt, played a strong defensive game and once sacked Sanda for a 12-yard loss. Steve Provost also had a fine game.

Taking the game's opening kickoff, Silver Lake, which had 15 first downs to Quincy's 11, drove to the Presidents' 20-yard line but Ashley Davis recovered a fumble on the 14 to stop the drive.

Quincy went over midfield but the Lakers recovered a fumble on their 47. The Presidents held and forced a punt.

The Presidents advanced to the 38 but a fake punt on fourth down failed and the Lakers took over on the 38.

On the fifth play of the second quarter Sanda passed to Kory Ferrullo for 11 yards and a score. The try for a two-point conversion failed.

The Presidents drove from their 12 all the way to the Laker 35 but another fumble gave the Lakers the ball.

The 6-0 score held up at the half.

Things looked good for the Presidents as they took the second half kickoff and drove 65 yards for their only touchdown. DiBona and Bogan shared the ball carrying and DiBona raced around right end for 12 yards and the score. Bogan rushed for the two-point conversion and Quincy held a brief 8-6 lead.

It was all Silver Lake after that. The Lakers came right back to regain the lead, the key play being a fine leaping catch of a pass by Paul Barry which gave the Lakers the ball on Quincy's 30. Sanda again passed to Ferrullo for nine yards and a TD. He passed to Barry for the two-point conversion.

An interception halted a Quincy drive but the Presidents regained possession on a fumble recovery.

SL drove 56 yards for another touchdown following a punt and Feroli scored from the one following a pair of 20-yard passes, one to Barry and the other to Ferrullo. Another pass to Ferrullo added the two-point conversion.

Following another interception, the Lakers made it 30-6 on a six-yard run by Feroli and Barry caught another pass for the two points.

The final touchdown, with just two seconds left on the clock, was scored by Jim Ewell from the one.

Youth Football Co-Champs

Panthers, Apaches Battle To 6-6 Tie

The first place Quincy Point Panthers and runnerup North Quincy Apaches battled to a 6-6 tie in the Quincy Youth Football League championship game last Sunday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

It was the best game of the season and both the Panthers (5-2-1) and Apaches (4-3-1) will receive a playoff trophy as league co-champions. The Panthers received the league trophy for finishing first in regular season play.

There was no scoring in the first quarter and the Apaches took the lead in the second quarter when Sean O'Toole's set up the score on first and goal from the three. O'Toole scored but was stopped on a try for the two-point conversion by David Gunther and Mike Martin.

Both defenses played an integral part to close out the first half as Brian Walsh, Sean Donovan and Andrew Cameron led the Apaches in a two-way effort. Brad Smith led the Panthers' defense.

The Panthers drove the Apaches back deep into their own territory, forcing the Apaches to punt.

Carmen Lorenzano passed to Richard Garcia and Steve Roberts carried to the Apache 30. However, the Apache defense, led by Mike Mastrocola and Jim Keyes, halted the threat.

The Panthers kicked off to open the second half and again the Apaches were driven back deep into their own territory and were forced to punt. Gunther ran the ball to the 25 and scored for the three to tie the score.

The Apaches came right back and Finn passed to Donovan for 30 yards and an apparent touchdown, but the score was nullified by a penalty.

The Apaches received strong performances from both the offensive and defensive lines. Playing well were Mastrocola, Keyes, Dan Collins, Matt Allen, Mike Sampson, Jim McGrath, Charlie Plaskasovitis and Chris Halpin. Defensive backs Jeremy Riley and John Jones also played outstanding games.

The Panthers' roster

The Apaches roster included Chris Curry, Dan Toland, Finn, Pat Egan, Anthony Greenwood, Walsh, O'Toole, Chris

Raiders Could Clinch Title At Taunton

The defense has carried the undefeated North Quincy football team all season and another outstanding defensive effort last Saturday put the Raiders within one win of clinching the Old Colony League championship and their first Super Bowl berth since 1975.

North improved its record to 8-0-0 with a 3-0 decision over Bridgewater-Rayham's defending league champion on Liam Higgins' 22-yard field goal on the final play of the first half at Bridgewater.

A win this Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Taunton will clinch the league crown, while a loss would put North's chances on the line against Quincy on Thanksgiving.

Taunton goes into the North game with a 6-2 record (4-2-0 in the league). The Tigers defeated Duffee, 26-20; Plymouth, 7-0; Quincy, 6-0; Weymouth, 20-7; Silver Lake, 28-16; and Coyle-Cassidy, 15-14.

It lost to Falmouth, 13-12, and Barnstable, 30-14.

"This was an awfully big win for us," said North coach Ken McPhee. "It is always particularly tough beating them on their home field, but our defense, as usual, was tremendous and carried us through. Both defenses were tough. Both teams moved the ball well but the defenses dug in when it counted. We recovered three fumbles and intercepted a pass and it was hard tackling that forced the Bridgewater-Rayham fumbles."

"Sean Skahan, in particular, came up with several bonecrushing tackles and blocks and everyone hit hard all day and forced the turnovers. Tony Licciardi came back after missing almost the entire season and he helped the defense. We stopped them three times deep in our own territory and they also stopped us in their territory. You can give credit to every one of our defensive players."

Mike Linnane recovered two fumbles and Dave Pacino one. Pat Shea had a big pass interception.

Standing out again on defense were Dave Reinhart, Dave Rafferty, Sean Halpin, Eric Delorey, Skahan, Licciardi, Mark Sinclair, Pacino, Sean Herron, Nathan Gott, Justin Dilks and Bill Skutel.

Higgins was North's leading ground gainer, carrying seven times for 61 yards, including a 25-yard run. Sinclair played offensively for the first time since the second game and carried for 35 yards, including runs of 17 and 16 yards and sophomore Shawn Nee carried eight times for 23 yards. Higgins was only 3-for-14 passing for 28 yards.

B-R's Dave Zukowski was 5-for-12 passing for 64 yards and the Trojans gained 136 yards on the ground. North gained 120 yards on the ground. B-R had nine first downs to five for the Raiders.

B-R took the opening kickoff and drove deep into North territory before fumbling and did the same thing at the start of the second quarter.

Higgins scrambled 25 yards to start things rolling. He hit Dan Duncan with an 18-yard strike and passed to Licciardi for nine yards. With the ball on the B-R 10, it appeared North scored a touchdown but the officials ruled it no score and North settled for Higgins' 22-yard field goal, his second of the season.

B-R threatened late in the third quarter when Jamie McKenna raced 40 yards to North's 35. B-R reached the North eight to start the fourth quarter and just missed scoring when Zukowski's pass in the corner of the end zone went off the fingertips of Dan Collins as he was hit hard by Shea.

Another fumble recovered by North ended any hopes B-R had of scoring and upsetting the Raiders.

North Jayvees Run Win Record To 7-1

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy junior varsity football team continued its winning ways with wins over Bridgewater-Rayham, 28-20, and Silver Lake, 28-14, improving its record to 7-1.

In the Silver Lake game, Glenn Peterson had two touchdowns, the first on a nine-yard run and the second from six yards out. He also rushed for a two-point conversion.

Quarterback Sean Dolbeare scored on a 12-yard run and threw to George Wirtz for the two-point conversion.

The other touchdown came when Dave Carney fell on a Laker fumble and turned it into a touchdown.

The Bridgewater-

Rayham game wasn't close as the score indicates as the Trojans' last two touchdowns came against North's reserves.

Derrick Epps opened up the Raider scoring by racing 83 yards for a touchdown, with a vicious block by Jeremy Gott clearing the way. Peterson rushed for the two-point conversion.

B-R came right back with a 32-yard touchdown run. The try for the conversion was no good.

North took a 14-6 halftime lead when Dolbeare passed to Gott for 26 yards and a TD.

In the third quarter hard running by McGregor and Epps enabled North to reach the Trojan 25 from where Epps circled left end for the score.

It was almost the same story in the fourth quarter as Epps carried for 17 and 15 and finally one yard for his third score. Dolbeare passed to Wirtz for North's final two points.

Coaches Tom Carter and Peter Chrisom praised the offensive play of Jason Picardi, Diep Nguyen, Pat Kiely, Neil Kiley, Mike Shields, Carney, Wirtz and Jeremy Gott.

Eye Second Straight State Crown

Another Undefeated Season For North Girls

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team has done it again.

The North girls, defending state Div. 1 champions, have completed another undefeated season and are generally favored to win their second straight state crown and third overall.

North Quincy, undefeated Old Colony League champion, completed its regular season last week 17-0 with a 2-0 (15-9, 15-10) victory over Dracut, the team North defeated for the state title last season.

In going unbeaten (10-0 in the league) for the first time since 1987, the North girls lost only three games all season, winning 14 matches in straight games.

North opened defense of its state title last night (Wednesday) against the winner of Melrose and Arlington Catholic in the East Central Division. The division title game will be played Saturday night at 7 p.m. at Braintree High.

North is top-seeded in the East Central Division, followed by O'Bryant, Cambridge Rindge and Latin, Arlington Catholic, Melrose, Arlington and Boston Latin.

Lawrence (18-2) is top-seeded in Division 1 North, followed by Dracut, Latin Academy, Chelmsford, East Boston, Burke and Billerica.

Natick (17-1) is top-seeded in West Central, followed by Marlboro, Newton North, Brookline, Milford and Walpole.

New Bedford (14-3) is top-seeded in West Central, followed by Marlboro, Newton North, Brookline, Milford and Walpole.

New Bedford (14-3) is top-seeded in Division 1 South, followed by Barnstable, Brockton, Dufree, Dighton-Rehoboth, Dartmouth, Milton and Somerset.

North has returning all-scholastic Heather Rendle, Joanne Currier and Maureen McCarthy and Regina Murphy to lead the team. All have had outstanding seasons.

In the tournament at Amherst, N.Y., in which North, seeded 16th, finished third and gained national recognition, Rendle and McCarthy were named to the all-tournament team.

The four all-scholastics were joined by Heather Simmons, Lara Rines and Wendy Sweetness, who improved tremendously and contributed heavily to the team's success.

"We knew we had a strong team with our four returning starters," said coach Jim Rendle. "But it was the play of Simmons, Rines and Sweetness that really lifted us."

Two big freshmen, 5-10 Sara Stanton and 5-9 Linda Jellison were new to the game but helped at the net by blocking and ensure a bright future for the program.

Mindy Roberts, Karen Shea, Amy Detwiler and Missy Roberts have given the depth a championship team needs.

10 To Be Inducted Into Q-N Football Hall Of Fame Nov. 24

Tickets for the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame induction banquet Nov. 24 are available at $20 each from Jerry Perpetuo, 285 Common St., Quincy (471-4269) until Nov. 18.

Anyone unable to attend is asked to make a contribution which can be sent to Perpetuo as well. This is the Hall of Fame's fundraising event of the year and, along with the ad book, is the sole source of the money used for the scholarships awarded in January and June.

The banquet and induction ceremonies will be held at Morrisette Post. A social hour will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. followed by dinner and the induction ceremonies.

Five players from each school will be added to the Hall of Fame.

Lou Volpe, Aldo Lombardi, Eugene Nattie, Jim Rendle and Len Pico will be inducted from Quincy and George "Spike" Wallace, William Bell, Ron Zoia, Tom Lacey and Joe Dudek from North Quincy.

Special awards will go to Ed Miller, Charlie Ross and Gene Macomber, each of whom has made contributions to the football programs at both schools.

The Hall of Fame has also voted to make a President's Award to honor those Quincy High players who played prior to 1932. This year's recipients will be Gerry Gherardi, Fred Comparato and Andy Lund.

Security Tips For Small Business Robbery Prevention

Businesses are robbed ten times more often than individuals, but common sense can reduce the chance of becoming a victim as well as the amount of money lost if robbed. The following are some simple tips to prevent robbery at your business.

Cash:

Keep small amounts on hand and advertise that fact. Make frequent bank deposits. Have a drop safe or time delay safe. Vary your deposit times and route. Count your cash in a private area.

Lights, Locks, Alarms:

Have exterior and interior lighting that allows visibility into the store from the street. Have an emergency alarm system and test it every so often to make sure it works.

Have a buddy system signal with a neighboring store in case a suspicious person enters.

Keep seldom used doors and windows locked at all times.

Use mirrors, cameras or one way glass to observe all areas of store.

Employees:

Have more than one person open and close the store. Carefully screen employees before hiring.

Instruct employees to call the police on any suspicious person that may be hanging around the store.

Train your employees how to effectively handle and report a robbery situation.

Also:

Arrange your stock to allow clear visibility in the store.

Set up a signal with police patrol officer in case of problems.

Arrange for a security survey with the Quincy Police Department.

If Confronted By A Robber:

Stay as calm as possible. Try not to panic or show any sign of anger or confusion.

Consider your well-being and that of your employees as the highest priority.

Don't escalate the incident into a violent confrontation in which someone may be injured or killed.

Make a conscious effort to get an accurate description of the robber(s): approximate age; height, weight, type and color of clothing. After the robber leaves, call the police immediately.

If you follow the above tips you will reduce the chances of robbery and reduce the chance of injury during a robbery.

Rabies Immunization Clinic Saturday

The Quincy Health Department will hold a special rabies immunization clinic Saturday, Nov. 14 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., (behind the Bryan VFW Post and Father Bill's Place).

The clinic will be held rain or shine. Fee is $8 per dog and $4 per cat. Pet owners are urged to have their cats and dogs immunized against this serious disease.

Rabies is a viral disease transmitted mainly to dogs and cats through bite wounds from wildlife such as bats, skunks, foxes and raccoons. The usual fatal disease is extremely rare in humans and has been fairly uncommon among animals in this part of the country.

Less than a dozen rabid animals per year on average are discovered through analysis at the State Rabies Laboratory. Tests revealed that in the last few years, all but one of the infected animals were bats.

However, an outbreak of wildlife rabies among raccoons has progressed to the Southwestern part of Massachusetts. To date, two raccoons have tested positive for rabies, one in Ashby and one in Fitchburg. It is therefore particularly important to vaccinate all pets and to avoid contact with wild animals. The practice of following preventive measures will reduce and control risks for rabies.

•Make sure cats and dogs receive a rabies vaccination.

•Do not feed pets outdoors as the presence of their food could attract wild animals. Never feed wild animals, especially near a home.

•Avoid wild, stray or unfamiliar animals, especially bats, skunks, foxes and raccoons.

•Avoid any animal (domestic or wild) that behaves oddly, appears sick or injured, or appears unusually friendly.

•Avoid keeping skunks, raccoons and any other wildlife as pets, as no rabies vaccine exists for these wildlife species.

•Discourage wild animals from your property by eliminating sources of food and harborage.

•Avoid touching dead, sick or injured animals.

•If you are bitten or scratched by an unfamiliar animal, do not try to figure out if the animal is rabid, but immediately wash the wound with soap and water. Then contact a physician, at once, to decide if rabies treatment will be necessary.

For more information about rabies, contact the Division of Communicable Disease Control of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health at 522-3700 ext 420 or the Quincy Health Department at 376-1273.

outcome of the criminal investigation.

Mullen, a former police prosecutor, said it is possible the latest allegation against MacDonald could be fused with the obscene telephone call complaint charged in May. That could pave the way for an early dismissal, the chief said.

"I think it's a very serious matter. It's unfortunate but with this type of case, there is a high probability that this incident will lead to a dismissal. I will make a recommendation pending the outcome of the trial," Mullen said.

The chief also said he is monitoring the court proceedings. "(Dismissal) could come sooner," he added.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will support Mullen's recommendation for dismissal.

"Chief Mullen has to make a recommendation to me to dismiss MacDonald and I'll make a decision based on that. He (Mullen) has already indicated to me that he will (recommend dismissal) and I will support that recommendation," the mayor Tuesday.

MacDonald joined the Quincy police department as a patrolman in February, 1986, according to city personnel records. Prior to his appointment, MacDonald was employed by a security service.

Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger said records show MacDonald was not a policeman in any town before coming to Quincy.

Sheets and Mullen said the MacDonald incident was isolated.

"It's terribly unfortunate but we will take whatever action is necessary as far as (MacDonald's) employment with the city.

We have an outstanding police department. I'm proud of our officers," the mayor said.

Mullen added, "This is a serious thing. No one's perfect and sometimes things like this happen."

intending to go to Boston. But they weren't going to get around both Quincy and Malden so they went to Malden," the mayor said.

"We feel it was cheaper to go here, they should have gone here. We feel that the three parcels that we have put together with the Hancock St. Coalition were good parcels and would have worked beautifully.

"We offered 240 free parking spaces but my sense is once we muddled the waters, and given some people a bloody nose, there probably wasn't a whole lot of sympathy for Quincy.

"We fought every step of the way, we challenged everything they did so I'm sure they weren't happy with that."

The mayor said the issue isn't over yet. "We'll carry it as far as we possibly can."

Nominations Op

Nominations are now open for The Quincy Sun's eighth annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Frank Kearns of Quincy was honored for his innumerable volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor. He was selected from 41 nominations submitted by Sun readers.

Kearns received the award at a reception held in his honor at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by approximately 100 family members, friends, ci and invited guests.

Deadline to submit nominations is Thursday, Dec. 31.

Sun readers have the opportunity to nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

Will Beef Up Police Protection

City To Hire 17 New Patrolmen In '93

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Calling it a step in the right direction in the battle against crime, Quincy officials announced Tuesday that 17 new patrolmen will be hired next year, bringing its manning level to 150.

Mayor James Sheets also announced he will commit resources to offset a projected $250,000 shortfall in the police overtime account and to continue certain crime prevention programs. In addition, he said two beat patrolmen in Quincy, initiated under a grant from the federal government, will stay on the street with city finances.

The grant, which also funded drug and alcohol abuse counseling and summer jobs for local youth, will expire at the end of next month. Sheets said the overtime account shortfall and Germantown neighborhood foot patrols will be covered by free cash or budget transfers.

Money saved through a newly negotiated health plan consolidation and solid waste-recycling contract, about $1.5 million, will be used to hire the new police officers and continue and expand crime prevention programs. Sheets said it will cost between $500,000 and $600,000 to hire the new recruits, of which $150,000 is benefits.

The mayor, who said he believes the city is "turning the corner economically," said he is committed to earmarking resources for public safety. He said the city cannot afford to loosen its grip on its crime fighting efforts.

"We intend to wage war against crime in this city and prevent the jungle of crime from engulfing this city. The city has done a tremendous job in dealing with crime and programs of crime prevention."

Pointing out fiscal restraints had forced him to eliminate 235 positions since taking office in 1990, the mayor said, "This is the first year in my administration that we can say we are going to do some expansion in public safety. We are going to make all the resources available that are possible."

Chief Francis Mullen said the new recruits will Illegal Dumping At Former Landfill?

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The head of Quincy's Conservation Commission says that a series of violations, including illegal dumping, have occurred at the city's former landfill site.

But David Colton, commissioner of the Department of Public Works, disagrees.

"I want a resolution for this whole thing," said Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. "We need to find out who has jurisdiction."

Heather Sargent, enforcement officer for the Conservation Commission, said that many of the materials being dumped at the site are in violation of the conditions set to cap the landfill by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Colton contends that the conditions for the capping of the landfill don't apply to the current projects at the site.

"The work we are doing now is not part of that capping," Colton said. He said the landfill has already been capped but not closed.

The city has also agreed to allow the Army Corps of Engineers to dump 63,000 cubic feet of dredge material from Town Brook at the former landfill.

Thomas Koch, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, said work on a proposed golf course at the site can begin until the Town Brook dumping project is completed.

Sargent said seven conditions are not being followed. She said construction debris, bricks,

Tax Classification Hearing Nov. 23

A public hearing regarding the tax classification for fiscal year 1993 will be held Monday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

Mayor James Sheets

has proposed a residential rate of $13.46 and a business (commercial-industrial-personal property) rate of $28.79.

Both rates are higher than last year. The city's fiscal year 1993 budget is more than $6 million higher than 1992.

The new tax rates must be approved by the City Council.

Johnson Considering Civil Rights Suit Against School Board

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The president of Quincy College, who is considering filing a civil rights lawsuit against members of the Quincy School Committee, told the Quincy Sun Tuesday that he has not closed the door on resolving the matter out of court.

"There is still a window for settlement but I'm not going to walk one inch to settle," Dr. O. Clayton Johnson said in a telephone interview Tuesday. "Other people (the school committee) are going to have to come forward to settle it."

"I've done everything to try to sit down with them but not one has talked to me. Instead, they have continually tried to dig up a mess."

Johnson, 56, the only top black administrator in the city's history, leveled charges of racism after the Quincy School Committee and School Supt. Gene Creedon filed a series of formal insubordination complaints against him.

Last week, Johnson served a five-day suspension ordered by Creedon who claimed the president threatened to sue him. Johnson has denied that charge but School Committee members contend that Johnson defied their orders during heated exchanges on several occasions and has brought the problems on himself by not following proper procedures.

Johnson will appear before a disciplinary hearing scheduled for Monday, Nov. 23 at 7 p.m. at the Merrymount School. Johnson has requested that the hearing be open to the public.

The president asserts that he has been racially discriminated against by the School Committee during his 10-year tenure at Quincy College. He has filed a grievance with the school department and told the Sun he may move ahead with a civil rights suit against the School Committee depending on what action is taken Monday.

One alleged incident of racism involved an unidentified school committee member who has since left the board. Johnson claims the member showed him some painted carvings and asked if he wanted one of a watermelon.

Johnson said the member denied any prejudice because, he said, "she said she owned a white cat and a black cat."

The president also claims other racially motivated incidents, including one committee member who Johnson said called him a "Nazi."

He noted he is the only school employee who has not received a raise in the past four years. Johnson said his $70,000 salary is at least $15,000 short of what most state college presidents earn.

He also compared his suspension without pay for alleged insubordination with a Quincy patrolman's paid administrative leave after the officer was arrested for exposure and lewdness.

"When a white man allegedly does something, that's one thing but when a black man allegedly does something, that's another thing. It's not fair.

"I think there's no question that these things have been racially motivated by insensitive people who get elected to public office who see it as a leadership thing rather than for the good of the city's education process.

"There's an underlining of bigotry to all of this," Johnson said.

The president said he does not intend to "paint" Quincy as a racist community. "I don't want the people of Quincy painted with a broad brush of the wrongdoings of the School Committee. I think their (alleged) actions didn't speak for the people of the city of Quincy."

Mayor James Sheets, who also serves as chairman of the School Committee, said, in his opinion, the school committee has not acted with any prejudice toward Johnson.

"It's my opinion that nothing has been racially motivated. I'm troubled by the allegations because they cast aspersions on a city that has been heralded as a model for its work on human rights.

"I think you have a city in the last three to five years which has been a forerunner (in race relations) and it troubles me that you have allegations of this nature.

"I've always treated Dr. Johnson with respect and he's treated me with respect and I'm sure it will continue with us."

Johnson said he wants to be paid fairly and treated fairly. He also wants the college governance or "chain of command" clarified.

Under the present system, Johnson reports to the school superintendent, a process some local leaders believe interferes with the needs of the city's K-12 school system.

The president also said he wants the School Committee to "stop grilling" college deans who report to the committee.

Sheets said he agreed the governance issue must be clarified but disagreed with Johnson's other accusations.

Regarding the pay raise issue, Sheets said, "I've had department heads on this side of the street who have not had pay raises. There are a lot of people who have gone without pay raises."

On the "grilling" of college deans, the mayor said, "The think some administrators have been questioned extensively but I think there have been incidents where they should have been questioned extensively."

Sheets said he is hopeful the matter can be settled out of court.

"It's my hope that we will be able to work everything out. I know that's a tall order but we have to try."

Quincy Residents Rake In Savings

Announcing Quincy's 3rd Annual Leaf Composting Program -
And, we want your help. Why?

Last
Year

We composted over 2,500 tons of leaves, and saved over $200,000 of your tax dollars.

This
Year

We hope to hit 3,000 tons, and save over $243,000.

How can you help?

It's as easy as 1, 2, 3...

1 Rake your leaves.

2

Bag them.

We recommend using the paper leaf composting bags sold at most stores. They're big, easy-to-fill, recyclable and biodegradable.

Plastic bags aren't great — but, we'll take them.

Bag only leaves, twigs and grass clippings. No trash. No large branches.

3

Put them on the curb with your trash.

Just separate them from your trash and recyclables, so we know which bags are which!

Thanks for your help!

New Golf Course, Recreation Planned At Former Landfill

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Mayor James Sheets has teed up a proposal for a new golf course and recreational facilities at the city's former landfill site.

The city's plan calls for a private company to lease the site and construct, manage and maintain the facility which may include an 18-hole golf course with a driving range and putting green, a regulation soccer field, a Little League baseball field, and jogging and biking paths.

"We feel it is a very viable area and would like to see as much of it dedicated to recreation as possible," Sheets said. "It's the last frontier in the city."

The 178-acre landfill site in southwest Quincy is located off of Ricciuti Drive, west of Route 93, and borders the Blue Hills Reservation. Sheets announced during his inauguration address in January of 1990 that he would like the area to be developed for passive recreational use.

Sheets said the construction of a golf course could take seven to eight years because of the need to go through permitting processes at the federal, state and local levels.

However, the playing fields would be constructed on land adjacent to the landfill and "could be built sooner," he said.

Golfers would have to pay a fee to use the golf course but the other facilities would likely be available to residents in the same manner as Quincy's existing public parks.

Planning Director Richard Meade said he could not say when work on the new facility could begin.

"It could be a year away... it could be two years away," Meade said. "But we have the ball rolling."

The lease agreement would also need City Council approval, Meade said.

In addition, Meade said the city will have to wait and see what proposals come back and whether they include all of the facilities. He said a trend towards bigger golf courses could exclude one or more of the other proposed uses. He said it could also result in a 9-hole course instead of 18.

A small-scale clubhouse would likely be built, Meade said.

"I wouldn't envision anything elaborate," he said.

"It was not as much of a priority as other issues," Sheets said. "But I'm concerned about the area. I don't want it to be developed piece meal. I want something meaningful for our people," he said. "I think it will be a great idea if it will work."

"It is an absolutely gorgeous location for a recreational facility," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "It offers one of the finest scenic views south of Boston by any stretch of the imagination."

"It is a gorgeous area," said DPW Commissioner David Colton. "It can be a significant recreational area for the people of Quincy. It offers beautiful views of the Boston skyline, Boston Harbor, most of Quincy and the Blue Hills."

"I share the mayor's enthusiasm for the idea," said Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. "It will be interesting to see what the proposals say. I've expressed interest in winter activities like ice skating as well."

Meade said some of the land may be unsuitable because of ledge and quarry holes. The landfill was capped in 1990 after

Police Seek Man In Wollaston Carjack

Quincy Police are continuing to look for a man who attacked a 22-year old woman near Eastern Nazarene College early Monday morning.

"We're still following leads," Police Chief Francis Mullen said Tuesday. Mullen said the perpetrator may have been someone who lives nearby.

The ENC student was getting out of her car after parking on East Elm Avenue when she was pushed onto the floor, she told police.

The man began driving the car while holding the woman until she broke away and jumped from the moving vehicle near Ebbett Avenue, she said.

The woman was not injured and she ran to a security post on campus.

A Quincy police officer was on the scene dealing with another incident. A police dog searched for the man also but the attacker was able to escape.

Police recovered the woman's car a short time later nearby between Elm and West Elm Avenue.

Free Building Inspection For Flood Damaged Homes

The Quincy Building Department has been providing free inspection service to any Quincy property owner who has suffered structural/content loss during recent storms.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey said building inspectors have been advising owners how to properly place heating, mechanical and electrical equipment, what measures to take to reinforce the integrity of the structure, anchorage requirements and flood proofing requirements so that the next flooding which may take place will cause minimal damage to the structure and expensive mechanical equipment placed below the flood level.

The Quincy Building Department is charged with enforcing state Building Code Flood Plain construction regulations, FEMA regulations and the city's Flood Plain Zoning by-law.

Staff members are ready to assist property owners with technical experience and access to technical information which may prevent further loss to flood prone structures.

For assistance, call 376-1450.

MEDICAL ALERT ON

The call has gone out: physicians will be stepping up their fight against domestic violence, particularly violence against women. According to the U.S. surgeon general, domestic violence is now more common than automobile accidents, muggings and rapes combined. The American Medical Association has issued guidelines for doctors to screen for cases of domestic violence during emergency, surgical, primary care, pediatric, prenatal and mental health visits. Besides addressing immediate medical needs, doctors are urged to refer victims to services that could help resolve their abusive situations. The AMA has also suggested protocols for doctors to follow in cases of suspected abuse or neglect of children.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE

P.S. One-fourth of all U.S. women will be abused by a current or former partner at some point in their lives.

Nobody deserves to be beaten. If you are a victim of domestic violence, remember that your physician can provide you with a list of the agencies that can help. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. When treating patients, I always try to consider how I would like myself, my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

A Presidential Jinx?

Now that the election is over you can't help wondering if there is a Massachusetts jinx involving Presidents.

We have sent four native sons to the White House but not one of them served more than one term.

Quincy-born John Adams and John Quincy Adams were defeated for re-election by Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson respectively.

Brookline-born Jack Kennedy was assassinated before completing his first term.

And, of course, Milton-born George Bush was ousted by Bill Clinton Nov. 3

Combined they will have served a little under 15 years. If re-elected, they would have had a combined 32 years in the White House.

SPEAKING OF George Bush we mentioned him in a column on Congressman Brian Donnelly a couple of weeks ago.

Donnelly recalled that Bush and late Congressman James Burke became good friends when Bush arrived in Washington as a young Congressman from Texas and Burke, who lived in Milton, discovered that Bush was born in Milton.

We noted that to the best of anyone's recollection Bush had never visited his birthplace. Donnelly said: "I have never heard that he ever came back."

A reader, who wishes to remain anonymous, challenged us on that and sent us checking. As it turns out, Bush did visit his birthplace — but long before he became vice president or president.

His birthplace is located at 173 Adams St. and is now owned by Dean and Nina Graves who have lived there 26 years.

Mrs. Graves confirms that Bush did visit the house "about 18 or 19 years ago" with one of his sons.

At that time Bush would have been either Ambassador to the United Nations or Republican National Chairman.

"He was a very, very handsome man," recalls Mrs. Graves. "But I didn't even know who he was at the time."

She never dreamed that day she was talking with a future president.

Bush, Mrs. Graves says, did not ask to go inside the house but only to take his son around the property outside.

"I don't want to go in," he said. "I just want to show my son where I was born."

She says she wasn't sure which of his sons was with Bush but that he was about 15 years old at the time.

Asked if she thought the house should be made a national historic site, Mrs. Graves says she isn't quite sure how she feels about that. But she thinks Bush has earned that honor.

"I think he's a very fine man. He's given his whole life to his country."

SHEETS

A FUNDRAISER RECEPTION for Mayor James Sheets is set for Tuesday, Dec. 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Common Market, Willard St., West Quincy. Tickets are $100.

Sounds like the opening gun for a third term re-election bid.

IF YOU LIKE to look ahead, here's one you probably won't want to miss: a testimonial for John Gillis, retired City Clerk, Norfolk County Commissioner-elect and Mr. Nice Guy, is set for Saturday, March 20 (7 p.m. to midnight) at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St.

GILLIS

Co-chairmen are City Clerk Joseph Shea, former Assistant City Clerk Tom Burke and Bill Draicchio. Tickets, at $25 per person, will be available this week. Don't wait, because they'll go fast.

ATTY. GEORGE BURKE and his wife, Sandy, have a brand new lawyer in the family. Son, George, has been notified he has passed the Massachusetts Bar and will become an attorney in his father's North Quincy firm, Burke, Cunningham and Burke.

GEORGE BURKE II

GEORGE BURKE III

Young Burke, a graduate of Syracuse University and Boston College Law School, has been working at the firm as a para-legal and now graduates to attorney.

He's the third Burke in the firm. The second is Kevin Burke, a nephew of the senior Burke.

Actually the elder Burke is not a senior but George, II. Which makes young Burke, George III.

Sounds a little like a royal family. But no high airs in the office. George II is now known as "Two" and George, III "Three."

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): a gossip is a fool with a keen sense of rumor.

$9,000 Approved For Fire Dept. Flashlights

The City Council approved a request for $9,000 to purchase special flashlights for the Fire Department Monday.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told the council that the new lights are superior to the flashlights the department currently uses and would save money over the long run.

Gorman said the lights, which clip on to a firefighter's jacket, penetrate smoke, are waterproof and are able to absorb a tremendous impact without being broken.

The flashlights, which were developed by former Boston Fire Commissioner Leo Stapleton and Black & Decker Co., cost $94 each. The lights feature rechargeable batteries and last between five and 10 years.

The fastest growing job category from now until the year 2,000 is expected to be that of legal assistant.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause. Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are: Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985). Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987. Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating Project Impact, an innovative program which addresses alcohol and drug problems among youths, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Those nominated the past seven years are eligible to be nominated again this year. Since this is not a popularity contest, a person receiving the most nominations will not necessarily be the final winner.

Anyone nominated just once has an equal chance of being the award recipient.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Thursday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Here is an opportunity for our readers to voice their opinion as to who should be The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1992.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Blatt Says Quincy Failed Plan E

"Plan E did not fail Quincy," City Manager Donald H. Blatt told the Women's Republican Club, "Quincy failed Plan E. I hope that the people of Quincy rally and bring back Plan E for the benefit of our children.

Blatt attributed the defeat of the city manager-council form of government in the Nov. 8 election to certain antagonisms that have built up over the past six years and skillfully used by the politicians.

Any city manager will build those antagonisms, he said, "because he must say, 'No,' where nobody has said 'No,' before and he must offend people who, for various reasons, have not been offended before."

Meanwhile Rep. Clifton H. Baker proposed amendments to the city's new Plan A charter that would restore the ward councilor system and set the salaries of the mayor at $8,000 and the city councilors at $1,000 each per year.

And George A. Yarrington, head of the Quincy Taxpayers Association said he plans to file a bill that would permit the Plan A charter to operate like Plan E with an executive director appointed to assist the mayor.

NEW PLANNING DIRECTOR

Regis J. Harrington of Hingham, a planner in the State Department of Commerce, was named Quincy Planning Director, succeeding William G. Farrar, the first full-time planning director of the city who resigned a year ago.

City manager Blatt said Harrington would start work Dec. 26 with a salary based on $5,700 a year the first week (the same as Farrar) and the newly authorized rate of $7,000 a year after Jan. 1.

City Councillor Carl W. Anderson, a staunch opponent of the city manager and the Plan E form of government, said he was of the opinion that Blatt "can expect trouble" over the $1,300 a year raise.

HOUSES MOVED

Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert issued permits for the use of city streets to move two buildings in West Quincy to make way for construction of the Southeast Expressway.

Augustino Volpini was authorized to move his house from 33 Willard St. to a site on Furnace Brook Parkway next to the library and John Meenan of Dorchester was permitted to move a building from Willard St. to Bunker Hill Lane.

AUSTIN GAINS

With four wards and five precincts in Ward 5 complete, City Councillor Edna B. Austin increased her lead to 165 votes over David J. Crowley in a recount. Austin had beaten Crowley by 93 votes in the first count of the Nov. 8 election.

QUINCY-ISMS

High winds prevent his arrival by helicopter so Santa Clause came by car to join the parade that opens the Christmas season in downtown Quincy. Pvt. Vincent M. Penzo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Penzo of 48 Appleton St., Atlantic, was in basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J. Turkeys were 39 cents and 45 cents a pound at Lodgens, 32 Cottage Ave. Mrs. Helen Parlee of 39 Sewall St., Wollaston, was installed as president of the Quincy Chapter of the Gold Star Mothers. Fred C. Cahoon announced his retirement as assistant superintendent of the Quincy Post Office at the end of the year. Richard A. Venna, son of Quincy Welfare Commissioner Anthony J. Venna, was named a juvenile probation officer at the Quincy District Court. The School Committee asked Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard to see if arrangements could be made to use a room at the Furnace Brook School for a class of children with cerebral palsy. The Fore River Shipyard expected to start work soon on a $2 million contract to construct 12 giant presses for the auto industry. Well's Cafe, 668 Hancock St., Wollaston, was offering a Sunday dinner special of Yankee pot roast with jardiniere sauce for 95 cents. John Guthro Sr. of Quincy Point was awarded a 50 year button for his half century membership in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. Winthrop B. Wade of 22 Blade St., Wollaston, was named health agent for the town of Hull. The International City Managers Association reported that Quincy had a larger police force than the national average for cities with 50,000 to 100,000 population, 1.82 per 1,000 people compared to 1.54 nationally.

Reader's Forum

Concerned Over Budget, Residential Tax Increases

An Open Letter to Mayor James A. Sheets and members of the City Council:

We are writing to express our association's concerns regarding the $6 million 1993 budget increase, the $101 tax increase on small residences, and the suggestion by some business proponents that the 60 percent levy on residences be increased and the levy on businesses be decreased.

Speaking for our members, we want to call your attention to the plight of hundreds of small homeowners in Quincy who are at this very time struggling to make ends meet: many, many are unemployed and have been for a year or more. Inflation and the cost of living have eaten up their savings and they are struggling to make mortgage payments, heat their homes and provide the necessities of life for their families—while inflation is ever on the increase! Just this month, we learned that even our electric light bills are going up shortly!

In view of the fact that thousands of our residents are trying to live on strained fixed incomes and savings bank interest way down (which they depend on to supplement Social Security and small pension), the residents of Quincy cannot afford to pay higher taxes ($1862 average bill). Therefore, we urge you to reconsider all items in the 1993 budget and reduce the amount of increase considerably from the proposed $6 million! Until the economic situation in Massachusetts improves, we simply must hold the line on spending, and make better use of funds available including closer scrutiny of Federal grant funds that could be used more judiciously! We trust our letter will receive your serious consideration before any tax increases are voted.

Arthur M. Chandler, President Quincy Citizens Association

Flood Plain Library Available To Residents

The Thomas Crane Public Library is maintaining a flood plain library to make material available to residents so that they can take preventative measures to minimize flood damage to their property.

Residents who have questions, or need assistance in retrofitting procedures, are asked to contact the Quincy Building Department, 55

Sea St. The phone number is 376-1450.

An inspector will be happy to assist with further information or if need be, make a site visit to your property.

Lasagna Roll Ups

A hundred food extension cord for a daughter's birthday present? Since our daughter Sue lives in Rhode Island and cannot borrow ours, and loves outdoor gardening, we decided among other things to give her the cord. Our "green thumb daughter" liked that gift as well as some of the others she received. And since this is supposed to be a food column, today's recipe is for lasagna rolls which I brought to Rhode Island for dinner that day. Each piece of lasagna is cut in halves for easy serving and can be made ahead of time. I used cottage cheese in place of ricotta and you'd never know it.

LASAGNA ROLL UPS

- 1 Lb lasagna
- 1 cup chopped spinach (optional)
- 1 Lb cottage cheese
- 8 oz. shredded mozzarella or cheddar cheese
- salt and pepper to taste
- 2 Tbsps chopped parsley
- 1 egg slightly beaten (I used egg substitute)

1 quart tomato sauce
grated Romano or parmesan cheese
3 or 4 Tbsps seasoned bread crumbs

While the lasagna is boiling, mix the cottage cheese, shredded cheese, bread crumbs, salt, pepper, parsley the egg and spinach until well blended.

In a large baking pan, put about a half cup of tomato sauce. Cut each lasagna piece separately as you roll them in half. Place some of the cheese mixture on the strip and roll, then place in the baking pan. Do this until the pan is filled (you might have a couple of strips left over for another small dish or whatever). Pour sauce over the top and sprinkle with grated cheese. (I also sprinkle some shredded cheese as well). Make sure there is enough sauce so they won't have a chance to stick or burn. Bake uncovered in a 375 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes until bubbly. You'll find it so much easier lifting the rolls out, than cutting into a regular lasagna dish.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

GEORGE BARRY of Quincy (second from left) recently won the grand prize of a trip to Washington, D.C. in the employee safety sweepstakes sponsored by Massachusetts Electric. Barry was accompanied by his wife, Margaret; his daughter and grandson, Lorraine and Marc Veneziano of Scituate; and "Ben Franklin" (actor Chip Alcott), a Mass. Electric spokesman who acted as the family's escort.

Mass. Electric Employee Wins Trip To Washington, D.C.

Massachusetts Electric employee George Barry and his wife, Margaret, of Quincy recently were escorted around Washington, D.C. by a distinguished historical figure—Ben Franklin (actor Chip Alcott).

The four-day trip to Washington was the grand prize in utility's "For Safety Sake" contest that test the electrical safety knowledge of the company's employees and customers. Olcott is featured in the utility's safety awareness television and print advertisements as the "spokesperson" of electrical safety.

George Barry is a first-class meterman at Massachusetts Electric's Weymouth office and this month celebrates his 49th year of service with the utility. His winning contest entry was selected from a field of 500-plus entries submitted by employees of New England Electric System companies.

Joining the Barrys for their visit to Washington were their daughter, Lorraine Veneziano and their grandson, Marc Veneziano. A safety stop during the group's tour was a visit to the offices of OSHA (Occupational Health and Safety Administration) where they got a first-hand look at the programs offered by the safety monitoring agency.

Christmas Fair Saturday At Crestview Facility

Crestview Healthcare Facility, 86 Greenleaf St., will hold its annual Christmas Fair Saturday, Nov. 21 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The fair, which will

'Early One Morning' At Eastern Nazarene

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will present the Boston area premiere of Cameron Keating in the original one-act musical, "Early One Morning," by Ronald Melrose Wednesday, Nov. 18.

"Early One Morning" is a story of Mary Magdalene's journey to Jesus' tomb, as she recalls memories of the One who transformed her once broken life.

Keating is a professional New York actress and Melrose is director of music of All Angels' Episcopal Church in New York City.

"Early One Morning" will be presented at 7 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center on the campus of the college. All seats are $5. For more information or tickets, call 773-6350, ext. 262.

Continental Cablevision/Quincy Wins Nominations In State Community Television Contest

Staff and volunteer producers at Continental Cablevision systems have received seven nominations, more than any other cable system in the state, in the 1992 Massachusetts Community Television Contest.

Overall, Continental Cablevision systems took 37 of the 89 nominations in the eighth annual competition sponsored by the state Cable Television Commission, while public access organizations funded by Continental received an additional 10 nominations.

Winning two nominations in the performing arts category was Quincy volunteer

Randall King, a communications teacher at Eastern Nazarene College for "ENC Madrigal Singers" and "Gospel Jamboree '92."

Taking a nomination in the municipal issues category was longtime Quincy volunteer Libbie Payne for "Quincy's Response to AIDS."

Winning a nomination in the sports category was Continental Area Program Manager Ed Fiddler for "Quincy Senior Olympics," a one-hour cable special covering every event at the eight-day regional competition.

Winning a nomination in the health category was volunteer Cindy Long, a Quincy YMCA instructor, for "Fit Time," a weekly 30-minute aerobics fitness series.

Nikki Hu, a dance artist who creates cultural programs for the Quincy schools on a consultant basis, took a nomination in the ethnic/cultural category for "Jackdaws of Kilgarvan."

Winning a nomination in the programming for and by seniors category was Quincy Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan for "Senior Beat," a monthly 30-minute TV magazine. The show, produced by Noonan with the assistance of Continental's Darlene Mendoza, has won numerous state and national honors.

be selected from a Civil Service list. After a background check, the recruits will attend police training at the academy, perhaps by next March.

Mullen said the new recruits should be on the street by next July, the start of the new fiscal year.

The 17 new recruits will be the biggest single hiring in at least a decade, officials said. In 1988, 11 patrolmen joined the force; in 1989, two were hired.

The new officers will allow the department to increase police presence, including beat patrols in Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy as well as other city neighborhoods, the mayor said.

"We consider it to be a very fundamental right in Quincy for people to be safe in their person and on their property," he said.

Sheets said he wants to hire young people, preferably Quincy residents, to fill the positions.

"We want to have as many Quincy recruits as we can. When you live in Quincy and shop at the local store, you secure an understanding of the city."

"We want young police officers. They have a lot of fire in their eyes. They're anxious to get started."

Mullen said it is important to have "a good mix" of veteran officers and young patrolmen. "We're not an old police department but we're aging."

Officials agreed the hiring will not solve the city's crime problems but added it will bolster the department's police capabilities.

"This is a good step. It's not the whole answer but it's part of the answer," said City Council President Charles Phelan.

"Half a loaf of bread is better than none," Ward 1

Councillor and Public Safety Committee Chairman Peter Kolson added.

Without most of the city's unions agreeing to change their health care to a single provider, officials said the hiring would not have been possible. In fact, Sheets said he would have had to lay off some city workers to balance FY94.

Bill Stenmon, president of the Quincy Superior Officers Union, and Paul Quinn, president of the Quincy Patrolmen's Union, thanked Sheets and the City Council for fostering cooperation between the city and unions and committing resources for public safety.

"If it weren't for Mayor Sheets's compassion, I don't know where we would be," Stenmon said.

Quinn added, "It can only be done through cooperation. We had been handcuffed."

Illegal Dumping At Former Landfill?

concrete, wire, pipe, asphalt and reinforcement bars (steel bars) are being dumped.

"Some of these have sharp edges and could puncture the membrane (plastic cover)," she said. Sargent also said that there are wetlands on the site which are being covered.

Colton agreed that the reinforcement bars have to be removed. However, the other materials being dumped are needed to stabilize the area to allow an access road to be built to reach the area where the dredge material will be dumped. He said that DEP guidelines are being followed by reusing construction materials.

The area being worked on is not on top of the landfill membrane, Colton said. The membrane at the top of the landfill site is plastic but most of it is clay, he said.

"You can't drive a truck over the landfill cap or clay," he said.

Sargent said that the proposed dumping of dredge material from Town Brook by the Army Corps of Engineers needs DEP approval through the Conservation Commission because it is within 100 feet of wetlands. She said the Army Corps has not sought the approval but has begun construction of a containment area where the dredge material will be dumped.

"The plan (to dump the dredge material) sounds okay but the plan is supposed to be filed with the Conservation Commission," Sargent said.

She said it is the Commission's job to review these plans and seek DEP approval. "Will the dumping damage the leaching control chambers? We have a right to ask these questions," she said.

Colton said the project is not within 100 feet of wetlands. "It does not impact wetlands so it is not subject to Conservation Commission approval," he said.

Sargent said the dumping of the dredge material could possibly have a negative environmental impact if not done right.

"That area is at the top of a watershed... Furnace Brook," she said. "Whatever's dumped there could show up downstream," Sargent said.

"The environmental record of this department is excellent," Colton said. "We are as committed to the protection of wetlands as the Conservation Commission is."

Sargent issued a cease and desist order to the contractor on Oct. 29. Colton has agreed to order worked ceased on the particular area in question. In the meantime, Colton said he will meet with City Solicitor Steve McGrath to get his opinion on which department has jurisdiction in the area.

Sargent said she is also concerned that dumping of illegal materials may be occurring by contractors not authorized to dump at the site by the Army Corps or the DPW.

The area is "strictly monitored" by the contractor, Massachusetts Gravel, Colton said.

However, Fabrizio questioned the monitoring process.

"If things are going up there that shouldn't be there (reinforcement bars)... What's it doing up there in the first place?" Fabrizio said.

Daniel Joyce of Quincy, who owns property adjacent to the landfill complained that the work at the site "breaks every law in the book."

Joyce criticized Colton for increasing the height of the landfill and blocking his view of the Blue Hills. He also said that flooding on his property has increased because of the dumping.

Colton said that the filling of a "valley" area at the landfill will improve the grade of the slope for future recreation use.

Fabrizio had asked to have a City Council DPW Committee meeting at this past Monday's City Council meeting. The meeting was not scheduled properly and has been changed to Monday, Dec. 7 at 6:15 p.m.

"Part of my job description is to oversee what's going on at the landfill," Sargent said.

"I'm looking forward to a speedy resolution," Sargent said. She said she backs the plan to use the area for recreation. "We should get people up there to enjoy it. It will help cut down on the vandalism there," she said.

being rezoned as open space. Sheets proposed the rezoning while he was Ward 4 City Councillor.

Companies interested in bidding on the project must submit their proposals by Dec. 7. Meade said he will review the bids along with representatives from the mayor's office, Recreation Department and Park Department.

"Once a proposal is accepted we can sit down and talk about the fields, who uses them, if there will be lights, a scoreboard, etc.," said Ray Cattaneo, executive director of the Park and Recreation Departments.

"There is a shortage of soccer fields in the city," Sheets said. He also said the a local mountain climbing club utilizes the area, another reason why he would like to preserve the site for recreational use.

"We've (city officials) walked the area and envisioned things," Welch said. "But we'll have to wait and see. The proposals must be environmentally sound too."

Asian American, Bridge Committees Merge

The Asian American Committee and The Bridge Committee Inc. announce the merger of the two organizations.

The newly-formed group is called The Quincy Asian American Association (QAAA). The aim of the group will be to:

- Promote the general welfare of the Asian American population in the Quincy community, and

- Facilitate and promote better cultural understanding between the Asian American population and the rest of the community.

All interested parties are invited to join. Questions may be directed to the group's coordinator, Rev. Richard Law at 773-5482.

QAAA looks to communities and its friends for its primary support. Through such support it hopes to achieve its goals in assisting in the social, educational and overall acculturation process of Asian Americans.

Membership entitles one to available outreach programs as well as receiving the QAAA publication. In addition, members will be eligible for discounts on QAAA-sponsored events. Donations help to support programs, services and resources for the Asian community.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Herodotus, one of the first writers of history who lived about 2500 years ago declared, "Envy is born in man from the start." It is a universal passion often condemned by philosophers throughout the ages.

Envy, however, need not be a corroding vice. It can be minimized. Fact is, those who set out with deliberate intent to be envied have a more serious and more bothersome problem than those who envy. If the truth is known, those who are envied because of popularity, social position, material wealth or whatever, generally have far more serious problems of their own. Socrates once said: "If all the world's secret problems were put in one pile, and each person asked to take an equal share, we would surely prefer to keep those we already have."

If, as or when a human mood of envy occurs, would it not be sensible to ponder about the problems of those we envy? Would it perhaps not be a good way to minimize envy? ...

Edgar A. Ramsden, 68

Quincy District Court Employee

A funeral Mass for Edgar A. Ramsden, 68, of Quincy, was celebrated Nov. 14 in St. Ann's Church.

Mr. Ramsden died Nov. 12 at Quincy Nursing Home.

A clerical employee, he rarely missed a day of work at the Quincy District Court in his 23 years there.

Although he had Parkinson's Disease since 1969, he had been doing quite well until a year ago and stayed on the job at the court until Labor Day.

He served with the case management department, handling files and special projects.

Before joining the court system, he was a teacher on Martha's Vineyard, in Connecticut, and, for a time, in the Boston school system.

A 1948 graduate of Boston College, he majored in English.

A history buff, he was a former member of the Quincy Historical Society. A fan of classical music, he enjoyed playing the piano and also did a great deal of reading.

He was also fond of nature and enjoyed birds. In his younger years he worked in his garden.

Born in Boston, he lived most of his life in Quincy and was a graduate of North Quincy High School.

As a young man he worked in local supermarkets and went boating at any opportunity.

He was a communicant of St. Ann's Church in Wollaston for 25 years.

He is survived by his wife, Elinor M. (Woods) Ramsden; two sons, Edward A. Ramsden of New Jersey and John F. Ramsden of Maine; a daughter, Lisa M. McIntosh of Arlington; a sister, Beatrice Robertson of Kingston; and three grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Quincy Nursing Home Activities Fund, 11 McGrath Highway, Quincy, MA 02169.

Home Depot Donates $11,686 For School Crossing Guards

Home Depot has donated $11,686 to the city to pay for two crossing guards in the Willard Street area.

The donation was part of the agreement between the hardware store and the city last year which allowed Home Depot to locate at the site of the former Antonelli Iron Works. Home Depot opened for business last week.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said the crossing guards would work during the morning and afternoon while children are traveling to and from school. Placement of the crossing guards will be at the discretion of the Police Department he said.

6-Year-Old Believed Kidnapped Sought

Quincy Police are working with the Norfolk County District Attorney's office and State Police to determine the whereabouts of 6-year-old Michael Bachir who was apparently kidnapped Friday.

"We are working with the state's domestic violence unit and there are various places we are checking out," said Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen.

The boy, a first grader at the Squantum School, apparently left school with his father, Mohammad Bachir.

"We've been knocking on doors in Quincy and Cambridge and are Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney praised Fabrizio for his efforts in negotiating a settlement with Home Depot to ensure minimal disruption to the neighborhood.

"Home Depot just had its grand opening but the traffic pattern appears to be flowing smoothly. The traffic nightmares which were predicted haven't happened," Cheney said.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan also praised Fabrizio and the Home Depot Monitoring Committee. The committee was established to oversee Home Depot's compliance with conditions set by the city for the store's construction and operation.

monitoring areas be (the father) frequents," Mullen said.

Mullen also said State Police are monitoring Logan Airport because Bachir, a native of Lebanon, may attempt to flee there.

The boy's mother, Molly Scharlach, said she left Bachir in September and obtained a restraining order against him on Sept. 24.

A relative telephoned Scharlach Friday to tell her that Michael was with his father. Bachir also called and allowed Scharlach to speak to her son.

Supervised Gym Program Starts Saturday

The Quincy Recreation Department will begin its Saturday gym program Nov. 21 at nine neighborhood locations.

The program offers supervised activities for boys and girls age eight through high school. The program is divided into three separate times for three age groups:

- Elementary (age 8 through fifth grade) from 8 to 9:30 a.m.
- Middle school (grades 6, 7 and 8) from 9:30 to 10:45 a.m.
- Senior high school

St. Joseph's, Point Ecumenical Service Nov. 23

Quincy Point Congregational Church and St. Joseph's Catholic Church will conduct an ecumenical Thanksgiving service Monday, Nov. 23 at St. Joseph's Church, 550 Washington St., Quincy Point.

This year the homily will be delivered by Revs. Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon, co-pastors, of Point Congregational Church.

Light refreshments will be served after the service in St. Joseph's School cafeteria.

Appropriate hymns and music will be provided by Carla Errichiello, organist and choir director at St. Joseph's. Admission is free and the general public is welcome to attend. A free will offering will help local food pantries.

Two Thanksgiving Services At HN Congregational

Two Thanksgiving services will be held Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 300 Manet Ave.

"More Than A Heritage" will be the sermon topic at the 9 a.m. worship service. "A Gratifying Life" will be the 10:30 a.m. topic.

The Sunday School children will perform a playlet entitled "Thanksgiving at Plymouth" at both services.

On Sunday at 7 p.m., Houghs Neck Congregational Church and its choir will participate with other churches in an ecumenical service at the Bethel Nazarene Church, Empire St., Quincy.

Family, Thanksgiving Sunday At Bethany Church

Family Sunday and Thanksgiving Sunday will be observed at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts.

The altars will be decorated for the Thanksgiving holiday celebration by Tom and Betty Newton and Jean Ross.

Children of the Church School and adult worshippers will bring foodstuffs to the church. These will be given to the Protestant Social Service Bureau's Pantry Shelf for distribution to needy families.

Thanksgiving Sunday is when the 1993 pledges of support for Bethany Church will be consecrated. New members of the church will be received in a ceremony to be conducted by the Rev. Roger Ketcham.

Rev. Ketcham's sermon topic will be "Getting The Story Straight." Scripture reader will be Darryl Mikami. Music will be by the Chancel Choir directed by Gregory Flynn, organist. Greeters will be June Panuschka and Edith Goodnow. Hostesses for the fellowship hour following the service will be Pauline Anderson and Vivian Miller.

The Bible Study group will meet Sunday at 8:30 a.m. Child care will be provided during the service for infants and toddlers.

'The Golden Thread' Topic At First Church Of Quantum

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preached on "The Golden Thread" last Sunday at First Church of Quantum, 164 Bellevue Rd.

Dore Klock sang the offertory solo. The congregation sang hymns accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson. Greeters were Barbara Walter and Si Porter. Ushers were Earl Taylor and Roberta Sheehan.

Sunday School begins at 9:30 a.m. for Grade 5 children and up. Younger children have Sunday School during church at 10:30 a.m.

Thanksgiving Sunday At United First Parish Church

The congregation will celebrate Thanksgiving with the singing of traditional Thanksgiving hymns Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service at United First Parish Church, Unitarian Universalist, in Quincy Center.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will give the sermon "The Courage of Be Grateful" and children of the Church School will bring vegetables and food to help the Quincy Crisis Center provide Thanksgiving dinners to families.

Andrew Cormier will be guest instrumentalist and will play trumpet selections. Norman Corey will play the organ. Elaine Sincavage and Charles Kelley will be the greeters. Bob Nutt and Matt Malloy will usher.

Church School children will also bake fresh bread which they will distribute to the congregation at the close of the service.

Call 773-1290 for information.

First Church Of Christ Thanksgiving Day Service

First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy Center, will hold a Thanksgiving Day service at 10:30 a.m.

A Bible lesson will be read by two lay readers and a writing by Mary Baker Eddy, founder of Christian Science, will also be read. In addition, time will be given for testimonies of gratitude by Christian Scientists.

Child care will be available for children too young to attend the service. No collection will be taken.

Thanksgiving Eve Service At Faith Lutheran

Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., will hold a Thanksgiving Eve Service with Holy Communion, Wednesday, Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The Rev. James Kimmell will preach the Thanksgiving sermon.

Offerings for ELCA World Hunger Appeal will be brought to the altar by the ushers to be received by the Rev. Kimmell.

Food donations for the Protestant Social Service Bureau Pantry Shelf will be brought to the altar.

'Christ The King Sunday' At Point Congregational

North Quincy 33, Taunton 6

Raiders OCL Champs; Win Super Bowl Berth

By TOM SULLIVAN
Old Colony League champions!

The undefeated North Quincy football team, one of the surprise teams of the season, can boast of the league title after breaking a close game wide open in the second half to roll over Taunton, 33-6, last Saturday at Taunton.

The 9-0 Red Raiders (7-0 in the league) thus clinched a spot in the Division 1 playoffs (Super Bowl), their first post-season berth since the 1975 Super Bowl team which lost to Woburn.

North Quincy is expected to face the champion either of the Greater Boston League (Arlington or Waltham) or the Catholic Conference (Xaverian or St. John's Prep) in one of the Division 1 playoff games.

"This is just great and I'm very happy for the kids," said a happy North coach Ken McPhee, still wet from his Gatorade shower compliments of his players.

"I never expected to be undefeated going into the Quincy game but our defense has been unbelievable and has carried us through the season. We have one of the best defenses in Eastern Mass. and have given up only an average of 7.5 points a game."

Sophomore Shawn Nee had a fantastic day at Taunton with three touchdowns and 158 yards gained rushing.

McPhee gave credit to the offensive line, singling out Mike Linnane, Nick Mastrogiamomo, Pete Licciardi, Dave Pacino, Dave Reinhart, Justin Dilks and Jamie O'Connell.

"They did some fine blocking and opened up some big holes, clearing the way for Nee," McPhee said. "O'Connell did some excellent blocking. Mark Sinclair, Josh Gott and Sean Skahan also had fine games."

Reinhart, who was again outstanding both ways, continued his brilliant performance and had five more sacks, giving him an amazing 22 for the season. He also had five other solo tackles.

"He has been just unbelievable and I don't see how he can miss any all-scholastic team," said McPhee. "Also, on defense, Pacino, who I think is the best nose guard in the league and deserving of all-scholastic honors, Bill Skutul, Linnane, Eric Delorey, Brian Rafty and Sean

Halpin, were tremendous.

"Although Liam Higgins' passing figures were unimpressive (3-for-11 for 25 yards), he was on the mark and several strikes were dropped," McPhee added.

North led by only 6-0 at the half, scoring early in the second quarter after Rafty recovered a fumble on the Tigers' 25. Nee worked the ball down to the one from where Higgins scored on a keeper. The pass for the two-point conversion failed.

Tony Licciardi halted a serious Taunton threat when he intercepted a pass near the goal line.

North made it 12-0 on the first series of the third quarter when Nee raced 39 yards. A rush for the conversion was no good.

The Red Raiders broke the game open with 21 points in the final quarter.

Nee raced 28 yards to make it 18-0 and Higgins' kick for the extra point failed. An interception by Rafty set up Nee's scoring run.

Taunton then put together a 53-yard drive with a 15-yard personal foul penalty against North and a 20-yard pass from Mike Sayce to Brian Cunningham sparking the Tiger march. A.J. Viera scored from the one. The conversion pass was intercepted by North's Pat Shea, who galloped 100

Nee added his third touchdown, this one on a 40-yard run, to up the score to 26-6 and Higgins kicked the point.

Nathan Gott scored

North's final touchdown when he intercepted a pass and returned it 30 yards.

The Raider defense did a tremendous job on Viera, one of the league's top runners, holding him to just 50 yards.

Austin, Monroe Complete Stellar Seasons

Former Quincy High teammates Steve Austin and Sean Munroe completed a fantastic season when they led the UMass/Boston football team to a 53-28 win over Framingham State, giving the team a 5-4 record, its first winning season.

Quarterback Austin, who has been breaking NCAA Div. 3 records all season, tied a division record by throwing eight touchdown passes in the win.

Munroe, who also set several division marks during the season, tied a

Div. 3 record by catching 10 passes for 232 yards, including a record-tying five touchdown catches.

The former Presidents' unbelievable figures should put them in the thick of the running for NCAA Little All-American honors.

North Jayvees Win 8th

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy junior varsity football team improved its record to 8-1 with a 32-20 victory over Taunton.

As usual, North struck early with Mike McGregor recovering a fumble on the Taunton 36. Denick Epps, the team's high scorer, went all the way for a touchdown and Glenn Peterson rushed for the two-point conversion.

In the second quarter Sean Dolbear passed to McGregor for a 65-yard scoring play and Dolbear hit George Wirtz for the two-point conversion.

Following the kickoff Taunton was stopped cold and was forced to punt to North's 17. McGregor ran to the 26, then raced 64 yards for his second touchdown. The score went to 24-0 when Dolbear passed to Jerry Fernandez for the two points.

Taunton fumbled the kickoff on its 24 and North's Marty Shields recovered on Taunton's 24.

Will Crosby carried twice to the 10 and Epps went the remaining 10 yards for his second score. Crosby rushed for the two points.

North coaches Tom Carter and Peter Chrisom cleared their bench and the move enabled Taunton to take advantage of the reserves' mistakes.

A North fumble and roughing the passer penalty brought Taunton to the North eight and the Tigers scored their first touchdown. They passed for the two points.

An onside kick was recovered by Taunton and the Tigers made it 32-14 on a three-yard run. A few minutes later a Taunton pass looked like it would be intercepted only to have the ball tipped into a Taunton receiver's hands and he went 30 yards for the final points.

"We won and were able to play everybody," said Carter.

Quincy, North Frosh, Jayvees Clash Saturday

The annual Quincy-Veterans Memorial North Quincy freshman and junior varsity football games will be played this Saturday morning at Stadium. The freshman game will begin at 9 o'clock and the junior varsity contest at 11.

Injuries Hurt Inspired Presidents

The injury-plagued Quincy football team, with three of its top players sidelined, turned in an inspired performance last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium, but the Presidents lost a 7-0 decision to Barnstable (6-2) to drop its record to 3-5-1 going into the North Quincy finale.

Co. Capts. Robbie Kane and Mike Kavanaugh and Steve Fernald, all standout two-way players, watched the game from the sidelines as Quincy, making a complete about-face from its sorry showing against Silver Lake, played an excellent defensive game and, if it wasn't for some highly questionable calls against it, the outcome might have been different.

Quincy Season Scoring

	TD	PAT	Pts.
DiBona	5	14	44
Kane	5	0	30
Bogan	4	2	26
Clifford	2	0	12
McArdle	1	0	6

"I'm proud of the way the defense played," said coach Jack Raymer. "But the ability to convert third and long plays hurt us as it has all season. We helped beat ourselves again with costly penalties, but the defense dug in and held several times deep in our own territory."

"Sophomore Mike Feeley, who is going to be a good one, played an outstanding game. Dave Bogan, Noel DiBona, Mark Nutley, Duane Holmes, Paul Colleary, Sean McArdle, Mike Bartlett, Steve Provost, Mike Elder and Brian Clifford, who played in the secondary for the first time, played excellent games."

Mike Gardner was back at center after missing several games and Nutley, who filled in for him, returned to his regular guard position.

Bogan and DiBona continued to run well but were pretty well bottled up by the Barnstable defense. Bogan carried 10 times for 58 yards and DiBona eight times for 46 yards.

Bartlett, who had several outstanding games, continued to have his troubles passing and was only three-for-nine for 25 yards and had two passes intercepted.

"We are going to have to work on our passing if we hope to move against North Quincy," Raymer said. "We haven't been giving Bartlett much protection in the last couple of games."

Quincy took the opening kickoff and drove to Barnstable's 31, picking up two quick first downs, but the first pass interception halted the drive on the 25.

The Presidents held and the Red Raiders punted to Quincy's 33. Quincy clicked off two more first downs and reached Barnstable's 45 but the second interception gave the Raiders the ball on their 29.

Early in the second quarter Elder raced 75 yards on a punt return behind fine blocking for an apparent score but clipping was called by an official 40 yards downfield and the play was voided.

Barnstable got a good drive going and drove all the way to Quincy's 12, picking up three first downs, but Feeley recovered a fumble in the end zone, giving the Presidents the ball on their own 20.

In the third quarter, Barnstable drove from its own 40 and Quincy received a 15-yard face mask penalty. A pass interference call put the Raiders on the 11 and Mickey Fein passed to Chris Driscoll for 11 yards and the game's only touchdown. Mike Swift kicked the extra point. There were just 19 seconds left in the quarter.

A Bogan punt was partially blocked and the ball fell into Dan Morrell's hands. It was ruled he was over the line of scrimmage and Barnstable took possession on the 50. If Morrell had been behind the line of scrimmage he could have advanced the ball and Quincy could have kept possession.

Barnstable staged one last drive and the game ended with the Raiders on the Presidents' one.

Panthers Team Cheerleaders No. 1

For the first time in Quincy Youth Football League history, the Quincy Point Panthers' football team and cheerleaders both finished first in league competition.

The competition was judged by three members of the Northeastern University football cheerleading squad which placed ninth in the national collegiate finals last year.

Each squad was allowed a four-minute routine on the field, up to two minutes of music and two minutes of cheer.

The Apaches placed second, the Manets third and the Elks fourth.

Members of the winning cheerleading squad were Capts. Christine Caporale and Lisa Robertson, Beth Crowley, Tricia Oliva, Melissa Christopher, Natalie DiBona, Bonnie Ford, Jana Bagen, Amanda Barter, Nicolette Martinson, Patrice Kelly, and Anne Marie Garcia.

Prior to the championship game former Panther captain Kathie Ford, a sophomore at Abp. Williams, was honored by the QYFL for being selected an All-American Cheerleader by the National Cheerleading Assn. of Dallas, Texas.

A football and basketball cheerleader for the Bishops, she will perform in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade in New York with 400 of the top cheerleaders in the country.

Volleyball

North Girls Move Close To Second State Title

The undefeated North Quincy girls' volleyball team continues to steamroller all opposition as it moves toward its second straight championship and third overall.

Jim Rendle's Old Colony League champions are two games away from the title after defeating Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 3-0 (15-4, 15-2, 15-8) to win the East/Central Division crown.

North faced Lawrence's North Division winner last night (Wednesday) at North Reading, while South Division champion New Bedford faced West/Central winner Natick.

The championship game will be played

Saturday at Brandeis University at 3 o'clock.

Rendle feels his 19-0 team has an excellent chance at repeating for the state crown.

"We play at a different level than any team we've played so far," he said. "We're trying to play at the optimum level and we're getting close. We're ready to peak."

It was the same old story for Cambridge, which lost to North in the state semifinals last year. "North Quincy is so mechanical, we call them 'La Machine,'" said coach Linda Town.

Everyone did her part in the victory with Heather Rendle, Heather Simmons, Regina Murphy, Lara Rines, Joanne Currier and Maureen McCarthy all turning in their usual steady performances.

With North leading, 11-0, in the third and deciding game, Rendle emptied his bench.

Melinda Roberts, Wendy Sweetser, Karen Shea and Linda Jellison all gained valuable tournament experience and turned in fine efforts.

In their first tournament match North eliminated Melrose, 3-0 (15-6, 15-7, 15-12).

"This is the best team I have ever seen at the high school level," said Rendle. "The thing that makes this team different, aside from the experience, is that I have a great athlete at every position. Not many teams can say that."

Executive Hockey

Gardner, Linscott Hat Tricks Spark Bearing, 9-4

Ken Gardner and Chip Linscott had hat tricks to spark South Shore Bearing over Adams Sports, 9-4, in Executive Hockey League action at the Quincy Youth Arena.

John Mitchell, Jack Aldred and Bob Carroll had a goal each. Alfred had two assists and John Mitchell and Frankie Guest one apiece. Paul O'Brien, Chuck Behenna, Mark Giordani and Tim Breen scored for Adams and Don Fawcett, Pat

Clifford, Behenna and Bob Fowkes had assists.

Beacon Sports defeated the Fowler House, 4-1, on goals by Ed Grogan, Kevin Jago, Skip Manganaro and Mike Boyle. Manganaro, Jack Valle, Jack Duffy, Bob Boyle and Jack Duffy had assists. Glen Snaith scored the Fowler House goal unassisted.

John Andrews, Ted Viles, Paul Venziano and Mark Boulter had two goals apiece as Grumpy's Pub wallpopped Filibotte

Auto Sales, 10-2. Rick Joyce and Marty Tolson had the other goals. Venziano and Dave Perdios each had three assists. Viles two, Mike O'Connell two, Tolson two and Boulter and Dick McCabe one each. Filibotte's goals were scored by Doug McLean and Jim Mullaney, both unassisted.

John Andrews, Ted Viles, Paul Venziano and Mark Boulter had two goals apiece as Grumpy's Pub wallpopped Filibotte

Saluti Team Leads St. John's League

Bob Saluti's team has moved into first place in St. John's Holy Name Bowling League with a 44-12 record, followed by Jim Mastrantonio's team at 36-20.

The rest of the standings: Joe Matarazzo, 33-23; John Grande, 22-34; Mike Priscella, 21-35; Joe Zacheo, 12-44.

Grande rolled out the weekly high single of 121 and Dan Dieso had 115. Grande also had the high three of 308 and Bud McAllister rolled 293.

Grande's team rolled a season's high team single of 410 and Saluti had 388. Matarazzo had the high team three of 1113 and Saluti had 1092.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 258

ORDERED:

September 8, 1992

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy as follows:

That the Revised Ordinances of the City of Quincy, 1976, as amended, be further amended as follows:

Pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 40C, as amended:

STRIKE OUT THE FOLLOWING:

Existing City Historical Commission Ordinance

AND INSERT THE FOLLOWING:

New Historical Commission Ordinance

HISTORIC DISTRICTS ORDINANCE

of the
CITY OF QUINCYI. AUTHORITY AND PURPOSE

1. This Ordinance shall be known and may be cited as the Historic Districts Ordinance of the City of Quincy and is adopted pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 40C of the Massachusetts General Laws, as amended.

2. The purpose of this Ordinance is to promote the educational, cultural, economic and general welfare of the public through the preservation and protection of the distinctive characteristics of buildings and places significant in the history of the City, or its architecture, and through the maintenance and improvement of settings for such buildings and places and the encouragement of design compatible therewith. Regulations may be promulgated by the Historical Commission, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C of the General Laws, in order to fulfill the purpose of this Ordinance.

II. HISTORICAL COMMISSION

1. In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40, Section 8D, and Chapter 40C, Sections 4 and 14, of the General Laws, an Historical Commission shall be appointed by the Mayor. The Commission shall consist of seven citizens of the City appointed for three-year terms, with the terms of either two or three members expiring in a like manner. Vacancies shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment for an unexpired term. One regular member and one alternate member respectively shall be appointed from at least three nominees submitted by the Boston Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, from at least three nominees submitted by the Quincy Historical Society, and from at least three nominees submitted by the South Shore Board of Realtors. One regular and one alternate member shall be appointed, where possible, from districts, and three regular and three alternate members shall be appointed at large. If within thirty days after submission of a request for nominees to an organization entitled to submit nominations for membership on the Commission no such nominations have been made, the Mayor may proceed to make the appointments to the Commission without nomination by such organization.

2. In case of the absence, inability or unwillingness to act of a member of the Commission, his or her place shall be taken by an alternate member designated by the chairman. Each member and alternate shall continue in office until the expiration of his or her term or until his or her successor is duly appointed and qualified. All members shall serve without compensation. The Commission shall annually elect a chairman and vice-chairman from its member and a secretary from within or without its number.

III. DEFINITIONS

As used in this Ordinance the word "altered" includes the word "rebuild," "reconstructed," "restored," "removed," and "demolished" and the phrase "changed in exterior color;" the word "building" means a combination of materials forming a shelter for persons, animals or property; the word "Commission" means the Commission acting as the Historical Commission; the word "constructed" includes the words "built," "erected," "installed," "enlarged," and "moved;" the words "exterior architectural feature" mean such portion of the exterior of the building or structure as is open to view from a public street, public way, public park or public body of water, including but not limited to the architectural style and general arrangement and setting thereof, the kind, color and texture of exterior building materials, the color of paint or other materials applied to exterior surfaces and the type and style of windows, doors, lights, signs and other appurtenant exterior fixtures; the words "person aggrieved" mean an applicant, an owner of property adjoining the property of an applicant, an owner of property within the same historic district as the property of an applicant and within one hundred feet of said property as measured from a property line and any charitable corporation in which one of whose purposes is the preservation of historic structures or districts; the word "structure" means a combination of materials other than a building, including a sign, fence, wall, terrace, walk or driveway.

IV. CERTIFICATE OF APPROPRIATENESS, NON-APPLICABILITY OR HARDSHIP

1. Except as otherwise provided in Sections VI or VII of this Ordinance, no building or structure within an historic district shall be constructed or altered in any way that affects an exterior architectural feature unless the Commission shall first have issued a certificate of appropriateness, a certificate of non-applicability or a certificate of hardship with respect to such construction or alteration.

2. Any person who desires to obtain a certificate from the Commission shall file with the Commission an application therefor. In such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together in such form as the Commission may reasonably determine, together with such plans, elevations, specifications, material or other information, including in the case of demolition or removal a statement of the proposed condition and appearance of the property thereafter, as may be reasonably deemed necessary by the Commission to enable it to make a determination on the application.

3. No building permit for construction of a building or structure or for alteration of an exterior architectural feature within an historic district and no demolition permit for demolition or removal of a building or structure within an historic district shall be issued by the Building Commissioner until the certificate required by this section has been issued by the Commission.

V. FACTORS CONSIDERED BY COMMISSION IN MAKING DETERMINATION ON APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATE

1. In passing on matters before it the Commission shall consider, among other things, the historic and architectural value and significance of the site, building or structure, the general design, arrangement, texture, material and color of the features involved, and the relation of such features to similar features of buildings and structures in the surrounding area. In the case of new construction or additions to existing buildings or structures, the Commission shall consider the appropriateness of the size and shape of the building or structure both in relation to the land area upon which the building or structure is situated and to buildings and structures in the vicinity, and the Commission may in appropriate cases impose dimensional and setback requirements in addition to those required by other applicable laws and ordinances. The Commission shall not consider interior arrangements or architectural features not subject to public view.

2. The Commission shall not make any recommendation or requirement except for the purpose of preventing developments incongruous to the historic aspects or the architectural characteristics of an historic district.

VI. EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN MATTERS FROM REVIEW

1. The authority of the Commission shall not extend to the reconstruction, if substantially similar in exterior design, of a building, structure or exterior architectural feature damaged or destroyed by fire, storm or other disaster, provided such reconstruction is begun one year of the damage or destruction and carried forward with due diligence.

2. The Commission may determine from time to time after public hearing that certain categories of exterior architectural features, if the provisions of applicable laws or ordinances do not limit the authority of the Commission with respect thereto, may be constructed or altered without review by the Commission without causing substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance.

3. Upon request the Commission shall issue a certificate of non-applicability with respect to construction or alteration in any category then not subject to review by the Commission in accordance with this Section VI.

VII. ORDINARY MAINTENANCE, LANDSCAPING, CHANGES OTHERWISE PERMITTED OR REQUIRED

Nothing in this Ordinance shall be construed to prevent the ordinary maintenance, repair or replacement of any exterior architectural feature within an historic district which does not involve a change in design, material, color or the outward appearance thereof, nor to prevent landscaping with plants, trees or shrubs, nor construed to prevent the meeting of a requirement certified by a duly authorized public officer to be necessary for public safety because of an unsafe or dangerous condition, nor construed to prevent any construction or alteration under a permit duly issued prior to the effective date of this Ordinance.

VIII. ADDITIONAL POWERS, FUNCTIONS AND DUTIES OF COMMISSION

1. The Commission shall by majority vote of the members thereof promulgate appropriate procedural rules and regulations for the calling of meetings, the calling and conduct of hearings, the issuance and filing of certificates, and other determinations, and the keeping of records, provided that the same shall be consistent with the requirements of Chapter 40C, Sections 10 and 11, of the Massachusetts General Laws, and other provisions of this Ordinance.

2. The Commission may after public hearing set forth in such manner as it may determine the various designs of certain appurtenances, such as signs or lighting fixtures, which will meet the requirements of an historic district and a roster of certain colors of paint and roofing materials which will meet the requirements of an historic district, but no such determination shall limit the right of an applicant to present other designs or colors to the Commission for its approval. The Commission shall, subject to appropriation, prepare and public architectural and design guidelines for the construction and alteration of buildings and structures within historic districts.

3. The Commission may, where certain construction or alteration is otherwise inappropriate, nevertheless determine that owing to conditions especially affecting the building or structure involved, but not affecting the historic district generally, failure to approve an application will involve a substantial hardship, financial or otherwise, to the applicant and that such application may be approved without substantial detriment to the public welfare and without substantial derogation from the intent and purposes of this Ordinance. If the Commission so determines, it shall cause a certificate of hardship to be issued to the applicant.

4. The Commission may, subject to appropriation, employ clerical and technical assistants or consultants and incur other expenses appropriate to the carrying on of its work, and may accept money gifts and expend the same for such purposes.

5. The Commission shall have the powers, authority and duties of an historical commission as provided in Chapter 40, Section 8D, of the General Laws.

6. The Commission shall have, in addition, the powers, authority and duties granted to it by this Ordinance, as it may from time to time be amended.

IX. APPEALS AND ENFORCEMENT

1. Any person aggrieved by a determination of the Commission may, within twenty days after the filing of the notice of such determination with the City Clerk, appeal to the superior court for Norfolk County, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 12A, of the Massachusetts General Laws.

2. The superior court for Norfolk County may, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40C, Section 13, of the Massachusetts General Laws, enforce the provisions of this Ordinance, and any determinations, ruling or regulations issued pursuant thereto, and may, upon the petition of the Commission or, at the request of the Commission, of the Building Commissioner restrain by injunction violations thereof; and, without limitation, such court may order the removal of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature constructed in violation thereof, or the substantial restoration of any building, structure or exterior architectural feature altered or demolished in violation thereof, and may issue such other orders for relief as may be equitable.

3. Whoever violates any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, in addition to such other penalty as may be provided by law, be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars, imposed by the Commission as a non-criminal disposition pursuant to Chapter 40, Section 21D, of the Massachusetts General Laws. Each day during any portion of which a violation continues to exist shall constitute a separate offense.

4. In case any section, paragraph or part of this Ordinance is declared invalid or unconstitutional by any court of competent jurisdiction, every other section, paragraph and part of this Ordinance shall continue in full force and effect.

'Christmas On Parade' To Feature Over 60 Units

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The 41st annual Quincy Christmas parade will be held Sunday beginning at 12:30 p.m. along Hancock St. from the intersection of School and Elm Sts. to North Quincy High School. Approximately 250,000 people are expected to line the 2.8-mile parade route which will feature more than 60 marching units, including floats, bands and returning favorites as well as some new attractions.

This year's parade theme is "Christmas On Parade." It will feature more than 20 floats, 20 bands, 20 specialty units and 11 color guards.

Compared to last year's 40th anniversary gala event, this year's edition features slightly fewer units but parade organizers say the parade will not miss a step and promises to be another crowd pleaser.

"This year's parade would compare favorably to past parades in terms of the quality of participants. In terms of the number of units, it would be slightly less than last year due to the fact that last year was the 40th consecutive year and there were additions to the parade because it was a milestone and an achievement," Quincy Festival Committee Chairman George White said.

"It will be a great parade in terms of the number of bands, floats and specialty units and it will be a parade that the people who attend are accustomed to."

White, in his 38th year as a member of the festival committee, the last 12 as chairman, attributed the success and longevity of the annual parade, considered to be the largest of its type on the East Coast, to a large corps of volunteers, sponsors, city officials, parade participants and the public.

"I think it's an accomplishment of the parade committee. We certainly thank the sponsors and the cooperation of the City of Quincy and everyone involved that we can present a parade of this magnitude," White said.

Recently retired and Norfolk County commissioner-elect John Gillis will be honored as grand marshal.

Parade participants will include some new faces and attractions as well as some returning favorites. Among the new floats will be entries by Petar's Automotive and Eric's Auto Body and Harvey's Salt Water. Among those returning to the parade scene after brief absences will be the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and Curtin Call Theatre.

Other float participants include:

Quincy College, Quincy High School, Quincy Hospital, South Shore

Plaza, Sacred Heart Youth, Woodward School, Quincy Point Congregational Church, Jack Conway Real Estate, Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, Germantown Yacht Club, Quincy Partnership, Continental Cable, Galleria at Presidents Place, Quincy Fire Department, and McDonald's.

Of course, Santa will wave to spectators from his float sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and Quincy Christmas Festival Committee.

The city will also sponsor a float to promote its "Walk of Names" Town Common project unveiled Monday by Quincy officials. The city is planning to redo the walkway in front of the City Hall annex next spring or late summer with bricks funded through private donations.

Individuals can purchase bricks for $50 each and inscribe them with a personal message.

The "Walk of Names" float will feature a 4-foot by 4-foot by 8-foot replica brick with a big red bow inscribed with the name "Santa Claus." Those riding on the float will distribute flyers detailing the fundraiser and project along the parade route.

In addition, there will be a Choo Choo Train carrying 15 elves.

Floats will compete for seven awards. The best overall float will receive the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and $1,500 cash. Other cash prizes are $750 for first place, $500 second, and $250 each for third, fourth and fifth.

Other awards are the Mayor's Trophy for best Quincy float; best commercial float; and Christmas Festival Committee Trophy for the best specialty unit.

Judging the floats will be Mary Good, a professional portrait painter; Marilyn Reisberg, past president of the Quincy Art Association; and Christopher Neil, a member of the Quincy Art Association.

Featured bands are: David Prouty, the Klassy Clowns, Chicopee Comprehensive, Canton Legion Post, Pittsfield High School, Norton High, Marshfield High, New Bedford High and Junior High, Agawan High, Holbrook High, North Quincy High, Quincy High, Douglas High, Waltham Post Band, Southbridge High and three new participants, Stoneham High, Reading

High and Bourne High.

Bands will be judged in the vicinity of Cottage Ave. and Hancock St. The winning high school band will be eligible to appear in the 1993 New Year's Day Cotton Bowl Parade.

Specialty units are:

Winners of the Festival Committee poster contest, Quincy High and North Quincy High beauty queens, Hallamore Clydesdales, Scituate Safety Car, Toys for Tots, costume characters, USAF miniature jet, Police Athletic League, MBTA motorcycle drill team, Mass State Police unit, University of Massachusetts mounted police, Quincy Fire Department pumper and vehicle, Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, Quincy police vehicles and motorcycles, Automation Color Guard from Randolph, City of President's Fund toy train and Bare Cove Fire museum engine.

Another returning crowd favorite will be Rick Cobban who walks the parade route on stilts.

Anna McKinnon of Wollaston, who submitted the winning entry in this year's theme contest, will also participate in the parade.

The color guard competition will feature the Quincy Police, Mass State Police, Milton Police, George F. Bryan Post, Ladies State Auxiliary, Cambridge Police, Quincy Fire, George R. Bean Post American Legion, MBTA Motorcycle Drill Team, University of Massachusetts Color Guard and the State Color Guard American Revolution.

Comfort stations will be located at the Quincy District Court House and Kelly's in the Square. Portable units will be located at Shaw's parking lot and North Quincy High School.

The parade is expected to last two hours. Following the parade, band and float awards will be presented at an awards ceremony in North Quincy High School auditorium at 3:30 p.m. Capacity is 500 people.

Public Parking Facilities For Christmas Parade

About a dozen public parking facilities will be open for Sunday's 41st annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade.

Public parking will be available in four lots in the Quincy Square area: MBTA parking area and Stop and Shop garage, both on Burgin Parkway, the Ross parking garage and Ross parking area on Cliveden St. at the Parkway.

Additional parking areas are:

Adams Academy, Dimmock St. at Hancock St.; rear of Quincy Center for Technical Education, Coddington St. school parking lot, Quincy College on Coddington St., Capital Market and Supreme Market parking lots, both in Wollaston.

Wollaston and North Quincy MBTA stations, MBTA Newport Ave. extension, State Street South and Kemper Insurance, both on Newport Ave. extension, Pageant Field and Collins Rest-A-While, Merrymount Park, and Veterans Artery from Furnace Brook Parkway to Veterans Memorial Stadium, east and west sides.

Shaw's Supermarket, the Quincy Cooperative Bank, Firestone, Granite City Electric and John Hancock parking lots will be restricted to floats and parade personnel only starting at 6 a.m. Sunday.

Towing will be enforced from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both sides of the following streets:

Hancock St. from School St. northerly to Kendall St.

Quincy Ave. from School St. southerly to Faxon Rd.

Scammel St. from Quincy Ave. easterly to South St.

Elm St. from Hancock St. easterly to Washington St.

Mechanic St. from Revere Rd. southerly to Elm St.

Revere Rd. from Mechanic St. easterly to Washington St.

Dennis Ryan Parkway from Revere Rd. northerly to Foster St.

Santa Claus will "drop" into Quincy for the holiday season Saturday, Nov. 28 at 12:30 p.m. when he parachutes from a plane and lands at Faxon Field behind the Quincy Center for Technical Education.

Costume characters will be present to give candy canes to children at noon. After the landing, Santa will be transported by fire engine to downtown Quincy Center.

Santa will then participate in the second annual "Holiday Stroll" from 1 to 5 p.m. He and costume characters will stroll along Hancock St. and carolers will entertain with festive songs.

At 6 p.m., the Quincy Tourism Association will light their Christmas Tree at the Woodward School, corner of Hancock and Greenleaf Sts.

Santa Claus To Arrive By Parachute Saturday

Turning On Christmas Lights Friday

The holiday season will begin in Quincy Friday night, Nov. 27 when the Christmas lights are turned on at the Presidents Place Galleria, across from Quincy City Hall Plaza.

Rick Cobban, the "One Man Band," and costume characters will entertain from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m.

After local dignitaries are introduced, the lights will be turned on at 7:30 p.m. Santa Claus will appear briefly. Following the illumination, candy canes will be distributed to children in attendance by Santa and costume characters.

Winners of the Elementary School Christmas Poster Contest will be announced at the lighting ceremony.

Winning posters will be displayed in the South Shore Bank windows, and other posters will appear in other storefronts along Hancock St.

Parade Ban On 'Silly String,' Snappers

parade ban on the sale of "silly string" and "snappers."

The ordinance, adopted last year by the City Council, has reduced considerably the amount of litter, potential hazards and nuisances caused by these items during past parades, according to Chairman George White.

The careless use of silly string and snappers creates serious potential negative situations relative to parade participants and the viewing spectators.

"Our focus is on the street vendors, most of whom come from outside Quincy, who obtain a license from the state to sell their wares during the parade," White said.

The plastic silly string, which comes in various colors, is very sticky and slippery on the pavement when sprayed indiscriminately. It becomes hard to remove from the clothing of the marchers, costumes of the various characters, floats and pavements. It can damage clothing and musical instruments resulting in costly repairs.

Snappers, filled with gun-powder, explode upon impact and can result in injuries and hazards to the marching units, horses in the parade and children along the sidewalks.

"We found much less sticky litter following last year's parade clean-up and we greatly appreciate the cooperation received from the general public. We hope it will continue," White added.

Street vendors are reminded that violations on silly string and snappers will result in a warning for the first offense, $50 for the second, $100 for the third, and $200 for the fourth. State licensing authorities will be notified of repeat offenders.

A 1991 Quincy ordinance banning the sale of "silly string" and explosive "snappers" by sidewalk vendors during the city's annual Christmas parade has worked quite well, parade officials agree.

Officials Seek $50 Brick Sponsors 'Walk Of Names' Project For City Hall Annex Unveiled

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Move over Hollywood Walk of Fame—get ready for Quincy's "Walk of Names" starring . . . anyone who wants to contribute $50.

The "Walk of Names" project, which calls for a new brick plaza with some upgradings of plantings in the area in front of City Hall annex, was unveiled Monday by Mayor James Sheets and other city officials.

The new downtown improvement project, which will replace the present granite walkway in front of the annex, is intended to put City Hall and nearby Constitution Plaza and McIntyre Mall within a historical perspective.

"We would like to be able to develop and change the area in front of City Hall so that it fits more in line with the historical nature and perspective of this great city," Sheets said. He noted other well-known historical sites, such as United First Parish Church, the Adams Academy and Hancock Cemetery, are located near City Hall.

The project is the latest example of a city public-private partnership. Funding for the project, which Sheets estimated at $150,000 to $300,000, will be financed through the sale of bricks or pavers.

Sheets said the city will not fund any part of the reconstruction project.

"By sponsoring a brick and paying $50 for that sponsorship, we feel we will raise enough money for the reconstruction. We'll have to plug in the level of construction to fit with the level of funding," Sheets said.

The design allows for 2,500 dark red bricks to be engraved in black with the names of people from the past, present and future to form a "Walk of Names."

For each $50 donation from residents and businesses, a brick will be personalized with up to two lines of 15 characters each.

Officials said the bricks will be a lasting and unique gift or memorial to residents and organizations. Once in place, officials said the bricks will remain for years to come.

"This is a great opportunity for people of Quincy to become a part of this city's great history," Sheets said.

"We feel the 'Walk of Names' will become part of the well-known lexicon of the city," added Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader.

The engraved brick pavers will form an octagonal pattern at the center of the design and a rectangle immediately in front of the annex entrance. Double rows of engraved pavers will frame a herringbone pattern of lighter colored bricks throughout the plaza.

The pavement will be accented with 16-inch by 16-inch squares of Quincy granite. This engraved paver pattern will extend to Hancock St.

The project also calls for the removal of the Constitution sculpture created by Ed Monti. Sheets said the sculpture will be moved to an as yet undetermined location.

In its place, the mayor said a new working granite fountain will be erected. He said the Mount Wollaston Cemetery fountain will remain at its present location and not be moved as it was once considered.

Mary Smith, whose firm designed the project, said the reconstruction also calls for an English garden, benches and 15

MENOPAUSE IS OUT OF THE CLOSET

As the first baby boomers start reaching menopause, the once taboo topic is getting a lot of public attention. Menopause occurs when a woman stops menstruating and her body ceases to produce female hormones. The average age for this to happen is 51, although menopause-related symptoms frequently occur from a woman's mid-40's to mid-50's. Common side effects include hot flashes, jangled nerves and emotional surges. A few women escape with virtually no symptoms, while some grapple with severe problems. The fact that this period of profound change in a woman's life is being discussed more candidly is surely a step forward. Being better informed can help a woman and her doctor determine the best choices for her health.

P.S. The next ten years will see the population of menopausal women jump by almost 50 percent, from 13 million to 19 million.

Recent books on menopause have become bestsellers. If you are experiencing the first signs of menopause, have a candid discussion with your doctor to learn how you can make this time easier. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the dangers of heart attacks, feel free to call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. The Guys In The Big Cowboy Hats

(This week marks the 29th anniversary of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the conspiracy theory is still with us today. Henry Bosworth believes that if it hadn't been for the Dallas Police Department's actions we might have learned for sure whether there was a conspiracy or whether Lee Harvey Oswald had acted alone. Here is a reprint of his Aug. 7, 1980 column in which he tells why.)

No wonder there are so many people today who are still convinced there was a conspiracy involved in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

All of the odd things that happened back then still make a lot of people wonder.

Now, the recent CBS movie "Four Days In Dallas" makes you wonder if there isn't a new conspiracy. A conspiracy between CBS and the Dallas police to cover up the latter's stupidity.

CBS version of the President's assassination and Jack Ruby gunning down Lee Harvey Oswald would have you believe Ruby just happened to be at the Dallas police headquarters at the right time by pure chance to get Oswald.

The way the movie depicts it, the Dallas police decided on Sunday morning two days after the Friday, Nov. 22 1963 assassination to move Oswald out of the police station and that they were keeping it a secret for Oswald's protection.

And Ruby just happened to be in a nearby Western Union office telegraphing a girl acquaintance some money and saw a crowd gathered outside police headquarters down the street and wandered down.

But, that's not the way I remember it. And if you were glued to your TV set back then, I'm sure you don't remember it that way either.

I remember watching television on that Saturday night and someone — maybe Walter Cronkite or David Brinkley — reporting that the Dallas police were going to move Oswald Sunday and gave the exact time they were going to do it.

As a former police reporter, I turned to my wife and said: "Don't believe it. They'll sneak Oswald out of there in the middle of the night before someone pops him."

The next morning we turned the TV set back on and a newscaster was saying something like: "They'll be moving Oswald in a minute or two as scheduled."

I couldn't believe it.

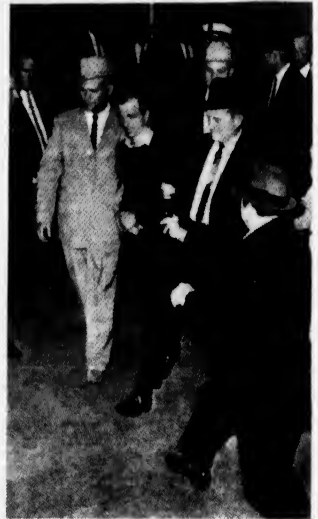

"Somebody going to get him," I said. "Those dumb!"

I had hardly gotten those words out when the newscaster was suddenly shouting:

"They shot him. They've shot Oswald!"

I could see the Dallas police in their big cowboy hats rushing for Ruby.

My reaction to the scene: "Big cowboy hats and JACK RUBY steps up unchallenged to shoot Lee Harvey Oswald in Dallas police headquarters.

little brains under them."

This was one of the stupidest police procedures in history. You just don't announce to the world the exact moment you are going to move a prisoner like a President's murderer at a fever pitch time. You're inviting trouble.

The jerkier police department in the smallest hick town in Massachusetts would have been smart enough to let everyone think they were moving Oswald at a certain time and then sneak him out at a different time just in case there was someone like Jack Ruby lurking around.

I often wonder if the guys in the big cowboy hats did it because they liked being on television. Or did it for the convenience of television.

And now, nearly 18 years later, both the Dallas police and TV apparently would like you to forget the stupidity of it all.

But because of the Dallas police stupidity and whatever TV had to do with it, the conspiracy theory is still with us and questions remain unanswered.

If Oswald had lived, investigators would have had the chance to question him — and question him — and maybe the real story would finally have come out.

But Ruby's bullet silenced the best source of information and cheated history's right to know.

You can thank the boys in the big cowboy hats for that.

blossoming cherry trees which will ring the new walkway.

"It will be very elegant where this is sort of nondescript at this point," Smith said as she looked out onto the site.

Smith noted the brick and granite will fit in with its surroundings since the scheme is prevalent in some nearby buildings, including Presidents Place, as well as sidewalks.

Sheets said there is a $50,000 line-item in this year's budget to remove the granite pavers. He said a task force decided on the "Walk of Names" project after discussing it for about nine months.

"We decided to find a way to fund a meaningful way to change Constitution Plaza in a historical way. This site cries out for much more than just a new walkway and granite bricks," he said.

Although some major cities have conducted similar projects, Quincy is the first to do so in this region, Public Works Commissioner David Colton said.

In Seattle, Sheets said officials there sold 300,000 bricks to help fund a renovation of a historical part of that city's Construction is scheduled to begin in the late spring or early summer. Officials said the project should be completed in the fall.

Orders for personalized bricks may be placed by calling 376-3676. Order forms will also be available in the lobby of City Hall annex where a small sample of the brick pattern is on display.

Due to the nature of the project, brick orders will be placed randomly throughout the overall design; no special location will be reserved.

Group orders, a minimum of four bricks, may be placed together, though not in any specific locale. Group orders will cost an additional $25 or $75 per brick.

A third line of engraving can be added for an additional $20.

Personal checks, MasterCard and Visa will be accepted.

The project is being designed by Mary Smith Associates, P.C., Landscape Architects of Quincy. Other local projects the firm has designed include Marina Bay, Crown Colony, and the Nut Island headworks. The company has also done design work for Great Woods Performing Arts Center in Mansfield and the Eliot House Courtyard on Harvard University.

Mailboxes Should Be Kept Clear Of Ice And Snow

The U.S. Postal Service reminds customers to clear ice and snow from walkways and steps leading to mailboxes so letter carriers will be able to deliver mail in a safe and timely manner this winter season.

Letter carriers experience a high incidence of injuries resulting from slips, trips and falls when icy and snowy conditions prevail.

Many of these accidents could be prevented if walkways and steps were shoveled, salted or sanded.

A safe, clear pathway

Pay Increases For Teachers

The School Committee listened to a preliminary report from its salary steering committee and voted to place an additional $14,000 in the 1945 budget to provide pay increases for most teachers.

It was estimated that the new salary schedule, which would do away with the $300 differential between men and women, would in eight to 12 years cost the city $290,000, or about $2.20 on the tax rate.

Teachers with four years preparation would start at $1,600 a year and reach $2,800 in 13 years. Those with six years preparation would start at $1,800 and reach $3,400 at the start of the 17th year.

Dr. William L. Connor, one of the three consultants who received $2,000 for helping out with the survey, told the School Committee that Quincy was one of the lowest paying cities in the East.

NEW CITY HALL

The City Council's Veterans Memorial Committee voted to ask Mayor Charles A. Ross and City Engineer Gerhard F. Schafer to ascertain the current and future space needs of the city departments.

It also voted to ask city Auditor Leo E. Mullin if the city was in a financial position to build a new City Hall to be dedicated to those who fought in World War II and past wars.

"In making an estimate of the future needs of a Quincy City Hall," said Ross, "I think we should look forward 50 to 100 years. This old City Hall, incidentally, has served us for a complete century."

Turkey Giblet Stuffing

At our house on Thanksgiving Day, I usually make two different kinds of stuffing, one with giblets and one without. In today's recipe, the giblets can be eliminated as you wish. Here is the basic recipe for either chicken or turkey.

TURKEY GIBLET STUFFING

- About 5 oz. ground meat (any favorite)
 1 stalk of celery finely chopped
 1 small onion chopped
 giblets from the bird (cut up)
 1 egg
 2 Tbsps Bell's seasonings
 2 Tbsps oil
 1 cup seasoned bread crumbs
 1/2 bag of stuffing mix
 2 Tbsps grated cheese
 1/4 cup white cooking wine

salt and pepper to taste.

In hot oil, saute the celery and onion. Add the ground meat, the giblets and the wine. Cover and cook until blended. Add the stuffing mix (which has been soaked in water). Cook for a couple of minutes and then add the seasoned bread crumbs, the egg and grated cheese. Add a little more breadcrumbs if the consistency is too watery and the water if too thick. Cool in the refrigerator before placing it either in the cavity of the turkey or chicken or if you prefer, in a casserole dish.

Roast the turkey at 325 to 350 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes to the pound depending on whether or not it is stuffed.

Happy Thanksgiving!!!

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements. And when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM LEE
(Miller Studio)

Annemarie Daly Wed To William Lee

Annemarie Daly, daughter of Patricia Daly of Quincy, was married recently to William Lee, son of Anne Lee of Falmouth and the late Dr. John Lee.

A nuptial Mass was celebrated at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, and officiated by the Rev. Thomas Keane. A reception followed at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Boston.

The bride was given in marriage by a friend, James Burns, Jr., of Boston.

Patricia Welch of Quincy served as Matron of Honor for her sister.

Bridesmaids were Denise Marshall of Hingham; Maureen Cox of Norwell; and Michelle McDonald of South Boston, all sisters of the bride.

Melissa Welch of Quincy and Johanna

Mitchell of Falmouth served as flower girls.

John Lee of Falmouth served as Best Man for his brother.

Ushers were Thomas Manchester of Sandwich; James Goodhue of Needham; and Richard Rymza of Cedar Grove, N.J.

Matthew Marshall of Hingham and John Muse of Mashpee served as ring bearers.

The bride is a graduate of Suffolk University and is employed as an assistant vice president by Bank Investment Fund.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts-Amherst and is employed as a chef by the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Valerie Feri To Serve With Peace Corps In Lesotho, Africa

Valerie Feri of Quincy has volunteered to serve two years in the Peace Corps. After completing training in Roma she will work in the education program in Lesotho, Africa.

"I will be teaching 20 to 30 classes a week with up to 70 students. I will be faced with the problems of overcrowded classrooms and lack of materials such as books and supplies, therefore I will have to develop alternative teaching strategies," Feri said.

Her previous teaching experience includes tutoring in biology, working as a lab assistant, and other volunteer positions. She is a 1992 graduate of Wheaton College.

"I am a strong supporter of educational programs that emphasize cross cultural education allowing one to utilize the mind's potential. The Peace Corps volunteer acts as a bridge between two cultures thus shortening existing cultural gaps and inevitably moving us toward a greater understanding and acceptance of each other," Feri said.

The Peace Corps was created in 1961 to promote world peace and friendship. More than 125,000 Americans have served as volunteers in more than 100 countries.

Peace Corps volunteers receive a living allowance, paid travel and training, complete medical care and a post-readjustment allowance of $5,400.

For information call 1-800-648-8052 ext. 642, or write to Peace Corps, 10 Causeway St., Room 450, Box 642, Boston, 02222.

'Musical Holiday Party' Opens Dec. 5 At Quincy Dinner Theatre

Five years ago, George Stevens, executive producer of Darling Productions, was looking for "something a little different" to present for his Quincy Center Dinner Theatre holiday show.

Other groups in the area seemed to be performing "A Christmas Carol" and Stevens wanted something new, original. Collaborating with several people, he decided to write his own show. And, "Musical Holiday Party" was born.

His son Nicholas had been a contributing writer as well as performer for several seasons. This year, the younger Stevens is attending the School of Communications at NYU and will not be participating but his younger brother Geoffrey will once again be on the stage.

Stevens has started several traditions with his "Holiday Party": his version of "The Twelve Days of Christmas"; and the harried, but full of love Farquar family, featuring Joyce McDonough and Joe Hochkeppel (a.k.a. Santa Claus). Musical comedy skits dominate the first act while Act II is filled with favorite holiday songs in a formal holiday setting, complete with dazzling costumes.

The "Musical Holiday Party" can accommodate large groups (up to 300 people) or small intimate DEBI HABIB of Quincy and Gregory Warwick of Hamilton are two of the performers featured in Darling Productions' "Musical Holiday Party V," which will begin Dec. 5 and run for three weekends in the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre at the Quincy Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The show will begin Dec. 5 and run for three weekends in the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre at the Quincy Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Darling Productions produces four shows a season at the theatre. "Holiday Party V" will kick off the 1992-93 season followed by "Love, Sex and The IRS," "Not Now Darling" and "Sugar Babies."

A full course dinner (choice of three entrees) and show are priced at $29.95. For more information and reservations, call 843-5862.

Richard Gurnwitch Wins ASCAP Second Prize

Richard Gurnwitch of Quincy recently won second prize in the Nathan Burkan Memorial Competition at Syracuse University College of Law.

Gurnwitch won $200 for his essay, "The Theft By Digital Sampling of Expression Embodied in Musical Works and Sound Recordings: Copyright Infringement and Licensing Alternatives."

The Burkan competition is sponsored each year by the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers in memory of ASCAP's first General Counsel who died in 1936. The awards are designed to stimulate interest in the field of copyright law.

Gurnwitch will also be considered for one of five national prizes which range from $500 to $3,000.

He is entering his third year at Syracuse University College of Law where he is a member of the Sports and Entertainment Law Society.

Gurnwitch graduated cum laude from Brandeis University. He is the son of Edward and Cynthia Gurnwitch of Quincy.

Over 200 Artists To Perform At Quincy's First Night

Mayor James Sheets extends an invitation to residents on the South Shore to attend the First Night celebration this New Year's Eve in Quincy Center.

First Night is a non-alcoholic, family oriented celebration of the arts. The City of Quincy has recently spent over $1 million revitalizing its Downtown. This project was completed just in time to put the final touches on Quincy's First Night celebration.

First Night will consist of over 200 artists performing at 16 different indoor Downtown locations. There will be sing-alongs, comedy, Broadway music, choral groups, mimes, jugglers, ice sculpting and a variety of entertainment to whet everyone's musical appetite. First Night is also pleased to announce that among several outdoor events there will be a steel drum band playing throughout the night. There will be giant 12-foot tall puppets walking among the crowd and clowns and face painting, mask making, storytelling and much more.

The evening will be capped off with a countdown to midnight and a fireworks display at midnight. First Night Committee Chairman Michael Cheney, who is the event coordinator, has stated that public safety will be the number one concern. This is a family, non-alcoholic event and there will be plenty of police protection on hand to ensure the safety of all attending the celebration.

First Night Committee

members are urging all to join in the "Mardi Gras" type parade that will take place early in the evening. All are urged to don costumes and have fun. Admission buttons for all events are $10. However, admission buttons will be discounted up until Christmas Eve at $6 per button. Children five or under are free of charge. Buttons will go on sale for the first time during the upcoming Christmas Parade in Quincy Center on Nov. 29.

First Night tables will be set up along the parade route to sell the admission buttons. Should you wish more information or if you would like to volunteer to help out with this community event, contact Michael Cheney at 376-1341.

Holiday Stroll, Festivities In Quincy Center Saturday

The Mitten Tree At The Co-operative Bank

The Mitten Tree will be displayed beginning Tuesday, Dec. 1, in the lobby of The Co-operative Bank, 85 Quincy Ave., 1259 Hancock St., and 300 Newport Ave., as well as in Braintree, Randolph and Hanover.

Residents are invited to decorate the tree with new handmade or purchased mittens, gloves, hats and scarves for children and adults.

All items collected will be donated to homeless persons through the Massachusetts Coalition for the Homeless in conjunction with "Operation Overcoat."

For information call Doris Baker, 479-6600, ext. 4112.

Three Red Cross Blood Drives Here In December

The American Red Cross will conduct three blood drives open to the public in Quincy during December.

Dates and locations are: •Wednesday, Dec. 2, 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., North Quincy High School, Hancock and East Squantum Sts.

•Monday, Dec. 21, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Stop and Shop, 1385 Hancock St., Quincy.

•Monday, Dec. 28, 1 to

7 p.m., Quincy Point Congregational Church, Washington St.

In addition, the American Red Cross Blood Services, 180 Rustcraft Rd., Dedham, is open to the public for blood donations Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 1 to 8 p.m., and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Quincy Veterans Services will hold a food drive to help the food distribution center in Wollaston during the Quincy-North Quincy football game on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 26 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, announces Veterans Services Director Henry Bradley.

Bradley said residents are encouraged to bring a can of food or a package of food. Other items are also needed, including tooth paste, soap and bathroom tissue.

New toys will also be collected at the game and given to a worthy family during the Christmas season.

Veterans will be on hand to receive donations at all gates. There will also be a donation container at each spot for those who wish to contribute change to help defray the cost of some of the items that food donations will not cover.

For more information, call Veterans Services at 376-1192.

Health Insurance Topic For QCA Wednesday

The Quincy Citizens Association will meet Wednesday, Nov. 25 at 8 p.m. in the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hunt St., at the rear of North Quincy High School.

The QCA will present a program on health insurance. Rick Hoover, an educational representative of Blue Cross/Blue Shield, will discuss ways to save hundreds of dollars on health insurance premiums.

He will also speak on coverage, bills or changes in policies and increased rates.

The meeting is open to members, friends and neighbors.

The QCA requests that anyone attending the meeting bring some canned food which will be donated to a Quincy social agency. The agency will distribute the food to the needy this winter.

Wollaston Business Association Holiday Celebration Saturday

More Than $1,200 In Prizes To Be Awarded

More than $1,000 in prizes will be awarded during the seventh annual Evening in Wollaston holiday celebration on Saturday.

A total of 30 Wollaston Business Association members have included coupons in this week's issue of The Quincy Sun which can be dropped at the appropriate businesses during Saturday's festivities. A drawing for the winner will be held at each store at the end of the event.

Evening in Wollaston will feature a magic show, special offers from Wollaston businesses, the annual lighting of the Wollaston Christmas lights, a special movie at the Wollaston Theatre and, of course, an appearance by Santa Claus himself. What better way to kick off the season?

Special events during the holiday celebration will begin with a performance by magician Jeff Danger at the Wollaston Theatre at 2 p.m.

The magic show will be followed by a special matinee showing of the hit comedy "Beethoven" at the theatre at 2:45 p.m. Admission of $3 covers both the magic show and the matinee.

After the movie the children will delight when Santa Claus arrives on the scene at 5 p.m. A number of special guests, including Mayor James Sheets, Senator Paul Harold and Rep. Michael Morrissey have been invited to join Santa in welcoming neighbors to Wollaston.

Around the time of Santa's arrival, students from the bands of Montclair, Parker, and Atherton Hough Schools will begin playing Christmas music for all to enjoy.

At 5:15 p.m. the Wollaston Christmas lights will be switched on, giving Beale St. the cheery glow of the season.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m., children will be escorted into the lobby of the Wollaston Theatre where they can have their photo taken with Santa. The photos are professionally done by McIntire's Studio and will be taken at a cost of $3 apiece. Free lollypops and balloons will also be handed out to the children.

Throughout the event there will be special holiday bargains from participating Wollaston businesses.

The festivities will end at 7 p.m. when participating businesses from the Wollaston Business Association draw the prizes from the coupons.

The participating merchants and their prizes are:

Quincy Groups Volunteer For Santa's Kitchen

Many Quincy residents, including school children, will be decorating spoons to be sold as holiday ornaments to benefit Santa's Kitchen which helps Project Bread provide $250,000 worth of food for needy families.

Students at Lincoln-Hancock School, Broad Meadows Middle School and St. Joseph's School and members of Quincy Community Action's Adult Learning Program have begun decorating spoons for the Santa's Kitchen kickoff, Saturday, Dec. 5 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Downtown Crossing, Boston.

For every spoon that is decorated benefactors will donate $10 to Project Bread up to $100,000. The spoons will then be auctioned off at Filene's Basement stores including the South Shore Plaza location.

St. Joseph's students are participating under the direction of art teacher Cathy McLaughlin. Lincoln-Hancock students are being supervised by teacher Steve Cantelli and sixth graders at Broad Meadows are working with teacher Mike Mulkerin. Mary Brelsford is organizing the OCA effort.

Santa's Kitchen will enable more than 400 emergency feeding programs to serve 22,000 meals during the holidays.

Many of the programs are based in Quincy including Quincy Community Action Programs, Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition-Father Bill's Place, The Salvation Army, DOVE and the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

Decorated spoons will be sold for a donation to help the hungry at Filene's Basement stores from Nov. 29 to Dec. 24.

Permit Deadline Today For Parade Vendors

The Quincy License Board announces deadlines for vendors seeking temporary permits for the annual Quincy Christmas Parade on Sunday, Nov. 29.

Anyone wishing to sell food, balloons, or any other items at the parade must apply for the appropriate permits by today (Wednesday) in the auditorium at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Registration for permits was scheduled for both yesterday (Tuesday) and today from 2 to 4 p.m. A small fee may be charged depending on the permit(s) requested.

Food Donations For Pantry Shelf

Those who plan on attending this year's Evening in Wollaston are asked to bring one non-perishable food item to the Wollaston Theatre during Saturday's celebration. The food is to be donated to The Pantry Shelf, Quincy's emergency food shelter.

This will provide those who are at the celebration an opportunity to help those less fortunate to feel the true warmth of the season.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

In essence Thanksgiving is as old as the spirit of worship. There were always thanksgiving festivals even among the pagan races.

We, in America, are blessed with holidays. We celebrate more than a dozen every year... to say nothing of the reunions, picnics and fairs which we all enjoy.

Thanksgiving is the first holiday instituted on the American continent. We celebrate with our family gatherings, roast turkey, cranberry sauce and general replenishment of the inner man. (And let no impious cook forget the pumpkin pie!).

It is true that we have strayed a little from the significance given to the day by those God-fearing ancestors of ours and are perhaps inclined to think only of joyous reunions and delights of the well-laden table.

Let us all this Thanksgiving strive not to lose the true significance of this happy day. Let us be grateful to God for our personal safety and comfort, and for the rich, beautiful nation in which we live. Let us also be thankful for those courageous men and women whose names have lived in the history and romance of our country. We do truly have so much to be thankful for...

Raiders Know "Anything Can Happen"

North Forgets Super Bowl For This Day

By TOM SULLIVAN
The undefeated North Quincy football team (9-0) has clinched its first Super Bowl berth since 1975, but that doesn't lessen the importance of Thursday's 60th annual Quincy game.

"It's nice to have a bowl berth clinched, but we want a victory over Quincy," said coach Ken McPhee. "To many, a win over Quincy is more important than a bowl game."

"We expect the usual hard-fought game where anything can happen and I know we will have all we can handle despite their record (3-5-1). Our defense has carried us all year and we will be depending on it to carry us past Quincy."

North's defense has allowed an average of only 7.5 points a game and enabled the Red Raiders to win several low-scoring games.

North's offense is led by quarterback Liam Higgins, who has thrown nine touchdown passes and leads the Raiders in scoring. He has kicked two game-winning field goals, giving them a 10-7 win over Weymouth and a 3-0 decision over Bridgewater-Raynham.

North Scoring

Higgins	3	9	2	33
Nee	5	0	0	30
Shea	3	2	0	20
J. Gott	2	2	0	14
Duncan	2	2	0	14
Rafferty	2	0	0	12
Reinhart	2	0	0	12
Skahan	2	0	0	12
Sinclair	1	2	0	8
N. Gott	1	0	0	6
Nguyen	0	1	0	1

"Liam has had a fine season but tailed off just a bit in the last two games," McPhee said. "We'll do our share of passing in addition to running. Sophomore Shawn Nee has done a masterful job for us (he had three long touchdown runs in the latest win over Taunton) and Mark Sinclair, Josh Gott and Sean Skahan have also run well."

Defensively, Dave

Reinhart has had a fantastic season. He has 22 sacks and has many other tackles in addition to being a fine pass receiver.

Defensively there are several other standouts including Brian Rafferty, Dave Pacino, Sean Halpin, Mike Linnane and Justin Dilks.

North will start offensively with Pat Shea, Dan Duncan and Tony Licciardi as wide receivers, Rafferty and Reinhart tight ends, Peter Licciardi and Linnane tackles, Pacino and Dilks guards, Nick Mastrogiacomo center, Higgins quarterback, Nee and Skahan tailbacks and Sinclair and Josh Gott fullback.

Sean Halpin and Jamie O'Connell will also see their share of action.

Defensively, Reinhart and Eric Delorey will be at end, Linnane, Dilks, Bill Skutul and Peter Fitzpatrick tackles, Pacino nose guard, Rafferty and Halpin linebackers, and Shea, Skahan, Nathan Gott, Sean Herron, Sinclair and Keith Lentini defensive backs.

"We have greatly surpassed my expectations for the season," McPhee said. "I thought at the start of the season we would be fortunate to have a .500 season. I never expected to be undefeated. The defense has been just unbelievable. In our last game at Taunton the offense picked up and did what it had to do.

"The defense also did what it had to do and did a great job on Taunton's outstanding runner, Viera, one of the best in the league. We held him to just 50 yards."

A win on the holiday will give North its best record ever, 10-0. Back in 1966 when North had its last unbeaten team, it played only nine games. McPhee was an outstanding linebacker on that team.

McPhee had good words for his assistant coaches Peter Chrisom, Earl Metzler, Tom Carter, Peter Zoia and Dick Meyer.

North Gym Named After Cap Bryan

The North Quincy gym is named for Walter "Cap" Bryan, the Red Raiders' first football star, who was injured in the first Quincy game in 1933, taken to the hospital and returned in time to watch his substitute, Walter Joly, score the only touchdown in a 6-0 win.

That first game was on Armistice Day and played at Comins Stadium.

Presidents In Spoiler Role

Quincy Win Would Cure Season Ills

What started out to be a most promising season for the Quincy football team turned into one of frustration and the only objective for the Presidents Thursday in the 60th anniversary North Quincy game is to hand the Red Raiders their only loss of the year and avenge last season's 7-0 loss. Quincy is 3-5-1 going into the game.

"It has been a most disappointing season," said coach Jack Raymer. "I had what I thought was my biggest and best offensive line but things didn't work out as I had hoped and we had trouble moving the ball much of the year."

"Mike Bartlett did some fine passing after taking over as quarterback and threw eight touchdown passes, but he had his troubles the past two games as he was off target and the line didn't give him much support. We have worked on the passing game because we will have to move both on the ground and through the air if we hope to upset North."

Kane	5	0	30
Bogan	4	2	26
Clifford	2	0	12

Dave Bogan and Noel DiBona have been Quincy's most consistent ball carriers and Mike Elder has run well on occasion.

Robbie Kane, who played quarterback in the opening game but moved back to his wide receiver spot after that game, has had an outstanding year as a pass receiver and has been Bartlett's favorite target.

Quincy will start on offense with Sean McArdle at tight end, Kane wide receiver, sophomore Mike Feeley, who has had an excellent season, and Duane Holmes tackles, Mike Kavanaugh and Steve Fernald guards and Mark Nutley center.

Brian Clifford will be at wing back, Bartlett at quarterback, DiBona at tailback and Bogan at fullback.

Also seeing action offensively will be Mike Gardiner at center or guard, Dan Morrell tight end, Dave McGuire at tackle and Elder at tailback.

Defensively the Presidents will have Morrell and Paul Colleary ends, Holmes and Feeley tackles, sophomore Jason Bennett and John Green nose guards, Kavanaugh, Bogan and Ashley Davis linebackers, DiBona, Bartlett and Kane defensive backs and Elder and Steve Provost safeties.

Another big sophomore, Jeff Burrell, will also see his share of action.

tying one in their first four games, the Presidents came alive and won three games in a row. However, they had a bad day all around in losing to Silver Lake, 36-8, and in their last game, without Kane, Kavanaugh and Fernald, they turned in a fine effort but lost to Barnstable, 7-0. "We've worked hard and a win would help salvage our season," said Raymer. "It depends on which team shows up, the one that showed lots of intensity in our three wins or the one which didn't play up to expectations in our other games."

Raymer praised his assistant coaches, Bob Noble, Bob Keuther, Bill Shaughnessy and Jack Green.

18,000 Crowd In 1946 Series Record

The crowd of 18,000 which watched the 1946 game seems certain to remain a Quincy-North record. Many estimated that crowd was closer to 25,000 counting the many watching from the walls and trees and those who lined the MBTA bus garage yard.

The biggest crowd previously was 15,000 which witnessed the 1939 game.

First Q-N Game Played On Armistice Day With North 6-0 Winner

The first Thanksgiving Day game between Quincy and North was in 1938 and was played at the then-new Memorial Stadium. Quincy won, 19-0.

The first meeting between the two schools was on Armistice Day, 1933, with North winning, 6-0. Two of the first five games were played at Pfaffman's Oval, the present site of the stadium, another was played at Coddington Field.

The team's played to a scoreless tie in both 1934 and 1937 and North Quincy won the 1935 game, 14-6, and 1936 game, 6-0.

LIAM HIGGINS will be one of North's top offensive weapons. He has thrown nine touchdown passes and leads the Raider scores.

DiBona, Higgins Top Scorers

Quarterback Liam Higgins leads the North Quincy scorers with 33 points. Sophomore Shawn Nee is second with 30 points.

In addition to throwing nine touchdown passes, Higgins has three touchdowns, nine extra points and two game-winning field goals.

Noel DiBona is Quincy's scoring leader with 44 points. He has five touchdowns and has kicked 14 extra points.

Robbie Kane is second with 30 points (five touchdowns).

Sullivan Had 6-2 Record Against North

Bill Sullivan, who coached Quincy from 1952 through 1959, enjoyed a 6-2 record against North and led the Presidents to five successive wins over the Raiders.

Sullivan, who had been assistant to the late Munroe MacLean from 1938 through 1951, enjoyed wins over North from 1954 through 1958 before North won in Sullivan's final season, 1959.

Although retired, Sullivan still remains part of the annual Thanksgiving games as he collects tickets at all Quincy and North home games.

5 Ties (4 Scoreless) In Series

Presidents Have Won 29 And North 25

Going into Thursday's 60th game, Quincy has won 29 games and North Quincy 25.

Five games have ended in ties including four scoreless ties in 1934, 1937, 1940 and 1983, while the 1987 game ended in a 14-14 tie.

Quincy has the longest win streak in the series, winning five in a row from 1954 through 1958. Quincy also won four straight from 1946 through 1949.

North's first five teams were unbeaten in the series, winning in 1933, 1935 and 1936 and playing to scoreless ties in 1934 and 1937.

Leone's 1966 North Team Had 9-0-0 Record

The 1966 North Quincy team, coached by the late Carl Leone, had a perfect 9-0-0 record, won the Greater Boston League title and shared the Class A crown with Arlington.

North defeated Quincy,

8-0, that year. Among the Red Raider players on that team was present North coach Ken McPhee.

Conroy's 1970 Quincy Team Had 9-0-0 Record

Quincy's 1970 team, coached by Hank Conroy, had a spotless 9-0-0 record and won the Greater Boston League championship.

The Presidents defeated North Quincy that year by a score of 16-6.

North Winner In Only Overtime Game

Unbeaten North Quincy is headed for its second Super Bowl appearance regardless of Thursday's outcome and the Raiders' other Bowl game came as a result of the only overtime game in the Quincy-North series.

North had a 9-1 record, losing only to Brockton. That was the year of the tie-breaker for North. The Raiders won three games in overtime, twice on field goals by Ed McAleney and then, 15-8, in OT in the Quincy game.

That marked Dave Burke's first season as North's head coach. As a player, Burke had led North to wins over Quincy in 1945 and 1946.

North Jayvees Edge Quincy, 22-20

By PETE ZOIA
The North Quincy junior varsity football team finished the season with a 9-1 record as it edged Quincy, 22-20, last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium in one of the most exciting games in years.

Quincy scored on the first play from scrimmage as Mike Elder passed to Jason Sova for a 62-yard score.

North came right back and reached Quincy's 24 only to have Tim Dowling intercept a pass in the end zone. Quincy couldn't move the ball and Derick Epps returned a punt and returned it 46 yards for the tying touchdown.

A 47-yard touchdown run by Sean Dolbear of North was nullified by a clipping penalty as the half ended.

North's Bill Neutter returned the second half kickoff 78 yards for a touchdown and the Red Raiders scored again when Dave Carney intercepted a pass and returned it to Quincy's nine. Epps went around the left side for his second touchdown. Epps also added the two-point conversion.

Quincy roared back with some fine runs by Paul Cleary and Elder and Elder scored from the three.

The Presidents kept the North offense in check during the last quarter and seemed headed for another score when George Wirtz intercepted a pass on North's 11.

Quincy's Mike Lombardi immediately recovered a fumble on the North 14, a pass interference call gave Quincy the ball on the North three from where Elder scored. A try for the two-point conversion which would have tied the score was stopped.

Quincy Freshmen Romp Over North, 36-0

The Quincy freshmen football team romped over the North Quincy frosh, 36-0, in their annual game last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The young Presidents, led by Terry Bowman, Mike Sheffer and Billy Dunn, controlled the first half and rolled to a 28-0 lead.

North held Quincy scoreless in the first quarter but in the second quarter Quincy scored its 28 points.

Dunn circled his right end for 18 yards and the first touchdown. Moments later a 70-yard punt return by Bowman was nullified by a penalty but the Presidents came right back as Bowman hit Sheffer with a 45-yard scoring pass.

Quincy recovered a fumble on its 33 and Bowman and Sheffer teamed up for a 20-yard TD pass with Sheffer adding the two-point conversion.

Another Raider fumble was recovered by Quincy's Jeff Saucier and Bowman ran 28 yards for a score and Dunn added the two-point conversion.

Quincy added to its score in the third quarter when Bowman raced 66 yards around his left end. Joe Sapientza rushed for the final two points.

North's offense improved in the second half as Mike Kukurus and Matt Kietly rushed for eight first downs.

Jim Rendle had a fine game at quarterback for North and hit Kietly with a 15-yard pass to Quincy's four but the game ended with North on the one-yard line.

--PETE ZOIA

Dudek Led North To Wins In 1980-81

Joe Dudek gave North wins over Quincy in 1980 and 1981, rushing for three touchdowns in a 27-20 win in 1980 and scoring the only touchdown on a 55-yard run in a 7-0 win in 1981.

Dudek went on to star at Plymouth State College, breaking Walter Payton's NCAA scoring mark and signing with the Denver Broncos of the NFL.

Dudek was inducted into the Quincy-North Football Hall of Fame last night (Tuesday).

1971 North Win Thrill For Frazier

Ralph Frazier, a former North Quincy star himself, coached the Red Raiders from 1969 through 1974 and there is no doubt about his biggest thrill coaching against Quincy.

"Without a doubt it was the 1971 game when we won, 30-12," said Frazier.

"I had gone five years as a North player and coach without a win over Quincy.

We lost all three games while I was playing and lost my first two games as coach."

North Girls Win Second State Title In Row

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team is the state Div. 1 champion for the second year in a row and proved why it is the best with a great comeback to defeat stubborn New Bedford, 3-1 (15-4, 12-15, 15-10, 16-14) at Brandeis University last Saturday.

It took a remarkable comeback in the fourth game to give North the victory and eliminated the need for a fifth game.

North, which had lost only two games all season, one to New Bedford in an early match, lost only its third game of the year when the Whalers took the second game, 15-12, after North Quincy had taken a 9-2 lead.

In the fourth game New Bedford rolled to a 13-3 lead, needing only two points to force a fifth game.

However, the North girls wouldn't be denied and reeled off an amazing 11 straight points and won the game and the state title on Regina Murphy's kill.

North started fast and easily won the opening game, 15-4, thanks to a nine-point run.

Burke In Right Place In 1945

North's Dave Burke fell on the opening kickoff in the end zone as the confused Quincy players watched and it turned out to be the only score in North's 7-0 win in the 1945 game which ruined Quincy's chances for the Eastern Mass. Class B championship.

win in the second game before New Bedford overcame a 9-2 deficit sparked by Sue Medeiros and Laurie Brown and won, 15-12.

North Quincy came back to win the third game, 15-10, on Heather Simmons' serves after another fine New Bedford rally which turned a 12-4 deficit into a 14-10 game.

"I was totally shocked that we were so far behind in the fourth and deciding game," said Heather Rendle. "But once we started getting on a roll I knew no one would stop us."

"This just proved what an outstanding group of players we had," said coach Jim Rendle. "Very few teams could overcome a 13-3 deficit and win the game and match."

"This was just a wonderful group of girls and I felt all season long that we could win another state title (North's third overall). We had an outstanding player at every position, something few teams could say."

North finished the season with a 21-0 record, its first undefeated season since 1987 when it won its first state championship.

In the state semifinals North defeated Lawrence, 3-0 (15-6, 15-3, 15-11). Junior setter Maureen McCarthy was outstanding and outside hitter Regina Murphy (11 kills) and senior middle hitter Joanne Currier (eight kills) led the way in the first game and senior Lara Rines' six service points capped the opening game win.

"There was no concern whatever," said Rendle. "Once we found out where we wanted to go, we were able to take control."

North dominated the rest of the way as McCarthy and Murphy led the way.

North will lose Rendle, Currier, Murphy and Rines, but has some fine players returning next year.

Two starters, McCarthy and Simmons, will be back as will junior Wendy Sweetser and two outstanding freshman, Sara Stanton and Linda Jellison.

"Jellison saw a lot of action and played a lot in the championship match, showing a good deal of poise," said Rendle.

Also playing this year were Mindy Roberts, Karen Shea, Amy Detwiler and Missy Roberts.

"We had a fine junior varsity team this year and I expect several of those players to help us next year," said Rendle. "All in all, things look good and I feel we will have another successful season."

COLOR PREFERENCE

Unlike the era of the Model T, when a car could be chosen in any color as long as it was black, car buyers have a fairly wide array of car colors from which to choose. It is a choice that is taken quite deliberately. According to one study, car color is one of the three most important factors governing the purchase of cars. Among the buyers of luxury, intermediate and compact cars, white emerges as the most popular choice. Beyond that, color preference is largely specific to car category. Red is the second most popular color in the intermediate and compact classes, while light brown (followed by silver, medium gray, then red) ranks second in the luxury category. While silver and gray got the third and fourth ranking in the intermediate class, bright blue jumps ahead of these colors among compacts.

HINT: While car buyers' preferences in some car classes show signs of shifting, red will probably always be the preferred color for sports cars.

Toys For Tots Christmas Collection During Parade

The U.S. Marine Corps will be collecting Toys for Tots during the annual Quincy Christmas Parade again this year.

About a dozen Marines will walk the parade route along side two trucks collecting toys for needy children. The Toys for Tots program began in 1947.

The Marines ask that only new, unwrapped toys be donated.

Staff Sgt. Kevin Feyler explained that liability problems keep the Marines from accepting used toys. He also said toys should be unwrapped so that they are "easier to sort out" for boys and girls.

"We'll take anything from crayons and coloring books to Big Wheels and sporting equipment," Sgt. Feyler said.

Feyler estimated that more than 1,000 toys were collected at the parade last year and said about 100,000 toys were distributed in the Boston area last Christmas.

"The people from Quincy have always been good to us," Feyler said.

Locally, the Marines will be working with the Quincy Salvation Army to distribute toys to needy children.

"If you give a toy it may go to a neighbor down the street," Feyler said. "We want people to know that often the toys go back to the community where they were collected."

For anyone who will not attend the parade but would like to donate a toy, the Quincy Fire Department is also collecting Toys for Tots at each of its fire stations.

For more information on donating toys call the Marine Corps at 786-2562.

Sen. Harold Joins CARE Foundation Fundraiser Nov. 29

Sen. Paul Harold of Quincy will represent the United States during a Christmas fundraiser to benefit the CARE Foundation, Sunday, Nov. 29 from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Copley Plaza Hotel.

Members of the Consular Corps of Boston, representing many countries, will share the customs of their countries and decorate Christmas trees.

A silent auction of the trees will be held to aid homeless and hungry children. CARE was founded in 1945 to help World War II survivors and today works in 42 countries assisting nearly 25 million people each year.

The celebration will offer music, holiday punch, egg nog, hot mulled cider, Christmas cookies and cakes and more.

Patrons who contribute $400 receive a Christmas tree, four tickets and a listing in the program. Sponsors who contribute $100 receive two tickets and a listing in the program. Tickets cost $25 per person.

For information call Carol LeBrun, 236-6050, or Dr. Helene Day, 489-1240.

Business Group Wants Return To Single Tax Rate

By STEVE KAVANAGH
A Quincy business group wants to see a return to a single tax rate in Quincy.

Loren Strout, acting president of the Quincy Business Voice Association, recently distributed a letter to all businesses in Quincy stating the association would challenge the tax classification law.

Strout's letter said, "local government has abused this means of collecting higher taxes on our community's commercial enterprises. We believe that a single tax rate, applied to both residents and businesses is much fairer and equal."

He urged business owners, employees and their families to attend last Monday's public hearing on the local tax levy for fiscal year 1993.

Marion Fantuccio, chairman of the Board of Assessors, said a return to a single tax rate this year "would cost the residential people quite a bit. It would be a boon to businesses."

Mayor James Sheets has recommended a residential rate of $13.46 and a business rate of $28.79 for FY 93. If a single tax rate were adopted it would be $17.03, Fantuccio said.

Ward 3 City Councillor, Lawrence Chretien said he would not support a return to the single tax rate although he is not satisfied with the current system.

"A single rate would give a huge tax cut to businesses and a huge increase to residents," Chretien said.

"There are a lot of problems with the property tax. It doesn't take into account how a resident or business is doing. It doesn't reflect if a homeowner has a drop in income or is unemployed. It doesn't take into account if business is off," Chretien said.

"It's impractical," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill of the single rate. "It would certainly help business but homeowners would be carrying too much tax burden."

Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan said he feels the current tax classification is generally fair.

"Right now the residents are paying 60 percent and the businesses 40 percent. Essentially, the split has maintained the percentages of what's paid," Phelan said.

Strout objects to the $6 million increase in the city budget and called on business owners "to put further pressure on our elected officials, to get their budget under control, just as you and I have had to do."

Strout also said the split rate pits residents and businesses against each other during tax time.

"Without the residents, we could fail to exist as businesses, but without the businesses, the residents would have to bear all the real estate taxes this city demands, plus lose hundreds of business services that are now available," Strout said.

"I'd like to see a gradual shift towards (single rate)," said Cahill. He also said businesses should pay more taxes than homeowners.

"Business people are making money on their property... they should pay a higher tax. But you can't squeeze water out of a rock. I think we've gone too far as far as over taxing businesses," Cahill said.

"We have to look at it and do some things to help businesses out," Phelan said. Both Phelan and Chretien noted that the city is spending money on improvements to the Quincy Center business area and will do similar work in the Wollaston and North Quincy business districts soon.

Quincy changed to a split rate in fiscal year 1984 following property revaluation.

Firefighters Want All Engine Companies In Service

The president of the Quincy Firefighters Association has asked Mayor James Sheets to halt the practice of taking engine companies out of service on a rotating basis.

Perry said this is particularly important with the winter months ahead when most fires occur.

"Placing an engine company out of service is not giving the tax payers of Quincy the fire protection they deserve, and also places the firefighters in increasing danger of injury," Perry said.

Sheets said he supports the position of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman "that, during those times when there is cold weather and a greater threat of fire, companies will not be rotated."

Sheets also said he would eventually like to return the Fire Department to full strength.

"It is my belief that we must keep all our stations open and that, as conditions improve economically, we will emerge with all stations intact, as well as all our companies intact."

The city recently rehired five firefighters who had been laid off.

"We understand the financial state of the city in these economic times, but you have to understand that with the increase in property damage, and the cost of injuries, the monies are being spent anyway," Perry said.

Joan Berte Joins Staff At Condon And Walsh R.E.

Joan Berte of Quincy has joined the sales staff of Condon & Walsh Real Estate, announces Joanne Condon Walsh.

"Joan is an experienced realtor and a great addition to the staff," Condon Walsh said.

Condon & Walsh Real Estate recently relocated their office to 110 West Squantum St., North Quincy. They have leased 1,000-plus square feet of new office space within walking distance to the North Quincy MBTA station and only minutes to the expressway north or south. Condon Walsh said the additional office space will allow the real estate office to provide seminars for first-time buyers as well as open house formats to buyers and sellers to drop in and see what is new in the housing market.

Condon & Walsh Real

Estate is a member of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors and Multiple Listing Service.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehng D.C.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is that branch of the healing arts that deals with the structure and function of the spine, and specializes in the evaluation and treatment of back and neck pain among other systems. Chiropractors feel that the cause of many back and neck problems stems from the misalignment of one or more of the 33 spinal bones (called vertebrae), and the subsequent nerve pressure that may result.

A Doctor of Chiropractic may often use an x-ray and extensive diagnostic tests to determine if such a misaligned vertebrae and/or "pinched nerve" exists. These "pinched nerves" may often be the cause of back and neck pain, headaches, or perhaps pain, tingling and/or numbness in an arm or leg. It is the job of the chiropractor to determine if such a problem exists, and to correct it, naturally, without medication or surgery.

The Doctor of Chiropractic uses techniques learned through years of study whereby he/she applies pressure with his/her hands to areas of the spine that are misaligned, in order to restore joint mobility and function and relieve pressure on pain sensitive structures. A chiropractic adjustment provides a safe, painless, drug free, method for reducing the pain and pressure caused by the pinched nerve or misaligned vertebrae.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehng, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy - 773-4400

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for Contract No. 01, Coastal Seawall Rehabilitation Works, Phase I, until 10:00 AM local time on Monday, December 21, 1992 at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract includes rehabilitation of pre-cast concrete barrier blocks and stone masonry seawalls, including foundation work, restoration of rep-rap sloped protection, and restoration of landward areas behind the seawalls. The work on the landward side of the seawalls may include restoration of damaged portions of roads, walkways, utility lines, appurtenances, drainpipe outfalls, catch basins and tidegates, etc., wherever applicable. The approximate length of seawalls to be rehabilitated is 1300 feet.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges, and Construction Standards, all as last revised, and these specifications, unless directed otherwise.

All work under this Contract shall be completed within 120 calendar days.

A non-refundable deposit of $60.00 in cash or check, payable to the City of Quincy, will be required for each set of Contract Documents.

Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall also include a separate non-refundable check, payable to the City of Quincy, in the amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after November 30, 1992.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the value of the bid in the form described in the Information for Bidders.

The Successful Bidder must furnish a 100 percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a 100 percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in compliance with Federal and State regulations. To the extent applicable, the Massachusetts General Law (MGL) Chapter 30, Sections 39A, 39B, and 39F-R and MGL Chapter 149, Sections 26, 27, 29, 35, and 44-44M are incorporated herein by reference.

The Bidder's attention is directed to the requirements in relation to the employment of personnel and minimum wage rates to be paid under this Contract.

The bidders may not withdraw the bids for 60 calendar days after the actual bid opening date.

This Contract to be awarded as the result of this Advertisement for Bids is to be funded by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and the City of Quincy.

In accordance with MGL, Chapter 90, Section 34, all prospective bidders must obtain a pre-bid qualification certification from the Mass. Highway's Contract Regulations Division, 10 Park Plaza, Room 7552, Boston, Massachusetts 02116.

All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations related to low income persons, non-discrimination practices, Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO), Minority Business Enterprises (MBEs) and Women's Business Enterprises (WBEs) are applicable to this Contract. The goals for Minority workers, MBE, and WBE participation for this project are:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on this project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) MBE participation and five percent (5%) WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms with the Bid.

Failure to comply with these requirements may render a proposal non-responsive. No waiver of any portion of these provisions will be granted.

The City of Quincy has residency requirements for workers which provides for preference in hiring local residents on City-supported construction projects.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality or to reject any or all Bids if deemed to be in their best interest.

It's Beginning To Look A Lot Like Christmas

MERRY CHRISTMAS, QUINCY--Santa and Mrs. Claus greet parade goers from atop a float sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association during the Quincy Christmas parade Sunday.

THE WINNER--First prize in the 41st annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade's non-commercial float category went to Quincy High School for its entry, "Parading Thru the Days."

QUINCY 'WALK OF NAMES' float featured an oversized 'brick' with the inscription 'Santa Claus.' The float promoted the city's latest public-private partnership, a planned brick walkway in front of City Hall annex. For $50, residents and groups may buy a brick and have it inscribed. Bricks will be used to build the walkway next year.

120 Apply For Quincy 2000 Director's Job

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The search for an executive director for the Quincy 2000 non-profit economic development corporation has attracted more than 100 applicants from throughout the country as well as Canada.

As of Tuesday, Thomas Galvin, president of Quincy 2000 and the head of a four-member search committee, said he has received 120 applications since the position was first advertised in early November.

Receiving an average of 10 a day, Galvin said he expects the list of applicants to grow to about 200 before the cut-off date later this month.

Galvin said most of the applications have been submitted from the Northeast but the job has also attracted interest from applicants as far away as Long Beach, California, as well as towns in Florida, Michigan and Canada.

"We've even had a reference from someone from Malaysia," Galvin said.

The position has been advertised in local and area publications, including The Quincy Sun and Boston Globe. It will also appear in the American Planning Association's monthly publication circulated nationwide, which should generate more interest.

Galvin said all applications and resumes are being reviewed carefully.

"We've carefully read every one of the resumes and eliminate some without some of the basic prerequisites, like a master's degree. We continue to get excellent resumes and we hope to make a selection soon because this person is going to do all the work," Galvin said.

Water Tests Recommended Sampling Shows Some Homes With High Lead Water Levels

Results from a recent lead sampling program indicate some homes in the city have high levels of lead in drinking water and city officials are recommending homeowners have their water tested.

To help educate residents about the problem, officials will send out letters to all residents urging them to have their water tested and to take some simple steps to lower the lead content.

Lead can pose significant health risks, especially to young children and pregnant women.

DWP Commissioner David Colton said the sampling of 15 homes, conducted by the Quincy Sewer, Water and Drain Department, showed five residences or 33 percent exceeding the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) recommended level of 15 parts per billion (ppb), or

Tips To Reduce Exposure To Lead In Drinking Water

- Let the water run from the tap before using it for drinking or cooking any time the water in the faucet has gone unused for more than six hours.
- Do not cook with or drink water from the hot water tap.
- Remove loose lead solder and debris from the plumbing materials installed in newly constructed homes, or homes in which the plumbing has recently been replaced, by removing the faucet strainers from all taps and running the water for three to five minutes.
- Check for copper pipes joined with lead solder that may have been installed illegally since it was banned in 1986.
- Determine whether or not the service line that connects a home or apartment to the water main is made of lead.
- Have an electrician check home wiring.
- For more information, contact the Quincy Sewer, Water and Drain Department at 376-1910 or the Quincy Health Department at 376-1272.

First Week 'Good Jumpstart' For 'Walk Of Names' Project

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The first week of the city's "Walk Of Names" project has been a "good jumpstart" toward its ultimate goal, according to a spokesperson for the project.

Georgia Peirce of P.R. Inc., the company responsible for marketing the project, said public response to the "Walk of Names" has been "very exciting."

"It's a good jumpstart," said Peirce. "Everyone is pleased with the initial response. We've had between 250 and 300 actual orders and hundreds of additional inquiries."

The downtown improvement project, which was unveiled by Mayor James Sheets and other city officials last week, calls for a new brick plaza which will replace the current granite walkway in the area in front of Quincy City Hall annex. The design of the plaza allows for 2,500 dark red bricks to be engraved with names of people from the past, present and future to form a "Walk of Names."

For a contribution of $50, any Quincy resident or business can have a personalized brick, with up to two lines of 15 characters each, become a part of the new plaza. Construction should begin next summer and it is hoped the project will be completed in the fall, Peirce said.

Peirce noted she has not been surprised by the initial response to the "Walk of Names," especially since the Christmas shopping season has begun.

"This year everybody seems to be looking for a unique gift, something that will last forever," she said. "Everyone we've spoken to seems to think that this project is something that is genuinely beneficial."

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton agreed.

"We think this is an attractive gift," said Colton. "It's moving right along, and if we keep moving along at the same pace we should have no trouble meeting our goal."

The project is being designed by Mary Smith Associates, P.C., Landscape Architects of Quincy. Funding for the project, which Sheets last week estimated at $150,000 to $300,000, will be financed solely through the sale of bricks or pavers. Sheets also said last week the city will not fund any part of the reconstruction project.

On Tuesday the mayor expressed enthusiasm about the response the "Walk of Names" has received.

"Everybody wants to leave a legacy behind," said Sheets. "It's something the average person can participate in."

Sheets added he intends to buy several bricks himself, including memorial pavers for his parents and his wife's parents.

Both individual and group orders for personalized bricks may be placed calling 376-3676. Order forms are also available in the lobby of City Hall annex where a small sample of the brick pattern is on display.

Checks should be made payable to "City of Quincy."

Recycling Program To Be Expanded

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The City of Quincy's recycling program will expand beginning Jan. 2, 1993.

In addition to newspaper, glass and plastic, residents will be able to recycle metals, magazines, telephone books and cardboard.

Beginning Jan. 2 residents may place metal food cans in their blue BFI recycling bins. Recycling officials ask that the cans be rinsed. However, labels may be left on.

The Quincy Recycling Committee will also announce dates during the year when residents can put old telephone books in the blue bins. The collections will probably coincide with delivery of new telephone books.

Quincy will open a drop-off recycling center, also on Jan. 2, at the Department of Public Works building, 55 Sea St., for newspaper, glass, plastic, metal food cans, telephone books, magazines and cardboard.

The drop-off center will allow residents of apartments and condominiums to participate in the recycling program, said Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien, Recycling Committee chairman.

In May, there will be two hazardous collection days, most likely held at the DPW. The dates will be announced by the Recycling Committee.

Chretien also said that a BFI official is currently reviewing each school and municipal building to determine what materials there can be recycled. A recycling program will then be set up.

The Recycling Committee meets Wednesday, Dec. 2 at 7 p.m. at City Hall. The committee will discuss promotion of the new programs. Residents are invited to attend.

Ayers Holiday Assistance Drive

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers is asking residents to join him in his "People Helping People" holiday assistance drive.

"I know many of us have good toys, games and children's clothing no longer being used in our basements, attics and garages. This Christmas season, I ask all of you to take a few minutes of your time to sort through these items.

"They would make a terrific gift for a child who otherwise may have none," Ayers said.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the drive may drop off items at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, the Squantum Community Center, Ayers Bros, 440B East Squantum

St., weekdays between noon and 3 p.m.

Contributors can also contact Ayers at his residence, 472-9877, to arrange for a pick-up.

Ayers invites any parent wishing help this Christmas season to write him at 440B East Squantum St., North Quincy, noting the number of children and their ages.

Retirement Party For Mary Papile

A retirement party for Mary Papile, assistant treasurer for the City of Quincy, will be held Wednesday, Dec. 2 at the Common Market Restaurant, 97 Willard St. Papile has worked for the city since 1963 and has served as assistant treasurer under five mayors, James Sheets, Francis McCauley, Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia and Walter Hannon.

She also served under five collector-treasurers including Dana Childs, Franklin Jay, Robert Foy, David Houston and Thomas Sheerin.

"She was the type of employee that was a real asset to the city," Childs said.

MBTA Wollaston Noise Wall Meeting Thursday

The MBTA will hold a meeting tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 9 p.m. in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall to discuss plans to construct a noise wall in the Central Ave.-Wollaston neighborhood.

The MBTA will present plans for mitigating noise along Newport Avenue and the Red Line. Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien urges concerned citizens to attend.

"Several months ago, several of Quincy's public officials met with the MBTA director. We asked him to do something about Red Line noise," Chretien said. "I expressed concerns about the noise along Newport Avenue between Elmwood Avenue and Hobart Street."

Chretien said the MBTA will present plans for constructing a noise barrier at that location during the meeting.

"I believe that a good plan has the potential to improve the quality of life and property values in the area nearby the Red Line," Chretien said.

"I have also asked the MBTA to improve its maintenance and landscaping of the property it owns along Newport Avenue. This meeting is a good chance for citizens to express themselves on this issue," he said.

The barrier, approximately 10 feet high, will be located at the west side of the Red Line tracks near Hobart St., southerly to Newport Ave. through North Central Ave. and the Wollaston Station. It will terminate at the Beale St. overpass, a distance of 1,300 feet.

The MBTA Old Colony management team will be available at the meeting to answer questions and elaborate further on the plans for the noise wall.

For more information about the meeting, call Wayne Duchemin, MBTA Community Coordinator, at 722-5835.

Ward 3 Flood Control Meeting

Ward 3 residents are invited to a public meeting to discuss flooding, Wednesday, Dec. 9 at 7 p.m. at City Hall.

A plan for controlling flooding in parts of Wollaston and Montclair will be presented. Mayor James Sheets, DPW Commissioner David Colton and Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien will be available to answer questions.

"There are several areas in the ward where people have experienced flooding. Sometimes the impact is quite severe. Although the drainage system has been inadequate for decades now, Mayor Sheets, the DPW and I have been working towards a solution," Chretien said.

"Any resident of Ward 3 who experiences flooding on a regular basis should attend this meeting," he said.

Chretien said the plan targets Eddie St., the intersection of Harvard St. and Elmwood Ave., Belmont St., Safford St., Taylor St., Brook St. and other parts of Ward 3.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

TB MAKES A COMEBACK

Until antibiotic therapy was introduced in the 1940's, tuberculosis was a dreaded killer, taking over 100,000 lives a year in the U.S. alone. Only recently did an outbreak of drug-resistant TB appear to start claiming victims and once again raise the specter of a major health hazard. TB bacilli are transmitted through the air, although it usually takes close contact with someone with the disease for at least a month to contract the infection. Even if infected, only five to ten percent of people who are otherwise healthy develop the disease itself. People with impaired immune systems, such as AIDS patients, are at particularly high risk. Successful treatment of this "new" TB involves taking up to six pills daily for six months.

P.S. Some medical officials are urging the revival of sanatoriums to quarantine TB patients during treatment.

Drastic cuts in government spending on public health programs have contributed to the resurgence of tuberculosis in our inner cities. For more information on this topic or on the prevention and treatment of heart disease, call

COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. Office hours: by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

There aren't so many family businesses around anymore as the big guys continue to move in on the little guys.

But there are a few left and one that is quite alive and well has deep — and proud — Quincy roots: Derbes Brothers contractors.

It truly is a family business.

The Derbes Brothers are five: Bob, Dick, Toffee, Frank and Kim.

And, seven of their off-spring are involved in the business: four sons, Robert, Jr., Richard, Jr., Frank, Jr., and Mike and three daughters, Cindy, Darline and Dawn.

The brothers' mother, Nowfe, worked as a bookkeeper at the company for 20 years before her death in 1984. She used to bring a shopping bag full of sandwiches each day for her five "growing" sons.

Their home town got a chance to really look the Derbes boys over recently.

For 60 days, you might say, they were on center stage under a glaring spotlight. And when the performance was over they were given the equivalent of a standing ovation.

The performance was the downtown Quincy Phase Two street and sidewalk reconstruction project which they completed — to rave notices — in 60 days, two months ahead of the original schedule.

The firm won the contract with a low bid of $800,000 — some $80,000 under that of the next low bidder.

The five brothers and four sons were all out there on Hancock Street working on the project side-by-side with other company employees while the three daughters were back at the Branch St. office handling the paperwork.

The downtown business community was quite impressed with the way the job was carried out with a maximum of cooperation and communication and a minimum of disruption.

"No one had to close their doors for a second," says Bob Derbes with pride. "As soon as cement was poured we had a plank over it so people could get into the stores."

He and brother Toffee credit the communication network between them, the city and business owners for the smooth operation.

Throughout the project, the downtown businesses were notified a day ahead as to what was going to take place and what time the next day. There were no surprises.

The Derbes brothers praise City DPW Commissioner Dave Colton, Operations Manager Lester Gerry and Resident Engineer Peter Hoyt for their cooperation and assistance in the project.

The praise was returned.

"They did a very good job," says Colton. "They're a Quincy firm and they have been here a long time. They took a lot of pride in their work. They thought and planned ahead. They knew a week ahead of time exactly what they were going to do the following week. Everyone I have talked with was very impressed."

"It was excellent teamwork all around," says Bob Derbes.

There was more to the job than street resurfacing and sidewalk cement work. Sidewalk brick work, strategic digging of holes for the planting of 100 trees and the placement of 34 ornamental light posts were also involved.

The tree sites were carefully selected so that when the trees are grown, they won't hide store doors or signs.

Incidentally, the Derbes brothers have donated $17,500 to the city to purchase seven of those ornamental light posts: two in memory of their mother and father, Nowfe and Toffee Derbes, and five in the names of each of the brothers and their families.

"We wanted to give something back to the city that has been so good to us," says Bob Derbes.

The family has deep roots in Quincy Point where Nowfe, born here, and her husband Toffee, native of Lebanon, settled after their marriage.

Four of the brothers — Bob, Dick, Toffee and Kim were football standouts at Quincy High School passing jersey No. 25 from one to the other as they graduated.

Dick Derbes started the company in 1958 on a $600 shoestring. He bought an old broken down truck, a wheelbarrow and some hand tools.

Toffee was working for the man who sold the truck and went out of business. So he joined Dick in the new venture. Bob was working at the Quincy Shipyard as a welder on the nuclear cruiser Long Beach under construction. One day he and several others were laid off. So he joined Dick and Toffee followed later by Frank and Kim.

The fledgling firm in the early days had no equipment other than the truck, a wheelbarrow, spades, shovels and rakes.

They learned the contracting business in an "on-the-job training" manner, teaching themselves.

They apparently learned well.

Today the company has 25 employees and a fleet of 25 trucks half-ton to trailer 16-wheelers and now does annual business in million dollar figures.

The company has had a wide range of jobs. Such as: The $3 million capping of the 54-acre Quincy landfill. The $85,000 rubberized asphalt track from ground up rubber tires at Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium. The 12-mile long, eight foot wide bicycle trail at Provincetown. The Marina Bay parking lot.

But it was the downtown project that gave them the most satisfaction because it was carried out in front of the whole town. Their home town.

When there's a job to be done, they get in there, roll up their sleeves and get it done. And done right. No fancy airs.

It is the variety of patients whom we help that is interesting and challenging. There are the very young, those in middle age, and those who are elderly. There are many different types of illnesses and ailments. There are patients who are recuperating from surgery, from accidents, and those who are going through normal health cycles who need service for a brief period like the new mothers with babies.

Home Health Care and Hospice service is "one to one." Each patient is different. Each patient is an individual, a person with whom we spend time, and who becomes for us an interesting and unique person. Home Health Care and Hospice service is also helping the families of our patients. The families and friends of our patients need assistance at times, and we are there for them.

We, the staff, at QVNA share the pride and feel rewarded when we participate in the recovery and the care of our patients and their families. Each case is unique. But, it is the variety, the efforts, the indomitable human spirit, and the successes that make service at Quincy Visiting Nurse a journey in the human condition at all levels.

In this week, which is National Home Care Week, we at QVNA salute our patients and the families whom we serve.

Guided Tours To Increase At 'Church Of Presidents'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

An agreement to expand visitation at the United First Parish Church should boost the city's tourism effort and give local retailers and other small business a shot in the arm next tourist season, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Under the agreement, the church, where the tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are located, will be open to tourists April 19 to Nov. 10. Visiting hours will coincide with the birthplaces and the Adams Birthplaces and the Adams Mansion which comprise the National Historic Site.

During the tourist season, the church, known as "The Church of Presidents," will be open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. National Park Service rangers will conduct tours of the crypt where the Adamases and their wives are entombed, as well as the church sanctuary.

Previously, United First Parish Church was open during the summer by appointment only. The church is the only church in the United States in which two presidents are buried.

Sheets said the agreement was reached by the National Park Service, represented by Adams National Historic Site Supt. Marianne Peak, and the minister of United First Parish Church, Rev. Sheldon Bennett.

The mayor said a $925,000 appropriation from the federal government to the National Park Service will make the expanded visitation and tours possible. The appropriation allows the National Park Service to provide interpretive tours at the church, even though the church is not maintained by the NPS.

As part of the agreement, tours will not conflict with church worship or other functions, such as weddings. There is still an active congregation at the Unitarian Universalist church.

"We have to be very sensitive to maintaining the church and the integrity of the congregation," Sheets said. "It's been active for over 300 years and we have to extend to them a full and unqualified commitment to their congregation."

"We have been working with Sheldon Bennett and the congregation and we think there is a level of trust and commitment."

With United First Parish Church open more hours and days, some officials see 15,000 tourists visiting the site next year. Sheets called that estimate low and projected 25,000 to 30,000 guests would visit the church next season.

Now, only about 1000 to 2000 visitors frequent the church, the mayor said.

The expanded visitation will mean operating and maintenance costs, such as heat and electricity, could run as high as $35,000. A phone may also be installed in the church foyer and a custodial-secretarial helper may be hired to assist when tours are being conducted.

To help offset those costs, adult visitors will be asked to contribute $1. In addition, Sheets said he will seek four major corporations, at $5,000 each, to sponsor the tours. Sponsors would have their names printed on literature and other promotions.

Sheets said he believes the presence of the National Park Service at one of Quincy's more centrally located historic sites will boost the city's tourism effort and bring it to new heights.

"You will see visually in your downtown a National Park presence. Many tourists from outside this country look for the National Park Service and its rangers when they sight see."

The mayor also said the increased visitation will help create a historical character for the church and the surrounding area which has undergone vast improvements recently, including new flower beds, sidewalks and antique-style lights.

He noted the "Walk of Names" brick walkway project planned for Constitution Plaza outside the City Hall annex will also fit into that character.

"We're trying to have an area that fits into the historical character of that church. We think the church has a town common look and we want Constitution Plaza to have a town common look of simplistic beauty."

The expanded visitation, coupled with the planned opening of a visitors center in Quincy Center, a shuttle bus service linking other historical sites and a possible nearby parking lot for tour buses, could make 1993 a banner tourist season in Quincy, perhaps its best ever.

The mayor said the city is moving forward with plans to locate a visitors' center, with rest rooms and other facilities, in Quincy Square, perhaps at Presidents Place. He also said he expects some federal money to be available to fund a shuttle bus service next year. Buses would shuttle tourists to historic sites throughout the city.

In addition, Sheets said he has talked with Boston Five officials about possibly using part of a vacant lot next to Presidents Place to park as many as six tourist buses. The property, owned by Boston Five and accessible from Coddington St., is vacant but someday could be developed into a hotel as originally planned by the developers of Presidents Place.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Residents Favor Quarry St. Access To SE Expressway

A number of Quincy residents spoke out in favor of an access to the new Southeast Expressway by way of Quarry St. in West Quincy.

Dr. Joseph P. Leone, director of Quincy City Hospital, said he endorsed the concept because it would relieve traffic congestion on Adams and Whitwell Sts. and make access to the hospital easier.

Mrs. Allene Tompkins, proprietor of Herron's Haven, a tourist home at 124 Merrymont Rd., said such access is "extremely important if we want to attract vacationists to Quincy."

George W. Nightingale of the G.W. Nightingale Coal and Oil Co. added that a Quarry St. link to the expressway would aid "the flow of traffic from distant points directly to Quincy Square."

SQUANTUM REPLACED

The old South Weymouth Naval Air Station was reactivated to replace the Squantum NAS as the new home of the First Naval Air Reserve, which had been based at Squantum since 1923.

Gov. Christian A. Herter and Rear Adm. Charles B. Momsen, commander of the First Naval District, presided at the ceremonies after which Capt. Harry Sartoris switched his command to Weymouth.

The last weekend drill was scheduled for Squantum on Dec. 19-10; the first at Weymouth for Jan. 9-10.

CONSTITUTION OUTMODDED?

Sen. Charles W. Hedges and Atty. Robert M. Ford, both of Quincy called for a convention in 1954 to "streamline and bring in tune with the modern process" the 173-year-old Massachusetts constitution.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Second Time Around Turkey

Tired of eating leftover turkey? Well, after eating turkey soup all weekend and hot turkey sandwiches, I used some of the small pieces for the following recipe with vegetables and it turned out to be quite tasty and different.

SECOND TIME AROUND TURKEY
about 2 cups turkey, white or dark cut in pieces

1/2 red pepper
1/2 green pepper
1 small zucchini
1 small onion

1/2 Lb fresh mushrooms
1 1/2 cups tomatoes
3 Tbsps oil

grated cheese
salt & pepper

In hot oil, saute the cut up green and red pepper, the zucchini, onion and mushroom. Add a smidgen of water. Cook covered for about five minutes or so. Add the tomatoes and the turkey and cook for another 15 minutes.

I made open faced sandwiches with sprinkled cheese on top and some over white rice.

Free Candlelight Christmas Concert At ENC Dec. 9

The A Cappella Choir and Madrigal Singers from Eastern Nazarene College will offer a free Candlelight Christmas Concert Wednesday, Dec. 9 in the Lahue Physical Education Center, 23 East Elm Ave.

The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m. with seating from 7 to 7:29 p.m.

The 60-voice A Cappella Choir has performed concerts in churches and schools nationally and internationally since 1938. Recent projects include a digital recording with the Boston University Recording Studio of anthem arrangements coordinated with the 1993 release of the hymnal "Sing to the Lord."

The 16-voice Madrigal Singers ensemble is an honors group formed from selected members of the A Cappella Choir. ENC's Madrigal Singers recently received a first place award for professional arts video programming in the state of Massachusetts for a video presentation featuring their January 1992 tour of the British Isles.

The public is invited. Due to limited seating those wishing to attend should call the music office at 773-6350 ext. 262 during business hours, for complimentary tickets to the event. Free parking is available at the Waterston Ave. parking lot located around the corner from the gymnasium.

Alliance Christmas Luncheon

The United Quincy Alliance of United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., will meet for a Christmas Luncheon Wednesday, Dec. 16 at noon in the parish hall.

The luncheon will be served by members of the board.

A musical "Holiday Program" will follow.

Squantum Book Debut At Historical Society Sunday

The Quincy Historical Society announces that the book, "Squantum - In the State of Massachusetts," will make its debut at a special party at the Adams Academy Building, Sunday, Dec. 6 from 2 to 4 p.m.

Advance subscribers and sponsors may pick up their copies of the book during the party. The book will also be on sale at the Society office beginning that day.

The event is an opportunity to meet the editor, publisher and some of the authors and have books autographed.

The combination history text-picture book is written in a modern style for enjoyable reading.

The hard cover, with 64 pages and 50 illustrations, is based on many years of research by the late Gordon Nelson and is dedicated to him.

The eight-chapter book tells the story of Squantum from Indian days to the present. Besides the local interest subjects, other highlights include the geology and Native Americans of the region and the Harvard Air Meets where early aviation history was made.

Authors of chapters and sections include Richard Carlisle, Frank Casey, Jr.,

John Herbert, Dr. George Horner and Doris Oberg. The editor is H. Hobart Holly, historian of the Quincy Historical Society. Holly was editor of "Quincy - 350 Years" in 1974.

Those who attend the party will have an opportunity to have punch from the Claude Graham-White Bowl. The trophy was won by the famous English flier during his trip here in 1910. It was presented to the Quincy Historical Society by his widow in recognition of her husband's participation in the Squantum Air Meet of that year.

Quincy Emblem Club Christmas Party Dec. 9

The Quincy Emblem Club will meet Wednesday, Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Home, East Squantum St.

A Christmas Party will be held at the meeting. Members are asked to bring a grab to swap.

A Christmas Party will be also held Dec. 14 at the Jamaica Plain Veterans Hospital. Members are asked to bring home-made snacks. Those unable to attend are asked to drop snacks off at the Elks Home.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Creedon Honored As 14th School Superintendent By 1000 Well-Wishers

Eugene W. Creedon was honored by nearly 1000 well-wishers at a recent reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club to celebrate his appointment as Quincy's 14th school superintendent.

Surrounded by his wife, Kathleen, and three children, Erin, 16, Susan, 15, and Patrick, 11, Creedon delighted in greeting parents, friends, city officials, teachers and administrators, past and present, many of whom had worked with him during his 27-year career in Quincy.

The reception, hosted by the School Committee, the Quincy Education Association, and the central office administrators, signaled a new era of cooperation and teamwork within the school system. Creedon, a popular educator admired for his devotion to and compassion for youth, promised to continue to do his best for all the children in the schools.

School Committee Vice Chairman Stephen Durkin welcomed the guests and noted that "Gene Creedon has a rare talent for involving everyone in making the schools responsive to the learning needs of all students."

Mayor James Sheets called Creedon a "man for all seasons" and enthusiastically endorsed him as a "solid family man, an excellent educator, and a man of compassion and leadership." Sheets, who is also chairman of the School Committee, said he looks forward to working with Creedon in the "vineyard of education."

QEA President Tom Walsh highlighted the respect that staff have for Creedon and affirmed that "we will follow your leadership and will work as hard for the children in our schools as we know that you do."

JoAnn Bragg, president of the Citywide PTO, conveyed best wishes of the parents and pledged their support for his efforts.

Joseph Mazzarella, director of Occupational Education, noted the support of the school administrators and presented Creedon with a portrait of himself with a small superimposed image of Quincy's first superintendent, Col. Francis W. Parker.

Creedon, a strong supporter of the performing arts, was heralded by students with music and drama. Tracy O'Sullivan, a senior at North Quincy High School, sang "Through the Eyes of Love." Second and third graders from the Parker School, where Creedon was previously principal, sang several songs and were accompanied by Salvatore Bartolotti.

Paul Haight, Marcia McCarthy, and Colleen Harris directed Broad Meadows students who presented scenes from "The Little Match Girl." Creedon was formerly the principal of Broad Meadows Middle School.

The final performer was Erin Creedon who as a surprise to her father sang, "The Greatest Love of All."

To honor Creedon a "Superintendent's Scholarship" has been established and will be awarded to students pursuing college studies in the arts. Business Manager George Umschied announced more than $3,000 has been received thus far.

Creedon was previously a teacher at Point-Webster, principal at the Parker Elementary School and the Broad Meadows Middle School prior to coming to the main office several years ago. He was appointed school superintendent unanimously by the School Committee July 1.

SCHOOL SUPT. Gene Creedon admires his portrait, a gift from school administrators, during a recent reception in his honor at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. An image of Quincy's first school superintendent, Col. Francis Parker, was superimposed over Creedon's heart.

PARKER SCHOOL STUDENTS are applauded by School Supt. Gene Creedon after their musical tribute to him during a recent reception celebrating his appointment as superintendent.

KAREN EVANS of the Quincy Special Education Department greets School Supt. Gene Creedon during a reception in his honor at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Underground Railway Theater Shadow Puppet Spectacle Dec. 6 At United First Parish Church

The Multi-Cultural Series at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center will present the Underground Railway Theater Shadow Puppet Spectacle in a holiday program for children of all ages Sunday, Dec. 6 at 3 p.m.

The puppeteers will bring the 700-year-old legends of "The Firebird" and "Til Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks" into the 20th century with prisms, a 20-foot wide screen of projections, and flexible-mirror imagery. The performers will also present a back stage demonstration of their gallery of monsters and luminous birds.

The music is by Stravinsky and Strauss.

The production is commissioned by the Boston and Cleveland Symphony Orchestras. Played on two 10-foot screens with moving landscapes and special optical effects, it features large shadow puppets designed to resemble animated stained glass.

The Underground Railway Theater, founded in 1974 in Oberlin, Ohio, is presently based in Boston. Its members include Debra Wise, Wes Sanders and John Lewandowski.

Tickets are $7, $5 for seniors and children. For more information call 328-0677.

Sampling Shows Some Homes With High Lead Water Levels

 0.015 milligrams of lead per liter of water (mg/L.)

Those exceeding the recommended level ranged from a low of 20.5 ppb to a high of 34.6 ppb. "That's a little high," Colton said, referring to the highest reading.

"Anything over 25 parts per billion could be more of a problem and cause a little more concern," he added.

Samples were taken throughout the city. The findings do not suggest any definitive source of lead or direct correlation, Colton said.

"It may be an old house which recently underwent plumbing improvements. Some of the lead could have come from lead solder."

"It could be a house that's 10 years old that used lead solder before it was banned. We really don't expect to see any correlation," the commissioner said.

Residents, especially those with children, should be concerned but not alarmed, the commissioner said.

"I don't think people should be alarmed but they should be concerned, especially those with children. It's much more of a health concern for children than for adults," Colton said.

Lead can build up in the body and damage the brain, red blood cells and kidneys. Children up to age 6 are particularly susceptible to lead poisoning.

The metal is found in some solder, brass and chrome-plated brass faucets and in lead pipes in household plumbing.

According to officials, lead enters drinking water primarily as a result of corrosion of materials containing lead in the water distribution system and household plumbing. These materials include lead-based solder, brass and chrome-plated brass faucets and lead pipes.

Over the years, the government has implemented stricter standards regarding safe levels of lead. "The EPA guidelines today are very strict," Colton said. "It's much lower than the old standard."

Colton called the water testing a "good idea" for homeowners. "I intend to get my water tested. It alleviates any concerns you might have," he said.

Test kits, which cost $15, are available at the Quincy Public Works Sewer, Water and Drain Billing Office, 55 Sea St.

Those who purchase the kits are instructed to take a water sample of the first faucet draw of the day (minimum six hours). Samples should be returned to the DPW which will mail samples to a lab.

Colton said residents will receive lab results directly from the lab. Other communities besides Quincy have reported high lead levels. Quincy's lead levels ranked in the middle compared with other communities, according to the EPA.

Quincy, like other area municipalities, receives its water from the MWRA and the Quabbin Reservoir.

Since 1977, the water supplied to the Quincy Water Department has been receiving corrosion control treatment. Additional corrosion control treatment is needed to further reduce the corrosivity of the water.

A corrosion control pilot testing program began in September, 1991, to identify what type of additional treatment was needed. Results will be submitted to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in January. Once DEP approves recommended additional treatment, steps will be taken to construct a treatment facility.

While this program is being implemented, citizens are advised to take simple steps, like flushing their taps, to protect themselves and their families from lead in drinking water. Since lead enters drinking water primarily through household plumbing, homes that contain brass fixtures or lead solder to join copper pipes, or that receive their water from a service line made of lead are at the highest risk.

Lead in drinking water, although rarely the sole cause of lead poisoning, can significantly increase a person's total lead exposure, particularly the exposure of infants who drink baby formulas and concentrated juices that are mixed with water. The USEPA estimates that drinking water can make up 20 percent or more of a person's total exposure to lead.

When water stands in lead pipes or plumbing systems containing lead for several hours or more, the lead may dissolve into drinking water. This means the first water drawn from the tap in the morning, or later in the afternoon, can contain fairly high levels of lead.

For more information about lead in drinking water, call the Sewer, Water and Drain Department at 376-1910.

250,000 Turn Out For Christmas Parade

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Nearly 250,000 people lined Hancock Street from Quincy Center to North Quincy High School to view Sunday's 41st annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade under ideal weather.

Twenty floats participated in the event, the theme of which was "Christmas on Parade." Awards for the winning entries were presented in a ceremony following the parade in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Quincy High School took the $1,500 first prize, along with the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy, for its entry "Parading Thru the Days" (based on the song "The Twelve Days of Christmas") in the non-commercial float category.

Fr. Tierney was the founder of the annual parade in 1952.

Second, third, fourth and fifth prizes in the non-commercial category went to, respectively: Woodward School, "Christmas Is A Ball," $750; Curtain Call Theatre, "Christmas Memories on Parade," $500; Quincy Point Congregational Church, "March of the Toy Soldiers" and the Quincy Fire Department float (tied for fourth), $250 each; Germantown Yacht Club, "Paper Faces on Parade," $250.

Continental Cablevision was the winner of the commercial category trophy. Peter's Automotive and Eric's Autobody, a first-time entrant, took honorable mention.

Mayor James Sheets presented the Mayor's Trophy for the best Quincy float to Sacred Heart Youth for its "International Christmas" float.

The Chairman's Trophy in the best specialty category went to Bare Cove Fire Museum of Hingham.

Twenty marching bands also competed in the parade. Winners included:

Division 1: Holbrook High School, first place; Norton High School, second place; Stoneham High School, third place.

Division 2: Douglas High School, first place; Chicopee High School, second place; Agawam High School, third place.

Division 3: David Prouty High School, first place; Abington High School, second place.

Division 4: New Bedford High School, first place; Marshfield High School, second place.

Color guard winners included: Cambridge

Police Department, first place; Weymouth Police Department, second place; Ladies State Auxiliary, third place.

Also honored at the ceremony were winners of the elementary school poster contest. More than 900 posters were entered, and winners are on display in the windows of South Shore Bank and other Hancock Street store windows. Winners included:

Grades 1-3: Laura Matos, Grade 3, Montclair School, first prize, $100 savings bond; Timothy Watson, Grade 1, Squantum School, second prize, $75 savings bond; Erin Griffiths, Grade 2, Lincoln-Hancock School, honorable mention, $50 savings bond.

Grades 4-6 (prize amounts same as above): Tiffany Archambault, Grade 6, St. Ann's School, first prize; Adam Marquis, Grade 4, Squantum School, second prize; Katherine Gaughan, Grade 6, St. Ann's School, honorable mention.

Anna McKinnon of Wollaston also was honored for selecting the "Christmas on Parade" theme for this year's parade.

Christmas Festival Committee Chairman George White said he was pleased that the weather was more cooperative than it was last year, when a light but cold rain soaked those in attendance.

ABINGTON HIGH School Marching Band, which placed second overall in the Division 3 competition, steps smartly along Hancock Street during the 41st annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade.

WOODWARD SCHOOL placed second in the non-commercial float category with its "Christmas Is A Ball."

"MARCH OF THE Toy Soldiers," built by Quincy Point Congregational Church, tied for fourth prize in the non-commercial float category.

QPIC To Host Pancake Breakfast Sunday

The Quincy Park Improvement Committee will host a pancake breakfast Sunday, Dec. 6 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School cafeteria.

Proceeds will go toward QPIC's continuing efforts to raise funds necessary to restore Collins-Rest-A-While park on Southern Artery, across from Veterans Memorial Stadium in Quincy.

Admission is $4 and children and their parents will have an opportunity to get a picture taken with Santa Claus for $2.

Because last year's breakfast was such a success, organizers decided to hold another breakfast this year.

"Last year's pancake breakfast brought kids from all over to have their picture taken with Santa. It was such a success that people have been asking if we would have one this year," said QPIC Chairperson Michelle Lydon.

"Everyone enjoys sharing in the holiday spirit, and this promises to be a fun-filled day that will help raise funds necessary to rebuild Quincy's most popular playground," she added.

QPIC is a local organization with a growing membership whose commitment to Quincy's children has inspired city-wide support. To date, QPIC has raised nearly $40,000 for the restoration of Collins-Rest-A-While.

QPIC's most recent fundraising effort included a penny drive at the Collins-Rest-A-While that netted more than 60,000 pennies. QPIC has met with various play equipment manufacturers and estimates that $60,000 is necessary to construct the kind of state-of-the-art children's playground that will be safe and fun.

Ayers To Speak At Elks Memorial Service

The Quincy Lodge of Elks will host the 87th annual Memorial Service, Sunday at 10 a.m. at the Elks Memorial Hall, 440 East Squantum St.

The service honors the memory of the Elks' departed brothers. Each of the 2,700 Elks' Lodges across the country will conduct the annual tribute Sunday.

Following the brief service, guest speaker Bruce Ayers, Ward 6 City Councillor, will address the assembly. Intermittent musical selections will be played. Following the ceremony, breakfast will be served. All Elks members and their families are invited to attend. Admission is free. For information call 472-2223.

Nearly 1,000 First Night Buttons Sold At Parade

Nearly 1,000 First Night Quincy buttons were sold during the annual Christmas Parade, reports City Councillor Michael Cheney, First Night chairman.

Cheney said the sale of buttons "exceeded expectations" and he credited the more than 40 volunteers who sold buttons during the parade.

The First Night Committee sponsored a float in the parade and set up vending tables along the parade route.

First Night admission buttons will be available for $6 beginning this weekend at Tedeschi Food Stores throughout the South Shore, Papa Gino's Quincy locations, Stop & Shop stores throughout the South Shore, Osco Drug in Quincy, Dunkin Donuts in Quincy, Shaw's Supermarket in Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth, Barry's Deli in Quincy Square, and the Christmas Tree Shops. Buttons are also available at City Hall in the City Council office.

The First Night Committee will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at City Hall. All are welcome and volunteers are still needed. For information call 376-1071, 376-1072 or Mike Cheney at 471-1493.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. SCOTT DEWARE

For centuries, letters were a principal means of communication between people. Many letters of the past have found their way into literature, and the early forms of the modern novel were written in the form of letters to and from the principals in the story.

During World War II, Kate Smith, one of our country's greatest singers, urged folks at the homefront to write military people to help keep up their spirits during one of the worst years in history. She made famous the statement: "If you don't write, you're wrong."

This statement still rings true today. Writing to people is a concrete way to touch them. There's something about a nice letter that continues to bless with the passing of years. A person can read a letter over and over again; meaningful phrases can be re-read. Letters can be "tucked away" and be brought out when a person needs assurance; sometimes a feeling of togetherness; sometimes a feeling of love.

Wouldn't today be a good time to sit down and send a few thoughts to a friend or to relatives? ...

A funeral service for George E. "Bump" Moody Jr., 62, of Houghs Neck, was held yesterday in the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Mr. Moody died Nov. 28 at home.

A retired shipwright carpenter for General Dynamics at the Fore River shipyard, where he worked for 38 years.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

He was an avid roller skater, a sport he enjoyed with his late wife, Jacqueline A. (Olson) Moody, at the Houghs Neck Skating Rink.

Born in Milton, he lived in Houghs Neck for many years.

He is survived by four sons, George E. Moody III, Paul L. Moody, Glenn E. Moody and Robert M. Moody, all of Quincy; two daughters, Susan L. Moody and Kim A. Moody, both of Quincy; a sister, Doris Morrow of California; seven grandchildren, and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the Houghs Neck Community Council Scholarship Fund, 1193 Sea St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Alexander N. McGuire, 78

Retired Shipper For Garber Brothers

A funeral service for Alexander Nichol McGuire, 78, of Quincy Point, was held Monday at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mr. McGuire died Nov. 27 at Quincy Hospital.

A retired shipper for Garber Brothers, he worked at the company for 20 years.

A member of Quincy Point Congregational Church, he was its head teller for 40 years. He was also a past deacon at the church.

Born in Gateshead, England, and raised in Scotland, he moved to Quincy Point at the age of 12. He was a graduate of Quincy High School and a player on the school's soccer team.

He played soccer for several years on a team in Pawtucket, R.I., and local teams in Quincy.

He was a U.S. Navy veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret B. (White) McGuire; three daughters, Sandra M. Dalessio and Dianne M. Sullivan, both of Weymouth, and Nancy G. Heffernan of Quincy; and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to Quincy Point Congregational Church Memorial Fund, 444 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Margaret L. Kane, 72

Retired Hospital Dietary Aide

A funeral service for Margaret L. (McPartlin) Kane, 72, of Quincy, was held Monday in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Mrs. Kane died Nov. 25 at Milton Hospital after a long illness.

A dietary aide for Long Island Hospital for eight years before her retirement 11 years ago, she was a lifelong Quincy resident and was educated in Quincy schools.

Wife of the late James F. Kane, she is survived by a son, James F. Kane Jr. of Quincy; two daughters, Carol Savard and Maureen Callahan, both of Quincy; two brothers, John McPartland of Quincy and James McPartlin of Florida; and seven grandchildren. She was the mother of the late John J. Kane.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the American Heart Association, 33 Fourth Ave., Needham, MA 02192.

Win Over Quincy Makes It 10-0-0

Historic Season For North Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN

They are the undefeated city and Old Colony League football champions.

They are owners of the best record in local school history at 10-0-0.

The only thing left for the North Quincy Red Raiders is to win their first post-season game Saturday when they face Arlington in the Division 1B playoff game at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

North capped its second unbeaten season on Thanksgiving with a 20-0 decision over Quincy in the Veterans Stadium mud bowl.

The Raiders' only other unbeaten season was in 1966 when they went 9-0-0.

"This is just unbelievable," said an ecstatic North coach Ken McPhee. "I never dreamt for a second we would have a season like this. We lost so many players from last year's team (McPhee's best season up to then at 8-2), that I felt we would be fortunate to have a .500 season."

"But, after giving up 19 points in our opening game, our defense was amazing. We gave up an average of only 6.5 points a game and I feel our defense was the best around."

North had three shutouts and, five games in which it allowed only one touchdown. Only Acton-Boxboro in the opening game (19 points) and Silver Lake (13) scored more than a touchdown.

"This is absolutely the highlight of my coaching career," said McPhee.

"But I don't take this personally, the support of the school system and the city itself made this all possible. The kids took pride in themselves and developed a personality as the season went along. We just couldn't be happier."

"But give Quincy a lot of credit, they never quit. Even when we led, 14-0, at the half, I wasn't comfortable. After all, two years ago we had a 17-0 lead only to have them come back and beat us."

23-17. I felt more comfortable when we stopped them on our 11-yard line following the second half kickoff.

"The defense carried us all season, but the offense picked up as the year progressed. I thought we were in trouble when our leading runner, Mark Sinclair, was lost for most of the year offensively after running for over 200 yards in the first two games. But sophomore Shawn Nee and Josh Gott took up the slack and when we lost Nee early in the second quarter against Quincy Sean Skahan came up with his best game of the year (16 carries for 113 yards and a touchdown). I expect Nee to be ready for our playoff game."

Sinclair, who played only on defense most of the season after being hurt, picked up 60 yards on five carries including a 30-yard touchdown run.

Quarterback Liam Higgins, with the ground attack working, threw only three passes in the rain, completing two for 44 yards and having one interception.

North's defense completely stymied Quincy's running attack,

10:30 A.M. Kickoff At Nickerson Field North Faces Arlington For Division Title

The North Quincy football team will try to cap its most successful season in history with a victory over Arlington in the Div. B playoff game Saturday morning at 10:30 at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

North finished its second unbeaten season on Thanksgiving with a win over Quincy. The only other Raider unbeaten season was in 1966 when it finished at 9-0-0.

North coach Ken McPhee has the rare distinction of having played for and coached the school's only undefeated teams. He was an outstanding lineman in the 1966 team coached by the late Carl Leone.

Football Hall Of Fame Meeting Dec. 8

The Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame Committee will meet Tuesday, Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. at the Granite Rail, 16 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center.

Members will elect officers and discuss plans for 1993.

Saturday's playoff game pits North against an Arlington team (9-1-0) which finished as co-champion of the Greater Boston League.

This is North's second post-season appearance. The Raiders lost to Woburn in the 1975 Div. 1 Super Bowl.

The Div. 1A playoff game between Brockton and Xaverian (both 9-1) will follow the North-Arlington game at 2 at Nickerson Field.

This is the 12th post-season appearance for Brockton. The Boxers defeated Xaverian, 26-20, during the regular season.

holding Noel DiBona and Dave Bogan to a combined 15 yards. With the ground game halted, quarterback Mike Bartlett went to the air 26 times, completing nine for 131 yards.

Dave Reinhart had another big game for North both ways, playing brilliant defense and catching North's only completed passes.

"He is sure to make everyone's all-scholastic teams," McPhee said. "He was absolutely amazing all season long. Brian Raftery and Sean Halpin were again outstanding as linebackers and Dave Pacino, who I think is the best nose guard around, had another fine game. He is deserving of all-scholastic honors, but I don't know if he will make it. The secondary did an excellent job."

Also excelling on defense were Erik Delorey, Mike Linnane, Justin Dilks, Bill Skutul, Pete Fitzpatrick, Pat Shea, Skahan, Nathan Gott, Sean Herron, Sinclair and Keith Lentini.

Playing well on offense were Shea, Dan Duncan, Tony Licciardi, Pete Licciardi, Raftery, Reinhart, Linnane, Pacino, Dilks, Nick Mastrogiacomio, Higgins, Sinclair, Josh Gott, Nee and Skahan.

"I'm proud of the way our kids played, they never quit and gave their all under terrible conditions," said Quincy coach Jack Raymer. "They controlled the line of scrimmage on us and that's the key in weather like this. They have an outstanding team and I wish them well in the playoff game with Arlington."

Quincy had two scoring chances. Robbie Kane returned the kickoff back from his 15 to the North 48 with the score 14-0 and Higgins, the only man between him and a touchdown, brought him down with an open field tackle.

After getting to the North 11 after the second half kickoff, Bartlett hit Brian Clifford with a pass but Clifford was out of the end zone.

Quincy came up with some big defensive plays of its own. Dan Morrell intercepted a pass and Mike Elder sacked Higgins for a six-yard loss.

Playing strong defense for the Presidents were Morrell, Paul Colleary, Duane Holmes, Mike Feeley, Jason Bennett, John Green, Mike Kavanaugh, Bogan, Ashley Davis, DiBona, Bartlett, Kane, Elder, Steve Provost and Jeff Burrell.

Playing well on offense were Sean McArdle, Feeley, Steve Fernald, Mark Nuley, Kavanaugh, Holmes, Clifford, Kane, Bogan, DiBona, Bartlett, Mike Gardner, Morrell, Dave McGuire and Elder.

North Quincy had 13 first downs to seven for Quincy.

Shea returned the game's opening kickoff 30 yards to the North 39 but Quincy held and Higgins kicked to the Quincy 15. Neither team did much in the mud for the rest of the first quarter and Morrell intercepted a pass and returned it to the Quincy 42 as the quarter ended.

Nee was injured early in the second quarter and was lost for the rest of the game.

North drove 73 yards for its first score, sparked by Nee, Skahan and Sinclair. The Raiders clicked off four first downs. After Elder sacked Higgins, the North quarterback took a high pass from center and got off a pass to Reinhart, who carried several Quincy players an additional 20 yards to complete a 34-yard play.

Skahan carried to the one and Higgins scored on a quarterback sneak. Sinclair rushed for the two-point conversion.

Halpin, on the seat of his pants in the mud, intercepted a pass on Quincy's 30, setting up Sinclair's 30-yard run up the middle for the second North score. A rush for the two-point conversion was halted by Elder.

Higgins came up with his big defensive play when Kane appeared headed for a touchdown.

Quincy drove from its 35 all the way to the North 11 following the second half kickoff, picking up three first downs. A pass to DiBona for 32 yards and another to Bogan for 15 yards highlighted the drive. Bartlett's pass to Clifford was voided when Clifford was out of the end zone.

Following two rushes for no gain, North took over on its 11, ending Quincy's last scoring chance.

North then marched 88 yards on 10 plays with Skahan carrying six times and finally scoring from the five. The try for the two points failed.

Both coaches cleared their benches and there was no more scoring as the Raiders celebrated their 26th win in the 60-year-old series. Quincy has won 29 games and there have been five ties.

For Quincy, the game ended a most frustrating season. The Presidents, expected to have an excellent season, finished at 3-6-1.

6,000 Brave Rain To See Thanksgiving Game extremely well with North Quincy undefeated and Quincy having a strong team. We didn't do as well as we might have in good weather, but it looks like we had a pretty average Thanksgiving as far as crowd and income."

A Busy Season For Leo Shea

Leo Shea, a volunteer worker for Quincy's Cha. 3, has had quite a season.

His daughter, Karen, was a member of the undefeated state championship volleyball team and his son, Pat, is co-captain and wide receiver of the unbeaten football team.

Shea has witnessed 21 girls' volleyball matches and 10 football games without a loss.

Charlie Ross In 20th Year Behind WJDA Sports Mike

By PETE ZOIA

As a youngster in 1972, I vividly remember pumping my feet against the pedals of a player piano that bore the name of Charles Ross & Co. above the keyboard.

This Charles Ross became a prominent member of the Quincy City Council and later became mayor of the city.

Two generations later another Charles Ross emerged as a sports announcer at Quincy's WJDA.

He is the grandson of the former mayor.

Charlie never considered entering the political ring. His interest was in music and sports. He was a member of the Quincy High School band and was also on the golf team. Sports was his first love and he set out to become a broadcaster.

He graduated from Curry College, after working part time at a Quincy music store and was a summer fill-in at WJDA in 1973.

That fall he went to a Patriots football game with a tape recorder and taped one quarter of the game which enabled him to start his career with WJDA.

"I remember my first football game," says Charlie. "Quincy was playing that day and I kept on calling its star back, Preston Carroll, 'Carroll Preston' because of my first game jitters. His mother called the station to correct me."

As a student at Quincy High Ross received a good sports background from his many teachers and coaches, among them Peter Chrisom, now principal at North Quincy High, and Dave Burke, who was his math teacher and at that time assistant football coach for the Presidents, who later became head coach at North.

Charlie said Hank Conroy and Marty Finnegan, former coaches at Quincy, were instrumental in encouraging him in his career. "All the coaches that I have come to know in Quincy were great to me, making my announcing duties easier," stated the popular announcer.

Charlie recalls many pleasant talks with the late coach Jack Donahue, former North Quincy High School football coach, while living in the same apartment building.

Former Quincy High head football coach Tom Fitzgerald became friendly with Ross. When Fitzgerald gave up coaching at Quincy, he remarked to Charlie, "Save a place for me at

WJDA." This materialized three years ago and now Fitzgerald is Charlie's analyst at all the local football games broadcasts.

"Tom brings a great deal of knowledge of the game to the broadcasting booth. His coaching experience certainly shows during our broadcast and I have him take over and comment about various game situations," remarked Charlie. They work as a team for 15 high school games a season during North Quincy, Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Archbishop Williams games.

A game that comes to Charlie's mind is the 1975 Turkey Day overtime game between North and Quincy. This spectacular game ended with North the victor and going to the Super Bowl. Another game he mentioned was the 1991 Quincy-Weymouth game, where Quincy upset the previously undefeated Weymouth team.

This will be his 20th season at the mike for WJDA.

"I have enjoyed very much the games I have worked and the many nice people that I have met during my radio career."

Soccer

North Girls Complete One Of Their Best Seasons

The North Quincy girls' soccer team recently completed one of its best seasons with a 5-9-1 record, the team finishing with three wins and a tie in its last five games.

The team was led by Tri-Capt. Amy Bergeron, Calese Greeley and Angela Marinilli.

"Unfortunately Marinilli and Greeley had ankle problems and missed most of the season," said coach Leo Donovan.

North placed three girls on the Old Colony League all-star team, Bergeron, senior Karen Corrigan and sophomore Karen Manna.

Senior Patii Dardinski was selected for the league's Sportsmanship Award. Bergeron and Manna were among the leagues top scorers, with 20 and 19 points respectively.

Rounding out the squad were seniors Stacy Flynn, Eileen McDonagh, Jennifer Nutley, and Julie Barbuto, juniors goalie Katy Deady, Karen Duffy, Heather Feeley, Lisa Flynn, Kristen Masciulli and Nicole Perona, and freshman Kelly Keegan. Keegan and sophomore

Manna started every game. "The squad played hard all year and with the help of a few good bounces, could have had a winning season," said Donovan.

GETTING INTO THE ROTATION

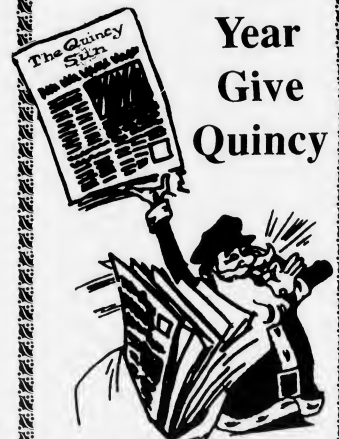

Most auto experts recommend that car tires be rotated on a regular basis to equalize their wear and extend their lives. Generally, tires should be rotated every 6,000 to 8,000 miles, sooner if irregular wear becomes apparent. Tire rotation is now particularly important in an era of widespread use of front-wheel drive (FWD) powertrains. While the front wheels bear the brunt of the load in both FWD and rear-wheel drive (RWD) cars, they have the added duty of providing both traction and steering in FWD cars. As a consequence of these extra demands, the front wheels experience added wear. For a more even distribution of tire wear in FWD cars, have the front and rear tires switched without changing sides (straight-line rotation).

HINT: For FWD vehicles, use the standard "X" (cross-over) pattern, with the spare replacing the most worn tire of the four.

Come in and get acquainted with our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550. Personalized service and attention is given to each customer whether they would like us to rotate their tires or to do some other major repair work. We are open as early as 6 and stay as late as 9, plus we are here on Sun. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Fowler House Wins Men's B Softball Crown

The Fowler House Cafe recently captured the Quincey Men's Softball League B Division championship after finishing first in the regular season.

Fowler House advanced to the finals by sweeping defending champ Washington Tap in three straight games. In the other semifinal series, Hyde Park defeated Liberty Lounge in four games.

The championship series featured timely hitting and fine defensive plays by both teams. In the deciding game, with the score tied in the bottom of the seventh inning, Fowler House escaped a bases-loaded, no-outs situation. In the bottom of the eighth, Fowler outfielders threw runners out at third base and at home plate.

Fowler then scored four runs in the ninth and held on to win the championship four games to two.

The Fowler House players extend their thanks to team sponsor, the Rizzotti family, for their support and generosity.

Impact Quincy Team 2nd In Tournament

A combined team of Quincy and North Quincy High School student-athletes recently took second place in the first annual Lynn Partnership Basketball Tournament, with North Quincy senior Sean Donovan being named as one of the tournament's Most Valuable Players.

The team was sponsored by Impact Quincy: Quincy Coalition for the Prevention of Alcohol and Other Drug Problems.

The IQ team beat Somerville in the semifinal game by a score of 61-43. In the finals against host Lynn, IQ came back from a 14-point first half deficit to tie the game with six minutes remaining. The lead changed hands several times in the closing minutes, as Donovan poured in 27 points, and Quincy High's Tom Malvesti added 10.

With four seconds left in the game and the score tied at 58, Lynn took possession on a called foul, and sank a 15-foot jump shot with one second remaining. A last second, length of the court shot by IQ fell short.

Between games, the students participated in workshops on preventing alcohol and other drug use, peer leadership, and HIV/AIDS information. The tournament brought together teams from Beverly, Brockton, Everett, Lynn, Quincy, Salem, and Somerville.

Each city or town participating has received a Community Partnership grant from the U.S. Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP). The purpose of the grants are to assist the communities in developing grassroots, community-based efforts to address alcohol and other drug problems.

Joining Donovan and Malvesti on the Impact Quincy team were North Quincy High students Tim Byrne, Chris Dupill, Michael Staiti, Joe Welby and Sean Warren, and Quincy High students Matt Dwyer, Jon Gangi, and Eddie Kenney.

Guidice Wins Volleyball Conference Honors

Amy Guidice of Quincy, a senior at Drexel University, has been named the North Atlantic Conference women's volleyball player of the week. It was the first time for her and the second for a Drexel player this year.

A 5-10 middle blocker, Guidice, former Quincy High standout, helped Drexel to two five-game wins as the Lady Dragons improved to 15-14 and posted a winning record for the first time.

With a team-high 19 kills in wins over Yale and Lafayette, she hit .220 with 13 digs and six total blocks in the win over Yale and hit .420 with 22 digs, three block assists and three aces against Lafayette.

Guidice is tops in the conference in block average (1.33) and leads the squad in total kills (204) and kills-per-game average (.27). She is second on the team in hitting percentage (.230) and third in digs (287).

The Trustees will host a Craft Show and cookie sale on Saturday, Dec. 5, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Dean Zoia Takes In Game

Among the spectators at the Quincy-North game was Dean Zoia, who scored for North on a brilliant 93-yard run in the 1980 which saw North come from behind for a 27-20 victory. Dean was accompanied by his two sons.

Dean is the son of Pete Zoia, North's "Mr. Football," who is the only Quincy or North player to play in the first three Quincy-North games. He was a halfback on the 1933, '34 and '35 teams, captaining the Raiders in his senior year. He is currently a North assistant coach.

Crime Watch

Burglary Prevention Tips For Small Business

Burglary is a property crime that occurs when the business is closed. The Burglar may enter through any opening, (door, window, air conditioning duct, skylight), or even create one through an interior shared wall or an outside wall. Reduce your risk as much as possible. Burglary is a crime of opportunity that can be prevented.

Surveillance and Security are Critical:

• Lighting - install bright interior and exterior lighting to make all openings visible from both the outside and inside of the store.

• Locks and Safes - purchase high quality door locks and use them. Grilles and storefront gates delay entry. Use an Underwriters Laboratory listed money safe, bolted to the floor and visible from the street.

• Entry Control - know who has a key and restrict access to the front door. Rekey the lock if a once trusted employee is discharged for cause. Rekey locks annually if you have a high turnover of employees. Consider an access control system rather than keys.

• Intrusion Alert - install a good quality alarm system to detect unauthorized entry. Check with your Chamber of Commerce and law enforcement people before you make this investment.

• Windows - Consider burglar resistant glass in accessible areas. Unbreakable polycarbonate may work even better, particularly if you have high value items in window displays.

• Environment - keep areas around the store clean to aid visibility. Display your most valuable articles near the center of the store to force a burglar to take the longest possible escape route. Keep merchandise displays organized to allow maximum visibility throughout the store. Check closets and restrooms before you lock up. You don't need an unwanted visitor staying inside your store after closing hours.

If you practice these techniques you will certainly diminish your chances of becoming a victim of burglary.

2 Officers Commended In Arrest Of Gunman

Police Chief Francis Mullen recently presented commendations to two police officers who subdued and arrested a man firing a handgun in Southwest Quincy.

"Due to the good judgement, professionalism, and their excellent command of this extremely volatile situation, Officers Richard Praetsch and Scott Smith are hereby commended," announced Mullen.

On Tuesday, Nov. 17, Praetsch and Smith heard gunshots and were directed to a Nelson Street residence by neighbors. As the officers approached they heard another shot and saw a man in the driveway holding a gun, Mullen said.

Praetsch and Smith took cover and ordered the man to drop the gun. The man began swearing at the officers and fled to the backyard with the officers in pursuit, Mullen said.

At the rear of the house the man turned towards the officers and waved his gun at them while Praetsch and Smith again ordered him to drop the weapon, Mullen said. After a long hesitation, the man put his gun down and was placed under arrest.

The man had been armed with a Luger which was still loaded, Mullen said. No one was injured during the incident, Mullen added, including the many witnesses.

As advertised, the executive director, under the direction of the corporation's Board of Directors, will be responsible for planning, developing, initiating, coordinating, implementing and evaluating Quincy 2000's programs and projects and for supervising a small technical and administrative staff.

Comprising some 80 local business, labor and government leaders,

Quincy 2000 was created to initiate a new era in retail and commercial development in Quincy. The effort was spearheaded by Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said he is pleased with the number of responses and the quality of the applicants.

"We're pleased with the applications and with the quality of the applicants and I think this is a great time to make choice."

The director will also be involved in budgeting, financial management, grant application and administration, public relations, report writing, and promotional activities.

To be considered for the position, candidates must have a master's degree in planning, public administration, business administration, or related field and 10 years of relevant work experience in a management capacity. Marketing, retail/commercial, and/or site development experience is a plus.

Applicants are instructed to include salary requirements with their resume. The position will probably pay around $50,000.

Sheets called the a $50,000 starting salary "reasonable."

"We have to be frugal and I think $50,000 is very, very reasonable," Sheets said.

Given the lackluster economy and cutbacks in some white-collar positions, the executive director's position would seemingly appeal to many professionals. Galvin said opportunities associated with the Quincy 2000 partnership make the position even more attractive.

"Most of the skilled professional planners (who have applied) seem to be employed. I suspect they are running programs throughout the country that are dying out."

"Here in Quincy we have a brand new corporation with a lot of exciting opportunities," Galvin said. He pointed out many applicants are from cities similar to Quincy in size.

The search committee consists of Planning Director Richard Meade, Thomas Broderick, president of the Quincy-South Shore Building Trades; Michael Kinealy of Key Realty; and Galvin, a senior vice president of Boston Gear Works and president of Quincy 2000 and chairman of its Board of Directors.

Galvin said the board will pare the number of applicants and conduct interviews. After the interviews are completed, the search committee will make a recommendation to the board.

Galvin hopes a recommendation is made this month and the new director is hired next month.

"Our objective is to hire the very best person. We hope to have someone on the payroll by January. The cutoff date (for resumes) will come soon."

Cahill Alternate Plan Rejected

Tax Rates: Homes $13.46 Business $28.79

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The tax rates for fiscal year 1993 are official.

The City Council voted 8-1 Monday to approve Mayor James Sheets' recommendation of $13.46 for residential and $28.79 for commercial-industrial.

Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill proposed a different plan calling for rates of $13.67 for residential and $28.11 for business.

Cahill said that there has been a 3 1/2 percent decrease in taxable business property since 1988.

"That could be a sign we are driving business out. The only way to increase the tax base is to attract business," he said.

"I propose a change in the classification because every year we force the businessman to carry a bigger burden on his back. We are mortgaging our future because we are driving business out of the city."

Cahill said that the former Jordan Marsh warehouse in Squantum is vacant, costing the city $1.2 million in tax revenue, and that there are too many vacant lots in Quincy Square.

"We (residents) have to pay a little now to avoid

Retailers Optimistic 1992 Will Be A Merrier Christmas

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Although 1992 may not replace the gloom of Christmas past with the boom of Christmas present, some Quincy merchants are optimistic that holiday shopping will bring some welcomed seasonal prosperity this year.

That's the bottom line of a Quincy Sun random sampling of 10 local retailers and their outlook for Christmas sales. The survey shows five merchants projecting moderate gains and increased sales over last holiday season. Another five said they expect sales to be at least the same but are cautiously optimistic business will be more robust than Christmas 1991.

None of the merchants surveyed anticipated a dip in sales. Furthermore, a few retailers reported significant increases throughout 1992 compared to last year, perhaps another sign that the economy may be steadily improving past the recession that hit Massachusetts during the late 1980s and early 1990s.

The survey also suggests customer spending patterns have changed in recent years. Several merchants noted shoppers are purchasing more lower-ticketed gifts. However, one jeweler said his business has experienced fewer sales but of higher-priced items.

Here's how some local merchants from various businesses view this year's holiday season:

Caryn Smith, owner of Caryn's Corner, a clothing boutique at 1360 Hancock St., Quincy Center, said she expects her business to inch upward this holiday season like it has throughout the year.

For the first 11 months of 1992, Smith said business was up in nine months compared to 1991. In the other two months, she said business stayed the same as last year.

"We'll be up for Christmas. Our lay-a-ways are really up. Hopefully we'll get hit real big the week before Christmas."

Smith said she has noticed that holiday shoppers appear to be more frugal and budget-conscious. She said her customers are opting for lower-priced items, such as scarves, earrings and bracelets, instead of more expensive gifts, like sweaters, pants and sweatshirts.

"Unit wise we're up but money wise we're down because the items people are buying have a lower-ticketed price. People are spending $15 to $20 on an average gift; before they

Officer Arrested For Lewdness Resigns

A Quincy police officer arrested for open and gross lewdness and two counts of disorderly conduct in October has resigned from the force, Chief Francis Mullen announced Tuesday.

Patrolman Wayne P. MacDonald, 33, of Hull, was arrested after he allegedly followed a Marshfield school bus, exposed himself to two students at a bus stop and held up signs that encouraged students to expose themselves. Police said the incident occurred in Marshfield on Oct. 28.

He pleaded innocent in Plymouth District Court and his court case is pending.

An attorney for

MacDonald submitted his signed letter of resignation to Mullen Tuesday, the chief said. The resignation took effect Wednesday, Mullen said.

In the letter, MacDonald, who had been placed on administrative leave after his arrest, said he felt honored to serve the citizens of Quincy the last seven years.

Mullen said the vacancy created by MacDonald's resignation may be filled next spring or at the start of FY 94 next July when 17 new police officers are expected to be hired.

The chief said the city is waiting for a Civil Service list from which recruits will be chosen.

Quincy Center Liquor License Transfer Runs Into Opposition

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy License Board continued for one week a hearing regarding the request from Conburke, Inc., d/b/a Stooges, 3 School St. for the transfer of the location of its Common Victualer-All Alcohol/Tavern license to 1626 Hancock St.

Atty. Jeffrey LaPointe said that Stooges has been trying to move from its present location for 10 months and that the new site, which currently houses the Sports Fanatics store, would allow ownership "to keep it (Stooges) within a stone's throw" of where it already is.

However, the license was not without opposition. Robert Colman, owner of Colman's Sporting Goods, which abuts Sports Fanatics, spoke against the license at Tuesday's meeting.

"Hancock Street has been dressed up," said Colman. "Now comes a time where you try to add to what's been done. You cannot improve it by adding liquor stores or bars."

Maria Kapsaskis, daughter of Taso's Pizza owner Anastasios Kapsaskis, and Christ Church Episcopal spokesman Richard Corey also voiced similar sentiments in their opposition to the license.

In addition, a letter in opposition from Quincy Center Business and Professional Association President George White was read by Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey at the meeting.

City Clerk Joseph Shea suggested that the meeting by continued for one week to allow time for Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien to be contacted on the matter.

North Football, Volleyball Champs To Be Honored

Plans are being made to publicly honor the North Quincy High School state champion volleyball and football teams.

Mayor James Sheets has contacted School Supt. Eugene Creedon who has talked to NQHS Principal Peter Chrisom about planning a celebration for the two teams.

Ideas will be discussed with coaches and players and a time and place has not been determined.

Pub Expansion Plans Withdrawn

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The owner of Ripp, Inc. d/b/a Point Pub, 532-536 Washington St., withdrew without prejudice his request to expand his premises at Tuesday's Quincy License Board meeting.

Paul Ricciarelli, who had requested an expansion of the existing licensed premises from 1147 to 2280 square feet, said he did not want to offend area residents opposed to the granting of the license.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro, who noted that he felt such an expansion could make existing parking problems in the area even worse, presented at Tuesday's meeting a petition signed by 37 residents in opposition to the license.

Several residents, including James Ferris of 535 Washington St., also attended the meeting to speak against the expansion.

"Quincy Point is the gateway to Quincy. We're trying to upgrade Quincy Point," said Ferris. "I know the owner is trying to maximize his living, but what goes on after he closes his doors is another matter."

Ferris and the other residents reported several problems repeatedly caused in the neighborhood by Point Pub customers after the bar closed, including loud noise, fighting, public urination and bottles being thrown onto neighbors' property.

Board members agreed that now was not a good time to allow Ricciarelli to expand his premises.

"I think the evidence is too heavy to warrant a change now, but we'd be willing to look at it in the future if conditions improve," said City Clerk Joseph Shea.

"If the ward councillor feels it's not the time for it, then it's not the time for it," added Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman suggested Ricciarelli hire a police officer to help keep better control of his customers.

"You have to satisfy your neighbors," said Gorman. "You have to get rid of that element (of clientele)."

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue agreed. "People shouldn't have to see customers urinating or hear any noise," she said.

Police Chief Francis Mullen told both Ricciarelli and the neighbors at the meeting that more police attention will be given to the situation.

"I intend to monitor the place," said Mullen. "I intend to have some of our guys (police) go down there to help clean up the situation. I don't think any of the neighbors should have to put up with this."

Human Rights Commission Step Closer To Reality

By STEVE KAVANAGH

A Human Rights Commission in the City of Quincy is one step closer to reality after members of the community spoke in favor of it at Monday's City Council meeting.

The purpose of the Commission would be to protect and promote the constitutional, civil and human rights of people in Quincy.

City Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney, who helped author the proposal for the Commission, said creating the Commission would enhance Quincy's position as a leader in human rights.

"Some years ago, Alex Rodriguez (then head of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination) hammered away at Quincy, calling it the most racist city in America. Now we are a gateway city," Cheney said.

Cheney and other community leaders said the creation of a Human Rights Commission will give the city a tool to fight racism and discrimination.

"There is racism in today's world. But by chipping away we can contain it," said Abe Cohen, president of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights.

"People don't always come to the fore with problems in communities without a commission," said Marty Walsh of the U.S. Justice Department.

"I hope the wonderful diversity of the City of Quincy will be reflected on the Commission," said Janet Ellis, Equal Opportunity Administrator for Quincy. Ellis would oversee the Commission which would consist of nine members appointed by the mayor.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt said Quincy has undergone significant change in the last decade and has handled it well.

"In the last 10 years the transformation of this community has been remarkable," Delahunt said. "In 1980, there were fewer than 200 Asians living in the city. Now there is an estimated 12,000 to 15,000.

"We are the envy of other communities in the state," Delahunt said. "We did have our incidents but we dealt with them."

"I don't want it to be said that we were racist and that we are not anymore," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill. "I never thought we were as a city. Institutionally maybe we were.... Our image might have been racist but the people are not."

"We've been successful in this city dealing with racial issues," Mayor James Sheets said. Sheets said he will review the proposal and will support it if he feels it is in the best interests of the city.

License Board

The Quincy License Board took the following action at its meeting Tuesday:

•Granted a request from Papa Gino's, 100 Granite St. (Bob Myers) for a license for one Video Game for a three-month trial period.

•Granted a request from Joe's Auto Repair, 450 Quincy Ave. (Joseph Ajami) for a Repair Shop license and a permit to store 200 gallons of gasoline in tanks of vehicles, 500 gallons of oil, and 100 gallons of antifreeze.

Salvation Army Begins Annual Christmas Kettle Drive

The Salvation Army has begun its annual Christmas Kettle Drive outside stores in the Quincy area.

The collection, which will be assisted by area service organizations, will serve to raise the funds needed for the Army's work both during the Christmas season and throughout the year. All of the contributions are used to provide for those in need in the South Shore area.

In 1991 the Quincy Salvation Army provided food, toys and gifts to over 2,000 individuals.

Capt. James LaBossier, commanding officer of The Salvation Army in Quincy said: "This year we are taking applications at a greater rate than before. Any assistance that could be given, whether it is money, food or new toys would be greatly appreciated by those whom we serve."

For more information regarding applying for Christmas assistance or making a donation, call The Salvation Army at 472-2345.

Shea To Become Board Chairman

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Clerk Joseph Shea announced Tuesday she will be officially elected the new chairman of the Quincy License Board at its Dec. 15 meeting.

The board has been without an official chairman since former City Clerk John Gillis retired in October.

Shea said she was pleased with the decision. "The city clerk should be the chairman because everything is housed here (in the clerk's office)," said Shea.

Shea added that while it is commonly believed that the board member with the greatest longevity automatically replaces an outgoing chairman, that is a misconception. The License Board confirmed this recently, Shea said, by asking the opinion of City Solicitor Stephen McGrath.

"The law is silent in the question of chairmanship of the Board of License Commissioners and it is therefore my opinion that the board members should elect their own chairman," McGrath said in a written memorandum to the board.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey has acted as interim chairman since Gillis retired. Mulvey was appointed by Gillis to serve as his replacement until a permanent chairman was elected.

Cancer Society Offering Smoking Cessation Program

The American Cancer Society will offer a Freshstart Quit Smoking Cessation Program at the YMCA, Coddington St., Quincy during the month of January.

By attending five sessions over the four-week period, participants will learn strategies for quitting and for resisting the urge to return to cigarettes. The group will have between eight and 15 participants.

Program dates are Jan. 4, 11, 13, 18 and 25 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Cost is $40. Non-YMCA members $30 for YMCA members.

To register, send a deposit to the American Cancer Society at 294 Pleasant St., Stoughton, MA 02072. For more information call 341-4210.

Tommy Was There!

Super! They don't call it the Super Bowl anymore but it sure was Super Saturday.

In early September, North Quincy football coach Ken McPhee confided he would be happy with a 5-and-5 season as his team's prospects were hardly considered great.

Well, he must have been a little delirious to say the least Saturday when his inspired Red Raiders capped a Cinderella-like season by defeating a strong Arlington team in a super thriller for the Division 1-B championship.

A fantastic 11-0-0 season that also included the Old Colony League title, and then the city championship by defeating long-time rival Quincy High School on Thanksgiving Day.

It was a season to remember and to cherish and one for the history books.

And, if McPhee was delirious Saturday, he had plenty of company: not only his players who never gave up throughout a highly competitive season, but the whole town.

Saturday was North Quincy Day and whether your school colors are Red and Black or Blue and White, it was "Get-Behind-The-Raiders" for everyone.

Among those rooting for North Quincy as snow fell on Boston University's Nickerson Field were Quincy High School Coach Jack Raymer, his assistant coaches, Quincy players, Quincy fans and alumni.

Councillor Peter Kolson who played football for Quincy, was there dancing along the sidelines helping to lead the cheers. With him was Mayor James Sheets.

School Committeeman Dan Raymondi, another former Quincy High School football standout, proudly sported a North Quincy cap and a sweatshirt emblazoned with Yakoo, the symbol of NQHS school spirit.

This team certainly had that famous North Quincy spirit that goes back 60 years to 1932 and the days of the legendary Jack Donahue.

Pete Zoia, "Mr. North Quincy" who played for and captained the Raiders six decades ago and is now a volunteer assistant coach at North said after the game Saturday: "This is my greatest thrill in the 60 years I have been associated with North Quincy football."

"We are thrilled," said Mayor Sheets. "It's a great day for the entire city of Quincy."

And that it was. It was a day of community togetherness.

This year's team, in addition to the traditional spirit, also had dedication and inspiration. The dedication and inspiration was 12-year-old Tommy Gilmartin, the team's ball boy, who died of a brain tumor last May.

"This win is for Tommy Gilmartin," said North quarterback Liam Higgins with emotion at the dramatic end of the game. "We dedicated the whole season to him."

The team paused in a moment of silence in memory of Tommy before celebrating their victory.

Tommy, who had been ball boy since 1988, wore North jersey No. 1 and it was retired at the school rally the day before this year's Thanksgiving Day game with Quincy. Only two others have had that honor: Pete Zoia and Billy Curran.

Tommy last year was voted into the Quincy-North Quincy football Hall of Fame as an honorary member. Saturday's game had a dramatic ending with a long "Hail Mary" Arlington pass that at first was thought to have been caught in the end zone for a last second Arlington win.

But when the snow was scraped off the field, the ball was actually on the one-yard line and time had run out giving North a heart-pounding 14-9 victory.

Ken McPhee presented Tommy's parents, Dan and Donna Gilmartin with the game ball — a cherished memento.

Someone said to Dan, "Tommy would have loved to have been there."

"Oh, he was there," replied Dan. "He was there. That's why Arlington didn't get it into the end zone that last second. Tommy held them back."

No one is going to take issue with that.

Yaeger Named Health Plan Administrator

The city has named Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger as its Health Plan Administrator.

Yaeger will coordinate city employees health benefits under the city's new health plan. That responsibility had been handled by the individual health plan companies under the old health plan. Quincy recently consolidated to a single plan resulting in an estimated savings of $960,000 through the rest of this fiscal year. The consolidation is expected to decrease the cost of the health benefits significantly in the future as well.

For assuming the additional responsibility Yaeger has received a salary increase of $3,300 through the end of this fiscal year and a proposal has been made for an additional $5,000 increase next year.

Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney supported the move and praised Yaeger's performance.

"She has demonstrated leadership skills that have saved the city millions of dollars," Cheney said. He added that he did not want to see a new full-time job created.

Four Submit Proposals For Golf Course At Landfill

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Four companies, including three from Quincy, have expressed interest in developing the former city landfill into a golf course and recreation area.

Dickinson Development Corporation of Quincy, O'Connell Management Inc. of Quincy, Shelby

Development Corporation of Quincy, and Lesko Kelly Associates Inc. of Norwell submitted proposals for the project Monday to City Planning Director Richard Meade just before the 2 p.m. deadline.

Meade said that about a dozen companies had requested applications for the project.

In addition to a golf course the city wants a soccer field, Little League field and other recreational facilities included in the project.

Meade said a review team of city officials will read and compare each of the proposals and make a recommendation to Mayor

James Sheets.

"The development of the area is a key to the future of the city," Sheets said. "We would like to see it become a major recreation area for families."

Sheets said the review of the four proposals will help to determine if the project is viable.

Quincy's Yesterdays

"Two Gun' Baker Quits, Condemns 'Lousy Politicians'

Officer James H. (Two Gun) Baker, the colorful and controversial motorcycle cop, announced his resignation after 11 years on the Quincy police force by poking his head into the editorial department of the Patriot Ledger and shouting:

"I've just quit! I'm free! My soul is my own and I am not being dictated to by a lot of cheap lousy politicians!"

Police Chief Ernest H. Bishop confirmed that Baker had resigned the day after he was refused a 10-day extension of his three-month leave of absence. Bishop said he gave no reason.

Baker, 39, with his Texas drawl and a pistol on each hip, became possibly the best known police officer in the East as a motorcycle cop chasing speeding automobiles and as a public speaker on highway safety.

When Chief Bishop took him off his 'cycle and put him in a patrol car, Quincy school children paraded with signs that read: "Put Baker back on his motorcycle."

It was reported that he once gave out 14 tickets for speeding and was told to prosecute only two of them. He looked at the two tickets in his hand and said:

"You poor SOB's. So you're the only two out of 14 who didn't have friends in high places. Well, dammit, you've got one friend.

Whereupon he tore the tickets up.

FAVORITISM CHARGED

City Councillor Thomas S. Burgin charged that favoritism was being shown and political pressure being exerted in the distribution of jobs by the local Federal Employment office.

"I have many cases coming to me who are most worthy men with large families who are among the first to register at the employment office but are not getting any work," said Burgin.

"Today one man told me that several painters who are working in the schools never held a paint brush in their hands before."

Council Adopts New Tax Rates

paying later," Cahill said comparing Quincy's present situation to that of other city in the past.

"The Brockton's, Lynn's and Fall River's faced it 20 years ago. Now the residents carry the burden. When that happens you lose your middle class," he said.

Other councillors disagreed with Cahill. His plan was voted down 8-1. Bruce Ayers of Ward 6, Larry Chretien of Ward 3 and Ted DeCristofaro of Ward 2 said residents are hurting too much.

"To lay one more penny on the homeowners... with what they have to pay with sewer and water... I just can't do it," DeCristofaro said.

Ayers noted that he is a small businessman himself but that many residents are on fixed incomes.

The mayor's plan maintains the same percentage split (60 percent residential, 40 percent business) of the tax burden as last year.

"I felt that to keep the classification rate where it was was the best thing to do. Both business and residential taxpayers are having difficulties," Sheets said.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan disagreed with Cahill that businesses are leaving Quincy. Phelan said he thinks the opposite is true.

"Many businesses are looking to locate in Quincy. We had increased growth... other towns are envious," Phelan said. He said Stop & Shop and Shaw's supermarkets are looking for locations in Quincy and a Fretter appliance store will open soon on Quincy Ave.

Cahill emphasized that he was not trying to single out business for a tax break.

"The (residential) taxpayer is most important to me. But if business goes then taxes go up," he said. "I just hope that message gets through," he said.

"It's reasonable to expect business to pay more taxes (than homeowners) if they are making a profit on their property. They should reinvest it in the city where they are making it," Cahill said.

This year's tax hike is due to a $6 million increase in the city budget.

Chretien said the increase was due to things that the City Council has no control over including MWRA water and sewer assessments, pension costs, deferred teacher pay raises ("That will never happen again"), veteran's benefits mandated by the state, and a bond debt increase ("But the city will see that drop over the next few years.").

Some councillors defended the budget and said Quincy is in much better shape than most communities.

"The council and the mayor can take credit for $3 million in savings. We are one of the few communities that haven't

Ordination Re-enacted At Houghs Neck Congregational

Dr. Peter Corea Honored On 45th Anniversary

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The Dec. 8, 1947 Ordination Service for Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea was repeated at the 45th anniversary service held Sunday at Houghs Neck Congregational Church, where he has been minister for 45 years.

Taking part were Dr. William C. Corea, his son, who read the original Prayer of Ordination given by Rev. Dr. A. Philip Guiles, and Rev. M. Alicia Corea, Rev. Dr. Corea's wife, associate minister at the church, who laid her hands on his head as he knelt.

Several hundred church members, friends, associates and officials attended the four-hour anniversary service and program, filling the sanctuary and Fellowship Hall, to hear the 30 speakers and their accolades.

Rev. Malcolm J. Brummitt of East Weymouth Congregational Church, who grew up in Houghs Neck, read excerpts from the many letters from Rev. Dr. Corea which he had saved, ending with, "I love what you do for my life."

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, described the great influence Rev. Dr. Corea and Rev. Alicia Corea had on the lives they touched. She, too, is a Houghs Neck church member.

Atty. Paul A.M. Hunt, counsel for the Massachusetts State Senate, former Mayor Francis McCauley, church officers Wallace Johnson, deacon, and Edwina Robinson, treasurer, Rod Hicks diaconate chairman, spoke of their experiences with Dr. Corea, as did Priscilla Marsden, who led the prayer.

Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El, also spoke. Rev. Dr. Theodore

A GOOD FIT -- Rev. Dr. Peter Corea tries on a new pulpit role presented to him by the congregation.

Romberg, professor of humanities and social studies at Emerson College, formerly for 12 years pastor of Wollaston United Methodist Church, called Dr. Corea a "Socrates and a gadfly" for his activities.

Rev. Paul Sinn, minister, South East area, Massachusetts Congregational Conference, United Church of Christ, and Rev. Dr. Henry Stonie, chairman of Humanities and Social Studies at Emerson College were other speakers.

During the program which followed in Fellowship Hall, Rev. William English of Most Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck, praised the cooperation existing between the two Houghs Neck churches.

Sara Edwards of TV Channel 7, who studied at Emerson College, where Dr. Corea is a professor, expressed her appreciation of a continuing friendship. Rev. Rhys Williams, pastor of First and Second Church in Boston and secretary of Emerson College Trustees; Dr. Marion Kilson, dean of Graduate School at Salem State College, and from Emerson College, Dr. Gregory Payne, Dr. Vito Silvestri and Dr. Philip Amato, joined with Dr. Trudi Feinstein who had arranged a television broadcast featuring comedian Jay Leno and his television audience.

Taleb Grotto speakers were Arthur Senter, Monarch Richard Burke, and Arthur Johnson.

State and city officials presenting citations were Mayor James Sheets, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Councillor Michael Cheney, and FORMER MAYOR Francis McCauley was among the speakers at the service.

ASST. SCHOOL SUPT. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, an active member of Houghs Neck Congregational Church was a speaker at the service.

RABBI DAVID JACOBS, of Temple Beth El was among those honoring Rev. Dr. Peter Corea.

REV. PAUL SINN, minister South East Area, Massachusetts Congregational Conference, United Church of Christ, was one of the speakers at the service.

CITY COUNCILLOR Peter Kolson, Senator Paul Harold and Rep. Stephen Tobin were among officials attending the service.

Senator Paul Harold.

State Rep. Stephen Tobin's State House citation was presented by his mother, Shirley Tobin, wife of former Mayor Arthur Tobin, who had a long association with the "Junior Bonney Lassies" of the Houghs Neck Church.

Closing the program were presentations to Rev. Dr. Peter Corea of a new pulpit robe, and the announcement that a new scholarship was being added to the Church Scholarship Fund which enables students to attend college, will be named in his honor. The gifts were made by Harold Sparks, Deacon for Life of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, who was master of ceremonies for the program, and his wife, Dorothy.

Dr. William Corea described his years growing up in the parsonage and the value of his parents' influence on his life.

Responding to the many who spoke, Rev. Dr. Corea said, "It has been a good 45 years, and if I had it to do over again, I'd want it just the same way...Each time you love someone, you are generating God's love."

Rev. Dr. Corea was born April 4, 1924, the youngest of four children of Pietro and Caterina Corea. They lived in Woburn where he worked in his family's sand and gravel business as a young boy and adult. He attended the Pilgrim Fellowship at North Congregational Church where the Rev. Elton Bassett, minister, became a close friend and influenced his choice of a vocation.

Rev. Dr. Corea was educated at Boston University College of Liberal Arts, graduating with a degree in Philosophy; he then enrolled in Andover Newton Theological School where he met and married his wife, Alicia on June 1, 1946. He graduated in 1947. He later received his Ph.D. in Philosophy from Boston University Graduate School in 1961. He has taught at several area colleges and remains a professor at Emerson College.

After his wife, Rev. M. Alicia Corea, was ordained in 1949, she became an associate minister of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, first woman in Quincy to be ordained a minister, and one of the first in Massachusetts.

Their son, William Corea, is a graduate Milton Academy and Harvard College, earned his Ph.D. in geology from M.I.T. in June, 1981. He works for Chevron Oil Company, and lives in California with his wife, Patty.

Quincy Choral Society Christmas Concert Sunday

The Quincy Choral Society will present its annual holiday concert "What Sweeter Music! A Holiday Potpourri!" Sunday at 3 p.m. at Quincy's Church of the Presidents, Quincy Sq.

The program will feature traditional works by Schubert, Rutter, and Monteverdi. Also featured will be an eight-part double chorus performance of Gabrieli's "O Magnum Mysterium" and an original piece by Choral Society bass Dwight Dewsnap, entitled "The Bells," with brass accompaniment.

The concert will conclude with audience participation caroling and Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus." Tickets are available at Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St. or at the door. Admission is $6, $4 for senior citizens and students.

For more information, call 696-3941.

QHS Drama Club To Present 'A Mad Breakfast' Dec. 16

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "A Mad Breakfast" Wednesday, Dec. 16 at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

The show will be a multi-arts festival featuring the band and the choir.

The farcical tale, written by Isabel McReynolds Gray, revolves around a man named Mr. Long. He is surprised when he discovers the insane asylum he is studying is actually sane.

The cast includes seniors Lisa Chenette, Carrie Frenette, Trisha Nugent and Brett Sherwood; juniors Erin Creedon, Jim Daley and Chris Sheriff; sophomore

Amy Parsons; and freshmen Robert Churchill and Traci Murphy.

The play is directed by advisor Denise Dalton and assistant Kelli Wilson. Tickets may be purchased at the door for $4.

The choir is directed by Salvatore Bartolotti and the band by Robert Coviello.

THE INEPT SHERIFF of Nottingham (Dean Boshart), evil Morgana (Sarah Daniels), sinister Sir Guy of Gisbourne (Jeff Gibson) and the ill-fated Lickspittle (Matt Hawk) make up the "Baddies" in Robin Hood: The Panto, a British family holiday show, playing Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10-12 at 7 p.m. at Eastern Nazarene College. All performances are $5. For reservations and information, call 773-6350 ext 269 or 262.

Shopper's Pool Program At Lincoln-Hancock School

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct a special swimming schedule at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School on Sundays during the holiday season.

The pool will open Sunday, Dec. 13 and 20, from 1 to 3:50 p.m. for children age 6-13, who may swim all or part of this period, while parents shop.

Regular pool memberships can be used or $1 for youth and/or $3 for adult guest fees can be paid at the door.

Normal adult swim between 4 and 5 p.m. will remain in effect.

All swims are supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department. Adults may also swim during the extended hours and family groups are encouraged to participate.

For more information, call 376-1386.

Christmas Festival Committee Meeting

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee was scheduled to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Patriot Ledger, first floor conference room, 400

Crown Colony Dr.

The meeting was held to critique the festival events relating to the recent Christmas parade.

Members also discussed the parade flow, vendors in the parade judging area, participating units, communication procedures and street closings.

'Christmasfest' To Benefit Quincy Salvation Army Friday

The annual fundraising efforts for the Quincy Salvation Army will get a boost this year from Eastern Nazarene College and Quincy Continental Cablevision (QCC) as they team up for the second annual "Christmasfest '92" Friday, Dec. 11.

The daylong event is a radio and TV Christmas music request show sponsored by the college radio station WENC. This year, QCC will air the dawn to midnight broadcast on Community Channel 3 and will feature four hours of live television coverage from noon to 4 p.m., originating from the ENC campus.

"Christmasfest" began as a campus activity last year, featuring 18 hours of continuous Christmas music, live remotes and special features. The celebration raised more than $500 for the Quincy Salvation Army.

This year's event will include performances by ENC's music and drama groups, a Salvation Army band and other guests. Viewers are urged to call in their requests for their favorite Christmas music, and to support the Quincy Salvation Army through donations in area kettles or contributions through mail.

ENC broadcasting students will produce the event which is co-sponsored by the Salvation Army Student Fellowship, an organization of ENC students belonging to the Salvation Army denomination.

Registration Underway For Ski Instruction Program

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct registration beginning Monday, Dec. 14 for a five-week program of ski instruction at the Blue Hills ski area.

The program, open to Quincy youngsters age 8 through high school, features a one hour and forty-five minute lesson from beginner to advanced, and free use of the ski tows. Supervised round trip transportation from Quincy is included.

Instruction will be provided by certified instructors of the Blue Hills ski school.

The program will be conducted Tuesdays beginning Jan. 5 and will continue for five weekly lessons. Cost is $74 and is payable at time of registration.

Equipment rental can be arranged for an additional cost.

Registration will take place at the Quincy Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Quincy, weekdays between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., as long as openings exist.

For more information, call 376-1386.

'Burger King Night' For Merrymount School Dec. 17

BATTERY CHECK

Before a car battery is subjected to the challenge of cold weather, it may be a good idea to have the auto technician check it. This is especially true of batteries older than three years. If the electrolyte level on a conventional car battery is low, the auto technician can accurately and safely add distilled water with a syringe bulb. The addition of hard (mineralized) tap water at home could ruin a battery, as could adding water to the battery in below-freezing temperatures. Tank maintenance-free batteries take much of the work out of battery care. These sealed batteries employ a different inner chemistry and require no access caps for checking battery-water levels. Most maintenance-free batteries also have charge indicators that show the batteries present state of charge.

HINT: Sealed, maintenance-free batteries have less of a tendency to discharge than do conventional batteries.

A THOUGHT
FOR THE WEEK

D. SCOTT DEWARE

Each of us is blessed with a unique personality. Some outgoing and imaginative. Others cautious and shrewd. But it is a rare personality that is well-liked by all his companions in his social and business life. "You can't please everyone"; traits that appeal to some people are irritating to others. We all may benefit, however, from winning other's respect, good will and, hopefully, friendships...

A well-developed personality depends first of all on the ability to be oneself. You may be a bit on the solemn side or you may be an extrovert and "back-slapper." Start from what you are. Don't try to be something you are not... Take a great and real interest in other people. Be sparing in your criticism. Try to find out everyone you come in contact with something novel and unusual just what it is that gives this situation its appeal. In other words, touch life at many points. Be generous and understanding.

Granted, this may seem like trifle and obvious advice, but it is the kind of thing that develops rich, charming, over-whelming personalities...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief

Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

A Dream Ending With A Nightmare Scare For North Quincy A Season To Cherish

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy football team's dream season had a happy ending last Saturday but not without a nightmare scare.

What a season it was.

First, the Raiders, stripped of many of their top players from last fall's 8-2 team, opened with many question marks and expected to be at best a .500 team, completed the best regular season in school history (10-0-0) with a win over Quincy and the Old Colony League title.

Then they went on to defeat Arlington, 14-9, Saturday in a wild game at Boston University's Nickerson Field, for the Division 1B Super Bowl title, their first post-season victory.

However, North's dream almost turned into a nightmare.

With North leading, 14-9 and the ball on the Arlington 40, the Spy Ponders' Tim Hirsch threw a Hail Mary pass on the game's final play.

Bobby McLaughlin caught the ball for an apparent touchdown. One official signaled a touchdown but another cleared the snow away and it was found the ball was on the one-yard line.

The joy of the Arlington players and fans quickly turned into sadness, while the North players and fans, who thought they had been handed a disheartening loss, changed from disbelief and sadness into great joy.

"This is just unbelievable," said an elated North coach Ken McPhee. "We thought they had pulled out a miracle win and we couldn't be happier that the ball was on the one-yard line. It would have been a shame if we had lost after the way our kids played, especially the defense."

*Higgins kicked two field goals

"This was a game between two fine teams and again our defense was just fantastic. The defense carried us all year and it certainly came through again (North allowed only six points a game)."

North's running game was halted as sophomore Shawn Nee sat out the entire game and Mark Sinclair was sidelined the entire second half with an injury.

As a result the Raiders could do little on the ground against a solid Arlington defense. Sean Skahan picked up 30 yards, quarterback Liam Higgins had 19 yards and Sinclair had 16 yards in the first half.

North had only 38 net yards on the ground. It gained 61 but had 23 yards in losses. Arlington had a net of 82 yards rushing.

With the ground game stopped, Liam Higgins took to the air and, although not at his best, came up with some big passes as he hit on 10 of 26 for a Super Bowl record 236 yards. He threw his 10th and 11th touchdown passes and had two interceptions. Hirsch was eight of 23 for 150 yards for Arlington and had two interceptions. North had nine first downs and Arlington seven.

Pat Shea had a big day for the Raiders. He caught five passes for 100 yards, had an apparent touchdown reception nullified when it was ruled he didn't have control of the ball, had a pass interception and had another fine game on defense. He also caught a pass for a two-point conversion.

Dave Reinhart, who completed an amazing season with another superb two-way effort, caught three passes for 36 yards and a touchdown and Brian Rafferty had two receptions for 100 yards and a score.

"Higgins came through like the competitor he is when it counted," said McPhee. "He had some big passes and Shea, Reinhart and Rafferty made some fine receptions."

Raiders Dedicate Season, Title To Tommy Gilmartin

By STEVE KAVANAGH

North Quincy was playing for more than just a championship Saturday.

The Red Raiders had dedicated their season to Tommy Gilmartin, the team's ball boy who died of cancer in May.

Tommy was the ball boy for the Red Raiders during the 1988, '89, '90 and '91 seasons and was a favorite of the players and coaches.

During Saturday's championship game against Arlington, the Red Raider players frequently raised their index fingers throughout the game in a salute to Tommy who wore North Quincy jersey number one.

In fact, the players made their salute throughout the season.

"Before every game the players would kneel down for a moment of silence. Then we would stand up and everyone put their finger in the air and yell 'Tommy!' The number one signifies Tommy, not us," said coach Ken McPhee. "This wasn't something the coaches started. It was the kids. They've done it on their own."

"Seeing the players hold up the number one for Tommy... it meant a lot," said Tommy's sister Corrine.

At the end of the Arlington game some of the players drew a giant set of the initials "T.G." in the snow along the sidelines. Other players sported Tommy's initials taped to their helmets.

Following Saturday's game, McPhee and members of the team knelt in a circle in the middle of Nickerson Field. McPhee searched the crowd of well wishers who had mobbed the field and asked the Gilmartin family to join the team.

"Who was this one for?" McPhee shouted.

THIS ONE'S FOR TOMMY--NQHS head coach Ken McPhee raises his right index finger in a salute to Tommy Gilmartin who wore jersey No. 1. Tommy, the Raiders' ball boy for several seasons, died in May of cancer. North dedicated the season and the title to Tommy.

"Tommy!!" cried out the players as they thrust their index fingers skyward.

McPhee presented the family with the game ball.

"We'll keep this one forever," said Tommy's father Dan.

"He meant a lot to the team and the team meant a lot to him," said Corrine, a senior at North. "Before the season started we didn't know if we would make it to any of the games but we went to all of them, even the games in Taunton and Bridgewater," Corrine said.

"It's tough when you lose a child," Dan Gilmartin said. "But when we go to the games it's like he's somehow with us."

McPhee said it was evident all during the season that Tommy was an inspiration for the team.

"There were a lot of times, like in the Bridgewater-Raynham game (North won 3-0), their tight end was wide open in the end zone and the ball went right through his hands. The players said Tommy made the play," McPhee recalled.

"On Saturday, when it started snowing hard in the fourth quarter I heard the players say 'Tommy did it,'" McPhee said.

Other's too have sensed that Tommy may not be far away.

Tommy's Little League team dedicated their season to him and wore arm bands with his initials. The team went from dead last the season before to winning the championship this year and now the football team goes undefeated." Dan Gilmartin said. He also said Tommy won a family

Raiders Reign On Super Saturday

DEFENSIVE BACK and senior co-captain Dave Reinhart (No. 84) hits Arlington quarterback Tim Hirsch, jarring the ball loose during Saturday's Division 1B championship game. Reinhart led the Raiders in sacks this year with 26 and caught the game-winning touchdown.

NORTH QUINCY COACH Ken McPhee is presented the Division 1B championship plaque after the Red Raiders 14-9 win over Arlington Saturday. At right is Junior Ben McCarthy (No. 77). McPhee is the only person to play on a NQHS unbeaten football team (1966, 9-0) and coach an unbeaten team (1992, 11-0).

JUNIOR TIGHT END Brian Raftery celebrates his 72-yard touchdown completion from quarterback Liam Higgins which gave North Quincy a 6-0 lead in the second quarter against Arlington.

QUARTERBACK LIAM HIGGINS gets ready to snap the ball behind his offensive line while wide receiver Andy Kenney goes in motion against Arlington in the Division 1B championship game Saturday.

WING BACK Sean Skahan (No. 41) takes a handoff from quarterback Liam Higgins (No. 7) for some yardage against Arlington. Skahan picked up 29 yards on 11 carries.

NORTH QUINCY cheerleaders had plenty to cheer about Saturday and all season long as the Red Raiders completed a perfect 11-0 season with their 14-9 win over Arlington in the Division 1B championship.

RED RAIDER STAMPEDE--North Quincy High charges out of the locker room and onto Boston University's Nickerson Field before Saturday's Division 1B championship game against Arlington.

For North Quincy A Season To Cherish

Reinhart was just amazing all year. He had 26 sacks and many other tackles and was an excellent wide receiver. I don't see how he can be left off any all-scholastic team. Raftery was outstanding and Dave Pacino, in my opinion one of the best noseguards around, Sean Halpin, Justin Dilks and Bill Skutol played great defense."

Others playing strong defense included Eric Delorey, Mike Linnane, Shea, Skahan, Nathan Gott and Keith Lentini.

North was stopped following the opening kickoff and Arlington went from its 35 to the North 48 before losing the ball on a fumble.

There was no scoring until 3:56 left in the half. Arlington messed up a field goal attempt when the pass from center was fumbled.

Skahan set up North's first score when he intercepted a pass on his 29. After an incompletion, Higgins hit Shea for 14 yards. Higgins was sacked for a 13-yard loss but then came the big play. Higgins hit Raftery with a screen pass and the 6-3, 240-pound junior, behind some fine blocking, raced down the left sideline for 73 yards and the touchdown. Higgins' kick for the extra point was no good, being partially blocked.

Arlington came out fast to start the second half and drove to the North 21. Tony Licciardi apparently intercepted a pass in the end zone but pass interference was called and Arlington had the ball on the 10 from where Andy Jones scored. He also kicked the extra point to put Arlington ahead.

North drove to the Arlington 35 and Shea caught a pass for an apparent touchdown but it was ruled he didn't have control. "It was a good call," Shea admitted.

On the next play Higgins hit Raftery for 27 yards and a first down on the eight. However, Arlington held and Higgins' field goal try from 30 yards out just went wide.

The Raiders continued to move the ball well but, early in the fourth quarter, were held again as the Spy Ponders took over on their own 26.

Arlington punted to midfield and Higgins hit Shea, who raced 46 yards to the one. After a loss of two, Higgins passed to Reinhart for the winning touchdown. Higgins passed to Shea for the two-point conversion.

With 3:23 left and North backed up inside its 10, Higgins took an intentional safety rather than kick from the end zone.

Higgins then got off a booming kick that sailed over the defenders' heads and went to the Arlington 24. The Raiders held and took over on the Arlington 25. The Raiders were unable to run out the clock and Arlington took over on its 30. A pass for 10 yards gave it a first down on the 40 and, following two incompletions, Hirsch unloaded his Hail Mary pass that resulted in one of the most unusual finishes to any Super Bowl game.

The win was the first for North over Arlington after two defeats when both were in the Greater Boston League.

In 1966, when North had its other undefeated team, North and Arlington snared the mythical Class A championship. McPhee was an outstanding lineman on that team.

"This is for the kids, not me," said McPhee when presented the championship trophy. "The kids and my assistant coaches deserve all the credit."

"I was crying at midfield when it looked like we lost," said Higgins. "What a relief when it was ruled the ball was a yard away."

Arlington's Jones pushed his way through the mob of North celebrators to find Higgins.

"Congratulations, you played your -- off," he said. "You too," said Higgins.

North Quincy dedicated the game as well as the season to Tommy Gilmartin, the young ball boy who died of cancer last spring.

like men," Gilmartin said.

Tommy called the coin toss at the 1989 and 1991 Thanksgiving Day games against Quincy, both of which North Quincy won. Last year he was named honorary captain and in January he was inducted in the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

"It was great to have him inducted at the Hall of Fame dinner with Ken Coleman (former Red Sox broadcaster) who Tommy had met before at Fenway Park through Ken's work with the Jimmy Fund," Dan Gilmartin said.

When Tommy died last spring he was buried in his North Quincy football jersey. McPhee retired Tommy's jersey prior to this year's Thanksgiving Day game. He also presented Dan Gilmartin with a North Quincy sideline jacket with Tommy's number one on it.

Game On Ch. 3 Dec. 21

QCTV-3 announces that last week's Super Bowl game between North

Quincy and Arlington will be replayed one time only, Monday, Dec. 21 at 8 p.m.

A LATE FOURTH quarter snow squall sent head coach Ken McPhee into a strategy session with his assistant coaches. At right is junior Dan Duncan (No. 3). The weather played a key role in the game as snow covered the field and apparently confused an Arlington receiver who thought he caught a Hail Mary pass in the end zone as time expired. However, the call was reversed when the snow was cleared with the ball downed at the one-yard line to end the game. (Photo by John Gostanian)

North Quincy's March To The Division 1B Crown

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Here is a week-by-week capsule look at the North Quincy High School's memorable march to its 11-0 season and the Division 1B football crown.

Week 1: North Quincy 21, Acton-Boxboro 19. Coach Ken McPhee called the opening night victory a "total team effort." Offensive standouts were QB Liam Higgins (6-15, 87 yards and two touchdowns; and fullback Mark Sinclair (23 carries, 84 yards, touchdown and 2-point conversion).

Week 2: North Quincy 14, Falmouth 7. Defense was the story as North's secondary did a superb job shutting down Falmouth. Sinclair sparked the offense with 140 yards rushing.

Week 3: North Quincy 14, Plymouth 7. Another defensive gem, the Raiders shut down Plymouth's passing attack as the Blue Eagles failed to complete a pass. Offensive contributors included halfback Sean Nee (1 TD), wide receiver Pat Shea (4 receptions, 66 yards, 1 TD); and Higgins (8-14, 122 yards, 1 TD).

Week 4: North Quincy 25, Barnstable 6. North dominated on both sides of the ball. Offensively, Higgins threw for 187 yards and four TD passes, doubling his season output. The defense allowed only 159 total yards.

Week 5: North Quincy 10, Weymouth 7. Down 7-3 with 9:33 remaining in the game, the Raiders marched from their own 22 to the Wildcat seven in seven plays. Higgins, who had kicked a 27-yard field goal for a first quarter lead, then fired the winning TD pass to Dan Duncan and added the extra point. North then stopped Weymouth and ran out the clock.

Week 6: North Quincy 21, Don Bosco 0. The Raiders posted their first shutout of the season by holding DB to 47 total yards.

McPhee praised defensive linemen Dave Reinhart, Dave Pacino, Justin Dilks, Sean Halpin, Eric Delorey, Mike Linnane, Bill Skutol and Sean Herron. Defensive back Sean Skahan intercepted a pass for a touchdown and recovered a fumble to set up another score.

Week 7: North Quincy 28, Silver Lake 16. With their air attack thwarted, the Raiders took to the ground behind runners Sean Skahan (2 TDs), Jeremy Gott (1 TD) and Shawn Nee (1 TD). The threesome churned out 375 yards on the ground. Dave Reinhart had two sacks for a season total of 16.

Week 8: North Quincy 3, Bridgewater-Raynham 0. Liam Higgins provided all the scoring with a 22-yard field goal and the Raiders defense again rose to the occasion as North defeated the defending Old Colony League champ on its own field. The Raiders recovered three fumbles and intercepted a pass to preserve their second shutout and take a giant step toward the title.

Week 9: North Quincy 33, Taunton 6. North broke open a 6-0 game in the second half with four touchdowns, including three in the final quarter, to win the league crown and clinch a berth in the Division 1B playoffs. Dave Reinhart was immense on defense with five sacks, giving him 22.

Week 10: North Quincy 20, Quincy 0. North capped off its second undefeated season and best record in school history by defeating rival Quincy on Thanksgiving at muddy Veterans Memorial Stadium. Wing back Sean Skahan had his best game of the year, rushing 16 times for 113 yards and a touchdown. The defense stymied the Presidents' attack and North finished the season with three shutouts and an impressive 6.5 points allowed per game average.

Week 11: North Quincy 14, Arlington 9. In one of the more memorable schoolboy post season football games ever, the Raiders went the distance, and then some, to defeat the Spy Ponders at snow-covered Nickerson Field, Boston University, and win the school's first post-season title.

With North leading 14-9, Arlington tried a "Hail Mary" pass which was caught for an apparent touchdown and the victory as time expired. However, after the ball was spotted and the snow cleared, it was revealed that Arlington's receiver was downed at the 1-yard line.

North Quincy and its supporters, stunned by the apparent touchdown call, erupted joyfully after the score was nullified.

The Raiders scored its first points on a 72-yard touchdown pass from Liam Higgins to Brian Raftery in the second quarter.

In the third, Arlington's Andy Jones scampered in from 10 yards out. A conversion kick made it 7-6 Arlington.

After missing a 29-yard field goal in the third, Higgins hit Dave Reinhart with a three-yard touchdown strike in the fourth. North then took an intentional safety, to close out the scoring and set the stage for a scene destined to become a part of football folklore.

Restaurant Warned About Using Word 'Pub'

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The Quincy License Board Tuesday held a hearing regarding Quincy Adams Restaurant, 60-62A Summer St., and its usage of the word "pub" in newspaper advertisements.

The restaurant, which was granted its license in March, went before the board at its Sept. 8 meeting for the same reason.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said he was angry that restaurant owner Patrick Fallon had again used the word "pub" to describe his business in recent advertisements in The Boston Herald.

"I'm adamant that it stop," said DeCristofaro.

"Here it is now, and the word is still being used. You (Fallon) agreed that the word would not be used. If I see this ad after the first of January, I will recommend that strong action be taken against you."

Atty. Ronald Rice, speaking for Fallon, told the board that when the license was granted he was given the impression the board only wanted the word "pub" not to be used in signage outside the restaurant. He added that the restaurant is officially registered as Quincy Adams Restaurant and Pub Inc. d/b/a Quincy Adams Restaurant.

Board members, however, told Rice that was made clear both when the license was granted and at the Sept. 8 meeting that the word would not be used to describe the restaurant in any manner whatsoever.

"This kind of irks me," said Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey. "The last time we held a hearing, you (Fallon) agreed you wouldn't do that."

Police Chief Francis Mullen agreed.

"I thought it would be adhered to," Mullen said of the board's earlier decision.

The board agreed that if the advertisements continue to run after Jan. 1, further action will be taken against the restaurant.

Retailers Optimistic 1992 Will Be A Merrier Christmas

Smith was also noticed another sign that may indicate a rosier retail season: "More male shoppers have already been in my store. They usually wait until the last minute."

Bill Fitzgerald, co-owner of Photo Quick of Quincy, 1363 Hancock St., said Christmas sales have been about the same as last year. But, he adds, he is optimistic business will increase 8 to 10 percent over last year's holiday season.

"Business has been more or less about the same as last year. A week ago we were down but it seems the last few days have been good."

"I'm looking for a small increase and I'm cautiously optimistic that people will be able to spend a bit more this year. I'm looking at an eight to percent increase (over last year)," Fitzgerald said.

Tom Laitinen, owner of TAJ Coin, Stamp and Sports Cards, 9 Maple St., said he expects sales to be about the same or a little higher than last year. "No worse," he adds.

Laitinen said one sign that Christmas sales are down so far this year: lay-a-ways. "A lot of time people will come in and hold something on lay-a-way until Christmas. I've had nothing of that so far," he said Friday. "Of course, it's still a bit early."

Laitinen, who has been in business 25 years, also said he has not experienced a Christmas rush in the past four to five years. "I do a steady business throughout the year now. We don't have the proverbial shift in the arm that we used to."

"It's a little bit busier during Christmas than the rest of the year."

Deanna Gazarian, owner of Phase II Jewelry, 1361 Hancock St., said she too views the holiday retail season with cautious optimism. She said lay-a-way orders are up, an indication that business overall could be a bit merrier this year.

"It seems people are spending a bit more freely than last year. October and November were better (than last year) and that's when we put our lay-a-ways on."

"(Shoppers) are more cautious but they are buying," she said.

Gazarian said a good Christmas season can give her business momentum into the next year. "We rely on Christmas sales to get us going for the next year."

Ken Good of the Woll-Nut candy and nut shop, 17 and 1/2 Beale St., Wollaston, said sales thus far are running about the same as last year but he thinks he could see a moderate increase over 1991.

"Right now, things are exactly the same as last year—there's no up or down. Overall, I don't think it will be lower than last year. If there's a little increase, it will be a little better, like one or two percent."

Good said his last booming holiday season was 1990. "In the good years, we had about 200 advance orders. We've had about a dozen orders so far this year."

For Good, his business began to decline in May, 1991. The last two years, he has depended on Christmas to offset lackluster sales the rest of the year.

"Our holiday sales are good but it isn't enough to make up the rest of the year. I'm hoping after the first of the year and (President-elect Clinton's) inaugural that things will pick up."

Good also said business has been off because customers, many of whom live near his store, have become more frugal. "I'm located in a neighborhood area. People have tightened up."

Gail Buccini, owner of Encore Quality Consignment Shop, 66 Billings Rd., North Quincy, said sales thus far are about the same as last year. "Consignment is selling used things and I think with all the Christmas sales it's apt to hurt a little. I don't think I've gone up or down."

Overall, Buccini said her holiday business could be up slightly. "We'll be the same or better, probably better. People seem to be a bit happier about shopping (this year)."

Instead of lay-a-ways, Buccini said her store will hold items for up to five days with no money down. She said the number of holds are running about the same as last year.

While other retailers may be hurt by the recession, Buccini said her business may have benefitted by the economic downturn of the past few years.

"The recession may have helped me because some people who ordinarily wouldn't have considered consignments are buying into them," she explained.

Business at the Winfield Gift Emporium, 853 Hancock St., Wollaston, has been brisk and should exceed 1991 holiday sales, perhaps by 10 to 15 percent.

"We're anticipating a good Christmas," said co-owner Karen Tufts. "I can see a difference in people's attitudes. Last year, everyone was kind of mokey."

"This year, we've had a lot of lay-a-ways and people started their shopping much earlier."

In fact, compared to last year, Tufts said business has been up throughout 1992. She attributed part of that increase to less competition.

"Other places have closed. We've also been in business five years as of October. People know we're here now."

Tufts said she too has noticed smaller gift budgets. "Items priced up to $20 are the big sellers, like trolls and other collectibles. I'd say the average sale is $20."

Mark Bertman, owner of Roger's Jewelers, 1402 Hancock St., Quincy Square, said 1992 has been up over 1991 and he hopes that Christmas will be at least the same, if not better, than last year.

"We've had a good year and I would like to think we would continue our increase in business during Christmas but I'm not sure," Bertman said. "Normally, you do 65 to 75 percent of your Christmas business a week before Christmas. We're about even with last year."

"This year we've had a great year. I'd like to think we could match last year's Christmas sales and that's pretty much what we've bought for."

Since Thanksgiving, Bertman said sales of expensive items is up but volume is down. "We're making the big sales but we don't have the traffic."

Bob Curry, who owns Curry Ace Hardware in North Quincy, West Quincy and Braintree, said his store traditionally has not experienced the big Christmas rush like other retailers. "We're not a big Christmas store but December has always been a good month," he said, noting snow blowers and power tools are selling well.

"December is a good month. Hardware used to be seasonal but not anymore. Now it's pretty consistent 12 months out of the year."

For the most part, 1992 has been a great year for Curry. Despite the recession and the recent opening of Home Depot near his West Quincy store, Curry said his business is up.

"We've broken records over the last few months. We really haven't been hurt by the recession. Looking at November when we were up five to six percent, I look forward to December being about the same."

One North Quincy florist, who requested anonymity, has received mixed business signals thus far into the season. She expects business will be up overall. She noted arrangements for office parties have fallen but orders for arrangements for house parties have picked up.

"There is an upward trend. People are beginning to spend. They're not scrimping at all. I foresee a very good holiday season."

The florist said her business could be boosted by an unexpected source: U.S. military deployment into starving Somalia.

"If we're going to be in Somalia," the florist said last Friday, "people will need flowers because people get depressed. During Operation Desert Storm, people just ran into the store and got flowers for loved ones."

Fabrizio Proposes Close Monitoring At Landfill Site

The recent controversy over dumping at the former city landfill has led to a proposal to closely monitor activity at the site.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio has proposed strict guidelines for dumping at the site which call for the commissioner of public works to keep the City Council informed on all activity there.

The DPW is preparing an area at the landfill to receive dredge material from the upcoming Town Brook project. Dumping of fill at the site to prepare an access road and containment area for the dredge material has caused concern among nearby residents.

Part of the controversy arose over the dumping of steel reinforcement bars among other construction debris. The bars are not allowed to be discarded at the landfill.

DPW Commissioner David Colton and Chris Carroll, a member of the Conservation Commission, agreed that the steel bars will be removed.

Colton said the amount of the illegal debris was small compared to the overall amount being brought in and was normal in this situation.

"The materials seem to be already segregated for removal," Carroll said.

Carroll said the Conservation Commission will place a monitor at the site.

Studds To Seek Financial Aid Storm Damage Here Over Half-Million

By ROBERT BOSWORTH and MICHAEL WHALEN

The season's first winter storm, packing gale force winds and 15-foot high tides, caused an estimated $500,000 to municipal property and perhaps thousands of dollars more to private property over the weekend, city officials said Tuesday.

Mayor James Sheets estimated the damage cost after surveying areas hit hard by the weekend storm with Cong. Gerry Studds and other state and local officials Tuesday afternoon. Other officials who joined the inspection included State Senator-elect Michael Morrissey, Councillors Peter Kolson and Ted DeCristofaro, DPW Commissioner David Colton, Quincy Emergency Management director Tony Siciliano and Joe Heisler, public information officer for the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The officials inspected the seawalls at Chickatabot Rd., Narraganset Rd., Shelton Rd. and Edgewater Dr. in Houghs Neck and Adams Shore. Strong tidal surges pounded the city's coast, destroying or weakening parts of some seawalls while flooding at least a dozen streets and scores of homes.

DPW Commissioner David Colton said the city pumped out 60 basements over the weekend. He said the actual number of flooded homes is probably higher because many residences near the waterfront are equipped with their own sump pumps.

After surveying the damage, Cong. Studds said he will work to help facilitate emergency assistance to those affected by the storm.

"There's repair work to be done, there's homes to be cleared, there are homes to be rebuilt. As soon as we get a gubernatorial declaration of emergency and a request for federal assistance which I assume we're going to get, then we'll do everything we possibly can on the Washington end to expedite FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) to move as fast as it is humanly and bureaucratically possible to move."

"The FEMA people know what they're facing, they have a lot of experience and it's clear what needs to be done. It's just a question of getting the resources as fast as we can," Studds said.

Gov. William Weld was expected to ask the federal government for a disaster declaration Wednesday. The governor needed damage assessments from four counties, including Norfolk, before seeking the declaration.

After a request for a declaration is submitted, President Bush must decide if it is warranted. If the president grants the request, the declaration would set in motion federal disaster relief assistance.

Heisler said if the declaration is made, FEMA will have teams set up within 24 to 48 hours to help provide assistance.

The teams, comprised of FEMA officials and representatives from other organizations such as the Small Business

Flooded Homes Should Be Inspected For Electrical Damage

For safety reasons, homeowners whose residences experienced flooding during the recent storm should have the wiring and electrical equipment that may have been under water inspected by an electrical contractor or a licensed electrician, Wire Inspector Thomas Purpura recommends.

"Electrical equipment that was under salt water, such as main fuse or circuit breaker panels, safety controls on heating systems, basement appliances, receptacles and switches are usually damaged internally."

"This damage may not be apparent on the exterior. Damaged and corroded electrical equipment is a very hazardous condition," Purpura said.

"All electrical equipment and devices that were under salt water should be replaced so as to avert possible hazardous conditions or fires," he added.

Emergency Snow Removal And Parking Regulations

With the approach of winter snow and ice storms, Public Works Commissioner David Colton reminds Quincy residents of the importance of compliance with the traffic and parking regulations and the overnight rule regarding parking.

Through the end of this year, parking is allowed on the even numbered side of the street. During 1993, parking will be allowed on the odd numbered side of the street unless otherwise posted.

"Police Chief Francis Mullen and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman join me in saying, Public safety is something that cannot be compromised by unnecessary impediments to snow and ice removal.

"Police, fire and ambulance service often means the difference between life and death. Effective snow and ice control is vital to all public safety operations," Colton said.

"Past history has shown that with city departments working together, combined with residents' cooperation, streets have been kept open and life saving services have been maintained," the commissioner said.

Storm Damage Here Over $500,000

Administration, IRS, and flood insurance companies, set up disaster application centers or DACS, "and anybody that has a problem and feels they may qualify (for assistance) can come in, fill out an application and within days we process these things.

"We're geared to hit the road running," he said. City officials said they are pleased with the efforts of municipal workers, national guardsmen, and countless other individuals who worked to help the city get through the weekend storm.

They said a collective team effort made the operation a success.

The storm caused a substantial amount of flooding, particularly in the Houghs Neck section of the city, and poor driving conditions on slick roads covered with slush and debris as a result of the high winds, rain and snow throughout the weekend.

Employees of the Department of Public Works, Quincy Emergency Management, and police and fire departments, as well as 27 Army National Guardsmen and a number of residents and volunteers participated in the efforts to help people through the storm, according to Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano.

"All of the municipal employees and emergency management personnel worked extremely well together," said Siciliano. "The various departments assisted in evacuations, emergency telephones, shelters, and pumping operations."

Due to flooding, about 100 people were evacuated from their homes and taken to four shelters set up throughout the city, Siciliano said. The shelters were located at the Atherton Hough School, North Quincy High School, Squantum School, and the Squantum Civic Association.

"Houghs Neck, by the seawall, was the worst hit," said Siciliano. "On Sea Street, the water was halfway up the windows on car, about four feet deep."

DPW Commissioner David Colton, who said he traveled throughout the entire city during the storm, agreed that Houghs Neck bore the brunt of the storm.

"Edgewater Drive (in Houghs Neck) was very hard hit," said Colton. "So was the Narragansett Road area (on Adams Shore) by the seawall."

Fire Chief Thomas

Gorman echoed similar sentiments, saying rescue efforts went smoothly during the storm because the city workers have experienced these kinds of dangerous weather conditions in the past.

"It was a very smooth operation," said Gorman. "We've learned from past storms how to rescue people in the Adams Shore and Houghs Neck areas." He added that while some people were at first reluctant to evacuate their homes, the harsh conditions eventually forced the residents to take refuge at the shelters.

Siciliano praised both Gorman and Police Chief Francis Mullen for setting up a mini-communications command post at the Adams Shore Library on Sea and Palmer Streets.

"That was a great idea," said Siciliano.

"The library is an ideal place to have a command post," said Mullen. "It helped cut down on a lot of confusion and was the focal point of the entire operation."

Gorman, Mullen and Colton agreed with Siciliano that it was a collaborative effort between the various departments that made the operation work so well.

"Everybody in the city worked hard," said Gorman. "Everybody cooperated. Nobody was running around like a chicken with its neck chopped off."

"It was a collective effort," said Mullen. "It was very coordinated. The police and fire departments knew exactly what was happening at all times."

"The DPW employees deserve a lot of credit," said Colton. "They worked from Friday until the end of the storm, some of them around the clock. Actually, people from all of the departments did."

Siciliano also praised Mayor James Sheets, Councillor Michael Cheney, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers for joining the efforts throughout the storm.

Officials also thanked the Army National Guard for its assistance during the storm. In addition to the 27 guardsmen, the guard supplied four 20-ton dump trucks, two front-loaders and several five-ton trucks to aid in the city's cleanup.

Finally, all agreed that without the assistance of the residents who gave of their free time, the operation would have been much more difficult.

"The volunteers cannot be overlooked," said Mullen. "They were a big part of making this a successful operation."

"I know of one person who was constantly with us," said Siciliano. "Robert Gogan of Quincy, who's only 21 years old, is a specialist in the U.S. Army. He came home on leave last Thursday to visit his family. He worked with us straight through from Friday to Sunday, and then got a call on Monday saying he had to go to Somalia."

"He really didn't get much of a chance to see his family."

Studds To Open Main Office At 1212 Hancock St.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Cong. Gerry Studds will open an office on the third floor at 1212 Hancock St., Quincy Center early next year which will serve as his main office for the 10th district.

According to Paul O'Sullivan, an aide to Cong. Studds, the 2000-square foot office will house a majority of the congressman's staff and officially open Jan. 3, the day the 103rd Congress convenes.

O'Sullivan said Studds selected Quincy as the site for his main office because he believes the city is the focal point of the 10th district which was redrawn earlier this year.

"Quincy is the city in the district and really is, population wise and issues wise, the focal point of the district. We're going to treat Quincy as the city in the district," O'Sullivan said.

At least six other sites in the Quincy Center area were considered.

However, O'Sullivan said 1212 Hancock St. offered the best location and most accessibility at the lowest price.

He noted the site is close to City Hall and across from the Quincy Center MBTA Red Line station. "It's very accessible to constituents. Space wise and price wise, it was better at 1212 Hancock St.," he said.

The three-story brick building, the former home of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, has been renovated in recent years. It is now owned by Quincy businessman Peter O'Connell.

O'Sullivan said Studds will close his Pembroke and New Bedford offices because those municipalities are no longer in his district. He said the congressman will retain a satellite office in Hyannis, and open other smaller offices in Plymouth and one other community.

A McIntyre On The Ballot?

Will the political magic name McIntyre be back on a Quincy election ballot soon?

City Hall observers are wondering if it might be in next year's city election.

Charles McIntyre, 25-year-old son of the late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, is the reason for the wonder.

He has attended recent City Council meetings with his bride, Sheila, touching off speculation that he might be warming up to a run for the City Council. And the feeling is that if he does go, it will be for a city council at-large seat.

McIntyre faithfuls have hoped that young McIntyre might someday pick up the political torch long carried by his father, one of Quincy's all-time powerful political figures.

And "someday" City Hall observers think, might just be around the corner.

McIntyre is a good looking personable young man who would be a most attractive candidate.

And he would have his mother, former First Lady Sheila McIntyre in his corner along with a number of Jim McIntyre's still staunch followers who would be solidly behind him.

Could "someday" come in 1993?

Dinner committee co-chairmen are City Clerk Joseph Shea, former assistant City Clerk Tom Burke and Bill Draichio.

STEVE MOYNIHAN, former Quincy public schools business manager now an accountant and tax consultant in the private sector, takes issue with the Sun's Sports Department on which game had the biggest attendance in the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day series.

The Sun reported the 1946 game holds the record attendance of 18,000.

Moynihan, who played for North in the 1946 and 1947 games, says game records show the attendance honors goes to the latter year.

The 1946 paid attendance, he says, was 16,065. In 1947 it was 18,003 — 1,938 more.

Actually, says Moynihan, he would estimate that some 22,000 to 23,000 persons saw the 1947 game "if you include fence hoppers and those that watched from the MBTA (then Eastern Mass railway) garage area."

The third top paid attendance, incidentally, was 12,154 at the 1948 game.

THE BALD TRUTH

It's just not fair. Some men get male-pattern baldness and others don't. Androgenetic alopecia, as it is clinically known, occurs when hair follicles shrink or stop growing hair. There are three medical options for treatment. Hair transplants involve surgically moving hair from the back of the neck to the crown. Scalp tightening or reduction is another surgical procedure which removes bald skin sections and pulls up hairier parts to the scalp. The third approach is use of the drug minoxidil as a cosmetic hair stimulant. Whatever the approach, it is essential to avoid quick products and bargain clinics, which at best fleece your wallet and at worst leave serious physical damage.

P.S. Some 12 percent of men begin balding by age 25. By age 35, 37 percent lose hair noticeably. By 65, 66 percent are balding.

Any program of hair replacement therapy should be undertaken only with the guidance of an experienced physician. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We are dedicated to the compassionate and caring practice of medicine. When treating patients, I always try to consider how

I would like myself my wife and children or my parents to be treated by a doctor. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Christmas Orders At City Hall Lobby Through Dec. 22 700 Bricks Sold For 'Walk Of Names'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Two weeks after the project was unveiled, nearly 700 bricks or more than 25 percent needed for the city's "Walk of Names" project have been sold, delighting officials associated with the endeavor.

"We've sold nearly 700 bricks," spokesperson Georgia Peirce said Tuesday. "That's pretty good for only two weeks of ordering."

Since city officials announced the project Nov. 30, sales of the bricks have averaged about 300 per week. If that pace continues, the 2500 bricks needed for the project will be sold over the next six or seven weeks.

That, in turn, would virtually assure the funding necessary to start the brick plaza project next summer. Aside from preparing the site, no municipal money will be used for the project which calls for a new brick plaza in the area in front of the City Hall annex.

The dark red bricks, which will replace the present granite pavers, will be engraved with names of people from the past, present and future to form a "Walk of Names."

For a contribution of $50, any Quincy resident, business or group can have a personalized brick, with up to 15 characters each, become part of the new plaza. Construction should start next summer and officials hope the project will be completed next fall.

Each gift comes with a custom certificate suitable for framing or present as a gift.

Peirce said the bricks make a lasting and unique gift, especially for Christmas.

To accommodate holiday shoppers interested in purchasing a brick, an ordering booth has been set up in the City Hall annex lobby.

Now through Thursday, Dec. 23 (excluding Saturday and Sunday), brick orders can be placed in the lobby between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Those who purchase bricks at the lobby will receive a custom certificate on the spot. Bricks can also be ordered for Christmas gifts over the phone by calling 376-3676 by Dec. 18.

"We're trying to accommodate people for the holidays," Peirce said, adding many purchasers are buying bricks as Christmas presents.

The project has attracted interest within the city and beyond. One noteworthy purchase was made by Mrs. Ruth Ann (Keniley) Pavlick of Vienna, Va.

Peirce said Mrs. Pavlick learned about the project from a recent Quincy Sun story. The subscriber called P.R. Etc., the company responsible for marketing the project, and ordered two bricks in the names of Eugene Keniley and Mary Sullivan, her great-grandparents who settled in Quincy in the early 1830s, Peirce said.

Mayor Ross Calls For More Parking

Mayor Charles A. Ross dedicated the new parking area west of Hancock St. and called for the city to continue to progress by taking land east of the downtown area for a second large parking lot.

"The continued growth of the city demands that we keep pace with it or fall into a state of stagnation which I am convinced is not the desire of any public minded citizen," he said.

Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert pointed out that the new west side parking area is the largest municipally owned metered parking lot on the eastern seaboard.

DUNN NEXT AUDITOR?

Miss Elizabeth Dunn, principal clerk in the auditor's office was considered the leading candidate to succeed Leo E. Mullin as city auditor when his retirement becomes effective Dec. 23.

Miss Dunn served eight years as city auditor in the late 1920s and early 1930s, the last one to be appointed by a mayor prior to passage of a law giving that authority to the City Council.

Other candidates included lame duck Councilors Clifton H. Baker and William J. Papile, who would not be eligible for selection by their colleagues until their Council terms expire Jan. 1.

Another frequently mentioned name was that of School Committeeman Alexander Smith.

ROSS NAMED REGISTER

Charles N. Ross, a Quincy attorney and son of Mayor Ross, was named first assistant register of deeds for Norfolk County effective Jan. 1, according to an announcement by Register L. Thomas Shine.

Ross, who won a bronze star while overseas with the Yankee Division during World War II, was narrowly defeated in the first Plan E City Council election, finishing eighth among 59 candidates.

The starting pay for first assistant register was $4,680.

Jordan Marsh Property May Be Subdivided

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The real estate company which is marketing the property at the former Jordan Marsh warehouse may subdivide the property if attempts to secure a single tenant fail.

Engineers are conducting a survey of the property at 500 Commander Shea Blvd. to determine the feasibility of subdividing the site into 200 and 300 square ft. sections.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers said he is anxious to get a suitable tenant for the property to "help with the tax base and create jobs."

Ayers said in order for a proposal to gain his approval "it would need to meet the same type of criteria as Jordan Marsh because (a new tenant) will impact the Atlantic and Squantum areas."

Ayers said he receives regular updates from

Meredith & Grew, the Boston-based realtor which is marketing the property. Once a serious offer is made on the property Ayers said he will hold a community meeting to keep residents informed. He also said he would prefer that a single tenant rent the entire site.

The size of the property, 1.3 million square feet, has made it difficult to market, the realtors told Ayers.

Jordan Marsh closed its warehouse operation at the site at the end of 1990. The warehouse, which opened in 1969, employed 754 people including 150 to 175 from Quincy when it closed.

Representatives from Meredith & Grew were unavailable for comment.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Seafood Over Ravi

If you're looking for a new way to serve paste and you love seafood, here is a great way to enjoy it.

SEAFOOD OVER RAVI

8 oz large shrimp
8 oz scallops
1/2 cup white wine
1 cup chicken stock
2 Tbsps lemon juice
salt and pepper to taste
2 Tbsps butter or margarine
2 Tbsps olive oil

2 cloves garlic (chopped fine)
1 lb bite sized ravioli

In hot oil and butter, saute the garlic, shrimp and scallops. Remove from pan when shrimp turns pink. In the same pan, add the wine, lemon juice and the chicken stock. Cook the ravioli in the juices and then add everything together topping it with grated cheese. I have also used macaroni bows (a favorite) but it's great with any kind of pasta.

Crane Library Receives Mass Electric Grant

The children's department of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy, has received a grant from Massachusetts Electric in recognition of Columbus' voyage to the Americas 500 years ago.

Grant funds were used to purchase two world globes; one for the children's room at the main library in Quincy Center; the other for the children's area at the North Quincy branch library.

The 16-inch raised relief globes are up-to-date and include the countries that comprise the former Soviet Union. The voyages of world explorers Columbus, Cook and da Gama are also charted.

Various symbols are used to indicate capitals and city populations of several sizes. The globes are on floor stands and not only rotate but also swing up and down for close-up viewing.

A globe shows distances, directions, sizes and shapes of countries, and their relationship to each other in correct perspective. They are a valuable addition to the library's resources.

Proparvulus Club Celebrates 70th Anniversary

The Proparvulus Club, one of the organizations supporting the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston, recently celebrated its 70th anniversary at the Wollaston Golf Club in Milton.

Honored guests were Helen Brennan, only living founder, and Julia Mantle, president during 1937-38.

Seated with them at the head table were Rev. Msgr. Eugene P. McNamara, spiritual advisor of the club, pastor of St. Mary of the Nativity Church and former Boston Regional Director of Catholic Charities; Rev. Msgr. Philip Kearney, former spiritual director, now a resident at Regina

Cleric; Sister Rose Marita, assistant spiritual advisor and director of Sunset Point Vacation House in Hull; Sister Rene, also of Sunset Point; Ann Ward, club president; Barbara Sturgis, daughter of the first club treasurer; Beatrice Cook, past president; and Eleanor Reidy and Elaine Reynolds, past presidents and co-chairpersons of the event.

Among the highlights of the afternoon was a collage of pictures and publicity of the last 70 years. Entertainment was provided by club member Rita Callahan, soloist and autoharist.

A Founders' Plaque was presented to Sister Rose Marita by Elicia Carroll

Kelley, past president. It will be hung at Sunset Point Vacation House.

The club started with a group of 10 young women who gathered at a home in Roxbury in November 1922 to discuss the possibility of forming a club that would assist the Catholic Charitable Bureau in its ministries with needy children in Boston. It has raised funds for the bureau and has been steadfast in its devotion to Sunset Point Vacation House.

Proparvulus (a joining of the Latin words meaning "For the Little Ones") has experienced new growth in the past few years and 20 new members were welcomed at the celebration.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Linda McMillen Wed To William Wanless

Linda M. McMillen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McMillen of Quincy, was married recently to William K. Wanless. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wanless of Canton.

The double ring ceremony was conducted at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston and officiated by Rev. John Mahoney, cousin of the bride. A reception followed at Barker Tavern in Scituate.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Karen McMillen-Cahill of Quincy served as Matron of Honor for her sister.

Bridesmaids were Anne McMillen-Jackson of St. Petersburg, Fla. and Dianne McMillen of Rochester, N.H., sisters of the bride; and Judy Dever of Hyde Park.

Brian Wanless of

Canton served as Best Man for his brother.

Ushers were Paul Cahill of Quincy, Michael Capo of East Boston, and Mark Dittrich of Norfolk.

The bride, a 1980 graduate of North Quincy High School and a 1990 graduate of Bay State College, is currently attending the University of Massachusetts at Boston. She is employed in foreign exchange at Bank of Boston.

The groom, a 1982 graduate of Canton High School and a 1986 graduate of St. Anselm College, is vice president of public relations for the Pawtucket Red Sox.

Following a wedding trip to Italy, they are living in Canton.

Janelle Nielson Named To College 'Who's Who'

Janelle M. Nielson of Quincy has been named to "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities" by Eastern Nazarene College.

She was selected based on her academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

The daughter of John and Janice Nielson, missionaries to the Republic of the Philippines, she is a 1989 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Nielson is a senior psychology and English major at ENC. While at Eastern Nazarene College she has served as president of her junior class and is this year's student council president. She has also worked as a tutor for all four years, and is currently serving as manger for the campus Center for Academic Services.

She has been heavily involved in missionary work, such as the Orphanage in the Philippines and the Asia-Pacific Nazarene Theological Seminary Community help. She is a member of the Quincy Crisis Center Board. In 1992 she was a part of "Exodus," a summer ministries group.

Nielson was named to the Dean's List for the fall of 1989 and the ENC Honor Roll the spring and fall of 1990.

Three Others Honored At Celebration 92'

Jackie Whitcomb South Shore YMCA Hall Of Fame Inductee

By JUNE BLAIR

The South Shore YMCA inducted Jacqueline Whitcomb, along with three other individuals, into its Hall of Fame during its recent annual awards presentation at Celebration '92.

Other inductees are Carle Hayward, former president of the YMCA board; George Ramsden Jr., former general executive director of the YMCA; and W. Gordon Clark, current board member and past president.

Whitcomb, a Quincy resident, has worn countless hats in her 37-year career with the South Shore YMCA, but the impact she has had on people's lives is the common thread. Few have touched as many people as Jackie--as director of Camp Hayward, as assistant women and girls' director, as youth director, and especially as coordinator of the Tri-Hi-Y program.

It was perhaps in Tri-Hi-Y, a club for high school age girls, that Jackie truly made her mark. Thirty years later, she is still in touch with many of her "girls."

It was in 1955 that Jackie was recruited as a volunteer, when the new Y facility was first opened. She became a member of the Women and Girls

Committee.

From there, she started work part-time as the Tri-Hi-Y coordinator. In 1971, she joined the staff full-time, working with girls' programs and camps.

In 1983, she became administrative assistant to the general director. In 1991, Jackie retired from her full-time position. She continues to work part-time, and to volunteer in the early morning greeting members as they arrive.

Jackie Whitcomb's impact on the YMCA can't be measured on any typical scale, but can be seen in the men and women, girls and boys she has drawn into the YMCA circle of friends.

Jedlie Circus Performs At St. Joseph's School

The Fantastic Jedlie Circus recently performed at St. Joseph's School in Quincy.

The presenter spent an hour teaching children how to be the "Boss of My Own Body." The program on self respect and substance abuse contains many messages, full empowerance that the kids loved and responded to with enthusiasm.

Students were involved in the presentation, teaching others how to believe in themselves, how to love and care for their own bodies and everyone clapping and singing "I am the boss of my own body."

SQUANTUM SCHOOL students recently performed a puppet show to promote lung health. Among those participating were, from left, Marc Powers, Tim McGillicuddy, Tammy Shea and Julianne Sweeney.

Squantum School Students Perform Puppet Show

Students in grades one through four from the Squantum School recently enjoyed a puppet show performed by fifth graders.

Puppets were provided by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association to promote lung health. Scripts on such subjects as smoking, asthma, air pollution and "ways to say no" are lively, entertaining and written to span various age levels.

There are four puppets, two boys and two girls. Each puppet is three feet tall and can be operated by the dowel provided, or by hand.

In the classroom, a small group of students can act out the script by serving as readers and puppet operators, or the ambitious can put on the puppet skits for the entire school.

Puppets are available free of charge. They can shipped U.P.S. or picked up at the office. For reservations, call the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 508-668-6729.

South Shore Youth Alive To Sponsor New Year's Eve All-Nighter

South Shore Youth Alive, a group of churches in the Quincy area, will sponsor a New Year's Eve All-Nighter for junior high and senior high youth Thursday, Dec. 31 beginning at 7 p.m. in the Eastern Nazarene College gym.

The evening will include a series of activities throughout the night including large group games, a concert, a New Year's celebration, pizza and ice cream, bowling, roller skating, and breakfast. The All-Nighter will end Friday, Jan. 1 at 7 a.m. at First Presbyterian Church in Quincy.

Price for this alternative to the "drinking and driving" scene is $10 per person. For more information or to sign up, call Bill Donahue at South Shore Youth Alive, 328-1787 or 773-9797. Registration ends Dec. 21.

Jennifer Sava Writes, Directs Play At Fontbonne Academy

Jennifer Sava of North Quincy, a junior at Fontbonne Academy, recently wrote and directed a one-act play presented at the school.

The play, titled, "A Rose By Any Other Name," is a murder mystery.

Sava's interest in theatre began at age six when she joined Diane Purdy's Children's Theatre Workshop. At age nine, she signed with the Boston Agency, doing newspaper, magazine and game box ads as well as appearing in local television talk shows, commercials and movies. She was also an extra in the movie "Witches of Eastwick."

Sava's interest in the behind-the-scenes aspect of film and theatre led to her writing and directing her own play.

An honor student and practicing pianist, she is involved in several other clubs at school and is editor of Fontbonne's Stylus magazine and a student director at the Children's Theatre Workshop.

Sava plans on studying film and video in college and hopes to make her career in this field.

Sheets To Hold Open House Dec. 22

Mayor James Sheets invites citizens of Quincy to join him Tuesday, Dec. 22 between 2 and 7 p.m. for his third annual Open House to be held in his office, 1305 Hancock St., third floor, City Hall annex.

Refreshments will be served.

Since taking office in January, 1990, the mayor has held an open house during the holiday season. The mayor's executive secretary, Thomas Koch, said the open house is an opportunity for the mayor to chat with residents. At the same time, citizens may discuss some of their own concerns.

"The Mayor's Office and City Hall belongs to the citizens of Quincy. Therefore, it is open to them year round but in the spirit of the season, the mayor extends a special invitation," Koch said.

The mayor will be accompanied by his wife, Joann, and perhaps some members of their family.

By MICHAEL WHALEN
City Clerk Joseph Shea Tuesday was officially elected chairman of the Quincy License Board.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey said Shea was the only logical choice for the position.

"It's the absolutely proper thing to do," said Mulvey. "Not only logistically for this board, but because Joe is a class act as well."

Police Chief Francis Mullen agreed.

"He's (Shea) centralized, and he's shown proper leadership," said Mullen.

Shea said he, too, felt it was a good decision.

"Traditionally, the board has been housed in the clerk's office," said Shea. "Everything gravitates to the clerk's office."

Shea suggested that the board hold an annual election for chairman each December, adding that the board would reelect an incumbent chairman as many times as it wanted. The board agreed.

He also made a motion that the board elect a vice chairman. The board voted that Mulvey will hold that position.

Shea said he wanted to "come up with a concrete way to review all licenses twice," as well as work on a written set of the board's rules and regulations, both of which would help the public stay informed of board activities.

"We're going to do a little bit more work in getting public notice out," said Shea. "We've been doing a great job, and the press has been doing a great job, but we can still do a little bit better job."

Lincoln-Hancock Fifth Graders Aid Granite Workers Statue Drive

Through the efforts of school children, community members and former granite workers a Quincy Granite Workers Memorial Statue is closer to becoming a reality.

Lincoln-Hancock Community School fifth graders recently raised $200 for the project during a Halloween Festival at Kincaide Park.

"The kids are really boosting the project by getting their parents and members of the community involved," said Lincoln-Hancock teacher Stephen Cantelli, project chairman.

Last year's fifth grade class helped get the project started. The students did an in-depth study on the granite industry. This year, Cantelli's and teacher Maureen Duggan's fifth grade classes are involved.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said two sites are under consideration for the statue, Shea Park at the intersection of Copeland, West and Common streets and a site near the entrance to Crown Colony office park.

The Ward 4 Neighborhood Association has also taken a role in the drive for the statue. The association is leading the fundraising drive for the project and needs to raise $14,000.

"Actually we need more, $14,000 to $20,000," said Alba Tocci, treasurer for the project. She said the statue will incur expenses for maintenance and upkeep in the years after it is erected.

Tocci, whose father was a stone cutter, said volunteers are working hard locating and contacting people and families of people who worked in the granite industry in Quincy to see if they would like to make a donation.

"People from as far away as Florida have contributed," Cantelli said.

Tocci said a fair featuring crafts and amusements for all ages is being planned for next June to help raise money.

WINNING WITH A FLUSH

It is not enough that an automobile's antifreeze is up to its proper fill level. This important fluid should be replaced every two or three years (or every 24,000 to 36,000 miles). Aside from providing protection from freezing, antifreeze lubricates the water pump and prevents rust and corrosion within the cooling system. If antifreeze is allowed to stay in the cooling system beyond its useful life, a good many of the additives that provide protection will become depleted. As a result, the water pump, radiator, heater core and thermostat may be subjected to needless wear and tear. Flushing the old coolant and renewing it with fresh fluid prevents such problems before they arise. It also may make sense to dilute coolant with distilled water to avoid deposit buildup and corrosion. HINT: A car heater that fails to heat up in cold weather may be caused by a failed engine thermostat.

Our entire staff at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued loyalty and patronage throughout the year. We truly appreciate it and look forward to our continuing relationship for many years to come. Enjoy the holiday season. Come in and see us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Christmas Sunday At United Methodist Christmas Sunday will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St.

The Rev. Harry Soper Jr. will preach on "God Is With Us" as his Advent message. Dorothy Nogueira and Virginia Casey will act as acolytes in the Advent candlelighting. Jay Stearns will be Scripture reader.

Ushers will be Joan Honig and Maude Kyoperi.

Greeters will be Janet McGonigle and Melvia Sears. The fellowship hour following the service in Susannah Wesley Hall will be hosted by Joanne Nolan, Phyllis Ellison, Judy Malloy and Margaret Minyard.

Church facilities are wheelchair accessible and child care is provided.

On Saturday, the Committee on Missions and Christian Outreach and church volunteers will sing carols for shut-ins and nursing home residents.

Last Advent Candle Lighting At Covenant

The final Advent Candle will be lighted by one of the church families at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

There will be special readings. Rev. Gordon Schultz, interim pastor, will preach.

Richard Smith, minister of music, will direct and accompany the choir in a choral introit and two anthems. He will also play and organ prelude, offertory and postlude.

Sunday School, with classes for all ages, nursery through adult, will meet at 9:30 a.m. to finishing touches on their Christmas program. During the worship service, an attended nursery is available for children age four and younger. For children up to age 12, there is junior church.

Following the service, coffee will be served in the fellowship hall downstairs.

Shirley M. Laing, 69

English Teacher; Tennis Instructor

A funeral service for Shirley M. (Potts) Laing, 69, of Quincy, was held Tuesday in St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Laing died Dec. 11 at New England Baptist Hospital in Boston after a long illness.

She was an employee of the Quincy School Department and a tennis instructor.

A graduate of North Quincy High School and a resident of Quincy for 55 years, she received her bachelor's degree from Simmons College in Boston and her master's degree from Boston University.

As an employee of the school department, she taught English at North Quincy High School for 16 years and did home teaching for many years for students with truancy problems. For the last 16 years she was coach of the Quincy High School tennis team.

For the past 10 years, she was also coach of the Eastern Nazarene College women's tennis team, which recorded an undefeated season in 1990.

She was a member of Blue Hills Tennis Club and also of Quincy Tennis Club, where she served for the past 30 years on the executive board and various club offices.

She was a member of the board of directors of the Beechwood Community Life Center and a member of Loty Square Dancers.

She is survived by her husband, Robert Laing; a son, Lawrence Robert Laing of Waltham; a daughter, Jean Joyce of Quincy; and two grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to South Shore Humane Society, P.O. Box 187, Braintree, MA 02184 or GYN/Oncology Fund, New England Baptist Hospital, 125 Parker Hill Ave., Boston, MA 02120.

Irvin Brogan, 78

Organist, Choir Director

A funeral Mass for Irvin Brogan, 78, of Quincy, was celebrated Dec. 10 in Holy Trinity Church, Boston.

Mr. Brogan died Dec. 8 at St. John of God Hospital in Boston.

He played the organ in 100 churches in the Archdiocese of Boston and was a choir director for many years.

In 1980, he was honored for 50 years of service as a church musician and named organist emeritus by Holy Trinity Church, Boston.

Music at Holy Trinity, known as the German church, was especially important to communicants.

As co-chairman of the music committee of the Liturgical Commission of Boston Archdiocese, he conducted workshops in Boston, Worcester and Springfield to help parish organists prepare for changes mandated by the Second Vatican Council.

He directed the Boston Saenger Choir, a 60-voice chorus of men and women who sing German folk and classical music, for more than 25 years.

An editor for 27 years at McLaughlin and Reilly, Catholic Church music publishers, he attended educational conventions throughout the country--and helped at the sales counter.

He was born in Reading, where he graduated from high school in 1931. He was student organist at Boston College until graduating in 1935 and took graduate work in music at Harvard University.

He taught Latin and French in Reading High School for three years, was a Navy instructor at the Naval Service School in Newport, R.I. from 1942 to 1943 and a Navy chaplain's assistant from 1943 to 1944.

He lived in Boston for many years before moving to Quincy 18 years ago.

He is survived by seven nephews and nieces, Edward Brogan Jr. of Alpharetta, Ga., Roy Brogan Jr. of Orlando, Fla., Thomas Brogan of Nashua, N.H., William Brogan and Kathleen Radwicz, both of Oxnard, Calif., Patricia Brien of Seabrook, N.H. and Lorraine Toussaint of Pensacola, Fla.; and 30 grandchildren and grandnephews.

Retired Accountant

A funeral Mass for Gerard A. Rogers, 79, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. Rogers died Dec. 10 at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Jamaica Plain.

A retired accountant, he worked many years for Peabody & Lane in Boston.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Born in Boston, he was raised in Hyde Park and graduated from Bentley

College in Boston. He lived in Braintree for many years before moving to Quincy three years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Rita M. (Mueller) Rogers; two stepsons, Thomas R. Donovan of Quincy and John J. Donovan of Hanover; a brother, Arthur Rogers; and five step-grandchildren. He was the stepfather of the late Frederick T. Donovan.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the McDonald Funeral Home, South Weymouth.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 294 Pleasant St., Stoughton, MA 02072.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEKD. SCOTT DEWARE

ARE YOU A CHEERFUL GIVER?
Many people find it easy to give by sharing their time, energy, and substance. Others may be unaware of the joys and opportunities of volunteering and performing "good works." Sadly others may feel that they have little to give.

For a moment, let us picture ourselves as cheerful givers, giving the greatest gift we have to give: ourselves. Perhaps someone we know would be grateful for help in their home or yard. Perhaps someone would be appreciative of having an errand run for them. Perhaps we might watch our neighbor's child while they run an errand.

We may share special knowledge, talents, or skills that help entertain, enlighten, or enrich others. We may choose to offer our time, donations, or prayers on behalf of some worthy cause. We can always give a warm hug, lend a listening ear and be a confidante, kind friend.

Wouldn't today be a good day to be a cheerful giver?

Quincy Looking For New Scoring Punch

By TOM SULLIVAN
When the Quincy High hockey team opened its season yesterday (Wednesday) against Boston Latin at Northeastern's Matthew's Arena, Bob Sylvia, starting his 29th year as coach, had the same worry as in the past.

"We'll be all right defensively, but we must score some goals," he said. "We have to make up for the loss of Scott MacPherson, our top scorer the last two years."

MacPherson last year had 32 points on 22 goals and 10 assists. Two years ago he had 39 points on 24 goals and 15 assists.

"We'll be depending upon senior veterans and co-captains Jim Schatzl, Steve McArdle and Jeff Craig for goals," Sylvia said. "If they can combine for 50 goals we could do all right. It will be up to them to do the scoring."

"Those three and senior defenseman co-captain Mark Gilmore are our key players. We are building the team around those four players. They are four of only nine seniors among our 42 candidates. We will be young but have a lot of experience with 18 players back from last season."

The Presidents, loaded with sophomores and juniors last year, had a 6-13-4 record but finished strong with impressive wins over Revere and Taunton in the last two games.

Sophomore Mark Smith will be the starting goalie. Although he is young he is experienced. Last year he was in goal for two of the Quincy wins. Backing him up will be senior Peter Caruso.

Other forwards are seniors David Mullen, juniors Josef Koceniak, Sean MacDonald, Joe McPhee, Steve Miller, Tim Messing, "the other" Scott MacPherson and Steve Provost, who will also be playing on defense, and sophomores Steve Barrett, David Cooper, Chris McArdle, Michael McKinnon and Matthew McSweeney.

Other defensesmen are senior Dan Morrell and juniors Patrick Donovan, Dan Mann, Derek Mullen and Provost.

The other candidates are seniors Michelle Melone and Michael Wilson, juniors Dan Clark, Craig Cooper, Michael Slade and Michael Smith, sophomores Kevin Connery, Kevin Dwyer, Jason Gorman, Tom Hawes and Shawn McTomney and freshmen Chris Bower, Jason Fennelly, Michael Martin, Mark Regan, William Shaughnessy, Scott Shepherd and Bruce Stenberg.

Quincy will host Taunton Saturday night at 6:40 at the Youth Arena, will be home to Rockland Monday at 3 p.m. and will host Weymouth next Wednesday at 5:20 p.m.

Ted Walsh is back as junior varsity coach and Jim Gilmore returns as freshman coach. Sylvia also has two volunteer assistants in Rich Reinhardt and Jeff Hynes.

Also back is Sylvia's "right arm," George Peachey, who is scorer and statistician and handles sundry other chores. Peachey was a Quincy standout in the 1930's and is a member of the Quincy Hockey Hall of Fame.

Basketball

Brian Buckley Named South Coach Of Year

Boston College High School basketball coach, Brian Buckley of Quincy, was recently selected Division I South Coach of the Year by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association.

Buckley led the Eagles to a 17-5 record. B.C. High won the Catholic Conference championship for the first time since 1980 and advanced to the semifinals of the state tournament.

Two players from Quincy, co-captain Matt Fennessey and Jay Schnabel, will help Buckley try to defend their league title this season.

Buckley's assistant coaches include many past and present Quincy residents including Paul Donoghue of Quincy, Bob Evans of Weymouth, Fred Murray of Braintree, Ed Anderson of Hyde Park and freshman coach Norm Walsh.

Both Donoghue and Evans played for Buckley at Quincy Junior College.

Buckley began coaching at B.C. High as an assistant in 1973. He went to QJC where he was head coach for five years and won the Greater Boston Small College Conference his final year and was named Coach of the Year.

BASKETBALL BUDDIES--Bo Ruggiero, former North Quincy basketball star, and Brian Buckley, head coach of Boston College High School, got together recently at the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame banquet. Ruggiero, a successful coach at Medfield High School, was elected to the Hall and Buckley was honored as Division I South Coach of the Year.

Buckley then took the head coaching job at Curry College, Milton, where his Colonels won the 1986 Commonwealth Coast Conference. In six seasons at Curry, Buckley was twice named conference Coach of the Year.

He credits his desire to coach to his father and his first job.

"My dad was a coach and when I was younger I wanted to be just like my dad and I still do," Buckley said. "When I started as a playground instructor with the Quincy Recreation Department, I really got the opportunity to get the feel for coaching. Some of my most cherished moments in coaching were while in the Recreation program."

Veterans, Transfers Buoy North's Hopes

The North Quincy hockey team, under third year coach Tom Benson, opens its season next Monday at Taunton at 5 p.m. and, instead of losing players to parochial schools, Benson has four transfers from parochial schools.

Benson has seven returnees from last year's team which qualified for the state tournament, defeating Walpole but losing to powerhouse Norwood. The Raiders finished the season at 10-4-6.

The transfers are three sophomores from Catholic Memorial, who may play as a third line. They are A.J. Carthas, Brendan O'Brien and Jim Kelley.

"These kids look good and I expect big things from them," Benson said.

The other transfer is junior Dennis Pateras from Don Bosco High, a defenseman.

Benson has four veteran forwards, four-year starter Mike DesRoche, one of the team's high scorers a year ago, junior Jim Sapiezna, junior Joe Carinci and senior Kevin Boylen.

Sean Connolly, who divided the goalie duties with Dennis Ruggere last year, is the starting goalie and is backed up by junior Mark Glennon and sophomore Mike Manganaro.

Senior captain John Glau and junior captain Andrew Vermette head the defensesmen and junior Dave Pacino and Pateras are other strong defensesmen.

Other members of the Red Raider squad are seniors Travis Greenwood and Bill Knox.

Benson had a fine turnout of 50 candidates.

DesRoche, Sapiezna and Carinci will make up the first line and Benson expects them to do much of the scoring.

"If I can form a solid second line we should do all right offensively," Benson said. "We will be strong in goal and the defense should be strong."

Following the Old Colony League opener at Taunton Monday, the Raiders will be at Falmouth Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Bob Doyle is back as assistant coach and Paul Noonan returns as freshman skipper. The goalie coach this year is Bob Flannery, who played his hockey at Don Bosco.

Earlier Julie Ramos broke the North school record for the 100 backstroke with a time of 1:08.92 as North defeated Middleboro.

Ramos also won the 100 freestyle and other North winners were Justine Fagerlund, 200 freestyle and 100 butterfly; Sarah Radell, 500 freestyle; Zoe Bohl, diving; and Zoe Bohl, diving relay team of Jen Walker, Radell, Fagerlund and Ramos.

Taking second places were Christina Amato, Nancy Walker, Carol Blaikie, Joanne Dyer, Susanne Hamilton and Alyssa Cobban.

Basketball

530 Playing In Sacred Heart League

The Sacred Heart Youth basketball program, with 530 youths enrolled from the Wollaston, North Quincy and Squantum communities, has begun the season with 19 games in the rookie, college and pro divisions as well as lively scrimmages in the 5 to 7 year old division.

The program includes several teams from St. Ann's Church.

The results of the opening games:

Rookie Girls (8-10): The Mighty Midgets defeated the Magic, 24-8, sparked by the offensive punch of Shannon O'Donnell and the defense of Angela Collins.

For the Magic Julie Burke, Erin Croke and Shannon Ridge led the way.

The McGrath squad defeated Manning's team, 9-3, with Casey Ridge pacing the offense. Casey Dooley did some excellent rebounding and Monica Chiu played strong defense. Letterman Kathryn Gates showed her game experience for Manning. Shauna Burns hustled the whole game and Kimberly Dennis played strong defense.

Rookie Boys (8-9): A late basket by Billy Croke gave the Magic a 8-5 victory over the Jaehning team. Paul Cremin did some clutch rebounding for the Magic and Casey Hillis showed fine ballhandling.

For Jaehning, Reid Donovan did some fine passing. Steve Keenan and Jason Fidalgo had some key baskets and Ryan Graeber hustled down some tough rebounds.

St. Ann's Sleeth squad rolled over the Luzzo team, 32-12. Matt Mooney controlled the boards and led the scoring, while Charlie Vidio handled the offense well and Brandon Sleeth played fine defense.

Dennis Thompson led the Luzzo offense, Brian Kenney was tough on defense and Keith Dykens was a big rebounder.

St. Ann's Holleran squad edged Sacred Heart Donovan/Stoekel squad, 27-25. Joey Holleran scored the winning basket and Brian Breslin played great defense. Dan Pritchard played fine defense and did some excellent passing.

Matt Donovan and Mack Maher played well for Sacred Heart.

The McFarlane squad topped the McHugh/Glenn squad, 23-15, pulling ahead in the final quarter. Eric Ridlon, Terrence Doherty and Greg Sommers led the winners.

McHugh/Glenn was led by the outside shooting of Greg Shields, the passing of Chris Ham and the ballhandling of Joey Ham.

College Girls (11-12): Georgetown mastered Providence, 24-17. Martha Stedman did some fine shooting. Melissa Pulea played strong defense and Katie Heffernan was tough on the boards.

For Providence, Alana McDonough led the scoring and Danielle Likas played fine defense.

Notre Dame outscored Boston College, 22-14, jumping out front early. Dorothy Cronin had six points, Kelley Fernandez shone on offense and Katie Lynch hustled throughout.

For B.C. Lisa O'Toole provided the scoring spark, Lynette Alessi hustled at both ends and Shannon Hillis played fine defense.

The Eagles romped over the Wolverines, 49-20, despite the playmaking of the Wolverines' Pat Dolbear, the rebounding of Dan O'Toole and the solid two-way play of Kevin Cleary.

The White squad topped the Stoekel Six, 23-13. Solid outside shooting was the key and Todd White was all over the court. Tim McAdams scored well for Stoekel, Pat Driscoll scored on some fine layups and Jonathan O'Connor played a fine passing game.

St. Ann's squeezed by Sacred Heart, 22-21, led by Adam Goodrich's 10 points, the defense of Bard Harizaj and Paul Wise and the solid play of Mike Mitchell.

Pro Girls (13-14): Duke defeated Boston College, 32-16, with Jennifer Lavery leading the way with her rebounding and scoring. Monica King ran the floor the whole game and Joanne Ford established herself as a strong forward.

Sarah Lally sparked BC's offense, Heather McGinnis played fine defense and Elizabeth Aubuchon played well.

Pro Boys (12-14): The Larkin Squad toppled the Kings, 41-33, as Kevin Bowes had nine points and played well on the boards, Billy Manning made big plays and had eight assists and Tom Sanui had a key basket that set off the Larkin blitz in the fourth quarter.

Jason Gibson, Ryan Nickerson and Pat Cummings played well for the Kings.

John Masone was outstanding in goal with 21 saves and Dan Stock, John Barron and Mark Hawes did some excellent penalty killing.

Hutchinson Honored With ECAC Award

Bill Hutchinson, longtime Quincy High hockey coach, teacher, guidance counselor and faculty manager, received the prestigious George L. Shiebler Award at the recent awards luncheon of the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC).

The award was established in honor of George L. Shiebler, the ECAC's second commissioner who served until he retired in 1972.

The award is presented annually to an Eastern collegiate athletic official who has demonstrated the type of dedication to his avocational activities that Shiebler gave leadership to over the years he was associated with the administration of Eastern collegiate athletics.

Hutchinson, former ECAC hockey official who later served as the ECAC's supervisor of hockey officials, is a graduate of North Quincy High School. He graduated from Northeastern in 1943 when he was a three-year member of the varsity hockey team.

He was named to the All-New England team as a forward during his senior year. He went on to pursue a Master's Degree in Education at Boston University from where he graduated in 1947.

Following three years of service in the Army in World War II he began work at Quincy High.

He coached the hockey team for a number of years, winning several league championships.

He began his long association with the ECAC in 1950 as a hockey official, serving at the college level concurrently with his high school duties until 1970.

From 1983-87 he was the ECAC supervisor of hockey officials following his retirement from Quincy High after 38 years. In addition to his ties with the ECAC, he also served as secretary-treasurer of the Eastern Mass. Hockey Officials Association.

Hutchinson was accepted into the Massachusetts High School Hockey Coaches Hall of Fame in 1977. He is also a member of the Quincy High Hockey Hall of Fame.

A victim of a stroke, Bill is confined to a wheelchair and is a patient at the Brockton VA Medical Center.

He and his wife, Marguerite have lived in Marston Mills since his retirement and have six children.

Hutchinson gave an emotional acceptance speech spiced with humor. "Bill hasn't lost his sense of humor," said his wife. "I am so proud of him."

Scott Deware Wins Auto Racing Title

Scott Deware of Quincy recently completed a successful auto racing season by capturing the North Atlantic Road Racing Championship.

Driving in only his first full professional year, Deware, 28, also won the New England Region title. In his rookie year, Deware placed fourth out of 72 competitors in the North Atlantic Road Racing Championship.

Deware recently completed a NASCAR training course in North Carolina and is assembling a NASCAR Grand National Stock Car team for the 1993 race season.

He was honored recently by Mayor James Sheets for his racing achievements.

Deware has set a goal to race at the Indy 500 by 1996. He also wants to race Formula Atlantic cars nationally in the next few years.

He is featured in a collection of Lime Rock Trading Cards Co. "Dream Machines II" cards.

Deware is also a champion boat racer. He has raced for 12 years and has raced Formula One boats for eight years. Deware is a five-time national champion and also won the national title in Canada once. He has also raced in Europe.

He has more than 50 wins in major competitions and has won numerous regional and divisional championships. In five of his eight years in Formula One he has been ranked in

Deware was a winning team member of the Parker Endurance Championship with Ron Ackerman and Jimbo McConnell.

He competed in his first boat race at age 16. At age 11 he designed and built a race boat after watching a televised race. He earned enough money by age 15 from boat design and building to purchase his first new boat. At age 16 Deware joined with a Chrysler Marine Division engineer to work on an outboard design project.

Deware, owner of Deware Funeral Home in Wollaston, is also active in the community. He is involved in many groups including:

Quincy Crisis Center, past president; Committee for Immigrants and Refugees, board member; The Way Up Youth Program, board member; Quincy Kiwanis, senior member; Wollaston Council UCT, member.

Wollaston Masonic Lodge, member; Taleb Grotto of Quincy, member; Wollaston Professional Business Association, member; Quincy Historical Society, member; Massachusetts Lodge #1 IOFF, member; South Shore Chamber of Commerce, member.

He has also been involved with the Shriner's Burns Hospitals, Kiwanis International, and was co-founder of a residential learning center for homeless mothers.

Sullivan Standout At Conn. State

Lenalie Sullivan, a sophomore from Quincy, played a prominent role in the Central Connecticut State University women's volleyball team that finished with a 16-15 record, its first winning season in at least 10 years.

Sullivan was the team leader with 162 digs, four block solos and 44 block assists and 49 assists. She was fourth with 32 service aces. She had five kills against Vermont, 10 kills in a three-game win over St. Francis, three aces and five digs in a win over Iona, four service aces against Boston College, six block assists against Yale, 10 digs against Northeastern and totalled 12 digs against Lehigh and Columbia.

Murphy Completes Seton Hall Volleyball

Deirdre Murphy, a graduate of North Quincy High School, recently completed playing for the Seton Hall University, N.J. volleyball team.

A senior, she helped the Pirates to a 22-11 overall record and a share of the Big East regular season title, which marks the first time ever that the volleyball team finished in first place.

Murphy played in 25 of the team's 33 matches, starting one. Used primarily as a back row and receiving specialist, Murphy also saw time as a setter and an off setter.

Deshler Expresses Thanks

Bill Deshler, coach of the Quincy Youth Soccer League's boys under 10 team, Labor Guild, expresses his thanks to the following players, families and friends for a successful season:

David Benn, George

She collected nine aces and 18 assists on the season.

Murphy is an English major at Seton Hall.

Murphy Finishes Freshman Season

Kevin Murphy, former goaltender for the North Quincy soccer team, recently completed his freshman season for the St. Anselm College team.

Murphy played in eight games for the 6-8-1

Hawks, had a 2.18 goals-against average and recorded one shutout.

Crime Watch

Holiday Safety Tips

The holidays are a special time of year, but they're also a time when busy people become careless and individuals are especially vulnerable to theft and other crimes. If you follow these few tips, you will make your holidays safe and happy.

Out and About:

- Even though you're rushed and thinking about a thousand things, stay alert to your surroundings and people around you.

- Lock your car and close the windows, even if you're only gone a few minutes. Lock all packages in the trunk of your car.

- Wait for public transportation or rides from friends in busy, well-lit areas.

- Teach your children to go to a store clerk and ask for help if you become separated in a shopping mall. Children should never go into a parking lot alone.

- Avoid carrying large amounts of cash. Pay for purchases with a check or credit card when possible.

- Be extra careful with purses and wallets. Carry a purse under your arm. Keep a wallet in an inside pocket with an elastic wrapped around it.

At Home:

- Be extra cautious about locking doors and windows when you leave the house, even if only for a few moments. Leave a radio or television on so that the house appears occupied.

- Don't display gifts where they can be seen through a window outside the home.

- If you go away get an automatic timer for your lights. Have a neighbor watch your home and pick up the mail and newspapers.

Your Neighborhood:

- Help keep the holidays happy for everyone. Share these tips with your neighbors.

- Get your Neighborhood Watch group together and go caroling. Don't forget the elderly and others who might be especially lonely during the holidays.

- If you don't have a Neighborhood Watch program, start one. Call 479-1212 ext. 349 for more information on how to start a Neighborhood Watch group.

On behalf of Chief Francis Mullen and the entire Quincy Police Department, I wish you a happy and safe holiday season.

Recreation Dept., Elks Co-Sponsor 'Hoop Shoot'

The Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks will co-sponsor the City of Quincy championship on the Elks' National "Hoop Shoot" free throw contest.

The Quincy competition is the first step in the National Contest for boys and girls ages 8-13. Contestants are assigned to three separate age groups (8-9, 10-11, and 12-13) in both boys and girls divisions.

Contestant age is determined by their age on April 1, 1993.

Participants are awarded points for successful free throws. Boys and girls 8 and 9 will shoot from four free in front of the regulation foul line.

The program is supervised in neighborhood gymnasiums by recreation leaders assigned to their regular recreation programs in that area. The program is free and recreation and non-recreation program participants may compete.

Participants may choose any of the various times or sites to compete; however, they may only compete in one Quincy qualifier.

Quincy Lodge Hoop Shoot chairman is Ed Miller, former North Quincy High basketball player and head coach and current head boy's basketball coach and athletic director at Marshfield High School.

First round of the Quincy contest will be offered:

- Atherton Hough, Saturday, Dec. 19, 9 a.m.
- Atlantic Middle, Dec. 19, 9 a.m.
- Beechwood Knoll, Dec. 19, 9 a.m.
- Lincoln-Hancock, Thursday, Dec. 17, 2 p.m.

Squirt A's Win, Tie

Quincy's Squirt A hockey team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, walloped Parkway, 10-1, and tied Waltham, 4-4.

In the Parkway romp Chad Fitzpatrick scored four goals and Ryan Barrett three. Mike Welch, Steve Ford and Jesse Winter had a goal apiece.

Fitzpatrick, Barrett and Winter each had two assists and Paul Markarian, Joe Ardgna and Sean Haidul one each.

In the Waltham game Winter took a pass from Ford and scored the tying goal with four minutes remaining. Fitzpatrick, Jim Sullivan and Winter had the other goals as Quincy opened up a 3-0 lead.

Winter had two assists and Brian Nolan one. Waltham came storming back with four unanswered goals.

Mite Cs Bow

Quincy's Mite C hockey team dropped a 5-2 decision to Parkway in a game played at Boston University.

Parkway broke the game open with goals in the last period. Jordan Virtue and Peter Torowski scored the Quincy goals and Joe Fitzpatrick and Matt Conso assisted on Virtue's goal.

Quincy will face South Boston this Sunday at 1 p.m. at the St. Sebastian's Rink.

Pee Wee B II Ties

Quincy's undefeated Pee Wee B II hockey team (5-0-4) tied Charlestown, 1-1, in its latest game.

Bobby Harvey scored the Quincy goal with Jason

Snait assisting.

Carlos Ashmanakas did some fine backchecking and Owen Nestor and Justin Doty played strong defense.

JUDGMENT

1. This cause of action came on for hearing on assessment of Damages before this Court and by agreement, after consideration of the facts, it is hereby ORDERED and ADJUDGED:

A. That the defendant is indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $2,263.35 for common charges, interest as set forth in the By-Laws of the condominium plus statutory interest, plus court costs.

B. That said defendant is further indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $680.29 for reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

C. Accordingly, plaintiffs shall recover of defendant $2,263.35 with interest plus attorneys' fees and costs in the sum of $2,943.64.

2. That a lien under G.L. c. 183A has been established, a certified copy of the Complaint having been filed in the appropriate Registry of Deeds, and that, therefore, pursuant to G.L. c. 183A, the plaintiffs shall have the right to foreclose on said lien and enter and sell said premises specified in the Complaint, to wit:

Unit #602E Marina Point Condominium, Certificate of Title #C193-201 filed in the Norfolk Registry District of the Land Court.

3. That in accordance with G.L. c. 183A, §6 this lien has priority over all liens and encumbrances with the exception of the first mortgage, municipal taxes, and filed federal tax liens.

4. That the above-mentioned sale shall be subject to the first mortgage, outstanding taxes and any other encumbrances which by law would have priority over this lien and that the plaintiffs may enter upon and sell the premises in an attempt to satisfy this judgment and lien in whole or in part.

5. That said sale and entry shall be held only after the plaintiffs have advertised the sale together with the location thereof and the terms of sale, and further together with a copy of this judgment in The Quincy, a newspaper of local jurisdiction, once per week for a period of three weeks, first publication date to be no later than 21 days before the date of sale.

Quincy Evergreen Program To Mulch Christmas Trees

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Evergreen Program will once again accept Christmas trees in need of mulching at the Park and Recreation Facility, 100 Southern Artery.

The program, which is now in its third year, is sponsored by J.M. Cashman, Inc., 77 Federal Ave.

Program Chairman Leo Kelly said he hopes the program does as well this year as in its first two.

"We took in 2,600 trees the first year and 2,300 the second," said Kelly. "We're looking forward to another successful year."

Everyone who brings in a tree to be mulched will receive a coupon for a live 10-inch evergreen plant, which will be available in April. Kelly noted that both sides benefit from this "swap."

"It's a way of both recycling (the trees) and beautification (with the plants)," he said. "The person who receives the evergreen can plant it wherever he or she wants."

Kelly added that mulching a tree is an important way of keeping landfills empty.

"A tree takes 30 years to dissolve in a landfill," he said.

In addition to trees, used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon, Kelly said.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the Park and Recreation Center weekdays between Dec. 28 and Jan. 8 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from Dec. 26 to Jan. 9 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The program is open to Quincy residents only.

3 More Unions Reach Agreement On New Contracts

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Three more city employee unions have come to an agreement concerning the city's recent change to a single health plan.

The two police unions, the patrolmen and the superior officers, and Local 1139, the laborers union, have negotiated new contracts with the city in return for accepting the new health plan.

A total of 21 of the city's 24 unions have now accepted the health plan.

The health plan saves the city about $960,000 through the remainder of the fiscal year. Personnel Director Kathleen Yeager said the city had promised that any savings would be turned back to employees.

The new plan is expected to help the city reduce insurance cost increases in the future by more than $1 million each year.

Only three unions have not yet joined. Yeager said she is currently negotiating with the remaining unions, the firefighters, public safety, and school maintenance workers.

Both police unions will receive a two percent raise (which amounts to a one percent raise for the rest of the current fiscal year) effective Jan. 1, 1993. This will be followed by a two percent raise effective Jan. 1, 1994, a three percent raise effective Jan. 1, 1995 and a one percent raise effective June 30, 1995.

The laborer's union will receive a similar two percent raise effective Jan. 1, 1993 and will then negotiate a new contract which will begin July 1, 1993.

None of the three unions will receive the 1.1 percent increase approved Nov. 2 for 18 other municipal unions.

Yeager said the unions had agreed to contracts with no raises to help the city during its recent fiscal crisis. She said that the unions had negotiated "wage reopeners" which allow the contract to be renegotiated if circumstances change.

None of the new contracts have yet received City Council approval. The proposals have been placed in the Ordinance Committee and could be voted on at a special Council meeting Jan. 11.

City Council President Charles Phelan said he expects the raises will be approved.

Reviewing Damage Repair Bids

City Ponders Raising Seawalls, Buying Homes

City officials want to get right to work recovering from the recent storm which damaged seawalls and private homes. However, the city and residents do not yet qualify for federal assistance because Gov. William Weld has not declared Quincy a disaster area.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton is reviewing bids this week for seawall repairs on Shelton Road in Adams Shore, Narragansett and Chickatabot Roads and Shore Ave. in Merrymount, and Edgewater Drive in Houghs Neck.

Colton said seven bids were received including a low bid of $342,819. The high bid is $592,000.

Colton and members of the City Council discussed ways storm damage could be prevented in the future including raising the height of the wall at Chickatabot and Narragansett Roads and purchasing private homes which are frequently damaged by bad storms. Colton said he will ask FEMA to consider these ideas to cut down on future costs.

The city is not eligible for FEMA unless Gov. Weld declares Norfolk County a disaster area. Weld has declared Plymouth County a disaster area. The towns of Marshfield, Scituate, Duxbury, Hull, Hingham and Cohasset are in Plymouth County.

A state official said Tuesday that it is likely that Norfolk County will be declared a disaster area.

"Quincy's chances look very good," said Diane Brown-Couture of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency. "It looks positive for Nantucket, Norfolk, Worcester and Dukes Counties."

Brown-Couture said the announcement may be made as early as Wednesday (Dec. 23) following a meeting with FEMA officials. She said the delay for Norfolk County is due to the fact that damage surveys have not been completed to determine if the area meets federal guidelines for assistance.

Public assistance briefings will be held beginning the week of Jan. 4 in each county. The briefings will instruct people on how to apply. "We'll walk people through the process," Brown-Couture said.

She also said that her agency is looking at ways to assist lobstermen who were hurt by the storm.

The city will apply for

Quincy K Of C Provides New Communication Device For Disabled Young Man

By JOHN NOONAN

The Quincy Knights of Columbus Council No. 96, with the cooperation of the Massachusetts State Council Team, recently teamed up to provide a new avenue of communication for a young disabled Quincy man.

Jerry Burm, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burm of Quincy Point, has been unable to communicate orally since infancy except by means of gestures, some sign language and a communications book.

Jerry has been involved with the Speech and Language Clinic at the Children's Hospital in Boston since he was three years old. During recent medical and speech evaluations, physicians and therapists have noted a marked improvement in his communications skills through the use of an electronic device.

The device is called a Phonic Ear Vois 160 and costs $4,200.

Jerry's sister, Susan Burm, upon hearing of the potential for broadening her brother's scope for communicating with his family members and friends wrote to Grand Knight Vincent Cristiani of the Quincy K. of C. Council to ascertain what assistance, if any, might be provided toward the purchase of the electronic device.

In a most heart warming and appealing letter, Susan explained that her brother is a most sociable and loving person who comprehends what is being said to him by his responses through actions and gestures. Jerry is a delightful young man who enjoys his close relationships with his brothers and family. He enjoys very much being part of the ongoing social activities.

Cristiani wrote to officials at state K of C headquarters about this most deserving and worthy case. The one requirement needed was medical certification of the circumstances and disability involved.

Within a short time, a check for $4,200 was issued by the state K of C charitable fund division. The money was made possible through the Tootsie Roll drive held annually.

Cristiani, along with a delegation of Quincy Council officers, presented the check to Jerry's parents at their home during the recent 500th anniversary celebration of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

patron of the organization.

The entire Burm family, father, mother, sister and brother, was greatly moved by this donation. Tears filled their eyes. As for Jerry, he expressed beyond mere words the joy and appreciation for the gift received.

He communicated in a most expressive non-verbal manner his heartfelt gratitude, appreciation, and unbounded love to his benefactors for this kind and considerate action taken in his behalf.

Jerry has attended St. Coletta's Day School in Braintree and is currently attending the Greater Randolph Occupational Workshop (GROW).

Jerry anxiously looks forward to expanding his channels of communications with his family and friends, and in particular with his new friends at GROW and the members of the Quincy K of C Council and other Councils throughout the state.

By giving to the Tootsie Roll drive one may never know what heartfelt joy that simple act can bring. Ask Jerry Burm. Now that he has his own new channel of communication he will be able to let you know in a most extraordinary manner.

Amnesty May Be Available To Waterfront Property Owners

Owners of piers, wharves, docks, seawalls or filled waterfront property may be eligible for amnesty authorization under new regulations pertaining to the Public Waterfront Act.

Under the Public Waterfront Act, M.G.L. Chapter 91, owners of waterfront structures such as piers, wharves, docks, seawalls or filled waterfront property must apply for authorization from the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection.

This is to ensure that structures are safe and do not significantly obstruct navigation or other public rights.

Qualified owners have until Monday, Oct. 4, 1993, to apply for required authorizations. After that date, more restrictive regulations will apply and enforcement actions including fines and penalties may be imposed.

In order to qualify for amnesty under the new regulations of the Public Waterfront Act, the unlicensed structure or fill must have been in use since Jan. 1, 1984, and had no significant changes in use or structural alteration since that time.

If a structure or fill meets these criteria, owners are eligible for amnesty authorization: either an amnesty license or an amnesty interim approval.

For more information, call 617-292-5777 or write to Waterways Regulation Program, MA Department of Environmental Protection, One Winter St., 8th Floor, Boston, MA 02108.

SS Furniture Bank To Close

The South Shore Furniture Bank, formerly the South Shore Coalition for Basic Human Needs, will be closing by the end of 1992.

A few volunteers have organized and manned it the past three years, serving South Shore communities from Quincy to Plymouth, but it is now forced to close due to lack of help and volunteers.

New Year's Eve Festivities

Accent On Family Fun At First Night

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Quincy's first official First Night celebration next Thursday will emphasize family fun.

Indoor and outdoor festivities begin at 4 p.m. at locations throughout Quincy Center.

"The emphasis is on a family theme and one of our main priorities is low cost," City Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the First Night Committee.

Two of the evenings major attractions will be a parade at 7 p.m. in which the public is invited to participate and fireworks at midnight.

Cheney said 2,000 toy instruments and noisemakers will be distributed for the parade in which spectators are asked to join as the parade passes by.

No vendors will be allowed at the celebration. Instead, a "First Night Store" will be set up in the City Council chambers at City Hall which will sell First Night souvenirs and products from the various artists who will be participating.

Portable ramps will be set up in locations that are not handicapped accessible.

The Derbes Brothers 'Among Quincy's Best'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Let me add a note of thanks and appreciation to the Derbes Brothers. When we properly bidden the resurfacing of the College's Coddington Hall area the Derbes Brothers exceeded the required work in behalf of our college. They went out of their way to give us a better job than we expected or required.

I will remain forever appreciative of their concern and achievement.
The Derbes Brothers
rank among Quincy's best.

COPING WITH CONSTIPATION

Constipation means different things to different people. One person may feel perfectly healthy and comfortable with three bowel movements per week, while another might feel anxious and bloated having one per day.
Generally, constipation is defined as infrequent bowel movements, straining, a feeling of incomplete evacuation and/or hard stools. While constipation can often be remedied with a high fiber diet and exercise, the condition is sometimes a sign of more serious problems.
Diabetes, uremia and abnormal bowel structure are among the possibilities. Even certain drugs - diuretics, antihypertensives, antiarrhythmics, antiarrhythmics and analgesics, for example - can cause constipation.

P.S. The majority of healthy people in the Western world average one bowel movement per day.

Traditional -- and still effective -- treatments for constipation include drinking prune juice and eating bran muffins. If you would like to learn what you can do to stay healthy and ward off the danger of heart attacks, feel free to Questions On Assistant Clerk

One intriguing question (or is it two?) still remains unanswered at City Hall as 1992 is about to say goodbye.

Will the assistant City Clerk's job be retained and — if so — who will get it?

The $31,000 post has been vacant since Joseph Shea moved up to succeed John Gillis as City Clerk in October.

Gillis, who served 33 years as clerk — longest in the city's history — vacated the office during his campaign for Norfolk County Commission to which he was elected and will take that seat in January.

Several names have been speculated about as interested in the job including: Councillor Patricia Toland, Steve Doherty of Wollaston, a member of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds staff, Michael McFarland, Quincy restaurateur, Joseph Comer, son of John (Jake) Comer, Quincy Housing Authority executive director and former School Committeewoman Mary Collins. Latest name is that of Mary Hayes, a Quincy legal secretary and daughter of late School Committeeman James McCormick.

Toland is the most active contender of them and has been trying to line up the necessary five votes among City Council colleagues to win the job.

Although she is considered to probably have the best shot at it, she isn't exactly a shoo-in.

There is some reluctance among her colleagues. One reason is a feeling that voting for a fellow member might not set too well with the voting public. But Toland supporters dismiss this, insisting that there would only be a problem if the assistant clerk's job was a new one created by this City Council.

Another reason for the nervousness is the fact that if Toland got the job she would, of course, resign from the City Council.

LaRaia

LaRaia's 6850.

The seat would not automatically go to LaRaia, however. Ironically, a resolve introduced by Toland more than a year ago to have a vacancy automatically filled by the runner-up in the previous election is still in limbo.

LaRaia has been trying to woo members of the council for their support if Toland gets the assistant clerk's job.

But some councillors reportedly aren't too keen over the prospect of having LaRaia back there. LaRaia has always been a political Lone Ranger and maverick. There are those convinced he still dreams of someday

Mail Flowing Smoothly, Postmaster Says

The Christmas mail volume has flowed smoothly, thanks in no small measure to the public's cooperation with appeals to mail early, according to Boston District Manager of Customers Services Suzanne Henry.

Henry said that local mail volume peaked on Dec. 14, that it was handled quickly and efficiently, and that all

Christmas mail on hand will be processed by today (Thursday).

"For those who haven't yet mailed their Christmas cards and presents, we can still get them delivered to addresses in most cities if sent by Express Mail and deposited the morning of Dec. 24," she said.

Express Mail deliveries are made seven days a week, including Christmas Day.

returning to the mayor's office and another seat in the City Council could be his springboard. And, of course, there are those in the present council who have future mayoral dreams of their own.

Councillor Michael Cheney, who one day would like to be mayor himself, but has taken himself out of contention in 1993, has a resolve before the council to abolish the assistant clerk's job as it is now. He would make it a part-time position which he says is all it needs to be and, besides, it would save the city some money.

CHENEY

There have been mixed feelings about that. Some seem to agree with Cheney. Others wonder if the part-timer would be there at the right time to fill in for the clerk if the latter had to suddenly be out of the city or was taken ill.

If Cheney's resolve were approved, it would fly in the face of Quincy's history. Quincy has had both a full-time city clerk and assistant city clerk since becoming a city in 1889.

There have been 12 clerks and seven assistant clerks in those 103 years. Five of the assistants went on to become clerk.

And those arguing to retain the assistant clerk's job on a full time basis note that some cities have more than one assistant clerk.

The issue of whether the job should be retained and who should get it if it is, is expected to come to a head in January.

Should be interesting.

Nominations Coming In For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Nominations are coming in for The Quincy Sun's eighth annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Frank Kearns of Quincy was honored for his volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor.

Deadline to submit nominations is Thursday, Dec. 31.

Sun readers have the opportunity to nominate the person they feel is the most deserving.

After nominations close Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 5 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year

1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169

Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address no later than Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

Past recipients of the award, and the year of their selection, are:

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense, 1985).

Ruth Wainwright of Houghs Neck, a long-time community volunteer, 1986.

The late Richard J. Koch Sr., for his work with charitable and community causes over four decades, posthumously in 1987.

Martin Finnegan, retired Quincy high school athletic director, for coordinating Project

Impact, an innovative program which addresses alcohol and drug problems among youths, 1988.

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmentalist and charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, 1989.

Gerald Gherardi, for his contributions to charities and service organizations over a half century, 1990.

Those nominated the past seven years are eligible to be nominated again this year.

Again, the deadline for nominations is Thursday, Dec. 31.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Here is an opportunity for our readers to voice their opinion as to who should be The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1992.

State Urges New Fore River Bridge

The Massachusetts Department of Public Works recommended construction of a new Fore River bridge, possibly as part of a proposed Shawmut Trail from the Southeast Expressway to Lincoln St. in Hingham.

The DPW further recommended that the bridge be a vertical lift that could be opened to 175-foot clearance "enabling all vessels that could be constructed in the foreseeable future to pass up and down the river."

It was estimated that the bridge alone with minimum approaches could be built for $13.5 million but if it were tied in with the Shawmut Trail project the overall costs would be about $27.4 million.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said he will ask for the legislation necessary to have the bridge built.

VETO OVERRIDDEN

The City Council, by an 8-1 vote, overrode Mayor Della Chiesa's veto of an amended salary schedule for city employees. Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia cast the lone dissenting vote.

The new salary schedule would cost the city $569,000.

LaRaia said that he favored a salary schedule as originally recommended by the consultant firm of Barrington Associates after a $14,500 study. That schedule would cost $525,000.

"Six months from now," said George Yarrington, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, "Councillor LaRaia will be considered the most intelligent member of the Council for his stand tonight."

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Marge's Whoopee Pies With Filling

One of my most favorite desserts used to be "whoopie pies," but no matter which bakery I go to, none compares with the original.

However, recently at a club night at our friends Marge and Paul's house, she made whoopee pies for us and I have to say they came pretty close to the real thing. These can be made ahead of time. Marge used vanilla ice cream as the filling instead of the cream filling, but today's recipe has the ingredients for both.

MARGE'S WHOOPIE PIES WITH FILLING

1/2 cup margarine (or shortening)
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups flour

1 1/2 tps baking soda
1/2 tps baking powder
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 tsp salt

Cream shortening and sugar. Add the egg and mix. Add milk and vanilla. Mix well. Add the dry ingredients to the mixture. Drop by tablespoons (for large) and teaspoons (for small) on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in 425 degree oven for 7 (seven) minutes.

FILLING

1/2 cup margarine
1 cup powdered sugar
1 cup marshmallow fluff
1/2 tsp vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar. Add the fluff and vanilla. Add a few drops of milk and give spreading consistency. Happy Holidays!!!

Kristin Fiacco In Students' 'Who's Who'

Kristin Fiacco of Quincy was recently named to "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities" by Eastern Nazarene College.

She was selected based on her academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities, and potential for continued success.

Fiacco is a senior English major and has been involved in Evangelicals for Social Action and served as president of the Leadership Council (1991-92) and was a freshman orientation leader in 1991 at ENC.

She has also been involved in band, jazz ensemble, a staff writer for the newspaper, and a council member for the Nazarene Youth International.

Fiacco has been a Dean's List student since 1989 and is currently a volunteer for the Quincy Crisis Center.

Fiacco, a 1989 North Quincy High School graduate, is the daughter of Norene Fiacco.

Alyssa LaCroix Designs Sen. Harold's Christmas Card

Sen. Paul Harold's official Christmas card has been designed by a student from St. Coletta's School in Braintree for the 14th consecutive year.

Alyssa LaCroix, drew the winning design for this year's card. She will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond as a prize. The winning entry was selected by the faculty at St. Coletta's.

"We like to use the student's idea for the annual Christmas cards instead of the usual etching of the State House because, after all, Christmas is for children," Harold said.

Harold held an appreciation party for the students at the school recently.

WOLLASTON MOTHERS CLUB was entertained with Christmas carols by Wollaston School fourth and fifth grade chorus directed by Mary Ruth-Scott, elementary music specialist.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit their photos with their announcements and when submitting their wedding photo to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Giant Quincy Center Mural Crowd Pleaser

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Most people traveling through Quincy Center have probably noticed the giant mural that was painted recently in the window of the former Child World at 1473 Hancock St.

The questions that most often come to mind are undoubtedly "Who painted that?" and "Why was it painted there?"

Well, here's the story, as told by Ruth Haderski, the freelance artist from Weymouth whose talents produced the mural:

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association decided that something should be put in the window of the building that would help spread Christmas cheer and brighten people's spirits during the holiday season.

Paul Sturman, owner of Frantic Framers at 1592 Hancock St., suggested to his fellow QCBPA members that Haderski paint a mural in the Child World window. Sturman was familiar with Haderski's work because she had done paintings in Frantic Framers' windows and also frequented the store for frames, according to Haderski.

The rest, she said, was simple.

"The mural is just one part of a panoramic view of Quincy Center I sketched in 1989," said Haderski. "I wanted to do something to cheer people up, so I just took a part of the Quincy Center sketch and painted that in the window."

The mural shows United First Parish Church (Church of the Presidents) on the left side of the window and the old City Hall building on the right, with the city seal situated in between.

Haderski noted, however, that the words "God Bless Quincy," which are not part of the original sketch, were added as an afterthought.

"I was inspired to remind people of how God has had a hand in our history to allow great things to happen for Quincy," she said. "The history of Quincy has God's hand in it. I really believe He cares about the city."

Expanded Hours At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise the pool at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School for an expanded schedule during the school vacation period.

Swims have been added on Monday, Dec. 28, Tuesday, Dec. 29, and Wednesday, Dec. 30. Participants age 6 through high school may swim from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Participants may use their regular pool participation card or pay a guest fee at the door. Adults who accompany youngsters may also participate in this activity.

All swims will be supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department Aquatic Staff.

The day program is additional to the regular evening schedule evening and Sunday program that is currently in effect.

There will be no schedule of swimming on Dec. 24, 25, 27, 31 and Jan. 1.

Regular schedule will resume Sunday, Jan. 3.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1386.

South Shore Visiting Nurse Donates Food, Gifts To Needy

South Shore Visiting Nurse & Health Services employees donated more than 200 pounds of non-perishable food and 200 holiday gifts to help South Shore residents during the holidays.

The food was donated to the Salvation Army for distribution to needy South Shore families.

The gifts were donated to DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), a shelter for battered women and their children.

"Our desire to help families at the holiday season reflects our commitment to helping South Shore families year round. Most of our employees are residents of the towns in which we provide services. We truly care about the people in our community," said Margaret Porteus Johnson, supervisor of volunteers at SSVN&HS.

A FEW WORDS ON VISCOSITY

If the topic of engine oil viscosity should come up in after-dinner conversation, inform all dinner guests that viscosity is a measure of oil thickness at a certain temperature. The standardization for measuring viscosity began in 1911, when the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) set grades (OW through 25W) of oils designed to flow at low temperatures ("W" is for winter). Also included were oils 20 through 60, which were rated at 212 degrees F. Until the 1960's, the availability of only single grade oils made it necessary to select engine-oil viscosity according to season, thicker oil in summer and thinner oil in winter. Multigrade oils were introduced by adding "viscosity index improvers" to low-viscosity base oil, providing the best of both grades in a single oil.

HINT: The latest API (American Petroleum Institute) service rating of SG indicates that the oil has acceptable levels of additives.

CHRISTMAS IN CHURCH

lights the way to the spirit and brotherhood of Christmas

The Christmas Story

Luke, 2, 1-14. At that time, there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus that a census of the whole world should be taken. The first census took place while Cyrenus was governor of Syria.

And all were going each to his own town, to register.

And Joseph also sent from Galilee out of the town of Nazareth into Judea to the town of David, which is called Bethlehem - because he was of the house and family of David - to register, together with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child.

And it came to pass while they were there, that the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled.

And she brought forth her first-born Son, and wrapped Him in swaddling clothes, and laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the Inn.

And there were shepherds in the same district living in the fields and keeping watch over their flock by night.

And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by them and the glory of God shone round them, and they feared exceedingly.

And the angel said to them, "Do not be afraid, for behold, I bring you good news of great joy which shall be to all the people; for today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you. Who is Christ the Lord.

And this shall be a sign to you; you will find an infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger."

And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men of good will."

'Food For Friends' Raises $3,000 In Quincy

Stop & Shop employees raised nearly $3,000 in Quincy as part of the "Food For Friends" program to help needy people.

The money raised in Quincy, $1,779.10 at the Newport Ave. store and $1,119 raised at the Southern Artery store, will be donated to DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), a shelter for battered women and their children.

More than $250,000 was raised throughout New England for various charities.

"We do a great deal for those in need, but as long as there are hungry people, we can never do enough," said Robert Tobin, president and chief operating officer of Stop & Shop.

Employees volunteered time to produce fundraisers including Kid's Fairs, Walk-a-thons, Used Book Sales, and more.

"I speak on behalf of everyone at Stop & Shop when I say how pleased we are at the success of this program," continued Tobin. "The success of Food For Friends was made possible by the tremendous efforts of our employees who donated their time and energy and by the generous support of our shoppers."

Day Care Services Has Openings

South Shore Day Care Services has several openings available for school-aged children in its licensed after school day care programs in Quincy, Milton, Randolph, Weymouth, Braintree and Hull.

Reduced fees are available for families who meet state income guidelines and who are working or are in training programs or school.

Programs are open each afternoon and from 7:30 a.m. during school vacations, release days and the summer. Transportation is provided from the school to the program site.

For information about eligibility, program locations and rates, call

Judi at 331-8505.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

Third graders in Quincy Public Schools again this year were invited to submit articles for the Christmas, Hanukkah and New Year's holiday season.

The theme for their article is: "If I could have one wish come true this holiday season it would be..."

The Sun is happy to share these young thoughts with you at this season. Publishing these articles has become a tradition that all of us at The Sun look forward to each year and, we hope, you do, too.

We want to thank Dr. Janet DiTullio, Director of Curriculum in the Quincy Public School System and classroom teachers for their cooperation and assistance.

We were again swamped with entries and because of space limitations we regret we cannot print every article submitted. There were so many others that were worthy of publication, too.

We do hope to publish more next week.

To all who participated we extend season's greetings and a happy, healthy, prosperous New Year.

Thank you all, most sincerely.

It would be to be on a football team.

Paul Keeley
Point Webster

It would be for the people who don't have any homes or food to have homes and food from now on.

Stephanie Imbornone
Bemazzani

It would be that everyone would have peace and love in their hearts, and that everyone could have a wonderful Christmas celebrating the birthday of Jesus Christ.

Noah Tubo
Montclair

It would be a computer. I love computers.

James Keohane
Montclair

It would be an infinity of wishes. I would get wishes to give to the poor, to give presents to others on birthdays or Christmas, and to be President or a billionaire.

Joseph Burke
Squantum

It would be for everybody to have a family.

Jillian Mullen
Squantum

It would be to help clean up the earth. If people don't clean up the earth they won't have fun because the snow will be filled with trash.

Brian Keefe
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a tape recorder, record player, and speakers. I would listen to it all the time.

Shawn Bowles
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that the people in the world wouldn't die or go hungry, and that there would be peace in the world.

Mark Sao
Montclair

It would be to have a piano. Also, I would help the poor people and buy clothing and food for them.

Sara Doyle
Bemazzani

It would be to have all the Sega Genesis games in the world.

Daniel Duggan
Bemazzani

It would be for everyone to stop body pollution. Don't do drugs or steroids. Be cool!

James White
Point Webster

It would be for poor people to have food and clothes.

James LaFleur
Point Webster

It would be to have three feet of snow in Quincy to play in and sled on.

Andy Lee
Atherton Hough

It would be to have all the toys in the universe. I would keep them up high so nobody could reach them.

Steven Taylor
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be no more wars because too many people are dying. Also I wish that the people of Somalia could live like us.

Brett Schwan
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a bike because the one I have now is old.

Craig Good
Squantum

It would be that all the homeless people have a home, a job, and everything we have.

Adrean Pearson
Squantum

It would be to have Game Gear and to see more poor people in homes.

Brett Williams
Bemazzani

It would be to help people who are homeless and to have Sega Genesis.

Amanda Goodwin
Bemazzani

It would be for everyone to have at least one friend and go to a great school like Montclair School.

Kiley Verisotsky
Montclair

It would be that we have great fun, celebrate the holiday and have a happy holiday season.

Hanson
Montclair

It would be that everyone pitch in and help make this world a better place by cleaning up the environment.

Nicole Ferris
Point Webster

It would be a typewriter because I want to make stories.

Ola Tabuni
Point Webster

It would be to have a dog. Dogs are so fun to play with.

Ashley Higgins
Montclair

It would be that I get some toys and that the homeless people get a home.

Kristin Nicholls
Montclair

It would be to get weights with a weight bench.

Daniel Spillane
Bemazzani

It would be for a million wishes because then I could wish for things like 1) the soldiers coming home safely from Somalia, 2) Christmas could be more loving, and 3) the homeless could have homes and the poor could have food and shelter.

Jeffrey Brink
Atherton Hough

It would be for it to snow. Then people could have fun and play in the snow.

Genesis Quencul
Atherton Hough

It would be a Barbie doll house, totally long hair Barbie and new clothes, playing I love playing with them.

Vidia Mahadeo
Squantum

It would be Christmas, because I get presents from Santa. Christmas is Jesus' birthday.

Matthew Kobialka
Squantum

It would be a trip to China. I want to see my Aunt Grace because she buys me everything. She even lets me go to work with her. I would like to see my cousin, too, because they bring me to a big park.

Annie Graceli
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that my Uncle Dennis would come back to Quincy, because he moved to California and I miss him.

Kristen Faherty
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a snowstorm so we can sled and skate.

Joseph Cunningham
Montclair

It would be $1 million, a new van, a new car and a fast bike.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd from Page 12)

It would be peace on the Earth. For people to stop fighting, be kind to each other, and stop polluting.

Gabriel Parsons
Montclair

It would be that I could be a nice teacher. Being a teacher is a nice thing. You can help children to learn and to spell and you can play with them.

Vina Le
Montclair

It would be that everybody in the world have food and a home.

Valerie Ricciardi
Bernazzani

It would be to have peace and happiness all over the world.

Christopher Farrow
Bernazzani

It would be that all the homeless people have homes.

Patrick McGillicuddy
Squantum

It would be to go to Florida because my godfather lives there.

James Hawco
Squantum

It would be to have a motorcycle.

Charles Roulet
Point Webster

It would be that the homeless had food, peace, and homes, too. It would be good if they had those things.

Jeffrey Haslett
Point Webster

It would be to help the poor.

Kate Minicucci
Atherton Hough

It would be that all the people who had storm damage are able to rebuild and have places to stay. I live near the beach and I know how it feels. It's no fun.

Ben Powell
Atherton Hough

It would be that the ocean will be clean so the fish will live. I also wish the air wasn't polluted so little birds won't die.

Ivan Esposito
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to play Nintendo and play outside with my friend.

John Nguyen
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a nice, real typewriter so I could do my homework with it.

Kelly Walker
Point Webster

It would be that all the homeless had a home because they need one.

Alexandra Powers
Point Webster

It would be for a good friend that wouldn't lie to me and would play with me all the time.

William Egan
Montclair

It would be for my brother to come back to life. He was really nice. I only got to see him when I was a baby. I love him. I miss him a lot.

Christine Maloney
Montclair

It would be to have my Dad home for the holidays. He is in Saudi Arabia, and I miss him very much.

Philip Abou-Zaki
Bernazzani

It would be to help the poor have enough food for Christmas this year.

Ashley Neill
Atherton Hough

It would be that I could talk to my cats and tell them not to knock down the Christmas tree. And I could ask them if they got fed yet so they don't starve.

Courtney Ryan
Atherton Hough

It would be for my Mom's back to get better so we can go to Disney World.

Dana Hamilton
Squantum

It would be that the homeless have their own holiday season and that they are happy.

Kayla Belmont
Squantum

It would be that my family could fly, because when we walk are legs are so tired.

Tina Wong
Montclair

It would be for Mrs. McMan to come back. We all like her and she is sick.

Georgia Giokas
Montclair

It would be no more fighting and killing.

Michael Doherty
Point Webster

It would be better times for my Nana. She has pneumonia and she has lost her job. I want her to be happy.

Lauren Ritchie
Point Webster

It would be to get my own room. I do not like to sleep with my brother.

Sean Glyn
Point Webster

It would be that a child my age move up the street. I used to have a child who lived across the street and I miss her.

Kathleen Hester
Squantum

It would be that my Dad doesn't lose his job and he will not be sad.

Jeffrey Narbonne
Squantum

It would be a Barbie car, so I can go to my friend's house, and so I can learn to drive.

Patricia Peguero
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have a baby sister because I have two brothers at home. If I had a sister my baby brother could have someone to play with.

Tom Callahan
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that I would have as many wishes as I wanted. Then I would be able to help with the problems of the earth, help the homeless and sick, and almost every problem facing us today.

Becca Strauchon
Atherton Hough

It would be to help the poor. They might be sick or might not have food or shelter on Christmas Day.

Kevin Livingston
Atherton Hough

It would be to become a paper boy. I would also love to get some skates.

Domenic Darling
Bernazzani

It would be to have a new game for Nintendo. I would also make the world nicer.

Robert Arnold
Bernazzani

It would be peace, because war is wrecking the world. There are too many wars.

Dennis Mackey
Squantum

It would be that I got a Chicago Bulls jacket.

Kevin
Squantum

It would be that it snowed because I can have fun in the snow.

Sue-Li Moy
Montclair

It would be that it is peaceful so that the holiday season will be wonderful.

Leslie Wong
Montclair

It would be to get a kitten because I love kittens. I would like it to replace the kitten of mine that died.

Rachel Silverman
Squantum

It would be to play pro hockey. It's a special wish because I've always wanted to play pro hockey.

Matthew Ling
Squantum

It would be to get a lot of presents.

Trevor Turner
Squantum

It would be that my mom and dad could always have good luck and happiness.

Michael Wong
Parker

It would be that the people who are ill will make it to Christmas so they can be with their family and friends. I hope they can enjoy Christmas. This is dedicated to my next door neighbor.

Lauren McFarland
Parker

It would be for my dad to be out of a wheelchair. I want him to hug me, help make cards with me and drive me to the store.

Kristi Dickey
Parker

It would be to have my dead dog, Eli, back. He died in 1985, in April. Eli got run over by a truck. We took him to the vet and they put him to sleep. I was two years old when Eli died. Mom doesn't want any more pets.

Jessica Knowles
Wollaston

It would be to have three wishes. My first wish would be Sega Genesis system 16 Bit. My second wish would be for my desk to be neat. My third wish would be Hockey and Sonic 2 games for Sega Genesis.

Jeffrey Hunt
Wollaston

It would be that my brother doesn't get shot in the marines because he is in salt and that's the hardest stage. He is only 18 years old.

Christopher Ineglin

(Cont'd from Page 13)

It would be to get a dog. It would keep me company. It would be my best friend. It would keep me safe.

Katie Dayton
Wollaston

It would be to see my friend Matthew in New Jersey. He sometimes talks too much. But he is still my friend. I don't see him too much so I call him. This is my Christmas wish.

Stephen Yee
Wollaston

It would be a gift certificate for my mom because she buys things for us instead of herself. She is a good mother and she deserves the credit. I wish Christmas would hurry up and come!

Janine Whealan
Wollaston

It would be for Sega Genesis. I hope Santa brings it for Christmas. It is the thing I want most of all. Sega Genesis is like Nintendo. I have been wishing for it for a long time.

Leo Ahern
Parker

It would be to have a Sony Walkman. It has loud speakers. It does cost a lot.

Jonathan Talient
Parker

It would be to have the homeless find a home.

Billy McKeon
Atherton Hough

It would be for a fire engine that is red and has a siren and flashing lights.

Billy Shaw
Merrymount

It would be for $10 million. If I had $10 million, it's color would probably be green and you can buy a lot of stuff with it.

Noel Vickery
Merrymount

It would be for a car. It would go very fast and be colored red.

Thosaphol Vivatyanuk
Merrymount

It would be to stop pollution. Here are some of the ways we pollute the air: we pollute by littering, by fumes from cars, by smoke and fumes from factories. All of these things are destroying the ozone. We should all help stop pollution.

Durrel Fonville
Snug Harbor

It would be to be a baseball player. I want to be a pitcher or a shortstop on the Red Sox. Baseball is fun and I like it.

Chris Ham
Parker

It would be to have my Uncle Bill at Christmas. He used to help us open gifts. I'll miss him this Christmas because he passed away.

Joseph Bisconte
Wollaston

It would be for there to be more flowers. I would like nice people to play with. I would like no parks to get torn down so that kids can still play in nice parks. We don't need messed up ones. I wish for no pollution in our waters and no pollution in the air. There should not be fires down the beach or anywhere because the town will smell like smoke. It can make you choke or you can even have a heart attack and die.

Rachel Archibald
Snug Harbor

It would be to be rich. My family doesn't have a lot of money. We need to pay the bills. We need to buy food. We need clothes and blankets to keep warm. We need to buy papers, pencils, books and pens. Me sister needs to buy eye glasses.

Lily Ng
Parker

It would be that I could meet an actress, Bette Midler. I like the way she sings. I would ask her for singing lessons because she sings well.

Kylie Mansfield
Wollaston

It would be to have my own room. I want to get away from my sister because my room stinks with her perfume and powder. I wish my room would be a little cleaner.

Tracey Bergonzi
Wollaston

It would be that the soldiers in Somalia come home safely after helping their people get enough food to eat and making them well. One of my friends has a cousin in Somalia. I think it's sad that some people have no food or medical treatment.

Marianne Chini
Atherton Hough

It would be to get more money. I would buy a big house for the homeless people. I would buy my family a house and a car. I would buy the world's fastest road car for me.

John Ryan
Point Webster

It would be to have an Aladdin tape.

Scott Hall
Point Webster

It would be to have peace and to feed the hungry people everywhere in the world.

Joanne Virginio
Bernazzani

It would be to have it snow. I like snow and snowball fights.

Douglas Murphy
Bernazzani

It would be a new pair of boots.

Amy Hsu
Bernazzani

It would be to get a keyboard so that I could play music.

Pauline Mah
Bernazzani

It would be for material, buttons, and wood so I can make things. I want flowers so I can grow them everywhere and the world will be so beautiful.

Kristi McCafferty
Snug Harbor

It would be that we can stop polluting the ocean and take care of the ocean animals. I wish we could plant more trees and take care of the world.

Michael Nikolsky
Snug Harbor

It would be no more drugs. Then people will stop getting killed by drugs. I think to the people who do drugs, it will make their life a whole lot easier.

Jacob Laukkanen
Snug Harbor

It would be for a Mustang car. I would like it to be green with a CB radio and a tape deck.

Michael St. Romain
Merrymount

It would be for a lot of art stuff. I love art. I would want paper, glue, and more. I always get some art stuff for Christmas. I love to paint. I love Christmas.

Julia Duncan
Merrymount

It would be for a go cart. I hope it is very fast. I hope it is blue. I hope it has four-wheel drive.

John Carson
Merrymount

It would be that my family could go to Ireland for Christmas. I have not seen them since last Easter.

Joseph O'Connor
Wollaston

It would be to by a Catalano truck. A nice truck. One that is comfortable. And I can't wait till I'm old enough to drive it.

Keith DeCamra
Wollaston

It would be to visit Santa because I would like to see the elves that work for Santa.

Mary Joseph
Wollaston

It would be to stop all wars that are going on.

Michael Nelson
Atherton Hough

It would be that nobody kills people or animals. Because people can bring them to the zoo so they can feed them and they would be saved. And people could come and see them do tricks. That's why I don't want anybody to kill people and animals.

Vanessa Carrasguillo
Snug Harbor

It would be that I could have every toy in the toy store except the boys' toys and baby toys.

Tiffani Brosnan
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that my friend could have a little more food and some toys for Christmas, because she lives in a shelter.

Ashley Bina
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a 12-foot swimming pool with a sky blue diving board. I would practice swimming every day and I could see if my dad can beat me in a race.

Jonathan Okekeke
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that homeless people could get houses.

Alex Gray
Squantum

It would be that I could fly.

Chris Norland
Squantum

It would be for everything I asked for at Christmas, like toys, clothes, games, puzzles, candy and a 10-speed bike.

Nickolus Leonard
Montclair

It would be to have my own room so I would have my privacy.

Laura Matos
Montclair

It would be for most, if not all, homeless people to get a home and have a happy Christmas.

Jennifer Hanlon
Squantum

It would be to bring joy to every heart and to help the homeless and poor. I think the homeless and poor should get a nice Christmas, too, just like us.

It would be to help save the earth. The earth is where we live. It's where we play. The earth has water so we can drink it. The earth is important because when we plant seeds, it turns into vegetables. And under ground, they have water called springs.

Son Duong
Parker

It would be that all the homeless people would have a home and that they had plenty of food.

Brandon Desher
Parker

It would be for a set of books I want so bad. It has charms that comes with it. They are awesome. They are good to read.

Rachel Carrera
Merrymount

It would be for a radio cassette player. The color would be pink. I would listen to it all day.

Brandy Jackson
Merrymount

It would be to see Santa and Mrs. Claus. They would have red cheeks and rosy, cozy noses. They would have red and white clothing. Santa would have a black belt with a yellow buckle. Mrs. Claus would have a red ribbon around her waist.

Kathryn Grogan
Merrymount

It would be to be a gymnast. I wish I could be in the Olympics and have lots of fun. I would love to be a pro at it. Most of all I would love to get the gold medal. I want to walk on the balance beam. I would like to flip on the mats.

Sherri McCusker
Point-Webster

It would be for my baby sister not to be handicapped. She would not have to use metal braces. I would like it if she could walk better. She could ride a bike.

Jennifer Wallace
Point-Webster

It would be that everything is free so no one would be poor.

David Buttomer
Parker

It would be to have a baby sister. It would be fun to have a baby in the house. Since my little brother, we haven't had a baby in the house. I would stand by her side while she is growing up. I would have a lot of fun with her.

Jaclyn Robinson
Point-Webster

It would be that the people in Somalia have food. I hope that the soldiers in Somalia can come home for Christmas.

Kelly Coleman
Atherton Hough

It would be for a loving Christmas with people less interested in presents.

Jennifer Lawton
Atherton Hough

It would be that my Grandmother could come back from California for Christmas. I would love to see her. I miss her.

Richard Stander
Atherton Hough

It would be to see my grandfather more often. He's my only grandfather and he lives in Florida.

Allison Lacey
Montclair

I would be for my family to win $2 million in the lottery.

Kassandra McSharry
Montclair

It would be to have peace all over the world, and to help the homeless and give them presents.

Daniel DiNardo
Bemazzani

It would be to have my whole family together for this holiday. I would like to get Game Gear also.

Patrick Duff
Bemazzani

It would be for more schools.

Alex Lentini
Snug Harbor

It would be to stop polluting. We need this because animals keep dying.

Brian Reeves
Snug Harbor

It would be for a dog. So I can play with him and cuddle with him.

Jonathan Buckley
Wollaston

It would be that I was the smartest girl one earth. My mother always wants us to be smart. I don't want to be like those poor people always sleeping on the sidewalk.

Emily Mui
Parker

It would be to see my cousin Brian. He lives so far away in Norwood, Mass. We could play together. We could play hockey and make military scenes with my dad's army soldiers.

Joe Hem
Parker

It would be to live in a house. The reason is because I live in an apartment. I wish it would be a white house with a white fence and green grass and flowers. I also wanted a large play room with lots of toys. That house is my wish.

Ngan Nguyen
Parker

It would be for the homeless to be safe always and that they will be nice and warm for always and find a home. Also, to be healthy and be comfortable.

Stacey Smith
Merrymount

It would be for a dog with spots all over it, with a black tail and a collar around his neck. It would be a Golden Retriever.

Jessica Loud
Merrymount

It would be that all the people in the U.S.A. give some money to the people that are starving. It can be a penny or a dollar. This would make sure that no one goes hungry or uncared for during the holidays.

Cara Cullen
Atherton Hough

It would be to get Sega Genesis and Game Gear.

Andrew Ngo
Montclair

It would be for my Aunt Karen and my cousins Billy and Brian to have a happy Christmas. I love them.

Mark Fitzpatrick
Montclair

It would be to have 10 brothers. I love my baby brother. He is two years old.

Meghan Vandewater
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that my great-grandfather was still alive. When he died I was so little I never got to know him. Now I only have pictures.

Erica Mayo
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to stop polluting seas. Fish get stuck in six-pack rings. They can't eat and they die. People can't go swimming.

Rebecca Bellevue
Point-Webster

It would be to have Sega Genesis. I like it more than Nintendo because it has better graphics and it has an extra button. The games for it are better than Nintendo games.

Andrei MacKenzie
Point-Webster

It would be to get a nice keyboard. Also, I would help the poor people.

Gloria Ngan
Bemazzani

It would be to feed the people in Somalia and other countries that are poor.

Caitlin Doughty
Bemazzani

It would be that I had all the money in the world so I could buy a castle.

Steven Mann
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be a nice dinner on Christmas eve. Then play with my cousins. After that we go home and wait for Santa.

Andrew Ross
Merrymount

It would be that I had a thousand dollars so I can be rich. I would buy a purple car and a shiny, black truck.

Frederick Owen
Parker

It would be that all the wishes I wished for would come true. I could have so many wishes.

Victor G. Siu
Parker

It would be for a German shepherd that has lots of hair and that is trained. With black hair and gray hair, a black collar around its neck, that has pointy ears and a nose like a person.

Paul Flynn
Merrymount

It would be a toy poodle, which is a real dog.

Lekishia Knight
Squantum

It would be for the people in the hospital to get better and have a happy Christmas themselves.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd from Page 15)

It would be that we can take care of the world better. I wish people wouldn't pollute the ocean and people would change and people wouldn't litter.

Kristi Wack
Snug Harbor

It would be to stop littering and stop polluting the water.

Mariana Caruso
Snug Harbor

It would be that I could have lots of trolls. They are cute and funny. My mom said, "It is an ugly troll." I think I will have lots of trolls this Christmas. When I get lots of trolls I will thank the people who gave me the trolls. I will hug them, kiss them, and sleep with them. I will share them with my big brother.

Joanne Low
Parker

It would be that I was the strongest man in the world. Then I could protect my mother, father and all my brothers from bad people like robbers and killers.

Danny Galligan
Atherton Hough

It would be for a boat. It would be a speed boat. It would go 65 m.p.h. I would drive all day and the next day. I would cook what I caught.

Shawn Richardson
Merrymount

It would be to go to Disney World because I know it will be fun.

Kristina Kalabokas
Parker

It would be for a little puppy for my pet. So I wish it would be the littiest of them all. I would take good care of him. He would be the healthiest dog in the world.

Peter Abruzzese
Merrymount

It would be to go to Lebanon. In Lebanon it is always hot. In Lebanon I could go swimming every day. I could see my relatives. I would only have school on Friday and Sunday.

Heba Eid
Point-Webster

It would be to give homeless people a home. They need a place to keep warm and store food when there is a storm or blizzard. They need a place to sleep at night. At morning and night they have no place to brush their teeth or wash their face. They have to stay in the same clothes. It is not fair to them.

Courtney Swimm
Point-Webster

It would be that Jesus, the Son of God, would come back to earth. Jesus is very happy all the time and very nice all the time.

Annie Chubbuck
Montclair

It would be for people not to litter because it makes our world messy. If no one litters, our world will be more beautiful.

Nicole Coleman
Snug Harbor

It would be for all the homeless to have a shelter, food and love.

Kathryn MacRitchie
Squantum

It would be that there would be no more weapons or drugs. They kill people. Drugs and weapons are dangerous.

Wayne Grant
Snug Harbor

It would be that I don't want to always be the last.

Alice Chan
Parker

It would be to breath in space because I could find life on another planet.

Justin Green
Parker

It would be that my family will have a great day.

Tammy Tan
Parker

It would be to have all pluses on my report card and no minuses.

Jonathan Kou
Parker

It would be to stop drug dealers and drug addicts. It would save lives. There would be less robberies. It wrecks families.

John C.
Point-Webster

It would be to travel to other planets. I would learn more about the planet. I would meet new people. I would have a good story for science.

Kevin Connolly
Point-Webster

It would be to have a dog that did whatever I said.

Joseph Gallagher
Montclair

It would that my five-year-old sister wouldn't cry.

Shanna White
Bernazzani

It would be for the storm to end, the people in Somalia to have food, and the war to stop. I also want Nintendo.

Colin Potter
Bernazzani

It would be for everyone to have peace, because world peace and love are very important.

Troy Tower
Squantum

It would be to go to Cape Cod to spend the holidays.

Billy Brooks
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that when Santa comes he could take me up to his house and I could see what he does all summer.

Jennifer Connors
Montclair

It would be for a family! A father, a mom, a brother, a sister. A family is like a group. In fact they take care of you, they love you, they'll cook for you and tuck you in at night. When you're feeling blue you can talk to them and you can always count on them.

Tatjana Carter
Merrymount

It would be to have another baby kitten. Then I would have two. I love pets so much. They are the best. They are cute and they are cuddly.

Sheri Collins
Squantum

It would be to get a Super Nintendo.

Nikki Houlihan
Squantum

It would be for the homeless to have presents. Homeless people need to have a happy holiday too.

Jenny Moody
Montclair

It would be that people would stop doing drugs. People can die from drugs. I think they should stop selling the drugs. They should report the people who sell the drugs.

John Daggett
Point-Webster

It would be to have six feet of snow on Christmas Eve and Day.

David Grogan
Atherton Hough

It would be that my family was rich. Then we could buy anything we wanted and go anywhere we wanted, even on trips.

Lisa Lam
Atherton Hough

It would be that no one would die from HIV and other diseases.

Ronald Batherwich
Point Webster

It would be to have a radio so I could listen to my tapes.

Justin Norris
Point Webster

It would be peace and happiness all over the world. The crooks will be gone and no more stealing from any supermarket. And everyone will be safe. The guns will be thrown away. People will also recycle. And don't let people fight!

Billy Lee
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for people not to take drugs and people not to smoke. P.S. say no to drugs and smoking. Please say NO to drugs.

Matthew Tupe
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for a computer. It would be so fun to play games all day. I would print different things like cards, posters, signs and books. But when a storm comes I will shut it off. After the storm was over, I would put it on and play until I had to go to bed.

Matthew Conso
Merrymount

It would be that everyone has enough food to eat.

Walter Perry
Montclair

It would be for a lot of toys.

Mary Ng
Montclair

It would be to have my cousin Robert come back with his mom and dad. Robert was my best cousin in the world. That's why I want him back. Robert was a nice little boy. I loved him very much.

Robert is in Heaven but I'll still remember him. He died five years ago.

Jeffrey Scott Richardson, Jr.
Point-Webster

It would be for a beautiful Christmas tree.

Frances Konstatlakis
Parker

It would be 2XL and a bike that is called the Mad Slinger.

Adam Whitlow
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to go to the moon.

Andrew McWalter
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have two new computers so we could play on one and my dad could be on the other.

Marc Griffith
Bernazzani

It would be to give more money and houses to poor people and homeless people.

Makena Cahill
Bernazzani

It would be to get Nintendo games, a jacket, and a hat.

Ryan Lynch
Bernazzani

It would be that teenagers didn't do drugs. And that they wouldn't smoke. Both will hurt their lungs. That's what I would wish for.

Katrina Shields
Snug Harbor

It would be for everybody to stop littering and for us to build new homes for the homeless people.

Anthony Savage
Snug Harbor

It would be to visit New York because my friend is there. His name is Wilson Mark. The last time I saw him is when I moved to Boston.

Dick Cheung
Wollaston

It would be to see my mother's mother. I haven't seen her since I was little. She lives in Hong Kong. I wish she could spend Christmas with us.

Philip Chan
Wollaston

It would be that my Uncle David would come home because he was in the war two years ago and he hasn't come back since then.

Michael Conley
Atherton Hough

It would be to have as many wishes as I want.

Justin Adler
Parker

It would be that all the poor people would get a home and get some money and instead of living in the dumpster, living in a home.

Nancy Ann
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get a pair of ice skates.

Brian Chenette

It would be for a nice decorated Christmas tree.
Bruce Ngo
Parker

It would be for a new baby brother.
Erica Peterson
Parker

It would be for my friend Jill to come back from South Carolina.
Valerie Cooney
Parker

It would be to be a great dancer. I like Irish dancing a lot because sometimes I'm on T.V. and sometimes I'm in the paper.
Bridget Reaney
Atherton Hough

It would be for my aunt and uncle to get help fixing their home and finding food because they live in southern Florida where the hurricane hit.
Sara Little
Atherton Hough

It would be to get a new rabbit because my rabbit died a month ago. I also would help the homeless people.
Kristyn Shea
Bernazzani

It would be that poor people get homes, and that poor children get toys for Christmas.
Michael Mormino
Bernazzani

It would be to have an imaginary friend because I am always lonely. I didn't like to play with my cousin because he is a boy and I want someone else to play with.
Joleen McDonald
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to go down to the Cape. I can't wait to see my grandparents so I can go over the island. The name of the island is Washburn.
Patrick Losi
Montclair

It would be to get a puppy. I would take care of it because I would be very happy to have a puppy. My other puppy died of cancer and I felt very sad.
Corinne Curran
Squantum

It would be to give the poor people food. That way the poor can get well.
Adam McLaughlin
Snug Harbor

It would be food for people. There are many people who have no food. I wish for food for those people.
Shannon MacIsaac
Snug Harbor

It would be that no one would pollute the water.
John LeFevre
Point Webster

It would be to have no violence and no guns or knives. It would be a good world without violence.
Christopher Pacheco
Point Webster

It would be that my dad's work hours would change. One day my dad told me that his work hours would change. I was really, really sad. He said he would call me every night. But I get to see him a little in the morning.
Erin Downey
Wollaston

It would be for my mom to have a baby because I would like a sister very much. A baby brother would be okay until he grew up and the he would start to tease me. But that would be okay. My sister would be good company and when she grew up she could go to the Wollaston School just like me.
Clare Hammond
Wollaston School

It would be for my mother's father to be alive. My mother said he would be nice to me.
Joseph King
Atherton Hough

It would be to help clean up the earth. I heard the ozone layer is getting too thin. This will effect plants and animals. Saving our earth is important.
Andrew McCormack
Atherton Hough

It would be a house. And for everyone to have some food and money.
Craig Flanigin
Montclair

It would be for all the people without homes to have homes. And all the people with diseases to get better and be cured.
Beth Houghton
Montclair

It would be a trip to Canada, because I have never seen my grandmother, my aunt or my two cousins.
Amy Chou
Montclair

It would be no minuses and no addition in math.
Jeffrey Louie
Parker

It would be for a mother and father rabbit and some small baby rabbits.
Connie Lee
Parker

It would be for the city to be cleaner than it is right now.
Meghan Holt
Parker

It would be that all the homeless people would have homes for Christmas.
Stephen Pizzi
Point Webster

It would be to lose all my teeth so I can get $10 to get gifts for my family.
Erin Reardon
Point Webster

It would be Christmas because it's a good month. I love Christmas because you get beautiful presents from people that share and are nice.
Elizabeth Burke
Squantum

It would be to have a dog. Dogs are my favorite animal. A lot of people use dogs for dog sleds. We could have snow for Christmas.
Nathan Moran
Wollaston

It would be to be tall. Everyone says "Aw! You're so little." Then they measure me back to back. Then they measure my hand and lift me up. So that's why I want to be tall.
Pauline Shaffer
Wollaston

It would be that the people who need food would get all the food they need, because I know not all people are as lucky as me.
Melissa Mastroilli
Squantum

It would be that I could have a Persian kitten.
Nicole DeSantis
Point Webster

It would be that all the homeless and poor people have a very nice Christmas.
Danielle Picarski
Atherton Hough

It would be to see my cousins, aunts and uncles. I wish to give my mother and father what ever they want for Christmas.
Dianne Morgan
Snug Harbor

It would be that people at the nursing home can feel better at Christmas. I wish to sing songs at the O'Brien Towers to cheer them up.
Jennifer Lee Carita
Snug Harbor

It would be to have the best Christmas ever. I can't wait till I find out. I love this time of year and I hope you do too.
Rebecca Sholes
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that there was no such thing as war. Because a lot of people die of hunger.
Michael Tang
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be one million more wishes to change the world and help people in Somalia and people that are poor, hungry and thirsty to get food.
Ryan Hogan
Bernazzani

It would be to see my father, Sam. He lives in Virginia.
Lowell Heckman
Bernazzani

It would be for everyone in the hospital to be all right.
Nicole Norris
Parker

It would be for nothing bad to happen to my family.
Effie Rozanitis
Parker

It would be that all the children could play with each other, and learn what they do in other countries. I want us to meet each other and have one special day that we could wear each other's clothes.
Michael Maloney
Point Webster

It would be to have Nintendo.
John Salvaggi
Point Webster

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd from Page 17)

It would be for a puppy because they are fun and playful.

Jeff Atkins
Squantum

It would be to put a roof over everyone's head, because it's sad to see people out in the cold. It's the season for love.

Carolyn King
Squantum

It would be for peace and happiness all over the world and for people not to be mean.

Jennifer Symonds
Merrymount

It would be a nice pink diamond ring for my mother.

Kristen Battaglia
Atherton Hough

It would be that all of the handicapped people would get better.

Brian Sorensen
Snug Harbor

It would be for food for the poor and homes for the poor.

Aaron Echelle
Merrymount

It would be to have a friend who was just like me who thought the same thoughts, felt the same feelings, who was just like me.

Midgalia
Merrymount

It would be that when I wake up it would be snowing money. I would get a big bag and hold it out and get as much as I could. I would be RICH!

Eric Bigham
Parker

It would be to get a Mickey Mantle rookie card. It would cost about $9,000. I would never sell it. I would keep it in mint condition.

Dave Rochon
Wollaston

It would be for Sega Genesis because I like playing with it and I really want to play Sonic the Hedge Hog 2. And I really, really like it.

Corey Piazza
Wollaston

It would be to make the world more beautiful.

Linh Duong
Snug Harbor

It would be for one million wishes and then I would wish for peace all over the world and I would make it sunny everyday but not when it snows.

Justin Butler
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to take a trip around the world with the class and to explore under water.

Heather Martin
Snug Harbor

It would be to give the poor people some money so they can get a house.

Samantha Jean Atwood
Snug Harbor

It would be for everybody to have freedom and peace on Earth.

Glenn Libenore
Merrymount

It would be to see my grandmother. Why? Because she lives far away and I just can't see her.

Musau Kabongo
Point Webster

It would be to have my father back for just one Christmas or on Easter. That's all I want for just one Christmas. And I want to give Santa a holiday. A day off.

Peter Horzigan
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that everybody got what they wanted for Christmas. I wish everybody had enough money for heat.

Tim Curran
Merrymount

It would be that all the homeless people in the world have homes. I feel badly for them. They are outside in the cold with no place to go.

Carlie Allison
Parker

It would be that I learn a back handspring. If I learn a back handspring I can go on the gymnastics team. I know a lot of people on the team. I will have a lot of fun!

Linda Nicole Sinclair
Parker

It would be for homeless people to have a happy Christmas, and brand new hockey equipment because my equipment is old. Also I would like to meet my grandfather.

Tommy Curran
Point Webster

It would be that everybody is healthy in the world. Including people I don't know. I also wish for infinity wishes, so I can wish when ever I want.

Mark Chella
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that I could go to Italy for Christmas to see my grandmother.

Michael DiBenedetto
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to get a snowboard so that I could become a great snowboarder.

Paul Caruso
Bernazzani

It would be to give food and money to the Salvation Army.

Brian John Lowe
Snug Harbor

It would be to get Sega Genesis and $50,000 in cash. I would also like to be a policeman.

Erik Stenstrom
Bernazzani

It would be to give the homeless a home and clothing and a lot of money.

Mike James Savage
Snug Harbor

It would be to have a lot of kittens.

Pamela Wong
Point Webster

It would be to be a millionaire so that I could have a limousine and buy a new house and a Monster truck.

Scott Collins
Point Webster

It would be for the poor not to be poor but rich. I want the sick to get better and everyone to have a home.

Dennis Vasconcellos
Parker

It would be something to help people who are sick. That's it! A cure for A.I.D.S. and cancer. That would be great. Then the world will go around again without people dying from A.I.D.S. and cancer.

Kelly Rice
Parker

It would be a new bike and a new radio and the best thing I want for Christmas is a turtle and an airplane.

Dale Hayden
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for my grandfather to be alive because I loved him.

Michael Neumann
Atherton Hough

It would be for everyone to be happy then everyone would be nice to each other in the universe.

Stacey Q.
Merrymount

It would be that everyone had a home and food because people are dying of hunger.

Michael Maguire
Squantum

It would be a puppy for my sister Kayla.

Lisa Polvere
Snug Harbor

It would be that I want my mother to feel better.

Jerry Jack Wooten
Snug Harbor

It would be magic so starving people would have food and homeless people would have homes.

Stephen Dray
Point Webster

It would be that I could have magic so I could have a racing car and go anywhere, and that Somalia would have food and people would pray.

Marvis Fraser
Point Webster

It would be to help the poor people because they have no food.

Ashley Bythrow
Atherton Hough

It would be for peace on earth. And to help the people in Somalia to have a good Christmas.

Katie Rose
Merrymount

It would be that I could become an artist someday. I like to draw and I think I would be a good artist.

Helen Cheng
Parker

It would be for all the homeless people to have some place to stay this Christmas season.

Jeffrey Tabbi
Parker

It would be to feed the people in Somalia and to have no more wars. A war is no way to solve anything. Wars hurt many people.

Erika Johnson
Wollaston

It would be for my papa to live for a long time. Because he always comes to my soccer games and concerts. He always brings me things. I love him very much.

Lauren Nicole Magaldi
Wollaston

It would be to have a funhouse in my cellar so I could play all day and be out of my Mom's hair.

Craig Boutin
Bernazzani

It would be that I was magic. If I could do or have anything I could want. So if I had one wish come true this holiday season I would want it to be magic.

Eric Stanton
Wollaston

It would be to get good grades in school. I get rewards when I get good grades. I want to have an emazzani. I want to go to college.

Stephen Driscoll
Point-Webster

It would be for people to stop taking DRUGS because it is bad for you. I don't want people to get sick or die on Christmas Eve.

Kelly Ann Bonner
Point-Webster

It would be that I could have a lot of things. Toys are fun to play with everyday. Today you play with your toys.

Robert Ciarfaroni
Wollaston

It would be Mermaid because it could swim fast. Faster than you think and you could play with a friend under the water and have fun. Swim around with your friend just like "The Little Mermaid" in the TV show.

Judy Lee
Wollaston

It would be for everybody to have money.

Stephen Florentine
Snug Harbor

It would be having a baby brother.

Cory Bouchard
Snug Harbor

It would be peace. Another wish is for everyone to have a nice family because you want to at least have someone to love you and trust you.

Erika Pettinelli
Point-Webster

It would be to get a drum set because I like to play and it is very fun.

Michael Tupe
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to be around my family. Not just some of my family, all of my family. I would have a fun time. It would be the greatest Christmas EVER!

Andrew Cantelli
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have my sister to see Santa. I mean the real Santa.

Christina Roosa
Snug Harbor

It would be for my best friend Sam to come over. I have not seen her in five months. I hope she has a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Pamela Jacobs
Atherton Hough

It would be that we could clean up the world because the world is polluted.

William Reid
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a little puppy so I wouldn't be bored anymore.

If I Could Have One Wish Come True . . .

(Cont'd from Page 18)

It would be that the people in Somalia would have food and be safe and have a good Christmas too.

Michael Doyle
Merrymount

It would be that people stop littering and keep the world clean. I wish the homeless people could have a happy Christmas.

Krystal Ann Martin
Snug Harbor

It would be to feed the people that are starving in the world.

Malcolm
Snug Harbor

It would be that if people see a bug don't step on it or any other animals. That is my present to the animals.

Lisa
Snug Harbor

It would be that all poor people get more money than they ever had and had a much better home instead of living in a dump. And that people respect them and give them some nice clothing and some food.

Natalie Caron
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to give people their jobs back.

Tiffany Wan
Bemazzani

It would be for our principal, Mr. Hibard, to stay. He says he's retiring. I like him a lot.

Caitlyn Munkley
Bemazzani

It would be for the poor to have some food and shelter so they can live through the winter.

Sean Moriarty
Atherton Hough

It would be for my family and me to move into a bigger house. The house I am living in now is too small.

Jennifer Cole
Atherton Hough

It would be that I would have $500,000. I would give half to the Jimmy Fund and half to the Salvation Army. I would save a little for Christmas presents for my mom and dad.

George Camia
Parker

It would be to celebrate Christmas. I wish this because it makes my sisters sad when they hear about gifts, the tree, and other things. My parents buy Christmas things, but I want to really celebrate Christmas every year.

Linda See
Point Webster

It would be for my dad to be with me because he is in Heaven. I wish my father was alive just for Christmas because I miss him.

Nicole Gulliksen
Point-Webster

It would be for my Dad to come home.

Sarah O'Neil
Atherton Hough

It would be for all the poor children to get a home.

Stephen Mandeville
Atherton Hough

It would be a dog because my brother, my uncle and I would like one to play with. We played with one at a pet store. My grandmother said maybe next year! I would like a golden retriever. If it was a girl I would call her Goldy. If it was a boy I would call him Chewbacca.

Chris Moran
Wollaston

It would be in the future to go to other planets to make new homes for the homeless and poor people. We could make new schools. There would not be any homeless people. Everybody would have a nice home.

Daniel Harrington
Point-Webster

It would be being with my family.

Lily Tam
Parker

It would be to have my great-great-grandfather back.

Adam O'Hara
Parker

It would be for my mother and father to get a job because they need food to feed my brother, two sisters and me, and to buy clothes for us.

Chimtu Ononivu
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have fun with my family friends and peace all over the world.

Lynn Spaulding
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for starving people to have plenty of food and that they would have freedom and peace on earth.

David Fitzgerald
Merrymount

It would be for a puppy named Molly for Christmas. I would love her very much.

Danielle O'Rourke
Merrymount

It would be to stop the hunger of the poor starving people on the planet.

Jesse Duane
Parker

It would be that everybody could see Santa Claus.

Christopher Ainsley
Parker

It would be that people would stop killing each other and be nice to each other once in a while. I chose this because every time I look in the newspaper or listen to the news I see or hear that someone died.

Kelly O'Neill
Point-Webster

It would be to get a big Barbie House because I could have fun with it. It is beautiful. I would also like a motorcycle for Barbie.

Tatiana Alvarado
Point-Webster

It would be to sleep over my teacher's house.

Stephanie Edison
Atherton Hough

It would be for a new friend.

Charlene Pascua
Atherton Hough

It would be skating at Boston Garden with the Boston Bruins because I like skating and I'm good at ice skating.

David Germain
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be for world peace and everybody in the world to have a merry Christmas.

Seth Burdick
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that my brother won't be bad at the Christmas party that my family is having.

Sabrina Wong
Snug Harbor

It would be that people all around the world would have homes, foods, drinks, jobs and lives. And have happy lives.

Stephanie Raymond
Merrymount

It would be for everyone to have a bike, for everyone to go on a vacation to Florida, and everyone to go swimming in the water, and for everyone to have a hot fudge sundae with whipped cream on it and cherries.

Jonathan Fox
Snug Harbor

It would be to have a really nice friend who is really nice to me.

Crystal Vraibel
Atherton Hough

It would be to have a dog. If I had a dog I would take real good care of it. I would walk the dog, feed it, and brush it. I would check the dog for fleas and make sure it gets enough sleep. I want a dog because it would be a good guard dog. It would be nice to have a dog.

Lauren Sleeth
Parker

It would be that everyone who needs a job or a home could find one. I hope all the homeless people will have a safe and happy Christmas.

Shawn Flaherty
Parker

It would be to get a Mermaid Barbie. I have another Barbie and I play with it on Saturdays with a friend.

Thalita de Souza
Bemazzani

It would be to help the homeless and give them a home. I would give them food, too.

Joseph Troila
Bemazzani

It would be to fly.

Meagan Donoghue
Snug Harbor

It would be to give the poor people a home.

Katelyn Curran
Snug Harbor

It would be for a bike. It would be a G.T., black and go fast.

Anthony Bertino
Merrymount

It would be for a bear. The bear is red and has spots and it has sharp claws.

Shane Newell
Merrymount

It would be that the world would be a better place to live, food for the hungry, homes for the homeless, no more violence.

Melissa Lumaghini
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be that what ever I said would always come true, or to have a lot of money.

Robert McKenzie
Lincoln-Hancock

It would be to have world peace. World peace means no more wars. So the world would be a better place to live.

Shaun McRea II
Point-Webster

It would be to get everything I want so I will be happy.

Aaron Goodman
Point-Webster

It would be for everyone in the world to share their food and drink and clothes.

Meghan McLean
Squantum

It would be that my parents feel better. My mother is feeling kind of good. My father is always smoking. I want my mother to feel better and my father not to smoke.

Kathy Lee
Parker

It would be to have my grandfather be well enough to get out of the hospital by Christmas. It is important to me and mom.

John Corosella
Parker

It would be a train that I wanted. The train that I want is my favorite gift. I would like a train for a Christmas present. The train is my favorite Christmas gift. The train could be my gift.

Charlie Fang
Wollaston

It would be that the people in Somalia get food and the war will stop.

Tanya Isaac
Wollaston

It would be for all the kids in Somalia to have food, presents and shelter. For myself, I would like a dog.

Colman McCormack
Bemazzani

It would be for more homes for the homeless and families for the children who have none.

Therese Maloney
Bemazzani

It would be to have a puppy. The reason I would like to have a puppy is because I don't have an animal.

Crystalanne Petrillo
Point-Webster

It would be to get a rabbit for Christmas because my other rabbit died.

Daniel Wilkins
Point-Webster

It would be for my family to move to Florida. My sister Kristina is down there and we could be together.

Samantha Varnadore
Atherton Hough

It would be to work for money, because my family needs money.

Paul Adams
Squantum

It would be to help the homeless people by giving them food.

Paul
Snug Harbor

It would be to visit the nursing home.

Michelle M.
Snug Harbor

It would be that my mother, sister, father, uncle and I could go to Vietnam and see my uncle and grandmother and grandfather. I hope my uncle, grandmother and grandfather will have enough money and food. I hope that my sister and I will help the poor. I hope that my uncle's father and mother have money to go back to Vietnam.

Son Nguyen
Parker

It would be for people in Somalia to get enough food. Over 400 people and kids have died. Half of their food was stolen by armed gunmen. Although we have to cross the Atlantic I still hope the people in Somalia still get enough food.

Sean Golden
Wollaston

It would be world peace because it's very important. I would wish to see my mom because I miss her very much.

April Emerald
Point-Webster

It would be to save the animals by not throwing soda bottles in ponds.

Eddie
Snug Harbor

It would be that Christmas was every Sunday. People would be very healthy and get lots of food and gifts.

A THOUGHT
FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

Each of us has his or her own Christmas memories. Memories that often because of things that were and are no more, keep us from a full recognition of the Day of Days ... Perhaps your memory is of songs and laughter. Perhaps it is a full gathering of family and friends. Perhaps it is the crustiness of snow and the sheen of stars against a darkened sky as you walked home from a midnight service.

The years may have passed. Sorrows may have come upon us. There may be longing in our hearts. But Christmas remains and if we will but let it in, it can bring into our hearts fragrance and joy. For Christmas is a day not to be celebrated, but to be kept. It is not dependent upon love. It is a day not for one, but for all. It is a day of proof that love is the strongest thing in the world - stronger than hate, stronger than evil, and stronger than death. None of us is too poor or too lonely to keep Christmas. We can share that which we have with those who have less. There is no price tag on well-wishing or on friendly speaking or kindly doing. The gates of our hearts can swing wide at a touch. We can each of us bring cheer to some lonely child or word of friendship to the lonely and forgotten of men ... FOR NO ONE CAN KEEP CHRISTMAS ALONE.

North Starts Fast

By TOM SULLIVAN

A year ago the North Quincy boys' basketball team had an excellent season, going 15-5 and qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament, losing to Brockton, 66-54, in the opening round.

With six varsity returnees and two fine transfers, coach Ted Stevenson feels this year's team will be even better than last year.

The Red Raiders lived up to expectations in their first two games, defeating Plymouth, 75-57, and getting by Falmouth, 49-46, in overtime.

North next Tuesday and Wednesday will play in the Stoughton Holiday Tournament, facing Boston Latin in the first round Tuesday at 6 p.m. Stoughton will meet St. John's Prep in the other game at 8. The title game will be Wednesday at 8 p.m. and the consolation at 6.

The Raiders are led by senior tri-captains Sean Donovan (6'3"), the number four scorer in the Old Colony League last season; Luke Sheets (6'4") and Bo Smith (6'2").

Most of the scoring will come from this trio, although Stevenson has several other players who can shoot.

Also returning from last year's varsity are Pat Shea (5'8"), Mike Patch (6') and Mike Staiti (5'10"), all seniors.

Shea, a point guard, played on the high school's Div. 1B championship football team this fall and on the Morrisette Legion state championship baseball team last summer.

Other seniors are Joe Welby (5'10"), Chris Dupill (5'10"), Tim Byrne (6'4") and Sean Warren (6'7"), all up from last year's junior varsity squad and Brad Douglas (5'9"), a transfer from Archbishop Williams.

Stevenson has a big man under the hoop in football standout Brian Rafferty, 6'5" and 250 pounds. "He's great under the boards," said Stevenson.

Other juniors are Bob Johnston (5'9") and Jason McLeod (6'8"), a transfer from Portland, Ore.

"McLeod gives us some great size, which we have missed in recent years," said Stevenson. "He's a great rebounder and an outstanding defensive player. He is going to help us a lot."

"We have our best size in several years with McLeod, Warren and Rafferty and have good depth. I'm extremely hopeful we can do better than last year and make the tournament again."

In the opening game against Plymouth Donovan had 19 points, including five three-pointers, Sheets had 22 points and Smith had 17.

McLeod, who had nine points, was outstanding off the boards and on defense. Shea played an outstanding floor game and led North's full-court press.

Although Plymouth's Ian Podbelski scored 34 points, including six three-pointers, Stevenson feels the key to the win was stopping the Blue Eagles' star during a 17-3 run in the opening minutes of the second half which gave the Raiders a 41-27 lead.

"We wanted to try to deny Podbelski the ball in the second half," the North coach said.

At Falmouth, Donovan hit a three-pointer and Smith had two clutch free throws in overtime to give North the victory.

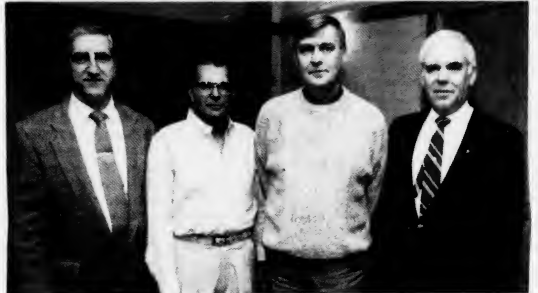

North's Byrne sent the game into overtime with a three-pointer with 15 seconds to play.

Sheets led the Raiders with 14 points and Donovan scored 13.

Quincy Off Slowly

The Quincy boys' basketball team is off to a slow start with losses in its first two games, but the Presidents were in both games until the end.

Turnovers and fouls cost the team a 61-56 defeat in the opener at Taunton and a 61-58 loss to Weymouth.

Quincy committed 23 turnovers in the opening game and sent Weymouth to the foul line 30 times in their contest.

Saturday and Monday the Presidents will play in the Marshfield Christmas Tournament with Marshfield, Archbishop Williams and Scituate. They will face Scituate in the opening round Saturday night at 6 and the title game will be played at 8 p.m. Monday with the consolation game at 6.

The Presidents are led by senior co-captains Robbie Kane (5'8") and Matt Dwyer (5'11"), both excellent two-way players.

Other varsity returnees are juniors Tom Malvesti (6'1"), Joe Kelly (6'1"), Mike Bartlett (6'), Harold Mortel (5'9") and Jon Gangi (6').

Other seniors are John Russell (6'5"), a transfer from Milton last year; Jason Presente (6'4"), Mike Sugrue (6'2"), Brian Clifford (6'1") and Joe Manton (5'11").

Another good prospect is Brian McPartlin, a 6'2" junior.

"We will be a team of changing defenses," said coach John Franceschini. "We don't have any consistent 20-point scorers, but have a dedicated group of skilled, seasoned varsity players. I believe we are physically capable of handling bigger teams."

Turnovers killed the Presidents in their opening loss at Taunton. They had 23 turnovers.

"You can't make that many turnovers and hope to beat any teams in our league," Franceschini said.

Malvesti had a big game with 18 points and nine rebounds and Kane had 10 points and a fine floor game.

Taunton led, 23-19, at halftime and, despite the many turnovers, the Presidents stayed within striking distance the rest of the way.

Fouls were costly to

QHS Hockey Hall of Fame Induction March 20

The Quincy High Hockey Hall of Fame will hold its fourth annual induction dinner Saturday, March 20 at the Sons of Italy Hall.

Nominations are now being accepted by the Quincy against Weymouth. With 3:19 left in the game the Wildcats had a 51-50 edge but hit on 10 of 12 free throws in the final two minutes to pull away.

"We play tough man-to-man defense, but there were just too many foul calls," said Franceschini.

Weymouth held a 28-20 halftime advantage, but Quincy came out strong to start the second half as Russell took over the boards and Dwyer hit a three-pointer to bring the Presidents within three, 34-31.

With 6:50 left Kelly went on a spree with nine straight points as Quincy pulled into a 44-44 tie.

Weymouth went ahead, 49-44, but Quincy moved to within one before the Wildcats iced it with their foul shooting.

"I'm not happy we lost but I can see that we are starting to come together as a team," said Franceschini.

North Golf Team Wins Tourney Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy high golf team recently completed one of its finest seasons by winning the Old Colony League Championship tournament.

The Raiders, under coach Rick Hutchins, started slowly, losing their first four matches, finished strong, winning their last four league matches and the OCL tournament.

The team, the first North team to ever win a team championship, was led by Capt. Chris Dupill, who went undefeated in the league (6-0-2). Dupill and sophomores Brendon O'Brien (4-2-0), Keith Cross (4-2-0), and J.J. Farrell (5-2-1), represented the team in the championship tourney, winning by one shot over Marshfield at Cape Cod Country Club.

Four golfers from each of the eight league schools competed and the low three scores were added up.

In the league matches eight golfers from North Quincy play against eight from the other schools in a match play system.

"We lost some tough matches early to some very tough competition," said Hutchins. "Plymouth, Falmouth, Barnstable, and Marshfield in golf look like Notre Dame's schedule in football."

Barnstable has been undefeated in the league for the last two years and North's loss to the Red Raiders was tough as it lost to them by only three (37.5-34.5).

"That's when I was sure that things would improve," added Hutchins.

"We played New Bedford tough, losing 39-33, and had a real tough match with Marshfield. We played a lot of younger players and, although they had a tremendous amount of talent and playing experience, it took them a little time to get used to the team system and the excellent competition."

Also posting important victories were sophomore Matt Fatsea, junior Mike Santoro, junior Shawn Erler, senior Joe Welby, senior Charlie Rozanitis and junior Mike Koski. Also seeing action were junior Adam DeBoer,

"The Cape teams are particularly tough," said Hutchins. "Their top five to six golfers are as good as our first two or three, which gives them a definite edge in depth. Barnstable had 65 golfers try out while we had only 16."

"As the season wore on our golfers got better at their game as well as being a team. We finished with wins over Taunton, Weymouth, Bridgewater-Raynham and Quincy. When you beat quality teams like these you know you're on the right line. The win over Bridgewater-Raynham was especially exciting—we won by one hole and they are a perennial powerhouse.

"The best part of team play is that each golfer is important and every hole that a golfer wins or halves counts toward the team score. Golf is unique. The golfer competes on four levels—first, he plays against his opponent; second, he plays against the course itself; third, he plays within his own composure; and fourth, he plays as a member of the team. Not many athletes compete on this many levels. That's why I have great respect for what each player has accomplished. Unlike other sports' playing fields, each golf course is different so it's really a great challenge, but above all a lot of fun."

Hutchins had praise for all his players and said the leadership from the seniors came through when it counted.

"The future looks good," he said. "We have five starters returning and hopefully we'll be a little better next year. I want to thank Presidents Golf Course pro Arthur Cicconi and his staff. They treated us first class all the way and I can't thank them enough."

"Hopefully these kids will get in a lot of golf next summer and I hope to see a lot of new faces."

Cross Country

North Quincy Girls 6th At State All-Class Meet

The North Quincy girls' cross country team completed one of its most successful seasons with a better-than-expected sixth place showing in the state all-class meet over the Gardner Golf Course.

Most of the team, with the exception of senior captain Suzanne Lewis, had never run over the 2.9-mile course. And to make matters worse, there was a two-inch snow cover over much of the hilly loop.

"Meet directors had warned that spiked shoes must be carefully considered with a 100-yard steep downhill on an asphalt golf cart trail," said coach Geoff Hennessy.

However, Hennessy put together a strategy that paid off big.

"We decided that the gain from wearing spikes in the snow, ice and mud for most of the course would not be negated by a 100-yard stretch of macadam, plus it was grass and snow alongside the cart path and the field of runners (130 in all) would be strung out so you could move around easily," Hennessy said.

Many runners found the course nearly impossible to negotiate with several dropping out and several giving sub-par performances.

North Quincy's girls ran their best race of the season with Lewis (14th), Laura Blaikie (28th), Erin Duggan (30th), Erica Doherty (39th) and Kelly Duggan (50th) combining for 161 points, the third lowest in school history.

A year ago the girls finished 13th.

Other finishers for North were Mel Gaziano (54th) and Kristy Kabilian (83rd).

North avenged an earlier class meet loss by beating Tewksbury, the number one ranked team during most of the season, and barely missed beating Newton North, a long-time powerhouse.

Hennessy said he is proud of his team's season which includes a 7-1 regular season record, the Old Colony League championship meet title, and second in the state class meet.

"Our goal was to improve from last year and over the season we did that," he said. "We visited Gardner the day before the meet and saw the snow. We knew it would play a major factor in the race so we went with spiked shoes and a racing strategy of going out fast for the first 200-300 yards, then get into our usual racing rhythm."

"The idea was that we knew girls would fall and slip but to let that happen behind us. We had some crashes, too (Erin Duggan and Mel Gaziano), but they had only a minor effect on finish place and nobody fell on the treacherous cart path."

"With only Lewis graduating, we are already looking to next year and we are also excited about winter track this year," he said.

North Boys Finish With Win Over Quincy

The North Quincy boys' cross-country team finished with a 2-6 record following a 22-37 victory over Quincy.

North's Eric Torvi was the winner, with Steve Cannon placing second, Chris Sullivan fourth, Terrence Roche seventh, Dave Chan eighth, Brian O'Donnell ninth and Billy Manning 10th.

Quincy's Tom Malvesti was third, Eddie Kenney fifth and Doug Gallagher sixth.

In their previous meet the Raiders had lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 15-43, as the Trojans swept the top five places.

North's Torvi was sixth, Cannon seventh, Jim Chen was eighth, Sullivan 10th and Roche 12th.

Earlier the Raiders had lost to Weymouth, 16-47, with Torvi fifth, Chen 10th, Sullivan 11th, Chan 16th and Ken Duncan 19th.

Torvi, Cannon and Sullivan received Old Colony League honorable mention.

In the Brown University Invitational meet Torvi, Chen and Sullivan scored in the varsity boys' race and Cannon, Roche, Billy Manning and Mike Hannon and O'Donnell scored as North placed sixth.

Vacation Neighborhood Gym Program

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise nine neighborhood gymnasiums on an expanded schedule during the upcoming school vacation period.

Free supervised activities are scheduled at various times and locations. Programs are coed and are for boys and girls age 8 through high school.

(Depending on enrollment slight variations may occur in these times at some locations).

Atherton Hough, Atlantic, Merrymount, Point Webster, Broad Meadows, Squantum, Wollaston and Montclair Schools will all be on the expanded schedule. On Monday, Dec. 28, Tuesday, Dec. 29, Wednesday, Dec. 30 and Thursday, Dec. 31, the same gyms will be open 8 a.m. to noon.

The Recreation Department Supervised program at Beechwood Community Life Center gym will be on Monday, Dec. 28, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Dec. 29, 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.; and Thursday, Dec. 31 from 8 a.m. to noon.

The regularly scheduled Saturday Gym Program will still be conducted as usual at all locations Saturday, Jan. 2.

Hockey

Quincy Explodes For 17 Goals In 2 Wins

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy hockey coach Bob Sylvia was worried about his team scoring goals this season, but the Presidents, after a 5-1 loss to a strong Boston Latin team, exploded for 17 goals in their next two games in rolling over Taunton, 9-3, and Rockland, 8-4.

Quincy faced a strong test yesterday (Wednesday) when it hosted Weymouth. It will host Boston Latin Monday at 5:20 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will play at Rockland Tuesday at 1:20.

Jeff Craig had the only goal against Boston Latin. Quincy had its chances but Latin's Bill Hubbard had 21 saves. Bob Jones led Latin with two goals and an assist.

Against Taunton Craig had a hat trick and an assist, David Cooper two goals and two assists, Sean McArdle two goals and Jim Schatzl and Joe McPhee one each.

In the Rockland game Craig and Schatzl had two goals each and Cooper, McArdle, Steve Provost and Steve Barrett one apiece.

was in goal in each game and came up with several fine saves.

"Our defense of Dan Morrell, Mark Gilmore, Dan Mann and Derek Mullen played very well," Sylvia said.

Meanwhile, North Quincy was an easy winner over Taunton in its first game.

The Raiders played at Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday), will host Taunton Saturday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will play Westwood Monday at 3 o'clock at the Canton rink.

Squirt House

Burgin Downs Sun, Widens Lead

Burgin Platner widened its Squirt House League lead over The Quincy Sun to three points by topping the Sun, 7-2.

Sean Fennelly, Billy Griffin and Steve Ford scored two goals apiece and Mike Sullivan one. Sean LeFebvre and Ford had two assists each and Terence Doherty, Joe Cox, Griffin and Brian Correia one apiece. Sean McCusker and Ashley Rowerdink scored for The Sun and John Grazioso had an assist.

Johnston Motor Parts defeated Green Environmental, 6-3, as Paul Markarian scored twice and Mike Cunniff, Spike Bertucci, Steve King and Shane Kabilian one each. Chris Carthan had three assists, Cunniff and Kabilian two each and Markarian one. Sean Garvey, Chris Griffin, and Didier Alther scored for Green and John Katsarikas had an assist.

Adam Smith's hat trick sparked Doran & Horrigan to a 7-6 win over Granite Auto Electric. Mark Giese, Chad Fitzpatrick, Robby Bell, and Chris Lee had a goal each. Lee and Matt Minicucci had three assists apiece and Chris Cullen and Smith one each.

For Granite Auto Dan Kennedy had two goals and Shaun Cheney, Paul Zenga, Brian Sylvester and Nick Pizziferri one apiece. Pizziferri, Matt O'Connell, Mike Welch, Steve Wilkie, Zenga, Cheney and Ryan Doyle had assists.

The Quincy Sun edged Granite Auto, 4-3, on goals by Mike Carloni, Rowerdink, Grazioso, and Kevin Mason. Gaeta, McCusker and Sean Haidul had assists. O'Connell, Dan Kennedy and Welch scored for Granite Auto and Welch, Kennedy and John Sullivan had assists.

Johnson Motor Parts defeated Doran &

Horrigan, 9-6, as Markarian had a hat trick, Cunniff two goals and Carthas, Kabilian, Sullivan and Joe Thorley. Kabilian, Sullivan, Carthas, Markarian, Jon Healy and Mark Doyle had assists. Chad Fitzpatrick had two goals and Chris Lumaghini, Patrick Kenney, Patrick O'Neill and Ryan Krueger one each. Minicucci, Kenney and Fitzpatrick had assists.

Quincy Loses Three

Although the Quincy wrestling team lost its first three matches to Marshfield, Randolph and Rockland, several Presidents came up with outstanding performances.

Quincy's young squad faced Waltham and Acton-Boxboro yesterday (Wednesday) and will compete in the annual Lowell Tournament Monday and Tuesday.

Head coach Lou Venturelli and first-year assistant Larry Taglieri have reason to look forward to the season with six returning varsity starters including senior co-captain Mark Nutley (189) and junior co-captain Ashley Davis (145).

"With well over half the team being first-year wrestlers, we're going to need the leadership from Mark and Ashley," Venturelli said. "They are both great kids who work very hard. We are hoping it rubs off on the others."

Big seasons are expected from juniors Peter Penwarden (125) and Shane O'Connor (112) and sophomores Matt Miller (119) and Bryan Gallahue (135).

In addition to the six returning starters, several of the other team members have experience.

Senior Damian Carini (145) and sophomore Jason Bennett (152) had outstanding seasons with the junior varsity last year. Senior Ben Radcliffe (171) wrestled in his freshman season and juniors Rich White (145) and Matt Sloan (140) had experience with outside programs.

Others expected to contribute include sophomore John Richards and freshmen Brian Woodberry, Rich Testa and Mark Froehlich at 103 pounds.

Junior Laura Lee Summer backs up O'Connor at 112, junior Jon Bonsighra has made a strong showing at 119 and freshman John Cheverie will see action at 130.

Middleweights include sophomores Rich Bergerson (152), Chris Sweeney (152) and freshmen Joe Cassatta and Jason Torres (140).

The heavier weight classes will be manned by Nutley, freshman Bernie Mullen (160), junior Joe Sweeney (171) and promising heavyweight sophomore Mike Feeley.

"We are excited by the potential shown by the youngsters. We started with 40 kids but these 25 really wanted to wrestle," said Venturelli.

federal assistance through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) if and when Weld makes his decision.

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson criticized FEMA for delays in funding repairs from last year's storms. Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney was also critical of FEMA's policies. Quincy was declared a disaster area following the hurricane and no-name storms last year.

"If another storm strikes like this one we are going to look foolish. We're going to be in tough, tough shape," Kolson said.

"If FEMA would invest a few thousand dollars and allow people to raise their homes above the flood plain they wouldn't have to keep paying claims," Cheney said.

"We've overregulated ourselves to a point where it can be dangerous," Kolson said.

"Many people are still waiting for money (from FEMA) from last year. The city has not received money yet either," he said.

Most of the damage in Quincy was to private homes. Many residents were hit hard by flood damage. Colton said estimates are still being done on the cost of the damage. He guessed it could be in the neighborhood of $2.5 million.

Kolson estimated that between 100 and 150 homes were damaged by flooding. He said some residents may be covered by homeowners insurance while others are not. He added that FEMA may provide coverage for areas not covered by homeowners insurance. Residents must have flood insurance to qualify for FEMA, he added.

Cheney said he has visited the homes of many Houghs Neck residents who had flood damage. Most of the damage was concentrated in people's basements.

"You can't see physical damage from the outside but people's cellars were wiped out," Cheney said. He added that washing machines, dryers, boilers and personal belongings were ruined.

Kolson said it is more important for people in the northern part of the South Shore to get relief because "homes to the north are more primary residences. To the south there are many summer cottages."

He emphasized that he is not "pitting one community against another" but that towns like Scituate and Marshfield have received more publicity in regard to storm damage because many homes there received external damage.

"You can't see it from the road but it's not any less painful," Kolson said. He recalled that after last year's no-name storm he visited homes where "people lost 40 to 50 years worth of memorabilia."

While most of the damage in Quincy occurred in Ward 1, some Squantum and North Quincy homes also were hurt.

Deerfield and Heath Sts. (in Squantum) were hit hard by the flooding and Carlisle and Tirrell Sts. also were hurt said Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. Kolson said that there was also some damage in Germantown.

"I can't believe the governor has not declared a state of emergency for Norfolk County," Ayers said.

"In this city people work hard for what they have. The governor has turned his back on them," Cheney said.

Litos Santos of the Planning Department told the council that residents may be eligible for assistance programs through the federal Community Development Block Grant program.

Santos said most low and moderate income homes are eligible for grants or low-interest loans to assist with odor removal, boiler replacement, electrical work, etc. He said other residents may also be eligible if their circumstances meet certain criteria.

To apply for assistance or determine eligibility residents should contact the Housing Rehabilitation Office at 376-1050.

JUDGMENT

1. This cause of action came on for hearing on assessment of Damages before this Court and by agreement, after consideration of the facts, it is hereby ORDERED and ADJUDGED:

A. That the defendant is indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $2,263.35 for common charges, interest as set forth in the By-Laws of the condominium plus statutory interest, plus court costs.

B. That said defendant is further indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $680.29 for reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

C. Accordingly, plaintiffs shall recover of defendant $2,263.35 with interest plus attorneys fees and costs in the sum of $2,943.64.

2. That a lien under G.L. c. 183A has been established, a certified copy of the Complaint having been filed in the appropriate Registry of Deeds, and that, therefore, pursuant to G.L. c. 183A, the plaintiffs shall have the right to foreclose on said lien and enter and sell said premises specified in the Complaint, to wit:

Unit 602E Marina Point Condominium. Certificate of Title #C193-201 filed in the Norfolk Registry District of the Land Court.

3. That in accordance with G.L. c. 183A, $6 this lien has priority over all liens and encumbrances with the exception of the first mortgage, municipal taxes, and filed federal tax liens.

4. That the above-mentioned sale shall be subject to the first mortgage, outstanding taxes and any other encumbrances which by law would have priority over this lien and that the plaintiffs may enter upon and sell the premises in an attempt to satisfy this judgment and lien in whole or in part.

5. That said sale and entry shall be held only after the plaintiffs have advertised the sale together with the location thereof and the terms of sale, and further together with a copy of this judgment in The Quincy, a newspaper of local jurisdiction, once per week for a period of three weeks, first publication date to be no later than 21 days before the date of sale.

QUINCY SCHOOL COMMITTEEWOMAN Linda Stice recently visited students at Point-Webster School to teach the importance of recycling. She urged them to participate in the city-wide recycling program and showed them the various household items that can be recycled.

Stice Gives Recycling Lesson To Point-Webster Students

School Committeewoman Linda Stice recently taught Janice Gherardi's second grade class a lesson on recycling at Point-Webster Elementary School. Stice wrote the lesson plan on recycling two years ago when Larry Chretien, Ward 3 councillor and chairman of the city's recycling committee, asked her to reach Quincy's school children with a recycling message.

After she created the lesson, "Mother Earth to Kids: It's Clean Up Time," and tested it on her son's third-grade class, Stice helped parent volunteers at all of the city's elementary schools teach the lesson in their own schools. Over the past two years, Quincy has had requests from several other school systems interested in developing a recycling curriculum. "Mike Wheelright at the Department of the Public Works contacts me whenever he gets a request for help," Stice explained. "Most of the calls are from Massachusetts communities, but I've sent the lesson plan as far as Alexandria, Virginia. I'm working right now with the recycling coordinator for the city of Chelsea. She wants to do an educational program for children almost identical to ours and needs some help getting started," she said.

YMCA. Almost everyone recognizes the name.

The letters "YMCA" stand for Young Men's Christian Association. Close to 96% of Americans know our name.

This year, 1992, the South Shore YMCA celebrated its 100th anniversary. The history of the South Shore YMCA has a great deal in common with the history of the YMCA movement, which began in 1844 in London. The mission originally was to help people grow and develop, in spirit, mind and body.

Today, that's still our mission. And YMCA is still the name. The name has not changed, even though the YMCA now serves people of all ages, even though half of our members and participants are women, and even though the YMCA is open to people of all religions.

The South Shore YMCA has accomplished a great deal in 100 years. The next century will be just as exciting, full of change and challenge. There's a lot more to do.

But, just what does the YMCA do? For thousands of people, the South Shore YMCA has touched their lives somewhere along the way. Maybe it was summer camp, or a high school club, swimming lessons, child care, aerobics. The YMCA does all of these things; and it does more.

What did the YMCA look like 100 years ago, and how did it evolve? The South Shore YMCA was founded in December of 1891, by a group of concerned citizens. They were: Ernest W. Branch, George H. Brown, Alex Clark, Charles F. Cummings, Reuben S. Elliott, John A. Gordon, Edward Hewston, Theophilus King, Charles Paulson, Herbert Pinkham, George H. Sidelinger, Edward Southworth and Thomas Wason. They had heard about this new "YMCA Movement," which had been active in Boston since 1841 and was rapidly spreading throughout the northeast of the United States.

The YMCA was concerned with the character of young men, and Quincy needed the influence of such an organization. According to the October, 1894, issue of the YMCA's newsletter, the YMCA stands for the development of the whole man, the physical, intellectual and spiritual natures all receiving the same attention.

"The Association stands in a position to help these men in a way which cannot be done by any other organization. The reading room, library and educational classes are a help in improving their minds and in mastering their trades. The gymnasium and bath room supply a need nowhere else met in the city; the parlor and amusement room, with occasional receptions and entertainments, are attractive to many who are away from home, while the Bible study and men's meetings are helpful to all who have come to realize that the cultivation of spiritual nature brings the greatest profit. Then there are the young men who are engaged in professional and commercial life, many of these find helpful influences in the Association rooms. Last but not least are the boys in our homes. How important that these should be under elevating influences during their leisure hours."

The YMCA's active programs began in January, 1892, in the Adams building, and later in the street railway building at 2 Washington Street. The need for a larger facility soon made a move to the Court Room building in Quincy Square necessary.

In March of 1903, the land at 61 Washington Street was purchased, as the directors realized the need for a permanent home for the YMCA. On July 4, 1904, Richard D. Chase, then president of the Board of Directors, turned the first shovel of earth at the new site, which is now the home of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company. The new facility was completed in the spring of 1905, and it included a gymnasium, meeting rooms, two bowling alleys and a 21-bed dormitory. In 1910, the swimming pool was added, and in 1915 the two bowling alleys were moved from the basement to the roof of the gymnasium, and others were added until there was a total of ten lanes.

By this time, the YMCA was offering educational classes for men in arithmetic, mechanical drawing, freehand drawing, English, and amateur yacht design. The Women's Auxiliary was active in running programs for young boys, hiring a Boys Work secretary, and offering inspirational meetings to its members. However, women still only entered the YMCA as spectators to some athletic events, not as participants.

In 1922, the church basketball league was started. The Quincy YMCA church basketball league may be the oldest in the country. The teams travelled as far as Maryland to play other teams, often affiliated with colleges. In this same year, Carle Hayward was elected president of the YMCA board of directors, and held the office for the next 30 years.

In 1927, an unused space at the rear of the Washington Street facility was converted to an auxiliary gymnasium to be used for additional classes, handball, wrestling, boxing, weight lifting and squash.

Camp Burgess for boys, the Y's residence camp located in Sandwich on Cape Cod, opened for its very first summer in 1928. The Y offered several clubs, including Y's Mens Club, Hi-Y for high school age boys, the Employed Boys' Club, Junior Leaders and Senior Leaders.

Also in 1928, serious thought was given to organizing a fund raising campaign to build a new facility to better serve the needs of the South Shore's increased population, but the 1929 Stock Market crash abruptly ended this effort. During the depression that followed the stock market crash, the YMCA offered job training programs for "unemployed boys." In 1930, the first classes were organized for women and girls.

A day camp for boys was established in 1937, with 100 boys enrolled in the first summer. It was named Kamp King in honor and memory of two of Quincy's outstanding citizens, Theophilus and Deleware King. In the 1940's, the YMCA was involved in supporting the war effort, supplying housing, baths, writing materials and recreation to men in the Army and Navy.

By 1944, it was clear that the YMCA had outgrown the facility on Washington Street, and needed a new and larger home. In 1945, Carle Hayward pioneered a capital campaign to construct a new building, which would be a living war memorial for the Quincy boys and girls fighting in World War II. This dedication of the building is still depicted today in the lobby of the YMCA's facility on Coddington Street.

The fund raising campaign moved slowly forward, but the activities at the YMCA continued to grow and expand. Families became a new focus during the early 1950's, with programs for girls, boys, women and men. For boys, the Y offered gym, swim, tumbling, wrestling, basketball, stamp club, and the Quincy Nautical Squadron, for girls, programs included bowling leagues, lifesaving, and the Tri-Hi-Y club; boys and girls participated together in Church Youth Group, Junior Stamp Club and the Live Y'ers Club; women enjoyed craft classes, swimming, bowling leagues and the Mother's Group; and men participated in softball and volleyball leagues, hobby clubs, athletic clubs, gym classes and community service groups.

Finally, in 1955, the doors to the YMCA's new facility on Coddington Street opened, with Thomas Burgin, then president of the board of directors, overseeing the groundbreaking ceremonies. The facility included outdoor athletic fields for softball, baseball and basketball, an indoor pool, gymnasium and club room facilities. Its opening was a dream for many of the people who had worked for its funding and completion, and a great community achievement. In 1957, a building-centered day camp for girls was started, and a nautical program at Mason's Point was developed.

By 1969, the Quincy Y had the largest membership of any single YMCA in New England, with an all-time monthly membership high of 8,132 men, women, boys and girls. The Tri-Hi-Y program for high school age girls was a popular activity for Quincy teens.

The late 70's and early 80's saw several additions to the Coddington Street facility to accommodate the Y's growing membership. In 1976, a Women's Fitness Salon was added, which is now the women's locker room and aerobics area. In 1978, a new wing was added to make room for racquetball courts, an indoor running track and exercise area, weightlifting and wrestling. In 1984, a new Nautilus Center was built, and in 1985, a full day care program opened at the Quincy facility.

In 1981, the Quincy YMCA became the South Shore YMCA, formally changing its name when it merged with the Weymouth YMCA. During the 1980's, the YMCA expanded even more, and changed with the needs in the community.

Camping developed into a year-round venture, with the resident camps on Cape Cod expanding from a traditional summer camp to a full service conference center in the fall, winter and spring. Camps are now also offered to people of all ages, including a Women's Fitness Camp, and two Family Camps. The addition of a high ropes adventure course now provides team building experiences for both corporate and educational groups, and an environmental education program serves school children from throughout Massachusetts.

The Community Services Division was created to reach out more fully to all of the towns in the YMCA's service area, which include, in addition to Quincy, Hull, Weymouth, Scituate, Hingham, Norwell, Braintree, Cohasset, Milton and Randolph. The Community Services Division offers afterschool child care in five different locations, non-competitive youth sports leagues where everyone plays and everyone wins, an English tutorial program for newly immigrated teens, and continues the tradition of the church basketball league begun in 1922. This division also runs the Hingham summer swim program at the

The South Shore YMCA is a non-profit association of individuals dedicated to improving the quality of life for all through programs that promote healthy body, mind and spirit.

Rooted in and infused with Christian traditions and values, the YMCA seeks to serve all people regardless of age, sex, race, religion or economic circumstance. This has been the mission of the YMCA for 100 years. Looking back, we see that the programs of this organization have strengthened families and guided young people to meet the ever-changing needs of our community.

Looking ahead, we know the YMCA will continue long beyond this century milestone to be a pillar of strength to all ages. On behalf of the Quincy City Council, I extend sincere congratulations as you celebrate this special anniversary.

South Shore Country Club, and operates several day camps, including Camp Sky-Y at the Naval Air Station base in Weymouth, and Camp Curry at Curry College in Milton.

The Quincy Division, which operates the Y's facility on Coddington Street in Quincy, offers a wide variety of programs and services for men and women, boys and girls. Health and fitness programs are designed for seniors, teens, expecting mothers, and adults of every ability. Teenagers are involved in the Y's Leaders Club, Youth & Government program, and a new adventure-based program using mountain bikes, called Mountain Movers. These programs aim to enhance the self esteem of young adults, and build leaders for tomorrow.

Today, over 20,000 adults and children are involved in the South Shore YMCA. In some way, the YMCA has touched their lives, and in so doing, made our community a better place to live. There have been many changes in 100 years. The YMCA has continually broadened its services; it has stayed flexible, helping wherever help was needed. That flexibility is the key to the YMCA's longevity.

Another key to the YMCA's continued success and growth is the involvement of local volunteers. The YMCA, in 1892, was started by volunteers, and today it is still volunteers who set the policies and future direction of the organization. A volunteer board of directors, representing the South Shore community, meets monthly. These volunteers are partners with the staff, providing local points of view and continuity, and sharing their expertise and compassion.

A unique aspect of the YMCA is its accessibility. A financial assistance program allows people from all economic backgrounds to participate at the South Shore YMCA. The YMCA is here for everyone in the community.

While many things have changed, the mission of the YMCA remains its foundation. To improve peoples' lives, in spirit, mind and body. The Y's mission drives it to try to mold the kind of people who care about others, who are firm in their own sense of worth, who truly believe that everyone is a child of God, whose outlook is communitywide and worldwide, and who are determined to control the events of their own lives. For many, the YMCA is a safety net — a safe place for children, a common ground for families, a healthy and supportive environment for adults, and a place to blossom and branch out for teenagers and young adults.

The YMCA. Everyone knows our name. One century later, the name is still the same, but the YMCA is a very different place, changing with the needs and the times. During the next century, more changes will occur, but with a firm foundation and history, the South Shore YMCA will continue to respond to people, because the YMCA is about people.

Volunteers: Over 200 people are involved in the YMCA as volunteers. A volunteer board of directors oversees all policies and activities, and other individuals volunteer in many ways.

BASKETBALL AND the YMCA are virtually synonymous. Invented by Dr. James Naismith at the Springfield YMCA in 1891, the sport has always been popular at the South Shore YMCA. Here is the Quincy YMCA 1933-34 Two State (Massachusetts and Rhode Island) Champs. Seated: Bob Matson, Joe Winship, Capt. Al Pierce, Bob Greenhalgh and Fred Comparato. Standing: Bob Reed, Bill O'Connell and Coach Gil Crofts who later became General Secretary. The South Shore YMCA's Youth Church League is the oldest such league in the country.

At Centennial Finale

Hall Of Famers, Volunteers Honored

The South Shore YMCA held the grand finale to its year-long centennial celebration Thursday, Nov. 5 at Fontbonne Academy in Milton.

The YMCA has been improving peoples' lives in the South Shore community since 1892.

The evening included an awards presentation to two youth participants, an adult volunteer, and the induction of four members to the YMCA's Hall of Fame. After the awards presentation, the musical group Up With People performed their show, "Rhythm of the World." More than 400 people attended the event.

The YMCA's Youth of the Year Award was presented to twins, Abigail and Marissa Cotton of Braintree. Both 15-year-olds have been involved in the YMCA for three years, in the YMCA Teen Leader's Club, Youth in Government program and as Counselors in Training. They have been officers in the Leader's Club, serving as president and secretary. Through their involvement in the YMCA, they have volunteered countless hours to help with Y events, including Y Teen Night, Vacation Camps, Open Houses and the Y's phoneathon.

of the National Board of YMCAs, presented the Benjamin F. Hodgkinson Award for outstanding program volunteer efforts to Charlotte Dell of Quincy. Charlotte has shown outstanding dedication, working with YMCA programs for over 20 years. While she has taken on many volunteer roles in the past, she has most recently volunteered in the day care center at the Quincy Division, helping with swim instruction. She has helped with special events and fundraisers, and has worked to organize bulk mailings. Not only active with the YMCA, she also volunteers with her church and other organizations. She is a member of the South Shore YMCA Board of Directors, but the Hodgkinson Award recognized her involvement at the program level, providing direct service to YMCA members.

Celebration '92 marked the third year of inductions into the South Shore YMCA's Hall of Fame, which honors those individuals who have made a contribution above and beyond the call of duty, and who have significantly impacted the shape of the YMCA. The four inductees were Carle Hayward, George H. Ramsden, Jr., W. Gordon Clark, and Jacqueline Whitcomb.

Carle Hayward was first elected to the board of directors in 1919 and he served as president of the YMCA board for a remarkable 30 years, from 1922 to 1952. At his retirement from the office of president in 1952, he was elected "Honorary Life President and Director." He maintained a keen interest in the growth and progress of the Y until his death in 1965.

Mr. Hayward had a clear vision for the future of the YMCA, and he worked tirelessly to make his vision become a reality. During the 1920s, as the South Shore population rapidly expanded, Carle formed a committee to study and plan for the Y's future. Just 20 years after the Y's Washington Street facility first opened, Carle saw the need for a "New Y for All." He spent the next three decades raising the funds and inspiring others to work for the creation of the Y's current facility on Coddington Street in Quincy.

Carle Hayward was also instrumental in securing the property for the Y's girls camp on Cape Cod, named "Camp Hayward" in his honor. Carle Hayward was a man with a vision—a vision of this YMCA and how it could best serve the people in the community.

George H. Ramsden, Jr. served as General Executive Director of the South Shore YMCA from 1969 until his sudden death in June of 1986. He was a much loved, well-respected man who led the Y with quiet integrity and dedication. He developed a solid organizational structure which built the foundation for the Y's continued growth. He was dedicated to the YMCA philosophy of helping people grow in mind, body and spirit, and for 18 years he continuously and successfully addressed the goal of providing services and programs to people of all ages and backgrounds. George's leadership extended beyond the South Shore YMCA. He was very active in the Association of Professional YMCA Directors, was president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club, and was involved in the United Fund Campaigns. George is still honored today by YMCA directors in Massachusetts, who annually present the "George H. Ramsden Leadership Award," to a YMCA director who exemplifies George's qualities. His widow, Frances Ramsden of Quincy, accepted the award along with her son David.

W. Gordon Clark of Greenbush has had a hand in every major development of the South Shore YMCA for the past 30 years. He was instrumental in the founding and the development of Camp Hayward in the late 1950s and early 60s. He was chairman of the House & Grounds Committee for nine years, during which both the Women's Salon and the Physical Fitness Wing were added to the Quincy Division.

Gordon Clark's personal involvement in the South Shore YMCA has spanned four decades, and his family's involvement in the Y goes back to his grandfather, who was one of the 12 founders of the Y.

Joining the board in 1955, Gordon served as president from 1966 to 1968. Still a member of the Board of Directors today, he has played a pivotal role in securing a site in the YMCA's southern service area, and this work has culminated in the donation of 36 acres in Rockland.

Jacqueline Whitcomb, a Quincy resident, has worn countless hats in her 37-year career with the South Shore YMCA, but the impact she has had on peoples' lives is the common thread. Few have touched as many people as Jackie—as director of Camp Hayward, as Assistant Women and Girl's Director, as Youth Director, and especially as coordinator of the Tri-Hi-Y program. It was perhaps in Tri-Hi-Y, a club for high school age girls, that Jackie truly made her mark. Thirty years later, she is still in touch with many of her "girls."

It was in 1955 that Jackie was recruited as a volunteer, when the new Y facility was first opened. She became a member of the Women and Girls Committee. From there, she started work part-time as the Tri-Hi-Y coordinator. In 1971 she joined the staff full-time, working with girls' programs and camps. In 1983, she became Administrative Assistant to the General Director. In 1991, Jackie retired from her full-time position. She continues to work part-time, and to volunteer in the early morning greeting members as they arrive.

Jackie Whitcomb's impact on the YMCA can't be measured on any typical scale, but can be seen in the men and women, girls and boys she has drawn into the YMCA circle of friends.

Several local businesses have helped make Celebration '92 and the performance by Up With People possible through their generous support. The South Shore YMCA thanks the following "Partner Sponsors": BayBank, Fleet Bank, Quincy Hospital, Quincy Savings Bank, Ryder Truck Rental, Shawmut Bank, South Shore Bank, South Weymouth Savings Bank.

Up With People also performed a two-hour show of "Rhythm of the World" Friday, Nov. 6 at Weymouth Junior High School, Pleasant St., Weymouth.

Gold Medalist Diana Golden Speaker At Dinner Dance

The South Shore YMCA hosted a dinner dance at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham April 24 as one of the many centennial activities during the Y's 100th birthday celebration.

A featured part of the evening was a keynote address by Olympic Gold Medalist Diana Golden. Diana, who lost her leg to cancer at the age of 12, changed the sport of skiing. She has won not only virtually everything there was to win in the arena of disabled skiing, she carried the effort into able-bodied ski racing as well.

She has won numerous distinctions, including:

Olympic Gold Medalist, 1988 Calgary Winter Olympics, Ten-time World Championship Gold Medalist; Nineteen-time U.S. National Gold Medalist; 1991 Women's Sports Foundations "Flo Hyman Award;" 1988 U.S. Olympic Committee's "Female Skier of the Year;" and 1988 Ski Racing Magazine's "U.S. Female Alpine Skier of the Year."

Diana spoke about turning obstacles into opportunities and living up to our utmost potential by committing to excellence and determining to excel. Her philosophy matches the YMCA's 100-year mission: helping people improve the quality of their lives and discover new opportunities.

The dinner event also included a musical look at the past 100 years of the South Shore YMCA, which was founded in Quincy in 1892. According to Jay Asher, president of WJDA and chairman of the YMCA's Centennial Events Committee, "the evening was a mix of inspiration and fun, with a lighthearted review of the music and events from the last 100 years."

Just a few programs at the YMCA: Teen Leader's Club, non-competitive youth sports, English Tutorial, water exercise, outdoor adventure ropes course, strength training for handicapped adults, full day and after school child care, day and resident camping, adventure trips for teens, triathlon training, pre and post natal exercise, Swimming for the Terrified . . . and much more.

Did You Know?

The South Shore YMCA runs programs in over 15 different locations, serving people from as many as 40 communities.

Over 19,000 adults and children are involved in programs and activities at the South Shore YMCA.

The YMCA has a 400-acre camp in Sandwich, Massachusetts, operating two resident camps, and year-round conference facilities, including a high and low adventure ropes course.

The South Shore YMCA was started by a group of concerned citizens 100 years ago.

Over half of the YMCA's members and participants are female.

A YMCA physical director invented basketball at Springfield College 100 years ago, in 1892. The South Shore YMCA ran one of the first church basketball leagues in the country.

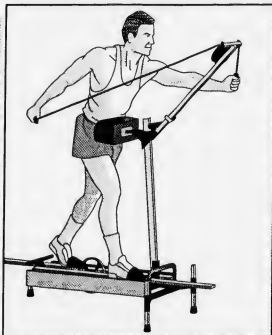

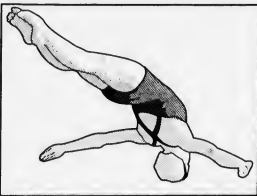

Although women have been involved in the YMCA since its beginning, it was not until after World War II that they were admitted full membership and participation. The South Shore YMCA had the first woman board of directors president in the United States, Emma Tousant, who served as president from 1962-1966.

There are YMCAs at work in more than 100 countries around the world. The South Shore YMCA maintains strong international ties, hosting over 30 summer staff from around the world.

Despite our unchanging name, "Young Men's Christian Association," everyone is welcome at the YMCA, regardless of race, age, religion, sex, ethnic origin and economic circumstances. Scholarship assistance is provided to those who can not afford the cost of a program or membership, thanks to generous support of YMCA friends and members. In 1992, over $90,000 in scholarship funds will be awarded.

Congratulations

South Shore YMCA for 100 years of service.

Looking Ahead

The YMCA -- Into Our Second Century

By RALPH YOHE
General Executive Director

At the YMCA's century mark, it is appropriate to reflect on our proud heritage and look at our exciting future.

One central theme stands out — the South Shore Y is about improving people's lives. The cornerstone of our Association has always been the dedicated volunteers who have given generously of their time and talent, making our YMCA one of the most successful in the country.

Those of us who are now entrusted with the leadership of the YMCA have a deep appreciation for all the efforts of those who were here before us. At the same time we have a keen sense of responsibility for the future. Together, the volunteers and staff are committed to insuring that the YMCA remains a dynamic service organization continuing to meet our community's needs.

Community needs have changed and so has the YMCA throughout the years. An 1894 newspaper article indicated a major concern of Y leaders was children shooting marbles. The article warned that marbles would ruin the children of that day. Wouldn't it be comforting if marbles were still a major concern? Today's children need, more than ever, caring adults who set reasonable limits.

The YMCA has identified several priority areas to focus on during the next several years. Youth programs have been, and will continue to be, a high priority. Today, the needs of kids remain the same but the potential harmful influences have multiplied. The negative influence of marbles seems so mild compared to the variety of difficult choices faced by today's children. No longer can we simply run programs to "keep kids off the streets." We now must help children develop values so when they are on the streets they can make intelligent decisions.

The YMCA is especially proud of our work with thousands of young people over the years. While our programs have changed, the need for positive role models has always been vital. Countless children have benefitted from Y programs. Leadership has always been provided by concerned adults who care about each individual child participating in these activities.

The YMCA is committed to serving youths at each developmental stage. Programs for older youth and teens are being initiated to challenge, motivate and build the self esteem of tomorrow's leaders. Serving this age group is another priority for the YMCA in the next decade.

Although half of all Y programs are for children, we have programs for people of all ages. We need to continue reaching out to more of our active older adult population, a rapidly increasing segment of the population. The YMCA is offering health and fitness programs designed especially for seniors. More and more, people are realizing that fitness is not only for the young and the "already fit."

The South Shore Y proudly serves all people — men, women, boys and girls, of every race and religion, regardless of their financial status. Our English Tutorial Program, for example, provides support for newly immigrated teens. This program meets an important need, however, we need to become more of a resource for our growing immigrant and refugee community.

We are now installing an elevator in our Coddington Street facility to help us serve more people with disabilities. Future plans for our Quincy Division include adding a second indoor swimming pool and expanding our fitness center.

We operate a 400 acre residential camp in Sandwich which 1200 campers enjoy each summer. Camp Burgess for boys and Camp Hayward for girls have provided a camping experience that these children will remember throughout their lives. We now also have a winter facility for over 100 people. A new dining hall to serve a greater number of year-round groups is needed.

A future dream is to develop a family camp which will allow the whole family to participate together in camping programs.

The Quincy YMCA merged with the Weymouth YMCA in 1981 forming the South Shore Y. In addition to Quincy and Weymouth we presently serve Milton, Braintree, Randolph, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, and Norwell. Realizing that we cannot serve the entire South Shore from just one location, we have been looking for an additional site in the area for the past ten years. Recently we received a donation of 18 acres in Rockland. We hope to increase this site to 40 acres. Initial plans for this location are a day camp and family recreation center with an outdoor pool. Ultimately, this location or another site may be developed into a full facility.

Financial resources are needed to fulfill all of our dreams. The community responded generously to the need for a new Y in the 1950's. We know the same response will be forthcoming for our current needs. It has been said that a YMCA is only as good as a community makes it. We sincerely appreciate the efforts of all of our staff, volunteers, and members who have created our outstanding Y today.

Looking toward our second century, we will hold onto our tradition of welcoming change. We remain committed to growing and meeting the needs of our community. Although our programs have and will change, our mission remains steadfast: to improve the quality of peoples lives in body, mind and spirit.

Membership numbers: From 500 members in 1955, the YMCA now has over 9,000 members, and serves an additional 9,000 children and adults through programs.

The South Shore YMCA Board of Directors and Staff
thank the community for supporting the YMCA for the past 100 years.

Please join us as we enter our second century of service to the girls, boys, men and women of the South Shore!

New Year's Eve Celebration

13,000 Expected At Quincy's First Night

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Tonight's the night. An estimated 13,000 people will be on hand in Quincy Center to ring in the New Year amid a family celebration filled with music, entertainment, food and fireworks.

First Night Quincy officials had sold 3,000 buttons through Monday and are expecting more sales. With good weather expected, Michael Cheney, chairman of the First Night Committee, said he expects as many as 13,000 people tonight (Thursday).

Buttons cost $10 and may be purchased at Barry's Deli, Shaw's, Stop & Shop, Dellaria Hair Salon, Dunkin' Donuts, Tedeschi's Food Shops and City Hall throughout today and at four locations tonight, New City Hall, Old City Hall, the Quincy Tourism Booth, and the Vo-Tech Gym.

NON-ALCOHOLIC FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT

"People should buy their buttons now so they won't have to wait in line Thursday night," said Michael Cheney, chairman of the First Night Committee.

It appears the weather will cooperate, the extended forecast is for mild temperatures and clear skies.

The MBTA will run buses until 2 a.m. and the Ross, Hancock, UDAG and President's Place parking garages will offer free parking.

Indoor and outdoor festivities begin at 4 p.m. at locations throughout Quincy Center.

"The emphasis is on a family theme and one of our main priorities is low cost," said Cheney.

Face painting, hat and mask making, begin at 4 p.m. inside President's Place.

Two of the major attractions will be a parade at 7 p.m. in which the public is invited to participate and fireworks at midnight.

Cheney said 2,000 toy instruments and noise-makers will be distributed for the parade in which spectators may join as the parade passes by.

The parade begins at (Cont'd on Page 22)

At Mid-Term Address Monday

Sheets To Unveil Plan To Develop Hancock Parking Lot

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

During his Mid-Term Address Monday, Mayor James Sheets will summarize his administration's gains during 1992 and offer a look ahead to his major goals for next year, including a major downtown development project.

Sheets will give his "State of the City" speech at 10 a.m. during the City Council's Mid-Term meeting. Besides giving an overview of 1992 and 1993, the mayor said he will disclose a plan to develop the Hancock parking area in Quincy Center into a retail complex to attract and boost business in the city's main retail district.

Sheets said Tuesday that the RFP (Request for Proposal) for the project is out and bids to develop the 5.5-acre parcel will be accepted through the end of next month.

The mayor said the project essentially calls for 110,000-square feet of new retail space in the parking area located behind Hancock St. and across from Quincy District Court. Sheets said the new retail complex with not be a "mini-mall." Instead, the mayor said the complex will consist of one or more separate buildings.

He said he hopes to attract three well-known retailers, one a major toy retailer such as Toys R Us. The nation's largest toy retailer has expressed some interest in locating a store in Quincy. Child World closed its doors in Quincy Square earlier in the year. Its storefront remains empty and is too small for Toys R Us.

To make room for the new complex, Sheets said stores along Cottage Ave. and Revere Rd. which abut the parking area will be demolished, thereby opening up that section to Hancock St. The city would then work with store owners to relocate the retailers in the new complex, the mayor said.

With the beautification of Hancock St. and surrounding area complete with new streets, sidewalks, flowers and historical street lights, Sheets said the time is right to develop the last major parcel in Downtown Quincy.

"These improvements are important because they set the stage for expansion of the retail mix to all one-stop shopping for our citizens and we must create new retail space if we're going to attract major retailers, like Toys 'R' Us.

"They want space that fits into their requirements and the only space we can accomplish this is the Hancock parking area.

"The timing is perfect because this will be the first major project where the city will share responsibility of planning and marketing with its business and labor partners in Quincy 2000."

Sheets said the soon-to-be-hired executive director of Quincy 2000, a public-private partnership in charge of revitalizing Quincy's retail areas, will survey local residents and merchants to learn what type of retailers they (Cont'd on Page 22)

Quincy Evergreen Program Accepting Trees Through Jan. 9

The Quincy Evergreen Program is accepting Christmas trees from residents for mulching through Jan. 9.

The program, which is now in its third year, is sponsored by J.M. Cashman, Inc., 77 Federal Ave. Almost 5,000 trees have been collected in the program's first two years.

Everyone who brings in a tree to be mulched will receive a coupon for a live 10-inch evergreen plant, which will be available in April. Used gift wrapping paper may also be exchanged for an evergreen coupon.

Trees and wrapping paper may be brought to the Park and Recreation Center, 100 Southern Artery, weekdays until Jan. 8 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturdays until Jan. 9 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The program is open to Quincy residents only.

For more information, call the Park and Forestry Department at 376-1251.

Property Taxes Due Feb. 1

Tax Collector Dana Childs announces that the property tax bills for the third quarter of FY '93 have been mailed and are due by Feb. 1, 1993.

Payments received after Feb. 1, regardless of the postmark date, will be assessed a late charge due to Feb. 1.

New owners since Jan.

1, 1992 are advised that tax bills for 1993 are issued in the name of the prior owner. Therefore, new owners should obtain a copy of the bill from the prior owner or the tax office. Failure to receive a bill does not negate interest for late payments.

The Board of Assessors reminds tax payers that applications for abatement must be filed by Wednesday, Jan. 27 and applications for exemptions must be filed by Monday, March 29.

Property owners who have not received a bill should contact the Collector's Office at 376-1083 Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Recycling Program Expands This Week

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The city's recycling program will expand beginning tomorrow. Residents may now place aluminum and metal food cans in their blue recycling bins each week. Cans should be washed and may be crushed to conserve space. Labels do not have to be removed.

A Recycling Drop-Off Center will also begin operation behind the Department of Public Works building, 55 Sea St. The drop-off center will accept items including magazines, cardboard, white office paper, telephone books, and waste oil such as auto lubricants.

The center will also accept blue bin items such as glass, plastic, newspapers and metal cans. The drop off center will be open 24 hours a day to Quincy residents and may be utilized by businesses and residents of apartments and condominiums who are not part of the curbside collection program.

Browning-Ferris Industries has donated posters and flyers announcing the expansion. Flyers were recently placed in resident's blue bins.

Since Quincy began its recycling program in May of 1989, the city has avoided $2.3 million in landfill disposal costs. The curbside program has collected 18.9 tons of trash and the leaf composting program has collected 14.9 tons of leaves and yard waste.

The recycling program has grown quickly in Quincy and city officials credit resident's efforts.

"We've made a step forward in favor of the environment," said City Councillor-at-Large Patricia Toland.

"In these tough economic times recycling is a way residents can take matters into their own hands. People in Quincy have responded," said Larry Chretien, chairman of the City Council's Recycling Committee.

"But there's always room for improvement," Chretien added. "People can take an extra look at what they are throwing in the garbage... and people who haven't recycled, we need their participation."

BFI officials estimate that a typical Quincy family generates about 60 pounds of recyclable materials each month.

City and BFI officials are working with New England Telephone to coordinate a pickup program for old phone books twice a year when new books are distributed.

A household hazardous waste drop off will also be announced as will special dates for leaf and yard waste drop offs.

Quincy began a bi-weekly newspaper collection in 1989 and started the weekly blue bin program in August 1990. The leaf compost program began in the fall of 1990 and last spring expanded to include other yard waste.

"Almost everyone is willing to recycle if they are aware of the details," Chretien said. "Our committee will provide more details in the coming months."

The Recycling Committee is also looking at starting a recycling program in schools and municipal buildings. It is estimated that Quincy schools use about 9 million sheets of paper each year.

1992 In Review

A Year Of Change

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Nineteen ninety-two: it was a year when Quincy's complexion changed both figuratively and literally.

An unusually high number of high-profiled local leaders, including public officials and administrators, vacated or announced they were leaving their long-held positions. They included Cong. Brian Donnelly, City Clerk John Gillis, School Committeewoman Mary Collins, Sen. Paul Harold, and School Supt. Robert Ricci.

Donnelly's unexpected decision to step down as the U.S. representative in the 11th District was one of the biggest news stories of the year. It triggered a scramble for his seat on Capitol Hill and created open seats for state senator and state representative, the latter of which was won by first-time candidate Michael Bellotti.

Michael Morrissey successfully moved from state representative to state senator, succeeding Harold who campaigned unsuccessfully for Congress. Gillis, another familiar face, retired as city clerk after 34 years. One week later he was elected to the Norfolk County Commission.

Indeed, 1992 was one of the more politically vibrant years in recent memory. Thirty-four candidates appeared on the state primary ballot seeking nominations in eight contested races. The final election featured five contested races.

Nationally, Quincy helped elect Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, whose campaign mantra was change, to the White House.

Other new faces came upon the local scene or assumed different capacities. Veteran public school administrator Eugene Creodon was appointed school superintendent. Margaret (Peg) King, a retired math teacher and runner-up in the 1991 fall election, was named to the School Committee after Collins stepped down because of health concerns.

If you needed a score card to keep up with the candidates and elections, you certainly needed a map for Quincy's new congressional district. In July, the old 11th district was dismantled because the state lost a congressional seat; in turn, Quincy was placed in a redrawn 10th district represented by Cong. Gerry Studds.

Studds, despite a Democratic challenge by Sen. Paul Harold in the state primary, and two other battles in the final election, was re-elected in November to become the city's new congressman.

Several city projects and endeavors took steps forward, including the Quincy 2000 public-private partnership which became law. Another project spruced up the southern end of Hancock St. with new pavement, sidewalks, trees and antique lamps.

The year was not without disappointment. Perhaps the biggest dose came in January when the Navy awarded the legendary U.S.S. Lexington aircraft carrier to Corpus Christi, Texas, ending an emotional year-long local effort to return the ship home to Quincy.

Nineteen ninety-two was also a year of milestones. Quincy celebrated its 200th anniversary as a separate municipality. In addition, residents observed the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America by viewing the Tall Ships Parade of Sail in July in Boston Harbor. Nearly 1000 residents defied a National Guard blockade and marched to Long Island from Squantum to see the ships.

Sadly, Quincy said good-bye to some dear friends and courageous citizens including North Quincy native William "Billy" Degan, a U.S. marshal killed in the line of duty; the Rev. Cecil R. Paul, president of Eastern Nazarene College, who suffered a fatal cerebral hemorrhage; and the irreplaceable Baron Hugo, a legend of the "Big Band Era."

The city also mourned the deaths of Msgr. John J. Twiss, 93, former pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church; Rev. John J. MacMahon, former pastor of St. Mary's Church; and Tommy Gilmartin, beloved North Quincy High ball boy and inspiration to this year's state champion football team.

Here's a look back at the 1992 major news stories in Quincy:

January

Mayor James Sheets warned that the tight economic times of the last two years would apparently continue into 1992 as he projected a $4 million shortfall in FY 93 during his second inaugural address in early January.

After taking the oath of office in the North Quincy High School auditorium, Sheets made his projection based on an anticipated 10 percent loss or $2.9 million reduction in state local aid and an increase in fixed costs such as employee insurance, retirement benefits and workers compensation.

To close the expected gap in the new budget which would take effect July 1, Sheets said he would:

- Leave unfilled or cut 30 municipal positions, a savings of $1 million.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS is sworn into a second term of office by City Clerk John Gillis at inaugural ceremonies held at North Quincy High School auditorium. Gillis, who would retire as city clerk later in the year, administered the oath of office to eight Quincy mayors during his 34 years as clerk.

- Continue pursuing delinquent tax revenue. In FY 91, the city recovered $1.4 million.

- Continue searching out new revenue sources.

- Recommend major reorganization of department structure.

Sheets, who did not offer any specific ideas regarding new revenue sources and department reorganization, said he would not recommend a Proposition 2 and 1/2 override.

During his 33-minute address, the mayor also noted other top priorities for his administration over the next two years, including improving the city's school system, revitalizing the city's three business districts and enhancing the physical environment.

In other inaugural news, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan was sworn in as the new city council president. School Committeewoman Mary Collins was elected vice chairman of the board for the third time in her 14 years on the committee.

Two new local officials also took the oath of office for the first time: Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and School Committeewoman Linda Stice. Dan Raymond, a former school committeeman, also returned to the board.

Rev. William McCarthy, the pastor of St. John's Church who is affectionately known as "the people's priest" and Fr. Bill, celebrated his 40th year as a priest with a Mass and party at St. John's Church.

The Navy sunk the city's quest for the U.S.S.

Mayor James Sheets, who spearheaded the local effort for the ship, was disappointed the ship would not return home. Without the Lexington, which was considered a catalyst for downtown revitalization, the mayor said his administration would refocus on the Quincy Plan to revitalize the city's business districts and accentuate Quincy's history to boost tourism.

Sheets said politics, namely Sen. Phil Gramm, (Cont'd on Page 8)

Nominations Close Today For Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Today (Thursday) is the final day to submit nominations for The Quincy Sun's eighth annual "Citizen of the Year" award.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Last year, Frank Kearns of Quincy was honored for his volunteer contributions as a community activist and advocate for the city's elderly, homeless, needy and poor.

After nominations close Dec. 31, a judging panel will be selected to make the final choice from the nominations submitted.

A nomination ballot to help the selection process appears on Page 5 of this week's issue of The Sun.

If you know of someone you would like to see recognized with this award, fill out the ballot and mail it to:

The Quincy Sun
Attn: Citizen of the Year
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, MA 02169
Nominations should be postmarked no later than Dec. 31.

Ballots can also be dropped off at The Sun office at the above address no later than Dec. 31.

Those submitting nominations should identify themselves. They can also attach to the ballot a letter detailing the reason for the nomination.

Nominees can be someone in elective office, a member of an appointed board, a clergy member, a teacher or school administrator, a police officer or firefighter, someone in the business community, a sports figure or an "unsung" neighbor or friend who has given freely of his or her time to a worthy project or cause.

The name of the winner will be announced in The Quincy Sun in January.

Here is an opportunity for our readers to voice their opinion as to who should be The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1992.

ANOTHER TOOL TO BEAT CANCER

There is increasing evidence that people can reduce their risk of dying from colon or rectal cancer by undergoing a diagnostic test called sigmoidoscopy.

The test involves inserting a tiny, lighted scope into the rectum to give the doctor a view of any abnormalities and allow an earlier diagnosis of these slow-growing cancers. While the procedure causes minor discomfort, a study of more than 1,000 cancer patients found that those whose disease had been caught early by the test had a death rate almost 70 percent below those who hadn't had the procedure. The American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute both recommend that people over 50 have the test every three to five years.

P.S. Some 60,000 Americans die from colon or rectal cancer every year.

Early detection can save lives. If you do not yet know the early warning signs of cancer, ask your physician to teach you. For more information on this topic or on the prevention and treatment of heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We focus on treating the patient, rather than the disease. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24 in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

The Night Fate Smiled On Bush

George Bush is winding down his days as President — a job he may have once come close to never holding.

Former Quincy resident Ron Kaufman, who played a key role in Bush's election will always remember a night when it looked like Bush was politically sidetracked.

It was at the Republican National Convention in Detroit in July, 1980, and Ronald Reagan had the Presidential nomination — which Bush had sought — all wrapped up.

KAUFMAN

BUSH

Kaufman was on the convention floor organizing a "spontaneous" demonstration for Bush for vice president when word began to filter down that Reagan's choice for the No. 2 spot on the ticket was former President Gerald Ford.

"We went through with the demonstration," said Kaufman at the time, "and it was a pretty good one if I do say so myself. But everyone was down."

After the demonstration was over and Bush had made his scheduled speech, Kaufman turned to his wife, Allison, and said: "That's it. Let's go tell George it's been a great campaign. It's all over."

The Kaufmans and Rep. Andrew Natsios (R-Holliston), chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, went to Bush's suite on the 19th floor of the Pouchatrain Hotel.

"We got off the elevator and people were getting on," Kaufman recalled. "People were crying, they were so upset. Just as we got into the main room of the suite, the phone rang."

"One of George's aides answered it. It was Reagan. George went into one of the private rooms to talk to him."

If Reagan had wanted Ford as his running mate as word had spread around the convention floor, he had changed his mind. Or Ford had decided not to accept.

REAGAN

Anyway, as Kaufman remembered it: "Then he (Bush) came out and told us that Reagan had chosen him for vice president."

Almost immediately, Kaufman said, Secret Service men showed up and shooed most of the people in the suite outside. About 24 were allowed to remain. Kaufman was one of them.

"We sat around for about half an hour laughing and crying," he said.

"George kidded us about the demonstration. He hadn't known about it (being organized) but he was pleased. He said the demonstration buoyed him up by its enthusiasm. He was too thrilled to be down."

"Then the VIPs started to show up and I left. I had my thrill for the year."

Kaufman and his wife arrived home about 10:30 p.m. that Friday night. At 10:35 p.m. the phone rang. The Bush camp wanted him to go to Kennebunkport, Me. to organize a reception when Bush arrived for a brief vacation at his summer home there.

"We had about 2,500 people and a brass band ready at noon Saturday," said Kaufman.

Bush of course, served eight years as Reagan's vice president during which time he positioned himself for the Presidential nomination in 1988.

Kaufman played a key role in that election.

But if Bush hadn't been picked for the vice president spot in 1980 he could have been a political has been by 1988 and out of the running for President.

There's an intriguing thought to it all.

If Reagan had gone with Ford as his vice president, could Ford have been elected in 1988: a former President returning as President.

A President cannot serve more than two terms. Ford didn't when he took over for the disgraced Richard Nixon. So he would have been eligible to run.

And if he had run — and won — how would it have changed history?

MARY PAPILE, who recently retired as assistant city treasurer after 29 years service, was honored at a party and presented with several gifts. One of them had a lot of attached sentiment.

The committee, unknown to her, purchased the old manual typewriter and the stand which she had used all those years. ("You can have your computers.") For Mary it was like bringing an old friend home.

WHAT DID YOU get your wife for Christmas? You probably didn't top Charles Sweeney, former school committee member and noted West Quincy horticulturist, in the unique gift department. Sweeney gave his wife, Betty — ready — a 15-foot canoe.

Of course, he couldn't get it under the tree so he gave her a picture of it. It's coming from out-of-state.

Now he's hoping that when it arrives he'll be able to squeeze it into the garage.

Comes summer, he and Betty will head for the New Hampshire side of the Sacco River with it.

Betty, who takes everything in stride — including Charlie — says: "It's something I've always wanted. And what other wife can say she got a canoe from her husband for Christmas?"

But she told Charlie he's going to have to do some of the paddling.

'Thank You'

Paul Harold In Farewell

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the people of Quincy and the Senate District for allowing me to represent them in the State Senate for the past 14 years.

This is a privilege that has been afforded just a few men and women since the seat was first occupied by General Joseph Palmer when it was a part of the "Council" before the inception of our state legislature under the Constitution of 1780.

The Massachusetts Senate is the third oldest upper legislative body in the world after the House of Lords in England and the Virginia House of Burgesses.

I tried to serve the district while keeping this historical perspective in mind without losing sight of the modern needs of the Senate district.

Committee Chairs

During my tenure in the Senate I was fortunate to serve as chairman of two different committees; the Committee on Local Affairs and the Committee on Criminal Justice.

The Local Affairs Committee represents the interests of cities and towns in the legislature. I was chosen to chair this committee because of my experience as a Quincy City Councillor.

During my time as Chair, we had to respond to the impacts on cities and towns caused by Proposition 2 1/2. We passed several pieces of innovative legislation to help municipalities cope with the fiscal constraints of 2 1/2.

One of these ideas was enacted for the city of Quincy and became a model for the entire state.

The city established enterprise accounts for Quincy College (then Quincy Junior College) and Quincy Hospital (then Quincy City Hospital) so that these institutions would become self-sufficient.

The Committee on Criminal Justice is called upon to respond to the demands of our Criminal Justice System within the framework of the United States and State Constitutions, while at the same time keeping in mind the rights of the victims of crime and their families and the limited resources of our police departments and corrections facilities.

While I was the Chair of Criminal Justice, the most important legislative package that we passed was the so-called "Safe Roads Act."

This legislation re-wrote our drunk driving statutes making them among the toughest in the nation while at the same time leading to a change in public attitudes towards the use and abuse of alcohol.

In our current session, we have enacted the "Stalking Bill" to protect the victims of domestic violence and added the word dangerous to our bail laws to allow a judge to consider the risk a person poses to the community when setting bail.

Thanks to Colleagues and Constituents

I also want to take this opportunity to thank colleagues that I have worked with in both local and state government, in particular my legislative colleagues, Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli, Ronald Mariano, Steven Tobin and Michael Morrissey who will be succeeding me as State Senator.

It has been my goal as your state Senator to make sure that state government was responsive to both those taxpayers who were paying the bills, tempered with compassion for those that were truly in need.

I have tried to serve with both achievement and

THE QUINCY SEAT--Senator-elect Michael Morrissey tries out the Quincy Senate seat in the Massachusetts Senate he will occupy next month as he succeeds Paul Harold (left). Senators from Quincy have long had this particular seat known as The Quincy Seat.

(Legislative Service Bureau) over the past 14 years.

Although I will no longer be holding elective office, it is my intention to remain active in the community and accessible to the people of Quincy.

Burgin Urges More Police, Firefighters

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin called for the addition of 10 men each to the Police and Fire Departments to meet the rising emergency of civil defense in Quincy in his inaugural address to the City Council.

Burgin, starting his third full term as mayor, also called for a careful study of plans for a new $500,000 City Hall to be built on the old Adams Academy property.

The mayor also recommended:

- A new fire station in the Quincy Point industrial area to replace the current wooden one.

- Consolidation of the Park, Cemetery and Forestry Departments under a trained Civil Service supervisor.

- A centralized bookkeeping department under the direct supervision of the city Auditor's office.

City Clerk Emery L. Crane, hospitalized with the gripple, missed his first inaugural since he took office in 1912 so Mayor Burgin was sworn in by Assistant City Clerk Hattiemae Thomas.

Councillor William W. Jenness was chosen president of the City Council after Councillor Christian A. Burckard was summoned from a sick bed to break a deadlock among Jenness, Aldo Della Chiesa and himself.

Harry W. Tirrell, the only city messenger the city had since its incorporation in 1889, was re-elected to a 53rd term.

RAISE AT FORE RIVER

The Independent Union of Fore River Workers, fighting for control with a CIO union, announced pay increases of $2.45 to $5 a week for all workers at the shipyard.

The pay of mechanics was to be hiked to 99 cents an hour, handymen to 71 cents an hour and helpers to 50 cents an hour.

President William H. Norton said that his independent unit had signed up more than 6,000 Fore River workers in its bid to become the official bargaining agent for the yard.

SENDOFF PARTY

Three National Guard units from Quincy were given a sendoff party at the Masonic Temple on the eve of their induction into federal service for a year of duty at Camp Edwards.

They were Co. L, 101st Infantry, Capt. Robert S. Knapp, commander; Headquarters Co., Third Battalion, Lt. Edward T. O'Donnell, Headquarters Co., 51st Brigade, Lt. Henry B. Shea.

OFFICERS COMMENDED

Mayor Burgin commended Police Officers Joseph Lind, who had been on the force less than 24 hours, and Henry Pitts for excellent police work and gallantry at a fire in Wollaston.

Lind and Pitts climbed a trellis at 41 Warren Ave., to rescue Miss Catherine Glynn and then caught George Ballard, 14, as he dropped from a window in the attic where he was trapped by the flames.

QUINCY-ISMS

Gov. Leverett Saltonstall disappointed many on the South Shore when he failed to mention the need for elimination of pollution in Quincy Bay in his inaugural address ... Joseph K. Barber, Abraham Lubarsky, George A. Peterson and Arthur E. Neill were sworn in as assistant assessors ... A two-pound jar of peanut butter was 18 cents at the Town Food Mart, 1626 Hancock St. ... James F. Brittan, one of the engineers who worked on the project, spoke on the Quabbin Reservoir at the Rotary Club luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce Building ... The Squantum Tennis Club held its annual New Year's Eve party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Stanley Purcell on Dorchester St. ... The Rev. Eugene R. Morin, son of Mrs. Annie Morin, 110 Chubbuck St., Quincy Point, celebrated his first solemn high Mass at St. Joseph's Church ... Public Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash warned that the city was due for a measles epidemic during the winter, particularly in Wards 1, 2 and 3 ... Broiled live lobster with french fried potatoes, drawn butter, rolls and coffee was 50 cents at Kiley's Grille, 35 Washington St. ... A sham battle with cotton balls among the 90 guests featured the New Year's Eve party of the Montclair Improvement Association ... Anthony J. Venna, commissioner of public welfare, announced that there were openings for 15 young men between the ages of 17 and 23 in the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) ...

Quincy AARP To Sponsor 'Old And Rare Books' Lecture At Pagnano Towers Jan. 6

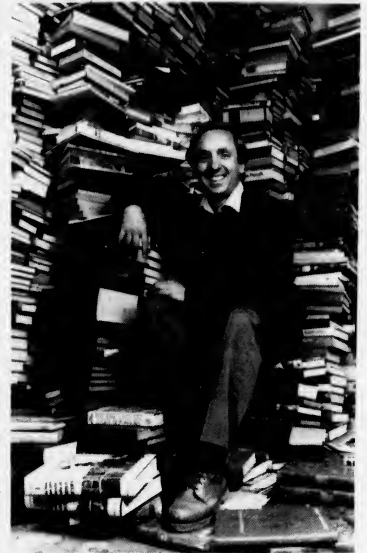

Kenneth Gloss, proprietor of the Brattle Book Shop in Boston, will speak at an open lecture under the sponsorship of the Quincy AARP Chapter Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 2 p.m. at Pagnano Towers, 100 Curtis Ave., Quincy.

Gloss's talk is entitled, "Treasures in Your Attic: Old and Rare Books."

"New England homes are treasure troves for old and rare books that have increased in value over the years," says Gloss, "and we're inviting those attending to bring any volumes they want to know about to the lecture for a free verbal appraisal."

The Brattle Book Shop is the successor to America's oldest continuously operating antiquarian book store. Gloss succeeded his late father, George Gloss, a well-known figure both in Boston and in national antiquarian circles.

Kenneth Gloss has worked in the store since childhood and elected to go into the book business rather than pursue a doctorate in chemistry. He became the sole proprietor upon his father's death several years ago.

Gloss will bring to the lecture several examples of interesting books, magazines and ephemera from the store's private collection, such as a 1912

World Series scorecard and examples of old LIFE magazines, of which he owns the complete set.

Following the lecture and question-and-answer session Gloss will give free verbal appraisals of those books and items that people bring with them or will do so at anytime at his 9 West St. emporium in Boston.

For more information, call the Brattle Book Shop at 1-800-447-9595.

Ed Spargo Celebrates 85th Birthday With Party

Quincy native Ed Spargo recently celebrated his 85th birthday with a gathering of family and friends at the Common Market in West Quincy.

The party was highlighted by a tribute by Rev. Robert W. Kirchmeyer who praised Spargo, a self-styled "obsolescent octogenarian," for his "unique, one-man campaign to enhance the health and welfare of his fellow man, and woman . . . always in altruistic fashion."

Spargo's health plan has been printed, in abbreviated form, nearly four million times.

Sponsored by daughter Nancy Spargo, the dinner party culminated in an evening of entertainment featuring the "Golden Oldies" with popular South Shore musicians and vocalists performing just as they do at local sing-alongs.

Rev. Kirchmeyer grew up in the St. Agatha's Parish, East Milton, and still maintains the family home there. He is now pastor of St. Alphonsus church in Beverly.

"In addition to developing and circulating a health plan to encourage folks to adopt sensible lifestyles," Rev. Kirchmeyer said, "Ed

Spargo has a penchant for mailing out copies of sentimental and inspirational verses and poems and, for almost 20 years, he's been providing me with material suitable for sermons and sermonettes.

"Ed is truly one of God's noble men . . . for he carries out his selfless retirement project with never a thought of self-aggrandizement—perish the thought. God bless him."

On his special occasion, Spargo received birthday greetings from the Boston Red Sox signed by John Harrington, general partner, JRY Corp. Harrington thanked Spargo for his many years of support to the team and organization.

The greeting, in part, read:

"You have been one of our greatest boosters in many ways. Your constant words of encouragement were uplifting at times we needed them most. Indeed, Jean Yawkey marveled at your ability to structure words in a warm and meaningful manner."

Spargo retired from a lifetime of newspaper work 20 years ago and embarked on his health crusade at that time. He and his wife Kae have been married 57 years.

Sheets 'Partnership' Plan Gets City, State Boost

an influential Texas senator, helped torpedo Quincy's bid for the ship which was built at the Fore River shipyard in 1943.

Other factors, such as the Navy high-balling the city's estimated cost to build a dam and cradle for the ship at the Town River by three million dollars, also figured in the final decision, the mayor said.

Despite the loss of the "Lady Lex," Sheets said the city would someday locate a maritime museum in Quincy. "We have over 200 years of shipbuilding heritage that must be preserved."

Deaths during January included: Helen F. DeNicola, active in charitable work; John J. Mantia, 84, locksmith, owned variety store; Albert V. Papile, Navy veteran of three wars; Helene Sargent, 101, founded Camp Fire Girls Council; Jerome J. Coughlin, 85, retired Norfolk County Prison community director; and Halcyone Cosman, 95, journalist.

February

A home-rule petition for a public-private partnership proposed by Mayor James Sheets as part of his Quincy 2000 revitalization gained momentum and support from some city leaders but also attracted sharp criticism from one city councillor.

Councillor Tim Cahill, chairman of the Council's Downtown Economic and Revitalization Committee, came out strongly against the mayor's plan in the press and at a city council meeting. He called the plan flawed and impractical and offered his own alternative proposal to rejuvenate the city's central business district.

Under the mayor's plan, the partnership or corporation would be comprised of 35 members. The corporation's business and affairs would be conducted by an executive director chosen by the executive committee.

The committee would consist of nine voting members: the mayor, city council president, planning director, four from the corporation, two at-large and one none-voting member from the planning department.

Cahill said the partnership's composition would be too large with too little power to be an effective force for change. He also called the arrangement too political since a third of the committee would be either elected or appointed public officials.

In addition, the third-term councillor said the partnership would needlessly duplicate the existence of several well-organized business groups in the city, including the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Cahill also voiced his opposition to a cross-town connector, a key component of the mayor's revitalization effort. He said the connector would be too disruptive since it would take properties that pay taxes.

Cahill also said the four-lane road would bisect Quincy Square in a way that would cause a "traffic nightmare" for motorists travelling north and south on Hancock St. and a "challenge" for pedestrians walking throughout the square.

Regarding the third facet of the mayor's plan, Cahill backed a commuter rail station if the station were located at the Quincy Adams Station in South Quincy or the North Quincy Red Line station.

Under the Sheets' plan, the station would be sited in the Parkway between Granite St. and School St. Cahill said he believed the T would move Quincy Center MBTA station to the commuter rail station if the latter were built.

At the very least, Cahill hoped his plan would stir up some debate on the downtown revitalization issue among business people and residents.

"If the business people and constituents believe more in the mayor's plan, that's fine. If not, it will be open to argument and we'll go on from there."

One week later, the plan garnered more support as several local officials, including Sen. Paul Harold and Rep. Ron Mariano, councillors Michael Cheney, Ted DeCristofaro and Pat Toland and business leaders endorsed the plan.

Dr. Robert Ricci stepped down as school superintendent after four and a half years marked by integrity, hard work, vision and accomplishment. More than 200 people, including parents, teachers, students, administrators, city officials and other VIPs attended a farewell reception in Ricci's honor at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Ricci said he had no regrets about his time with Quincy public schools. "I tried my very best." Drawing a similarity with former Mayor Francis McCauley, he added, "You may not agree with me but I tell it like it is."

Eugene Creedon, a 26-year veteran of Quincy public schools, was appointed acting school superintendent by the School Committee. He was considered the front runner for the permanent superintendent position.

Deaths during February included:

Joseph J. Kendrick Sr., 95, former city councillor; Howard Hollis, owned Hancock Moving and Storage Co.; Margaret Goyette, 90, Bargain Center manager; and Mary E. MacDonald, 86, Quincy school crossing guard.

March

Political news abounded in March, from the presidential primaries to Cong. Brian Donnelly's surprise decision to step down as U.S. representative.

On Super Tuesday, two Massachusetts native sons, former senator Paul Tsongas and President George Bush, captured big victories in Quincy as well as the state in their respective presidential primaries.

The primaries drew 16,918 Quincy voters to the polls, a 37.2 percent turnout.

For Bush, it was just another victory on his way to capturing the Republican nomination. However, the sweet taste of victory for Tsongas did not last; he bowed out of the presidential sweepstakes a few weeks later after his campaign stalled outside the New England region.

Donnelly Decision Triggers Scramble

The biggest news bomb of the year was dropped in mid-March when Donnelly, a 14-year congressman, announced he would not seek reelection in the 11th District. Deciding against a bid for an eighth term, Donnelly said he preferred to be a full-time father to his two children rather than a career politician on Capitol Hill.

His decision triggered an immediate chain reaction which was expected to turn the local political front virtually upside-down.

Sen. Paul Harold was the first to jump into the congressional race while other high-profiled potential candidates considered their own campaigns.

Mayor James Sheets pondered a quest for the seat which he sought in 1978. However, he opted against a congressional campaign so that he could devote full attention to his mayoral agenda.

Harold's entrance into the congressional race opened up his Senate seat.

That race fielded four Democratic would-be successors: Rep. Michael Morrissey, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Holbrook Selectwoman Joanne Koval and political newcomer Dorothy Shea.

In turn, Morrissey's state rep seat became vacant. Candidates for that seat included Democrats Bellotti, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, Steve Colman and Susan-Lydon Walsh.

Other declared candidates included Republicans Susan Gallagher and Michael Cronin and unenrolled candidate Patrick Conroy.

One other state race developed on the local scene: Quincy attorney George Miller announced his intention to challenge Rep. Ron Mariano in the Third Norfolk District.

Quincy also began its bicentennial celebration with a re-enactment of its first town meeting 200 years in the Council Chambers of City Hall. Several dozen local officials dressed in costumes of the day while portraying town folk of yesteryear.

Frank J. Kearns, 79, of Quincy, a community activist for the city's elderly, homeless, lonely, needy and poor for 15 years, was honored as The Quincy Sun 1991 "Citizen of the Year."

Kearns, the seventh award recipient, was honored at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by approximately 100 family members, friends, city officials and invited guests.

Deaths during March included:

John J. MacDonald Jr., 62, a retired special investigator; Ann Mankin, 88, co-owned decorating shop; Frederick J. Brandolini, 56, managed North Quincy taxi service; Frances K. Keohane, 89, wife of Keohane funeral home founder; and Francis R. Bangs, 64, retired Quincy Mental Health supervisor.

April

A special police unit targeted to eliminate crimes committed in and around the city's four MBTA stations hit the streets at the request of Mayor James Sheets.

Formed by Police Chief Francis Mullen, the unit comprised of a sergeant and six patrolmen was charged with making the Red Line stations safer by cracking down on criminals, thieves and drug dealers which popularized the areas. The unit was instructed to patrol the areas on foot, by car and on motorcycles and work flexible hours according to need.

Mullen said the unit would target groups who hang out at the stations, as well as those who drink in public and exhibit unruly behavior.

The special unit made its presence known almost immediately, making seven arrests during its first weekend of operation. Two individuals were nabbed breaking and entering into a motor vehicle, two others were minors caught in possession of alcohol; two were arrested on outstanding warrants and another was put into protective custody for violating the open container law.

One week after banning pitchers of beer in Quincy bars and restaurants, the License Board overturned its ruling after citizens flooded the City Clerk's office with calls opposing the decision.

"If people are having a meal I don't see anything wrong with it," City Clerk John Gillis said, "but we don't want a guy just drinking a pitcher of beer by itself."

The ever changing political landscape was

SEN. PAUL HAROLD officially announces his candidacy for U.S. representative from the 11th Congressional District at the George F. Bryan Post in May. Harold had hoped to succeed Cong. Brian Donnelly who earlier in the year announced he would step down. However, when Quincy was placed in the redrawn 10th District, Harold had to face Cong. Gerry Studds and lost to the incumbent in the September primary.

jolted again after City Clerk John Gillis announced his candidacy for Norfolk County commission and his plans to retire as city clerk.

Gillis, one of the longest serving city clerks in Quincy and among the top three in seniority in Massachusetts, said he would retire regardless of whether he gains a seat on the commission in November.

Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea, who Gillis preferred as his successor, was considered the main contender for the city clerk's post.

Citing health reasons, Mary Collins resigned from the Quincy School Committee after 15 years on the board, including three terms as vice chairman.

Collins was replaced by retired math teacher Peg King by a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee. King was the first runner-up in the fall election.

Beer was back in the news at the end of the month when the City Council passed an ordinance making non-alcoholic brew a no-no for minors.

With the ordinance, backed by Mayor Sheets and Chief Mullen, any store owner selling the non-alcoholic beer to persons under 21 would be subjected to a $200 fine.

Officials were concerned that the beer, sold at some convenience stores, contains as much as .5 percent alcohol and could give youngsters who drink it a "baby buzz."

Deaths during April included:

Michael J. Capone, 68, president of Quincy Sons Of Italy Lodge; Blanche Rimmer, 97, fashion model and entertainer; Maybelle H. Murray, 73, former Girl Scout leader; Walter Clark Wiggins, former real estate broker; JoAnn O'Malley, 48, Quincy school teacher and QEA executive; and Dr. Harold W. Meyers, 72, optometrist.

May

A city-wide door-to-door census showed Quincy has at least 9,335 Asian residents, a figure which is 41 percent higher than the federal count compiled two years ago.

The 1990 federal census pegged Quincy's Asian population at 5,500. City officials strongly doubted the federal count, believing the actual number was considerably higher.

The door-to-door count, which took six weeks to complete, confirmed Quincy has more Asian residents than previously recorded by the federal government. Officials said the local count was more accurate because 15 Asian census takers went door-to-door throughout Quincy.

But because approximately 20 percent of the city's households did not respond to the census, Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea said the exact count may be as high as 11,000.

The overall census found 85,370 residents in Quincy, an increase of .5 percent or 385 from 1990's figure of 84,985.

In an update to the City Council, DPW Commissioner David Colton said the city's sewer pipes are "in a state of collapse."

The three most immediate areas of concern were the Town River Bay interceptor, the Squantum main sewer line and the Camden St.-Lind St. pipe which runs between Houghs Neck and Germantown.

The council was expected to vote on a bond issue for sewer line repair projects later this year.

Local supporters of Independent presidential candidate H. Ross Perot collected approximately 250 signatures for their candidate outside Quincy City Hall to help put the Texas billionaire on the Massachusetts ballot.

Police Chief Francis Mullen, a Navy veteran of the Korean Conflict, was the keynote speaker at the city's Memorial Day ceremonies sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council.

For the third straight year, the Quincy Cleaner-Greener city-wide spruce up effort was a success as three to four tons of debris were removed from local beaches, parks and neighborhoods.

Rev. Bedros Baharian celebrated his 50th year of ordination at a service held at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Tommy Gilmartin, a North Quincy High School football ball boy for several seasons, died after a courageous fight against cancer. Tommy was also an altar server at Sacred Heart Church and an honorary inductee into the Quincy-North Quincy Football Hall of Fame.

Other deaths during May included:

Annie M. Gillis, 99, charter member of Catholic Daughters of America; Toivo M. Siitonen, 75, retired Quincy letter carrier; Catherine T. Walsh, 90, co-founded Walsh's Restaurant; Max Sugarman, 92, owned Quincy scrap business; Harold W. Little, 66, owned laundry equipment company; and Doris G. Kennedy, 85, Squantum Women's Club member.

June

A $1.3 million plan designed to eliminate classroom overcrowding at two Quincy elementary schools by building an early childhood education center in South Quincy and adding modular classrooms to the Charles A. Bernazzani School in West Quincy was publicly supported by Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said he backed the plan proposed by newly appointed Supt. Eugene Creodon provided the project is partially reimbursed by the state.

Under Creodon's plan, an early childhood education center would be built on the site of the former Lincoln School on Brooks and Caledonia Aves. in South Quincy. The 101-year-old school, which was ruled a hazard after an inspection by city building inspectors, was demolished to make room for the new education center.

The center would help ease overcrowding at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School by schooling pre-kindergarten, kindergarten and first graders. The center would also include a meeting room for the South West Quincy Neighborhood Association.

In addition, four classrooms and a multi-purpose gymnasium room would be built at the crowded Bernazzani School.

Financing for the project was expected to be part of a $2 million bond issue. If approved, officials said the building and addition would be open by September, 1993.

The School Committee unanimously appointed Creodon the city's new school superintendent. Creodon, a former teacher and principal, had served as acting superintendent after Dr. Robert Ricci resigned in January.

Creodon said he was forward to a renewal in the Quincy public school system.

In city commencement ceremonies, 557 high school seniors and 534 college students graduated from Quincy academic institutions. Two-hundred and sixty-eight Quincy High School students and another 289 North Quincy High School students received their diplomas.

In addition, Quincy College graduated 534 students, its largest class ever.

In his commencement address, Quincy native and U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan said, "All of us have an obligation to make our communities better."

operation aimed at eliminating drugs, weapons and guns in the city's two public high schools led to the arrests of 20 adults and students, including the parents of a Quincy High School student.

The arrests were the result of a six month operation in which two Norfolk County deputy sheriffs secretly patrolled Quincy High and North Quincy High posing as enrolled students. Those arrested were charged with carrying guns, robbing a pedestrian and intending to sell marijuana, cocaine and LSD.

Investigators and officials confiscated 11 knives, three guns and several fake guns. The firearms arrests were made outside the schools.

Quincy celebrated its 40th annual Flag Day with a parade and tributes for veterans and youth groups. The event, co-sponsored by the Quincy Partnership and the city, also marked the 200th anniversary of Quincy's incorporation as an independent municipality.

Ted Spencer, a Quincy native and current curator at the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., was honored.

The city council adopted the mayor's FY93 city budget virtually intact by an 8-1 vote. It was the first budget under the Sheets' administration that did not require any layoffs.

More than 250 family members, former players and coaches and city and state officials paid tribute to retired Quincy Athletic Director Martin Finnegan who stepped down after 42 years in the school system. Rev. John J. McMahon, 79, former pastor of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy, died at his home in Dennis after a brief illness. He had served as pastor for 20 years until his retirement in 1988.

The city was also saddened by the sudden passing of former New England Patriot fullback Jim Nance, who died of acute cardiac arrhythmia at his Quincy home.

Other deaths during June included:

Charles Condos, 100, owned Splendid Team Rooms in Quincy; Kenneth R. West, 46, survived 21 years after kidney transplant; Sandra Dennis, 53, first president of Woodward School Board of Trustees; and Alexander E. Warmington, 76, former bank director and plumbing and heating company owner.

July

Local school officials and clergy expressed surprise and disappointment to the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that public school graduation ceremonies violated the U.S. Constitution's separation of church and state doctrine.

The Court voted 5-4 that prayer by a member of the clergy at a public school graduation breaks the First Amendment's stipulation against establishing religion.

The vote reaffirmed a U.S. District Court decision in 1990 which resulted from a lawsuit filed by the father of a Providence, R.I. middle school student against the Providence School Board.

Local officials were also disturbed over speculation that Quincy might be split into two separate congressional districts. Mayor James Sheets threatened to file a lawsuit if the state approved the proposed redistricting plan which would place half of Quincy in Cong. Joseph Moakley's district, the other in Cong. Gerry Studds' district.

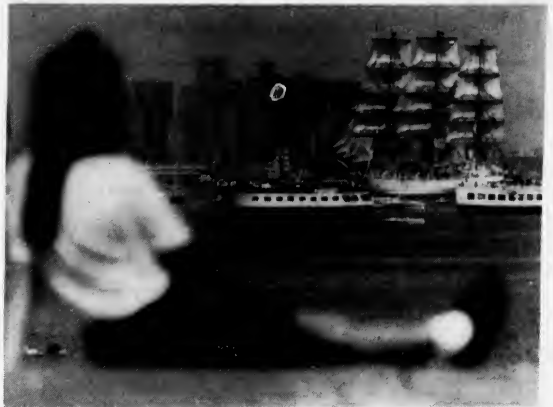

The controversy was created because Massachusetts lost one congressional seat to the state of Washington. By month's end, the redistricting saga was resolved when state leaders opted to eliminate the 11th congressional district and placed Quincy into a reconfigured 10th district.

With the new district in place, the field of candidates running for the 10th congressional seat solidified. Sen. Paul Harold remained in the race but several Democrats, including Norfolk County DA Bill Delahunt bowed out.

Harold would face incumbent Cong. Gerry Studds in the September primary. On the GOP side, Republicans Michael Crossen and Dan Daly would be on the ballot.

Following through with their vow to defy a public access ban on Long Island, approximately 1000 Quincy residents risked police arrest to get to their favorite viewing area for the majestic Tall Ships Parade of Sail.

The defiant, yet well-behaved contingent of spectators, passed through a police and National Guard barrier without incident after being allowed access to nearby Moon Island.

TALL SHIPS SPECTACLE--Nearly 1000 residents defied a National Guard blockade and marched from Squantum to Long Island to view the Parade of Sail in July. Among the ships gracing Boston Harbor were the Dar Mlodziezy, a Polish full-rigged ship measuring 357 feet and weighing nearly 3000 tons.

Less than 24 hours before the residents broke through the barrier, Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and Quincy Mayor James Sheets had agreed to allow a limited amount of local residents onto Moon Island to view the ships from the Boston Fire Academy. Long Island, a superior vantage point because of its close proximity to Boston Harbor, remained off limits.

In hindsight, allowing spectators onto Moon Island proved to be an open door to Long Island.

Work began on the second half of the Quincy Center traffic and sidewalk improvement project.

The $802,000 refurbishing project called for the repaving of Hancock St. and new concrete sidewalks with real brick accent from Granite St. to School St. and Granite St. to the Parkway.

Other improvements included 34 black antique street lights; new sidewalks on Revere Rd. and Cottage Ave. and portions of Chestnut St., Cliveden St. and Maple St.; and 90 to 100 trees.

Parking meters in the project area were also removed and replaced with free two-hour parking.

A home-rule petition creating the Quincy 2000 public-private partnership was signed into law by Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci at a State House ceremony.

Sheets said the partnership would concentrate on promoting and rejuvenating the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business districts throughout the 1990s and into the 21st century.

The partnership would hold its first organizational meeting in October.

The local area lost one of its more colorful personalities. Hugo E. Lira, 88, of Milton, formerly of Quincy, better known as "Baron Hugo," a legend of the Big Band Era, died at his home July 28.

Among the musicians Hugo shared the stage at the Totem Pole in Nuremberg Park, Auburndale, during the 1940s and early 1950s were Harry James, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Gene Krupa, Guy Lombardo and Bob Crosby. His theme song was "Dancing with the Stars."

In later years, Hugo led smaller musical combos and was a familiar figure at the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageants and the Quincy Sun-Jerry Lewis

A plan proposed by Cong. Gerry Studds to establish a National Clean Water Investment Corporation designed to help fund large scale water projects including the Boston Harbor cleanup was endorsed by some city officials.

Under the plan, projects would be largely financed by big business and industry under a "polluter pays" principle. Up to $25 billion would be put into state revolving funds to help finance state and local clean water projects across the country.

Mayor James Sheets and DPW Commissioner

David Colton called the plan a step in the right direction in stabilizing water and sewer rates. The mayor, and State Rep. Steve Tobin, testified in support of the plan before a House subcommittee on Fisheries and the Environment in Washington, D.C.

Police credited a crime watch program with five weekend arrests in West Quincy. The arrests ranged from prostitution and drug possession.

Variable winds made the 55th edition of Quincy Bay Race week one of the most interesting in years. The annual event featured the first ocean races for the cruising class. However, howling winds cancelled some of the races.

Quincy and MWRA officials locked horns over the operation of the $90 million Fore River sludge treatment facility after a fire in one of the plant's sludge-to-fertilizer pellet dryers closed the plant for a number of days.

MWRA officials asked U.S. District Court Judge A. David Mazzone for permission to resume the dewatering process before the authority's capacity to store untreated sludge at

Nut Island and Deer Island treatment plants "maxed out."

The authority did not ask Mazzone to restart the pelletization process. The fire occurred in a massive dryer which helps convert dewatered sludge into fertilizer pellets.

In the end, Mazzone allowed the dewatering process whereby liquid sludge is flattened out into "sludge cakes" by huge compressors to resume. The pelletization process could not resume until the facility was checked out by a fire protection engineer.

To deal with future problems at the site, the MWRA agreed to supply an on-site monitor to oversee the work of the company hired to operate the plant.

A new magnetic resonance imaging facility was opened at Quincy Hospital, making it the first MRI to be permanently situated on-site at a Massachusetts community hospital.

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team, which won the zone, state and regional crowns in 1975, nearly repeated that triple achievement this year but fell just short in the Northeast Regional Tournament held at Adams Field.

Morrisette dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker to East Hartford in the semifinals played before an estimated 3,000. Trailing in the bottom of the ninth, Morrisette had two runners tagged out at home to end their season on a disappointing note.

The local nine finished the year with a 30-6 record.

CEMENT MASONS put finishing touch on new sidewalks on Cottage St. as part of the $800,000 Quincy Center street and sidewalk improvement project. The project was completed on time and within budget by Derbes Brothers of Quincy.

September

Sen. Paul Harold rode a 7700-vote margin out of Quincy in the Democratic primary but it was not enough as incumbent Cong. Gerry Studds overcame that deficit in the rest of the new sprawling 10th Congressional District to win the nomination.

Studds, seeking an 11th term, would face Republican Dan Daly of Hingham and Independent Jon Bryan of Barnstable in the Nov. 3 final.

Rep. Michael Morrissey won the Norfolk District State Senate seat vacated by Harold, defeating City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, Holbrook Selectwoman Joanne Koval and political neophyte Dorothy Shea of Quincy.

There was no GOP state senate contest, making Morrissey an uncontested candidate in the November final.

Two political newcomers and one incumbent won their respected nominations for state representative.

Michael Bellotti, a Quincy businessman and son of former Atty. General Francis X. Bellotti, won the Democratic nomination for state representative in the First Norfolk District, edging Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien by 94 votes.

Michael Cronin, a Boston University student also making his first run for public office, defeated Susan Gallagher for the Republican nomination in that district.

Bellotti, Cronin and Independent Patrick Conroy would meet in the final.

Incumbent Democrat Ronald Mariano turned back the challenge of George Miller in the Third Norfolk District, assuring Mariano of a return to Beacon Hill since there was no Republican contender.

Turnout in Quincy was 49.6 percent.

A bid to keep the state Department of Education in Quincy was unveiled by Mayor James Sheets and representatives from the three principal property owners of the site.

The owners, known as the Hancock Street Coalition, submitted a bid requesting the state agency and its 400 employees relocate from Quincy Center Plaza to 1495-1515 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

New Recycling Contract To Save Quincy $1.2 Million

The bid called for a three-story, 75,400-square foot building utilizing space at the old Bank of New England, Condye Building and Hancock Plaza.

Sheets and other city officials said keeping the agency in Quincy would give the city additional tax revenue from property taxes and boost business in the city's main retail district.

More than $4,000 was raised at the Quincy Sun-Sons of Italy MDA Activity Center during the Labor Day weekend to help the fight against muscular dystrophy.

One of Wall Street's major credit rating agencies lowered the city's rating one notch, but city officials were not sounding the fiscal alarm.

"We've still got an excellent rating. It didn't have any effect on the city," Auditor Robert Foy said.

After officials attended a credit re-rating conference in March, Standard and Poors, which does not grade as many Massachusetts cities and towns as Moody's, lowered Quincy's rating one grade from A+ to A.

Officials said the lowering was a result of the city's decision to defer $1.9 million in teacher salaries during the summer months of FY92. Without the deferment, officials said there would have been layoffs.

A home-rule petition proposed by Councillor Tim Cahill to establish a new board of trustees to govern Quincy College won the backing of Mayor James Sheets.

Cahill introduced the petition in an effort to relieve the Quincy School Committee of its responsibility to the two-year college.

The federal government appropriated $925,000 to the Adams National Historic Site. Of the amount, $425,000 was earmarked for planning improvements to the Beale Estate which is adjacent to the site; $275,000 for general operating expenses and $200,000 for a general management plan.

Deaths during September included:

Ruth E. Mikami, 68, teacher in Quincy for 26 years; Harry N. Wood, 72, retired Quincy Registry inspector; Kerri-Ann Marshall, 6, a second grader at Merrymount Elementary School, from injuries sustained in a bicycle accident; Marilyn A. Robbins, 55, Quincy school teacher 31 years; and Vincent L. Curren, 78, retired Quincy fire captain.

October

The city renegotiated its rubbish disposal and recycling contract saving Quincy nearly $1.2 million over FY 93 and FY94 and expanding its recycling program to include tin cans and telephone books as well as household hazardous waste collections biannually.

Under the three-year contract, the city will pay BFI $4,219,560 per year. It had been paying $5 million for its trash collection and curbside recycling program.

Officials said they were pleased with the new contract since it saves Quincy money and expands the recycling program by including more materials and making it available to more people.

Besides collecting aluminum, metal cans and telephones books starting Jan. 1, the contract called for a recycling drop-off center and mobile drop-off center as well as a waste oil-drop-off center and a household hazardous waste drop-off twice a year.

BFI also agreed to make regular pick-ups of old appliances. The city would spend up to $50,000 a year promoting the program through mailings, flyers, bumper stickers and other educational materials and mediums.

In an effort to raise public awareness of crime and drug prevention and increase community involvement in crime prevention and other related programs, the city observed Crime Prevention Month with a series of seminars and programs for local citizens.

The awareness campaign included a crime prevention fair and nine seminars on various public safety topics.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the effort was intended to foster more cooperation between officers and residents and make citizens more aware of their surroundings.

"We can't put a police officer on every corner. We're going the route through information and awareness and that's crime prevention," Mullen said.

Last month, Sheets said he was "deeply concerned" over reports of local women being victimized in their own home or apartment.

As of early September, there had been four report incidents where women were sexually assaulted or threatened by an intruder.

Sheets and Mullen said there were confident the large-scale crime prevention campaign would reduce the incidence of sexual assaults, rapes and vandalism in Quincy.

Quincy 2000, a public-private partnership comprising nearly 80 local business, labor and government leaders, held its first organizational meeting.

Sheets said the partnership would initiate a "new era in retail and commercial development" and help lift the city out of the current economic malaise.

Several local churches marked milestones: Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, commemorated its 160th anniversary; St. Joseph's Church in Quincy Point celebrated its 75th anniversary; and the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, North Quincy, celebrated its 50th anniversary.

Another "institution," City Clerk John Gillis, retired after 33 years. A score of past and present city officials honored Gillis at his last City Council meeting Oct. 19 and his last License Board meeting, Oct. 20.

"I'm leaving with fond memories and no regrets. I wish everyone could have experienced being city clerk," Gillis said at his final council meeting.

Janet Hersey Smith and Joseph Smith, parents of 16-year-old Roger Smith, 16, killed two years ago in an auto accident on the Fore River Bridge, held a vigil at the site in an effort to have safety improvements made on the structure which connects Quincy and Weymouth.

Approximately 380 delinquent FY 92 real estate tax titles, totaling about $750,000, had not been paid and the city was preparing to take foreclosure action.

Sentiment for a Quincy College Board of Trustees governance increased after all nine city councillors expressed their support for the change during an Education Committee meeting.

However, before a proposal to replace the School Committee with a Board of Trustees is introduced to the mayor and state legislature, councillors said other related issues, including the status of faculty and staff at the college, must first be resolved.

Quincy Votes For Clinton, Change

Deaths during October were:

Mrs. John J. Twiss, 93, former pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel and former American Legion national chaplain; Grace L. Connelly, 72, retired secretary for Quincy College; Dr. Robert P. McKeogh, 70, former Quincy health commissioner; Rev. John A. Mantia, 37, associate pastor of Central Baptist Church; and Rudolph A. Lofgren, 87, Quincy assistant school superintendent 25 years.

November

Quincy voters, like most in Massachusetts and across the nation, agreed it was time for a change and made Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton their solid choice over President George Bush.

Clinton and his running mate, Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore, carried Quincy by 46 percent to 30 percent for Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle. Third-party ticket H. Ross Perot and Retired Admiral James Stockdale finished third with 22 percent.

Quincy's voter turnout was 85.24 percent as 41,178 of the city's 48,208 voters cast ballots.

In other races: Cong. Gerry Studds defeated Republican Dan Daly and Independent challenger Jon Bryan to win an 11th term, the first in the redrawn 10th Congressional district.

Michael Bellotti won the vacant First Norfolk District state representative seat. He outpolled GOP nominee Michael Cronin and Independent challenger Patrick Conroy.

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall won a fourth term and former City Clerk John Gillis topped the six-candidate field to win one of two open seats on Norfolk County Commission. William O'Donnell won the other seat.

In the Governor's Council contest, Christopher Iannella of Boston finished first in a four-way race.

Election returns in Quincy were monitored by new City Clerk Joseph Shea. Shea, an assistant to Gillis since April, 1991, was unanimously elected by the City Council and sworn-in by City Solicitor Stephen McGrath the day before the election.

City employees agreed to consolidate their health plan choices to save the city money in exchange for a 1.1 percent pay raise. By merging the health plan, officials said the city would save $960,000 through the end of the fiscal year.

In turn, the savings would be turned back to the employees in the form of the 1.1 percent pay hike.

Irate over the decision to move the state Department of Education from Quincy to Malden, Mayor James Sheets and the city's legislative delegation asked the state inspector general to review the bidding process which led to that selection.

The state Department of Planning and Capital Operations chose Malden from among nine proposals for a 10-year lease. DPCCO said the Malden location offered the best combination of price and suitability to the agency's needs.

Compared to Quincy, the Malden office would cost $155,970 more.

Sheets criticized the decision and said he felt there was an effort by the state to first bypass Quincy and Malden and move to Boston, despite higher lease rates. He noted the Board of Education sent a letter to the DPCCO in September indicating its preference for Boston.

The $800,000 Quincy Center reconstruction project finished on time and within budget by the contractor, Derbes Brothers of Quincy.

The project area, essentially on Hancock St. from Granite St. to School St., as well as Revere Rd., Cottage Ave. and Granite St. to the Parkingway, received 34 black historic-style lights and trees as well as new pavement, curbs and sidewalks.

New traffic signalization was implemented to improve traffic flow and increase pedestrian safety.

"America is what is today in large part because of its veterans," was the message delivered by World War II Marine combat veteran and Quincy attorney Paul A.M. Hunt during the city's Veterans Day ceremonies held inside the Quincy High School gym because of inclement weather for the second straight year.

To boost to the city's crime fighting capabilities, Sheets announced he would hire 17 new patrolmen next year and commit resources to offset a projected $250,000 shortfall in the police overtime account and continue current crime prevention programs.

The new officers, expected to hit the streets next July, would increase the number of patrolmen to 150.

A "Walk of Names" brick plaza project in front of City Hall annex was unveiled by officials. The plaza, to be constructed next year, would replace the present granite walkway.

Funding for the project would be financed through the sale of red bricks at $50 each.

More than 60 floats, marching bands, specialty units and color guards marched in the 41st annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

North Quincy High School and its alumni had plenty to cheer about.

First, the girls' volleyball team defended its state Div. I crown with a come-from-behind victory over New Bedford to finish its year undefeated.

Then, the Red Raiders football team finished its regular season unblemished with a 20-0 victory over rival Quincy to win the city championship on Thanksgiving.

North took its 10-0 record into the Div. 1B Super Bowl against Arlington. Quincy finished the year 3-6-1.

Deaths during November included:

Ursula A. Morris, 72, past president of Archbishop Williams Guild; Charles P. Sacchetti, 61, retired Quincy fire captain and former Triple A professional baseball

December

On a 8-1 vote, the City Council adopted Mayor James Sheets' recommended tax rates of $13.46 for homes and $28.79 for businesses, maintaining the same 60-40 percentage split of the tax burden as last year.

An alternative plan offered by Councillor Tim Cahill was defeated. Cahill, noting there has been a three and a half percent decrease in taxable business property since 1988, proposed a slightly higher tax rate of $13.67 residential and slightly less business rate of $28.11.

Other councillors rejected Cahill's plan, saying residents are hurting too much and could not afford the increase.

Dr. Peter Corea was honored on the 45th anniversary of his ordination at a service held at Houghs Neck Congregational Church. Several hundred church members, friends, associates and officials attended the four-hour service and program.

North Quincy High School celebrated its second state championship in as many months after the Red Raiders football squad defeated Arlington 14-9 in the Division 1B championship at snowy Nickerson Field, Boston University.

The Raiders, which compiled a perfect 11-0 mark for the school's best finish ever, held their collective breath after Arlington apparently scored the game-winning touchdown on a "Hail Mary" pass as time ran out.

However, the touchdown call was reversed after the snow was cleared from the field which revealed the Arlington receiver had been downed at the 1-yard line.

The Raiders dedicated the season and title to their beloved ball boy, Tommy Gilmartin, who died of cancer in May.

North Quincy's volleyball team, which completed an undefeated season for their second straight state title, was honored by the City Council.

Officials from the National Park Service, city and United First Parish Church agreed to expand visitation at the historic "Church of Presidents" next spring where Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are buried.

Mayor James Sheets said frequent guided tours at the church between April and November would boost the city's tourism effort and give local retailers a shot in the arm.

Eugene W. Creedon was honored by nearly 1000 well-wishers at a reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club celebrating his appointing as Quincy's 14th school superintendent.

Under ideal weather conditions, approximately 250,000 people lined Hancock Street from Quincy Center to North Quincy to view the 41st annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade themed "Christmas On Parade."

Quincy High School won $1,500 and the Father Thomas Tierney Trophy as the best float.

The season's first winter storm, packing gale force winds and 15-foot high tides, caused an estimated $500,000 in damage to municipal property and thousands of dollars more to private property.

A contingent of local and state officials joined Cong. Gerry Studds on an inspection tour of damage to Quincy's waterfront. The storm damaged or weakened sections of seawall along Houghs Neck, Merrymount and Adams Shore while flooding at least a dozen streets and scores of homes.

Deaths during December included:

Vera L. Humiston, retired accountant in Quincy treasurer's office; William A. Novelli, 89, retired Quincy firefighter and QFD master mechanic; Hugo P. Fabrizio, 71, former Quincy assessor and former owner of Flip's Oil Service; and Alfonso D. Papile, 84, senior citizen activist and former member of Quincy Housing Authority Board of Directors.

THIS ONE'S FOR TOMMY--North Quincy High head football coach Ken McPhee raises his right index finger during the Division 1B championship game against Arlington in December in a salute to Tommy Gilmartin who wore jersey No.1. Tommy, who was the Raiders ball boy for several seasons, died in May. North dedicated its undefeated season and title to Tommy.

North Edges Lakers

The North Quincy boys' basketball team rebounded from its first loss of the season to edge Silver Lake, 45-42, and improve its record to 3-1.

The Raiders played in the Stoughton holiday tournament Tuesday night and last night, will host Brockton next Monday and will be home to Taunton next Wednesday, both games starting at 7 o'clock.

Big Brian Raftery hit a layup with 30 seconds left, breaking a 42-42 tie with Silver Lake and Sean Donovan stole the inbound pass and got fouled. He hit one of two free throws, clinching the victory for North.

Donovan led the Raiders in scoring with 16 points and Raftery chipped in with 11.

Earlier in the week Barnstable defeated North Quincy, 61-53, after the Raiders had won their first two games.

North had three players in double figures as Donovan scored 17 points, Jason McLeod had 12 and Bo Smith scored 10.

Quincy Rolls By Abp. Williams, 75-46

The Quincy boys' basketball team ended a four-game losing streak with a vengeance as it rolled over Archbishop Williams, 75-46, in the consolation round of the Marshfield Holiday tournament Monday night. The Presidents are 1-4.

Quincy will host Plymouth Monday night and will be at Falmouth next Wednesday, both games at 7 p.m.

The Presidents, who had been plagued by poor shooting and too many turnovers and fouls in their first four games, put everything together against Williams as they shot 58 percent from the floor and cut down on their turnovers and fouls.

"The big difference was that we got ourselves a lead and protected it well and we shot much better," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "Three of our losses were by four points or less and the shooting has been the difference."

Quincy had 28 steals using a tough man-to-man defense and an occasional full-court press.

Robbie Kane had eight steals, eight points and six assists. Matt Dwyer had 16 points, Tom Malvesti nine points and John Russell seven points and nine rebounds.

In the opening round of the tournament, Quincy bowed to Scituate, 77-67, as fouls again hurt them. The strong Scituate team improved to 4-0 with the victory.

The Presidents couldn't stop the Sailors' Walter Brown, who had 32 points, including 14 of 17 from the free throw line.

Down, 34-30, at the half, Quincy bounced back to tie the game at 50 midway through the second half but Scituate shot well down the stretch to pull out the win.

Kane had a big night for Quincy with 21 points and Dwyer added 13.

In their previous game the Presidents were walloped by Bridgewater-Raynham, 72-50, with Kane having 12 points for Quincy.

Fennessy Tournament All-Star

Matt Fennessy, a senior guard from Quincy and co-captain of the Boston College High basketball team, was named to the all-tournament team at the first IABBO Tournament held at Harvard.

Fennessy led the Eagles in scoring with 17 points in an opening round win over Billerica. B.C. High lost in the tournament finals to Medford.

Fennessy is one of five Quincy players on the B.C. High squad.

Quincy, North Girls Lose In Tourney

The Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams weren't due to face each other until Jan. 14, but were scheduled to meet Tuesday night in the consolation round of the North Christmas Tournament.

Both teams lost in the opening round of the tournament, North (1-4) bowing to Newton North, 52-41, and Quincy (0-4) losing to Marshfield, 62-53.

The North girls had a bad first half, losing, 30-14, but made a fine comeback after the intermission.

Newton had started fast and had an 18-0 lead. "We had a bad beginning, but played a far better second half," said North coach Ken Panaro. "In the beginning we were hurt by foul trouble but came back as we played much better defense."

Joanne Curreri, Sara Stanton, Regina Murphy and Jennifer Santry had fine games as they sparked North.

The Quincy-Marshfield game was filled with steals, the team combining for 44, and bodies were dropping to the floor all evening.

The Marshfield girls took a 22-12 lead but Quincy had a 16-2 run to take a 29-24 halftime lead.

Quincy took a seven point lead at the start of the second half but Marshfield switched to a tough man-to-man defense and a trapping press which enabled it to come from behind and clinch the win, spoiling the winless Quincy girls' best effort of the season.

Quincy was led by Aime Graham, Laura Marsden, Colleen Gallagher, Sabrina Marotto, Nicole Shaughnessy, Kerry Connolly and Debra Gray.

The North girls will play at Taunton next Wednesday and will host Weymouth Friday, Jan. 8.

Quincy will be at Plymouth Monday and will host Falmouth next Wednesday.

Quincy In Upset Over Boston Latin

By TOM SULLIVAN
The Quincy hockey team had its best game of the season Monday to upset Boston Latin, 4-1, to avenge an earlier defeat and improve its record to 3-2.

The Presidents played at Rockland Tuesday, will host Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday night at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will play at Plymouth next Wednesday night at 6 o'clock.

Boston Latin had defeated Quincy, 5-1, in the Presidents' opening game of the season, but Quincy, sparked by sophomore Mark Smith's outstanding performance in goal, had a complete turnaround on Monday. Smith had 22 saves, several of them spectacular.

Sean McArdle had a goal and three assists, Jeff Craig a goal and an assist, David Cooper and Scott MacPherson a goal each and Steve Miller and Dan Morrell an assist apiece.

"This was a big win for us," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "Latin has virtually an all-senior team and is one of the top teams in Boston. Everyone did his job in this game and it was an excellent all-around performance."

In its previous game Quincy had lost to undefeated Weymouth, 5-2, as the Wildcats' Christian Tate had a hat trick.

Mite House

Gibbons Sparks Campbell

The Paul Harold Club defeated Barry's Deli, 6-2, in Mite House League action at the Youth Arena.

Matt Gregory had two goals and Rene Lumaghini, Tommy Hughes, Matt Holt and Brian Stock one each. Holt had two assists and Stock, Ryan Barry, and Hughes one each. David Germain and Matt Glynn scored for Barry's and Germain had an assist. Despite the loss, Barry's goalie Andy Ross was outstanding.

Mark Gibbons scored four goals to lead Campbell's Auto Service over Samoset Pharmacy, 7-3. Joe Callahan, John Chevalier and Paul Flynn had a goal each. Joe Jackson had two assists and Matt Alleva, Flynn and Chevalier one apiece. THE LATEST inductees into the Quincy High Baseball Hall of Fame. Seated, left to right, Frank Osborne, who accepted for his late brother, Bill; Joseph Comparato, who accepted for his brother Fred; Andy Carrera and Mark Dwyer. Standing, left to right, Peter Olson, who accepted for his late father, Ted; Bill Osborne, Bob Mina, Bob Petrucci, Ron DiNardo and Chris Cummings, who accepted for Dick Taylor.

Special Awards Also Presented

10 Inducted Into Quincy High Baseball Hall Of Fame

Ten former Quincy High baseball players were added to the Hall of Fame at the recent induction dinner at the Sons of Italy Hall.

The new inductees were as follows:

Fred Comparato, 1928. A three-sport letterman and an All-South Shore selection in baseball, basketball and football. Played at Syracuse and was a high school coach, teacher and athletic director. Now living in Florida, his award was accepted by his brother, Joe.

The late Ted Olson, 1930. After an outstanding high school career he went on to pitch for the Red Sox. His award was accepted by his son Peter.

The late William Osborne, 1937. An outstanding player and a hustler who always gave 110 percent, his award was accepted by his brother, Frank.

Dick Taylor, 1956. Twice struck out 20 batters in a game, made the Herald and Globe all-scholastic teams and played in the minors. His award was accepted by Rick Cummings.

Bob Mina, 1962. Outstanding right hand pitcher, struck out 20 in a game but lost, a fine basketball player who is also a member of the Quincy Basketball Hall of Fame.

Bill Osborne, 1966. A strong leader who played tough and was a standout catcher.

Bob Petrucci, 1967. Captain of a team that reached the semifinals of the state tournament. Played for four years at North Adams State.

Ron DiNardo, 1968. Had a tryout with the Yankees, played on the Hearst all-star team, played at Northeastern for two years and played at Fenway Park in the NCAA Tournament.

Mark Dwyer, 1974. A second basemen-pitcher who also starred in basketball, played on the Quincy Firemen's championship Babe Ruth League team and with Morrisette Legion's Northeast Regional champions in the Legion World Series and played at Mass. Bay Community College, earning all-New England honors.

Andy Carrera, 1980. A pitcher-outfielder, pitched Quincy's only win in a disappointing season. Also starred for Morrisette and the Quincy basketball team.

Special awards went to Ray Dunn and Fred Coolen, longtime Quincy Babe Ruth League coaches; the late Dick Koch, who devoted his life to youth of Quincy (his award was accepted by his wife Simone), and Tom Sullivan of The Quincy Sun for his coverage of baseball in the city of Quincy.

Steve Loud, now attending Suffolk University, received the annual Paul Grasso

Memorial Scholarship. Loud was a standout for the past three years at Quincy High, pitching a no-hitter last year. He also played with Wollaston Legion.

Grasso, a former Quincy player, was killed in Vietnam. The award was presented by members of the Grasso family.

Bob Basiliere, a member of the Hall of Fame, who coached at Quincy from 1961-1972, coached Mina, Osborne, Petrucci and DiNardo and presented their trophies.

The other trophies were presented by Hall of Fame committee chairman Joe Brill, who was the master of ceremonies.

Among those introduced were Quincy High principal Lloyd Hill, retired athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan, junior varsity coach Mike Draicchio and former junior varsity coach and current Sterling Middle School principal Rich Hutchinson.

Also introduced were City Council president

Chuck Phelan, who spoke briefly; councillors Ted DiCristofaro and Tim Cahill, Ray Cattaneo, manager and former longtime Morrisette Legion coach who coached several members of the Hall of Fame, and Tom Koch, executive secretary to the mayor.

Several former Hall of Fame inductees were introduced including Nick and Tom Malvesti, the Hall's only father and son.

Draicchio introduced freshman coach Larry Taglieri, longtime scorer-statistician George Peachey and the senior members of the high school team, Noel DiBona, Robbie Kane and Jeff Craig.

The Hall of Fame committee included Brill, Basiliere, Cattaneo, Nick and Tom Malvesti, Bud Mosher, Peachey, Bill Sullivan and Bob Sylvia.

Also serving on the dinner committee were Ron DiNardo, Draicchio, John Franceschini, Tom Perry and Bob Benn.

Wrestling

Quincy Wins Two

The Quincy wrestling team, which lost its first three meets, came back to defeat Waltham, 39-34, and Acton-Boxboro, 45-27.

The Presidents, who are competing in the annual Lowell tournament this week, will compete in a Pittsfield tourney Saturday and will be home to Plymouth next Wednesday night at 7 o'clock.

Quincy's Ashley Davis improved to 5-0 with two victories at 152 pounds. Mark Froelich had double wins at 103 as did Shane O'Connor at 112, Peter Penwarden at 125, Damien Carini at 145 and Mark Nutley in the heavyweight division.

John Cheverie pinned his opponent at 130 in the Waltham meet.

The Quincy Recreation Department will conduct two separate exercise classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School gymnasium beginning Jan. 4.

The 6 p.m. class will be low and high impact aerobic exercise.

The 7 p.m. class will feature strength and stretching exercises designed to improve tone, flexibility and endurance of specific body areas. Both classes will be taught by Debbie Vacca.

Registration for the classes can be done at the program and participants can elect two options for payment: a $30 one time fee for all classes from Jan 4 to April 28, or $3 for each individual class, payable at the time of the class. Participants in the 7 p.m. class may also participate in the adult swim at 8 p.m. in the pool located in the same building.

The program is open to persons past high school age. A towel or exercise mat is recommended and proper gym attire is requested.

For more information call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

AN OPTION FOR BATTER TRACTION

To be sure, limited-slip differential is a fairly complex term that is used to describe some pretty complex technology beneath those cars that come equipped with it. What car owners should know is that choosing a limited-slip differential as an option makes driving a car a safer proposition. Here is why: When a car travels in a straight line, wheels on opposite sides of the car turn at the same rate. However, when a car turns, those wheels on the outside of the curve turn faster than those on the inside. To compensate for this difference in outer and inner wheel speed, cars use a component known as a differential. As a further refinement, a limited-slip differential sees to it that drive wheels on both sides get equal traction when one hits a slippery patch on the road.

HINT: Without limited-slip differential, most of the engine's power goes to the slipping wheel, thereby further reducing traction. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO would like to remind you that our technicians here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550 look forward to the challenge of giving your car the same level of personal attention they give their own. Whether you suspect a problem with your differential or any other part of your car, make us your first stop. We will use our All-Data computer to make sure we have all the necessary information about your particular car. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open Mon.-Fri. 6 am-9 pm, Sat., 7 am-9 pm, Sun., 9 am-5 pm.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

To each and every one of you, we at the Deware Funeral Home wish you a happier, healthier and more prosperous New Year.

As we begin the New Year, let us all start with a Positive Mental Attitude (P.M.A.) it is always easier to downgrade or negatively criticize someone or some project. So instead, let each of us try P.M.A. for the coming year.

Begin by believing in yourself ... If you first accept and like yourself, you can then accept and like others. By having confidence in your own abilities, whether as a father, mother, daughter, son, businessman or woman, etc., you will very likely succeed. A happy successful individual is one who is apt to have trust and faith in others and inspires them to have faith in themselves and to likewise succeed in their endeavors.

Believe in yourself, your family and your friends. Look for the good in all these and do something for each of them each day. This is what life is all about! This is P.M.A. ...

Seymour Jacobs, 57 Owned Stamp Auction House

A funeral service for Seymour "Simmy" Jacobs, 57, of Quincy, was held Dec. 24 in Temple Beth El.

Mr. Jacobs died Dec. 22 at Quincy Hospital.

He was the former owner and operator of Simmy's Stamp Co., one of the largest rare postage stamp auction houses in the country. He was listed by the American Stamp Dealers Association as one of the top 10 U.S. philatelic auction houses in the country in the 1970s and early 1980s.

He started collecting stamps as a hobby and at age 16, his hobby became a thriving business that kept him on the move around the United States.

When he moved his shop to Quincy in 1984, he auctioned a two-cent stamp with an upside-down engraving that was expected to bring up to $30,000. His three 90-cent Lincoln stamps were valued at $10,000 to $15,000 each.

For the auction he prepared a buffet of Chinese food, a specialty that became another part-time career. With his Chinese cooking he catered parties for family, friends and strangers.

He grew flowers and vegetables in a greenhouse to his home and had large

Allan F. MacDonald, 74 Retired Quincy Building Inspector; Responsible For Smoke Detector Law

A funeral Mass for Allan F. MacDonald, 74, of Quincy, Quincy's building inspector for 20 years and the man responsible for the city's requirement for smoke detectors in dwellings, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church.

Mr. MacDonald died Dec. 23 at home after a long illness.

Upset at the loss of life in house fires in Quincy, he pushed hard for passage of an ordinance mandating detectors in all new construction. He won support in editorials, and his proposal became a national model, as it was one of the first such laws in the country.

Known as a stickler for detail and a man of integrity, he was not averse to stepping on toes, political or otherwise, in a cause he thought was right.

Once, city officials were going to allow a merchant to deviate from the rules. Mr. MacDonald told them if they did he was going to to others who had been turned down for the same exception that they could go ahead with their plans. That ended that.

Although he was strict in enforcing city codes, he often told applicants how they could change their plans to conform and still get what they wanted. That kindness was not required in his job description.

He drew praise from several city officials upon his 1986 retirement.

His first city job was assistant building inspector, a position he held from 1951 to 1966, when he was named building inspector.

Before joining the city, he was a carpenter with a construction firm that built Howard Johnson restaurants along the East Coast.

When Camp Edwards was being constructed for the Army on Cape Cod, he got a job there.

He served in the Navy and took flight training during World War II. He was stationed on Guam for a time. He never lost his love of flying, and it was only a couple of months ago that he reluctantly sold his Piper Comanche, a single-engine plane he kept at Norwood Airport.

ALLAN MACDONALD

He and his wife traveled to Florida in the plane several times. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald also took commercial airlines to other parts of the world.

He was a skier and yachtsman.

His first venture in building a boat came when he was 5 years old. With help from his father, he put one together. He later built, sold, swapped and continued moving up to better boats. He won a number of boat-racing prizes in his youth.

A 1940 graduate of Wentworth Institute in Boston, he had attended Quincy High School and St. John's School.

He was a member of the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans, the Norwood Airport Association, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, the Massachusetts Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association, and the board of directors of the Granite Cooperative Bank.

He was a member of the Quincy License Board and the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals.

He is survived by his wife, Stephanie (Nawrocki) MacDonald; a stepson, Craig S. Whitehead of Miami, Fla.; two brothers, Donald E. MacDonald of Quincy and John A. MacDonald of Squantum; a sister, J. Clare Fallon of Quincy; two stepgrandchildren; and several nieces and nephews. He was the brother of the late Douglas J. MacDonald.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the QVNA Hospice Program, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Financial Assistance Reimbursement Briefing Jan. 6

By MICHAEL WHALEN

In the wake of the powerful northeaster that caused flooding, poor road conditions, and a number of other problems across the state, the City of Quincy will host a Public Assistance Financial Reimbursement Briefing for the cities and towns of Norfolk County.

The briefing will be held Wednesday, Jan. 6 at 10 a.m. at the National Fire Protection Association Headquarters, One Batterymarch Park. It is being coordinated by the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency in conjunction with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano stressed that while all of the city's public officials have been invited to attend, the briefing is not open to the public.

"The (financial) reimbursement wouldn't be for families," said Siciliano. "It would be mainly for the larger city projects, things like the seawalls."

Private, non-commercial organizations are also related for storm-related reimbursement and are invited to attend, Siciliano said.

For more information regarding the briefing, call the MEMA Area II Southeastern Massachusetts office at 1-508-697-3600 or 1-508-697-3111.

By virtue of an Agreement for Judgment filed with the Quincy District Court (Docket No. 92-587) in favor of Barbara Gates et als, Trustees of Marina Point Condominium Trust v. Mary Helen Doyle establishing a lien pursuant to M.G.L. c. 183A, Sec. 6 on the real estate known as Unit 602E (Parking Space No. 140) in Marina Point East in Marina Point Condominium, located at 1001 Marina Drive, Marina Bay, Quincy, MA, and created by Master Deed dated August 10, 1987 filed with the Norfolk Registry District of the Land Court as Document No. 528881, as amended, together with the Unit's undivided percentage interest in the common areas and facilities of the Condominium, and together with such other rights and easements and obligations appurtenant to the Unit as may be set forth in any document governing the operation of the Condominium, without limitation, the Master Deed, the by-laws of the organization of unit owners and any administrative rules and regulations adopted pursuant thereto. Being the same premises conveyed to Mary H. Doyle by deed filed with said Registry District as Document No. 551931, Certificate of Title C193-201.

Terms of Sale:

1. Non-refundable certified check for $3,000.00 to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of the auction.
2. The balance of the purchase price to be paid within thirty days of the sale.
3. Release Deed from Trustees of Marina Point Condominium Trust to be issued to purchaser upon payment in full of sale price. The deed shall convey the premises subject to, and with the benefit of, any restrictions, easements, improvements, assessments, encumbrances, liens or claims in the nature of liens which are, by operation or shall be made by Seller as to the status of any mortgage.
5. Other terms to be announced at the sale. The sale is pursuant to an agreement for judgment filed on May 4, 1992, which is published herewith.

Premises specified in the complaint, to wit: COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS QUINCY DISTRICT COURT NORFOLK, SS CIVIL ACTION NO. 92-587 BARBARA GATES, JOSEPH KILLION, CHARLES BUBELLO, MICHAEL FEINBERG and PETER DIPALO, AS TRUSTEES OF MARINA POINT CONDOMINIUM TRUST vs. MARY HELEN DOYLE JUDGEMENT

1. This cause of action came on for hearing on assessment of Damages before this Court and by agreement, after consideration of the facts, it is hereby ORDERED and ADJUDGED:

A. That the defendant is indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $2,263.35 for common charges, interest as set forth in the By-Laws of the condominium plus statutory interest, plus court costs.

B. That said defendant is further indebted to the plaintiffs in the sum of $680.29 for reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

C. Accordingly, plaintiffs shall recover of defendant $2,263.35 with interest plus attorneys fees and costs in the sum of $2,943.64.

2. That a lien under G.L. c. 183A has been established, a certified copy of the Complaint having been filed in the appropriate Registry of Deeds, and that, therefore, pursuant to G.L. c. 183A, the plaintiffs shall have the right to foreclose on said lien and enter and sell said premises specified in the Complaint, to wit:

Unit #602E Marina Point Condominium. Certificate of Title #C193-201 filed in the Norfolk Registry District of the Land Court.

3. That in accordance with G.L. c. 183A, §6 this lien has priority over all liens and encumbrances with the exception of the first mortgage, municipal taxes, and federal tax liens.

4. That the above-mentioned sale shall be subject to the first mortgage, outstanding taxes and any other encumbrances which by law would have priority over this lien and that the plaintiffs may enter upon and sell the premises in an attempt to satisfy this judgment and lien in whole or in part.

5. That said sale and entry shall be held only after the plaintiffs have advertised the sale together with the location thereof and the terms of sale, and further together with a copy of this judgment in The Quincy, a newspaper of local jurisdiction, once per week for a period of three weeks, first publication date to be no later than 21 days before the date of sale.

complex. To compensate for lost parking spaces, the complex will include a parking garage with approximately 600 spaces. Sheets said the exact size of the garage will not be known until after a bid is selected.

Sheets said the design work for the project will likely begin in February and he hopes ground is broken later next year. "We're going to fast track this plan."

The mayor said he will also touch on other subjects during his Mid-Term Address, including education, recycling, public safety, tourism, historical development and infrastructure improvements.

Although the mayor has said he will seek a third term, he will not make that announcement Monday. Instead, he will wait until later in January.

Phelan To Be Re-elected Council President At Mid-Term Meeting

Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan will be re-elected council president at the council's Mid-Term meeting Monday, Jan. 4 at 10 a.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers.

Phelan, serving his third two-year term as Ward 5 councillor, was elected council president last January. Council presidents may serve two consecutive one year terms.

After his election, Phelan will be sworn in by City Clerk Joseph Shea. The council president will then offer some remarks.

Phelan's election will follow Mayor James Sheets' Mid-Term address. Other items on the council's agenda are:

- Nomination and election of Clerk of Committees.

- Election by ballot of two members for Board of Supervisors to Quincy Hospital.

- Election by ballot of two members of the Adams Temple and School Fund.

Rev. Russell F. Metcalfe, Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, will deliver the invocation. Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, will give the benediction.

After the benediction, the council the recess and reconvene Monday, Jan. 11.

Lincoln School Topic At Ward 4 Meeting

Superintendent of Schools Eugene Crendon will discuss plans for rebuilding the Lincoln School during a Ward 4 Neighborhood Association meeting, Tuesday, Jan. 12 at 7 p.m. at the Faith Lutheran Center, 65 Roberts St.

Credon will also discuss the Community Center for South and West

Quincy which will be located in the new school.

Also, Alba Tocchi and Steve Cantelli will update the plans for the granite workers statue.

Members are reminded to bring discarded hearing aids and eyeglasses for the needy.
